I thought everyone was killed as the big ship plowed into the ground, but within five minutes a half-dozen Tommies spilled out and looked cautiously around. One pointed a gun at me.

I waved a white handkerchief frantically, shouting: "I'm an American. Don't shoot."

Later Lieut. James Leadson, formerly of Liverpool, confided that he had been about to shoot because he thought my unorthodox uniform was something new in German dress. I was wearing a United States "Paris type" dress uniform instead of combat garb.

Other Close Calls

That was the first of a series of close calls crowded into the next 24 hours in the "Little Arnhem" these British airborne soldiers and I had for ourselves.

By 11 A.M. the British soldiers had taken a farmhouse at the end of the field in which there were six German soldiers. We had a dozen wounded with us. Machine guns chattered nervously and snipers' bullets whined outside. We were 6 miles from the Rhine between Hamminkeln and Rangenburg.

By noon we had an anti-tank gun set up and one artillery piece in place. Then we just waited.

Shoot Up Tiger Tank

At 3 P.M. we were still waiting. Liberator bombers had come in at suicide height—100 feet—to drop supplies. But they had missed our immediate area.

We shot up a Nazi Tiger tank across the road to our left. Montgomery's artillery from the west was pouring thousands of shells over our heads into German positions. But the Nazis had not yet tried to overrun our position.

After nightfall an eight-man patrol went out to raid a German ack-ack emplacement. Two came back. Only the terrific roar of artillery and planes broke the suspense for the next few hours. Then it came.

Gun Shot Shakes House

At 2 A.M. the tremendous roar of a Nazi field gun shook the farmhouse in which we were huddled. A machine gun opened fire and rifles began cracking. I was shaking all over and could hardly write as I tried to take notes.

Shells hit the house and set it on fire. I raced upstairs to a back bedroom with a half dozen British soldiers. They kicked out the window and jumped down. The Germans were yelling outside. I decided to stay in the room.

Drops Out Window

I waited for 15 minutes and things quieted down somewhat. Then I dropped out the window. The fire was lighting everything up like daylight. I heard a German shouting close by and I quickly yelled out "kamerad." But there was no answer.

Hugging a fence I crawled away from the blazing house. For the next four hours I walked, crawled, ran and sweated my way through field after field of gliders. Artillery and other guns were going off on both side of me.

Finally at 6.25 A.M. a couple of American helmets popped up a few yards away. They were doughboys from an engineer battalion. I had finally made it.

Hoge Captures Bridges Intact

With U.S. 3d Army, March 26 (AP), Brig. Gen. William M. Hoge is making a habit of capturing important German bridges intact.

Hoge commanded the combat force which seized the Remagen bridge over the Rhine in a coup that gave the 1st Army its entry into the heart of Germany.

Now Hoge, transferred from the 9th Armored Division to command of the famous 4th Armored Division of the 3d Army, has taken the Aschaffenburg bridge over the Main River east of Frankfurt.

Builder of the Alaska highway, Hoge in his new command succeeds Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey, of Austin, Texas, who has been promoted to a corps commandership.

Churchill Crosses Rhine Again

London, March 26 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill, accompanied by Field Marshal Montgomery, visited the British 2d Army front east of the Rhine today. He had visited the United States 9th Army's bridgehead Sunday.

The Prime Minister is expected to give the House of Commons an eyewitness account on his return to London.

Churchill almost certainly will appear in the House before its adjournment Thursday for the Easter holiday, and it was felt he would not miss the opportunity to describe the opening phases of what he has called "the big heave."

Had Close Shave

The Prime Minister had a close call while standing at the shattered western end of the bridge at Wesel. Guided by Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the 9th Army, the Prime Minister had inspected recently occupied areas and had returned to the west bank when a German shell crashed 50 yards away. Churchill was peering through binoculars at the remains of the German town of Wesel at the time. Other enemy shells landed in the river near by.

Churchill earlier met Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the imperial staff; General Eisenhower, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chief of the American 12th Army Group, at field headquarters of Maj. Gen. John Anderson, commander of the American 16th Corps. Eisenhower was called away before the party crossed to the east bank.

The Prime Minister made the crossing to the American bridgehead in an American landing craft. He was persuaded by Simpson not to walk to the nearest village because it had not yet been cleared of mines.

'Ike' And 'Monty' Get King George's Thanks

London, March 26 (AP)—King George VI today thanked General Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery for "the triumphant passage of the Rhine," an accomplishment which the King said had stirred him deeply.

In separate telegrams, the King thanked all services through their commanders for their part in the triumph.

His message to Eisenhower called the crossing a military achievement "of the greatest significance to the whole world," and added:

"I would express my gratitude to those in all services who won this great and glorious victory."

Montgomery was told that "your triumphant passage of the Rhine into the heart of the enemy territory has stirred us all very deeply and I am more proud than I can say of the gallant part my sailors, soldiers and airmen have played in it."

Allied Warning Given Germany's Slave Labor

New York, March 26 (AP)—Supreme Allied headquarters in a broadcast to foreign workers remaining inside the zone of operations in the Ruhr and the Frankfurt and Mannheim areas, told them today to "accept at any price Nazi attempts to lead you deeper into Germany."

The broadcast, by the Luxembourg radio, called on foreign workers to "notice what is going on and assist the Allied troops." The workers were instructed to leave the towns and "take shelter at the safest spot and remain hidden there" until they were certain the fighting had passed.

3d Army Leads In Seizing Nazis

New York, March 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army took first place today among all the nine Allied armies on the Western front in the capture of prisoners, building its total to 301,478.

The 3d went to the head of General Eisenhower's class over the 1st Army, in combat two months longer, which has seized 299,916 Germans on the Western front. All armies on the Western front have announced the capture of at least 1,169,947 prisoners, more than 40,000 of them yesterday.

Latest figures announced showed the 9th Army with 94,645 and the 7th Army with 113,096—counting only 15,000 of the Germans captured in the Palatinate and Saarland.

The French 1st Army has taken 85,841, the Canadian 1st Army, 143,614; the British 2d, 107,847; the Allied 1st Airborne, 3,500, and the FFI, 20,010. The American 15th Army has not yet reported.

U. S. Artillery Sinks Ship At Besieged French Port

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, March 26—Hundreds of miles behind the western front on a sector that the war almost forgot, artillerymen of the United States Sixty-sixth Division sank a 7,000-ton German freighter today after she put into Lorient.

It was the third enemy ship sunk by shell fire there in three days. Some 25,000 Germans have been besieged since last summer in the Atlantic port, 600 miles from Third Army columns racing across Central Germany.

YANKS 54 MILES PAST FRANKFURT, RADIO SAYS

NEW YORK, March 26.—(AP) The BBC said tonight it had heard a broadcast by the station in Frankfurt, Germany, saying Allied armored spearheads had driven within ten miles of Fulda, 54 miles northeast of Frankfurt. This was not confirmed by any Allied source. The British broadcast was heard by NBC and CBS.

Canadian 3d Division Fights On West Front

Ottawa, March 26 (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced today that the Canadian 3d Division was participating in the new Rhine offensive with the British 2d Army.

He added in Commons that German resistance west of the Rhine had "practically collapsed" and he had reason to hope the end "may not long be delayed."

Veterans Returning to Battle Scorn Attitude of Home Front

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION ACROSS THE RHINE, March 26—(AP) If a lot of people at home could see themselves as they appear to battle veterans after two and a half years of combat they would not be proud of the picture.

But that's the way it is. The men told their stories today as they waited in a little room near the front for an officer to escort them back to the 26th regiment, which they left Jan. 12 for home leave.

There were 19 of them. Their leave was ended and they were going back into battle.

All had been overseas with the First division from the time it landed in North Africa. Most wore the Purple Heart and many had decorations for bravery. They were going back into the line with vivid memories of home, but not all of them were happy.

Sure, it was good to be home again and just sit around and do nothing but listen to the radio and eat home cooking, they agreed. The girls were wonderful and more sympathetic than most of the boys thought they would be. Home was just like it always was, but still:

"Things have changed," said Staff Sgt. Howard Ashby, Martinsburg, W. Va. "Sometimes I didn't think the people thought much of a soldier or the way we acted. May be it was just me.

"There were not many of my friends left at home. Most of them are in the Army and there were just a few guys left. Somehow you were disappointed in seeing you didn't really mean anything to a lot of people, even if you had been fighting for more than two years. Your family's not that way of course, but other people are."

"Yeah," said Sgt. Michael Halko of Stockton, Pa., "some people feel the war, but others don't give a damn. They are making a lot of money and doing all right.

"Why there was one woman who is making a lot of money in war work who said she hoped the war lasted 10 more years. Can you figure that one out? I had a notion to slap her face, but I didn't.

"Then some people who had sons overseas seemed to resent the fact that I was at home and their boys were not. They would ask me why was I allowed to come home when their boys weren't. All I could say was that I didn't have anything to do about anybody getting home. It wasn't my fault."

Staff Sgt. John Duda, Adah, Pa., said:

"When you tell 'em a story they won't believe it. They say it couldn't be that bad and then most people start talking about their own troubles and how tough it is at home with rationing.

"Old veterans knew what we were talking about. They understand what the score is and don't ask too many questions."

Capt. Linwood Billings, Dover, N. H., said that was the way most of the men felt.

"Most people don't know what is going on," he said. "I would say 75 per cent of the people at home are behind the war effort and the other 25 don't give a damn.

"It is different in smaller towns because they feel closer to the war. In Dover, people know just about all the boys who are overseas and they are glad to see them when they get home. Most everybody there is doing war work too, or trying to do something to help."

Lt. Steve Phillips, Jr., of Greenville, S. C., said:

"I felt lost at times with most of my old friends gone. All I wanted to do was stay at home with my wife. I told her I guess she thought I was crazy just sitting and listening to the radio and reading the papers, but she said she was happy and that was all that mattered. That was enough for me."

NAZIS PLEADING WITH PEOPLE TO KEEP ON FIGHTING

LONDON, March 26—(AP) Nazi propagandists pleaded with the German people tonight to fight on "though the situation may appear hopeless," and military commentators warned that the German Western front was in danger of being split at Frankfurt-on-Main.

Transocean's Guenther Weber declared that "to the Germans it is immaterial whether we hold a mile of ground more or less, but it is vital for us to maintain a continuous front from the Swiss frontier to Holland."

Decisive Battle Raging

Although Allied pressure also on the East front the Germans eyed the west more apprehensively. An official Berlin military spokesman declared that "the decisive fighting of the whole war now is unequivocally in the west."

Propagandist Dr. Rudolf Semmler declared "we must not lose our courage, strength or self-confidence. We've kept our heads over other situations which appeared to be hopeless so why should we act otherwise now."

He conceded, however, that Germany was in the direst straits for material.

"Don't let's deceive ourselves about the present serious situation," said the DNB home service. "In the east and west our enemies besiege and storm against fortress Germany hoping to crush our resistance by grandstyle, synchronised offensives x x x Eisenhower and Montgomery are out to force a decision at all costs.

"But we must show them that it can't be a Sunday afternoon walk into the central Reich. Our slogan must and will be 'kill the enemy wherever you meet him. Don't waver or give way. Drown the enemy in his own blood. If Germany is destined to become a graveyard let us make it the graveyard of our enemies.'"

A German underground report said Field Marshal Walther von Model, commander of the German northern armies, had been wounded March 16 by a bomb, necessitating the summons of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring from Italy to take charge of the Western front after Field Marshal von Rundstedt was removed.

Two Generals Removed

Another report said two generals and an air force marshal had been removed as the result of sharp differences between various air force chiefs and the Nazi high command. Those reported removed were Field Marshal Baron Wolfram von Richthofen, cousin of the famous World War ace, who had been in charge of the German air force armament; Maj. Gen. Deichmann, air force chief in Italy, and Lt. Gen. Fiedig, air force chief in the Balkans and Hungary.

Rumors that Reichmarshal Hermann Goering, chief of the air force, had been arrested also were heard in foreign capitals.

The Moscow radio broadcast a statement by the free German committee declaring that "the entire officer corps of the Wehrmacht has been eliminated and replaced by Himmler's SS" through "intrigues, dismissals, wholesale arrests, suicides and war casualties."

Wave Of Defeatism In Reich 'At Height'

London, March 26 (AP)—General Eisenhower's Rhine offensive has plunged the German people into the deepest gloom, dispatches from neutral European capitals said today, but there seemed to be general agreement that it still is too early to look for a complete collapse of the German home front.

Advices from Bern said the comparative ease with which the Allied armies swept across the Rhine had started the greatest wave of defeatism and despair yet recorded in Germany.

Fear Of Gestapo Still Great

These dispatches emphasized, however, that even though the German people apparently have lost all hope, their fear of the Gestapo still is so great that any immediate uprising to oust the Nazis and bring a quick peace seems unlikely.

Similar views were expressed by Christer Jaederlund, veteran Swedish newspaper correspondent who has just returned to Stockholm from Berlin.

Jaederlund indicated that the German people were dispirited and heartily sick of the war, but added:

Food Is Their Gauge

"Revolution from below still looks highly improbable in Germany unless starvation drives the people into the streets or a beaten army floods back in a state of disintegration.

"The first sign of a real collapse of the Nazi food system will cause more panic in the Reich than the worst military defeat.... The Germans now associate the duration of the war with the food supply."

There were some hints that the first real break on the German home front—when it comes—may develop in Austria. Swiss frontier reports said opposition to the Nazis appeared to be increasing in Austria and that leaflets had been secretly circulated in Vienna urging-Nazi demonstrations.

These reports asserted that 60,000 Austrians had fled into the hills to avoid conscription for the Volkssturm (People's Army).

Reaction Of Press

The Nazi press, meanwhile, apparently was trying to prepare the German people for further reverses. German broadcasts last night quoted the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung as saying that Eisenhower's offensive had shifted the "center of gravity of the war to the west."

The paper warned that "it would be senseless to shut one's eyes to the significance of the successes achieved by the Americans in the last few days," but tried to bolster home morale by asserting that the Allies "will not take the German armies by surprise."

Adolph Hitler's own Volkischer Beobachter predicted an Allied drive into the great northern German plain and more airborne landings.

Nazis Deny Executing Chutists

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—German military authorities were quoted in a Transocean Agency broadcast today as denying "Eisenhower's allegation" that they had issued orders to execute Allied parachute troops. The broadcast saidthe Allied airborne troops were "being attacked according to the recognized rules of warfare."

SS Seen in Control of Army

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—The Moscow radio today broadcast a statement by the Free German Committee there declaring "the entire officer corps of the Wehrmacht has been eliminated and replaced by Himmler's SS" through "intrigues, dismissals, wholesale arrests, suicides and war casualties."

Nazi Marshal Wounded

London, March 26 (AP)—A German underground report today said Field Marshal Walther von Model, commander of the northern group of armies on the Western front, had been wounded by a bomb.

The report said Model's injury necessitated the quick switch of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring from Italy to take charge of the Western front when von Rundstedt was removed.

Differences Reported

Coupled with this report was another which said sharp differences between various air force chiefs and the Nazi high command had culminated in the removal of an air force marshal and two generals. These were reported to be Field Marshal Baron Wolfram von Richthofen, cousin of the famous World War ace, who had been in charge of German air force armament; Major General Deichmann, air force chief in Italy, and Lieutenant General Fiedig, air force chief in the Balkans and Hungary.

A similar report concerning Richthofen came from neutral capitals a few days ago.

Goering Arrest Rumored

Rumors that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, chief of the air force, has been arrested also have been heard in foreign capitals, but have not been corroborated.

The reports concerning Model did not say how seriously he had been injured, but stated that he was struck down March 16, two days after Rundstedt was taken out of the German lineup.

YANK AIRMEN AID RUSSIANS

RAF Mosquito Bombers Hit Berlin During Night

London, Tuesday, March 27 (AP). United States heavy bombers, striking from bases in both Britain and Italy, attacked German industrial targets ahead of the Russian eastern offensive yesterday and during the night RAF Mosquito bombers followed up with their thirty-fifth consecutive bombing of Berlin.

A staff officer of the United States 8th Air Force said the American bombers were able to switch their attention from western to eastern Germany because the situation in the west was "well enough in hand to warrant the shift."

For the first time in a week American heavy bombers went back to the familiar job of blasting German oil refineries. More than 300 Flying Fortresses escorted by 450 Mustangs attacked two oil plants, a gun factory and an armored car works in southeastern Germany.

Eaker Belittles Nazis

Flying Fortresses of the United States 15th Air Force lent support to the Russian drive by attacking rail yards at Szombathely, Brueck, Straszhof and Wiener Neustadt in Austria and Mustangs raked rail lines between Vienna and Czechoslovakia.

Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, chief of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force, declared the German Air Force is "virtually grounded; I mean just that."

Red Planes Add Weight

The Britain-based 8th Air Force heavy bombers and fighters split into two task forces over Leipzig. One went after a synthetic-oil plant and a natural-oil refinery at Zeitz, 20 miles south of Leipzig, while the other flew to Plauen, 10 miles from Czechoslovakia, and blasted a gun factory and armored-car works.

The German radio reported that battered Berlin was attacked from the east during the day, indicating Red Army planes were adding weight to the blows.

Medium, light and fighter-bombers from Continental bases kept up their constant attacks along the east bank of the Rhine in support of the ramapaging Allied armies, although operations were somewhat restricted because of a steady rain along the Rhine.

Planes Hit 2 Nazi Oil Refineries, 2 War Plants

London, March 26 (AP)—Two oil plants, a gun factory and an armored-car works in southeastern Germany were attacked today by 300 escorted American bombers as the airmen switched back to strategic targets after a week-long bombing prelude for the Rhine offensive.

The heavy bombers split into two task forces over Leipzig. One went for a synthetic oil plant and a natural oil refinery at Zeitz, 20 miles south of Leipzig, while the other flew to Plauen, 10 miles from the Czechoslovak border, and blasted the twin war factories.

Part Of Two-Way Blow

The attack was the forty-first heavy bomber assault on Germany in 42 days and was part of another two-way blow co-ordinated with the United States 15th Air Force in Italy.

The Flying Fortresses from Italy struck rail communications in Austria and Hungary in support of the Russian offensive along the Danube.

The heavy bombers attacked rail yards at Szombathely, Bruck, Straszhof and Wiener Neustadt.

Railway Lines Strafed

Mustangs dropped down over Vienna and raked rail lines between the Austrian capital and Czechoslovakia. Early reports said 31 locomotives were destroyed.

The Germans indicated that Russian bombers attacked Berlin.

The American bombers yesterday launched what may be one of their toughest assignments—hunting out and blasting German underground factories and warehouses.

Last night Mosquitos attacked Berlin for the thirty-fourth consecutive night and American night-prowling planes joined in hammering German targets.

Buried Oil Dumps Attacked

The kickoff on the campaign against hidden underground objectives was made yesterday by a force of 250 British-based Liberators which attacked three buried oil storage dumps between Hamburg and Brunswick.

A large number of synthetic oil refiners are located in this region and their production was believed to have gone into reserve depots for the Nazi armies.

Altogether 6,000 sorties were flown yesterday, with the Liberators reporting good results against the underground oil targets at Ehmen, Buchen and Hitzacker and with 800 R. A. F. heavy planes smashing at freight yards at Hannover, Osnabrueck and Muenster.

The German Air Force put up little more than token resistance. Nineteen German planes were knocked down and fourteen more were destroyed on the ground, bringing to 100 the number destroyed in the last three days. Allied losses were ten heavy bombers—six of them American—a medium bomber and twenty-nine fighters.

In Italy, Lieut.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker, chief of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force, declared the "Luftwaffe is virtually grounded." Noting that the last six German oil refineries still in operation within range of his bombers have now come under attack, he said: "Every day our pilots see a modern fighting force parked on airdromes for lack of fuel. They average twenty missions daily. We average more than 2,000. The Luftwaffe is virtually grounded. I mean just that."

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force, carrying out 2,500 sorties yesterday, set a new low in losses. Between 500 and 750 heavy bombers making saturation raids on four airfields in Czecho-Slovakia and Austria lost two of their number.

Another Nazi Headquarters Out

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers destroyed today what was believed to be a German headquarters at Kesteren, fifteen miles northwest of Nijmegen, the Netherlands.

REDS OPEN THIRD PUSH FOR VIENNA

Nazis Lose Key Points; 21,000 Captured In Northern Europe

London, Tuesday, March 27 (AP)—Russian tank spearheads, pursuing Nazi forces across almost-conquered Hungary, lunged within 31 miles of Austria and 69 miles southeast of Vienna's city limits yesterday as Moscow and Berlin disclosed that a great three-pronged push toward Germany's back door was underway.

While elements of the 2d and 3d Ukraine armies swept toward Vienna along the south bank of the Danube and battered within 16 miles of Gyor, key strongpoint in Vienna's defense triangle, Moscow announced that the drive had been extended beyond the north bank of the Danube.

There, amid Czechoslovakia's rugged Carpathian peaks, Russians captured the city of Banska Bystrica, 125 miles east of Vienna, after crossing a 36-mile stretch of the Hron River. At the same time, Berlin said that these Soviet forces had launched a powerful offensive across the Hron 92 miles east of Vienna and had captured the west-bank fortress of Nagykalna.

Reds Take 21,000 Prisoners

As the Soviet offensive raced toward the Bratislava Gap, key to Vienna, Russians in northern Europe took 21,000 trapped Germans prisoner along the East Prussian beaches and were storming Emaus, a half-mile west of Danzig, after capturing Heele and Pelonken, 1 mile west and northwest of the former Free City.

Supported by American bombers which blasted Austrian and Hungarian cities within 36 miles of the advancing Russians, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukraine Army advanced up to 9 miles on a 65-mile front across northwestern Hungary, seizing more than 100 towns and villages, Moscow announced.

In the center of the pile-driving Soviet wedge, Tolbukhin's troops captured the key, eleven-way road and rail center of Papa, in a 4-mile advance which cut the vital railroad and highway linking outflanked Gyor, 25 miles to the northeast, with American-bombed Szombathely near the Austro-Hungarian border.

Fortress Of Gyor Cut Off

Shattering enemy defenses below Gyor based on this railroad-highway line, Tolbukhin's troops hammered within 31 miles of the frontier and were 6 miles from the Marcal River, Vienna's first defense line.

These forces were 65 miles southeast of Wiener Neustadt, Austrian aircraft-manufacturing center bombed by the United States 15th Air Force.

Fifteen miles south of Papa other spearheads stormed and captured the transit hub of Devecser, while between these forces advance tanks and cavalry ground out their deepest advance of 9 miles to win Doba, another vital stronghold in the Austrian capital's southeastern defenses.

At the southern end of the front, Tolbukhin's men advanced five miles along the west bank of Lake Balaton to take Balatonudvari and the Lake's Tihany peninsula.

The bitterest battle raged at the northern end of Tolbukhin's front, where stubbornly resisting enemy troops were holding up the advance of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army pressing toward Komarom and Gyor along the Danube's south bank.

Tolbukhin, however, outflanked the embattled rail junction of Kisber, 17 miles south of the Danube city of Komarom, cutting its rail communications with Gyor after taking the junction of Romand, 11 miles east of Kisber. Simultaneously, Tolbukhin's infantrymen pushed up the Romand-Gyor railroad and captured Bakonypeterd, 16 miles southeast of Gyor.

Smash Toward Gyor

Seven miles to the west, the Russians drove on Gyor from the south and captured Lovaszpatona, also 16 miles from Gyor. This was their closest approach to Vienna and they also were 53 miles southeast of Bratislava, Slovak capital on the Danube's north bank.

The strategic fortress of Gyor was cut off from all communications to the south and its last road and rail links west of the Marcal river were severed by the capture of Papa. To the west, two railroads and three highways still linked it with Vienna and Sopron, second-to-last major bastion southeast of Vienna and only 47 miles ahead of the onrushing Soviets.

North of the Danube, the northern wing of Malinovsky's army captured Banska Bystrica after crossing the Hron and establishing bridgeheads south and east of the city. These extended up to four miles in depth and were deepest at Buca, four miles west of Zvolen, south of Banska Bystrica.

Thirty-one miles to the southwest, the enemy said Malinovsky was pouring powerful forces across the Hron near Leva (Levice) and said that an all-out offensive to break across the Bratislava plains leading 68 miles westward to the Bratislava gap was in progress.

Malinovsky's Slovakian offensive in the Ban-Bystrica and Leva areas appeared keyed with the Red Army's massive surge across northwestern Hungary south of the Danube. It suggested an immediate companion assault by General Ivan Y. Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Army in the Carpathian Mountains southeast of Moravska-Ostrava.

Along the Sudeten Mountains farther north, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army was battling to cross the rugged peaks from Upper Silesia and burst into the Moravian Gap leading to both Vienna and Prague.

Only Petrov was not in action, but the enemy said Soviet forces were driving across southwestern Poland toward Moravska-Ostrava, key to the Moravian Gap, from the area of Strumien and Zory, twenty-one and twenty-three miles east of that big industrial city.

German broadcasts, meanwhile, said Russian striking power was increasing in the forefield of Berlin's defenses, with Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army striking for a break-through to Seelow, apex of a defense triangle beyond the Red Army's reported bridgeheads across the Oder River, and twenty-seven miles east of Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians expected the going to get tougher. Spring thaws were turning creeks into rivers and the Germans have mined the approaches to their positions across the river-cut country leading to the Bratislava gap.

Moscow broadcasts, however, jubilantly proclaimed that "the doors to Austria, Czechoslovakia and southern Germany (where the Nazis may make their last-ditch stand) have been broken wide open."

Moscow dispatches said there were still no signs that the coming Red Army offensive for Berlin was yet under way and described German-reported Russian activity in the vital sector as "reconnaissance."

Reds Launching New Offensive In Slovakia

London, March 26 (AP)—Marshal Stalin announced tonight the opening of a new offensive north of the Danube in Slovakia and said Banska Bystrica, former headquarters of a Czechoslovak underground uprising, had been captured.

The push, by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army, was the fourth offensive launched by the Russians up the Danube and in Silesia in a converging drive on Vienna. Moscow said the enemy has shifted forces from Italy and the sagging Western front for defense of the Austrian capital.

Hron River Forced

The fall of Banska Bystrica, 12 miles above captured Zvolen and 75 miles north of Budapest, meant the Russians had forced the Hron River. The town is about 100 miles southeast of Marshal Ivan Konev's forces attacking Ratibor, near the Moravian gateway into the German inner redoubt where Hitler's SS men are reported cacheing underground supplies for their last stand.

Banska Bystrica was the scene of the premature Czechoslovak uprising last autumn, when the Russians were first invading eastern Slovakia.

The Germans announced they had liquidated the patriot force.

Berlin radio announcers said nine Russian infantry divisions and a tank corps, plus other tank units, were attacking on the Berlin front west of Kuestrin toward Seelow, 25 miles east of Berlin, but Moscow had no confirmation.

In Danzig Suburbs

Along the Baltic, the Russians had broken into Danzig's northwestern suburbs, and the Germans said Gdynia had been penetrated as well.

Below the Danube, the Russians bypassed the fortress of Komarom and were fighting west of the stronghold.

Two Russian armies already had overrun four fifths of Hungary below the Danube and their spearhead was within 36 miles of the Austrian border and 77 miles southeast of Vienna.

The newest attack, described in Berlin as an "all-out offensive" was started on the lower reaches of the Hron River in Slovakia at 4 A.M. yesterday, a German broadcast said, and the bridgehead over the Hron was gained at Leva, 50 miles northwest of Budapest and 37 miles northeast of Komarom, the Danube River key to Bratislava.

Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army linked up with the 2d Ukrainian Army under Marshal Malinovsky in a drive that swept along a 90-mile front through Hungary.

Nazis Retreat To Triangle

Severely mauled, the Germans fell back into a well-fortified triangle formed by the cities of Gyor (Raab), Sopron (Odenburg) and Szomathely (Steinamanger), the last big cities of western Hungary.

This area is crisscrossed by the already swollen Marcal, Raba, Csorna and Guens rivers, however, and Moscow dispatches said all signs pointed to the most stubborn opposition, despite German losses of 1,000 tanks and 83,000 prisoners in the last few days. Vienna probably will be defended as stoutly as Berlin, Moscow said.

4 Miles From Papa

To the southwest, they were 4 miles outside Papa, 25 miles south of Gyor and 40 miles east of Szombathely.

Sopron, in a tip of Hungary southwest of Lake Neusielder, is the westernmost point of the German triangle and it was about 50 miles from the Russian columns.

Tolbukhin and Malinovsky had effected a junction in the neighborhood of Kisber, 22 miles southeast of Gyor.

Silent On Breslau Area

Official Russian announcements were silent concerning Konev's drive south and southeast of Breslau in Silesia, where he was reported by the Germans to have crossed into Czechoslovakia at several places.

German resistance had stiffened greatly in the passes in the Sudetenland Mountain, but Konev was still hammering at a point about 160 miles north of Vienna.

Moscow Enthusiastic

"Every scouting operation, every appearance of the Russians in the western side of the Oder is hailed by the Germans as the coming offensive for the capital," reported Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore from Moscow. "However, there are no signs from this side that it is under way."

Meanwhile, Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky drove deeply into the northwestern suburbs of Danzig, afire in many sectors. The Germans began evacuating persons from the city by submarine and seaplane after Rokossovsky started shelling the waterways into the port.

2 Allies Give Lists Of Jap War Guilty

London, March 26 (AP)—The United States and Australia have submitted to the United Nations War Crimes Commission lists of Japanese war criminals, it was reliably reported today.

While there were no specific details of the United States list, the Australian roll was understood to include 83 high Japanese Army officers responsible for atrocities against Allied troops and civilians, and in some instances cited whole battalions and divisions.

At the same time, the Allies were understood to have submitted lists of Japanese whom the Allies wished to reward for services, such as acting as spies, for the Allies in the Pacific zone.

Ex-FBI Sleuth Now Seeking Nazi Criminals

London, March 26 (AP)—Col. Melvin Purvis, former FBI agent who captured John Dillinger, was reported reliably today to be tracking down Nazis who have committed war crimes.

Purvis' whereabouts was not disclosed but an informant said he was "connected" with the United States War Crimes Office in Washington. There were other reports, unconfirmed, that Purvis was heading an international organization established to track down German war criminals now and after the war.

ELMER DAVIS IN LONDON

Baruch Due There Tomorrow for Economic Talks

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, arrived today.

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—Bernard Baruch, special adviser to President Roosevelt, is expected here Wednesday for discussions on American and British economic affairs, including Britain's food requirements.

Spain Bowing To U.S.: Japs

London, March 26 (AP) — The Tokyo radio quoted a Japanese Foreign Office spokesman today as saying Spain's accusations that Japanese troops had committed atrocities against Spanish nationals in the Philippines were without foundation and "obviously were dictated by American pressure."

Spain charged last week that Japanese soldiers bayoneted to death Spanish men, women and children in Manila. Madrid ordered all Spanish diplomatic missions to cease representing Japanese interests in countries with which Japan has broken relations.

The Tokyo broadcast quoted the Foreign Office spokesman as saying "Franco's government, which has so many weaknesses in the internal field, has no other choice but to yield to foreign interference in the hope of strengthening its internal and external position."

The broadcast said the Foreign Office statement was Japan's reply to Spain's note of protest.

Nazi Convoys Attacked By RAF In Skagerrak

London, March 26 (AP)—RAF Halifaxes made six attacks and scored several hits before dawn today on enemy convoys believed to have been carrying troops and equipment from Norway to Germany.

The convoys, escorted by warships and night fighter planes and flying barrage balloons, were attacked in the Skagerrak. Hits were scored on a medium-sized passenger vessel, a large freighter and an escort ship.

MINISTER JOINS ARMY

Strong Spent Five Years Aiding Prisoners and Internees

LONDON, March 26 (AP)—Tracy Strong Jr., 29 years old, of Seattle, who spent the past five years helping American internees in Switzerland and prisoners of war in Germany, came here recently and voluntarily joined the Army as a private.

As a Congregationalist minister, Mr. Strong served as secretary of the European Student Relief Fund in Geneva and for a year was the only American Protestant chaplain serving American airmen interned in Switzerland. Through the International Red Cross he helped to organize educational programs for troops in German prison camps.

Mr. Strong's father, general secretary of the World's Committee of the Y. M. C. A., is stationed in Switzerland in charge of war prisoners' aid.

De Gaulle's Son Decorated

PARIS, March 26 (AP)—Lieut. Philippe de Gaulle, son of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, received the Croix de Guerre from Maj. Gen. Jacques Leclerc at a ceremony in the French village of Berry today.

DE GAULLE MAY ATTEND SECURITY CONFERENCE

PARIS, March 26—(AP) Reports that Gen. De Gaulle himself would head the French delegation to the World Security conference in San Francisco next month, at least for the opening session, persisted in diplomatic quarters here today. De Gaulle was quoted as saying: "I cannot tell what I will do one month from now."

A foreign office official said that Syria and Lebanon would be invited to the conference as a result of French insistence that they be represented.

Sharp Patrol Action Reported From Italy

Rome, March 26 (AP)—Activity along the Italian front was hidden today under a brief announcement that "patrols were active," but the action was sharp and violent wherever the fighting parties reached their objectives. There were a number of stiff small-arms fights.

Both sides were aggressive in investigating opposing lines, particularly in the mountains area southwest of Bologna. In one clash in that sector an American patrol killed eleven Nazis. In another three Germans were killed without loss to the Americans.

A strong enemy patrol of about 40 men attacked 8th Army positions near Faenza, but was repulsed by small arms and mortar fire.

Germans Step Up Italy Patrols

Rome, March 26 (AP) — German patrolling became more aggressive along the 5th Army front in Italy today and there were a number of sharp clashes, particularly in the area southwest of Bologna.

An American patrol killed eleven Nazis is one encounter in that sector. The Germans attempted to ambush another patrol there but the Americans discovered the ruse and killed three of the enemy without loss.

The first all-Jewish brigade has been active in patrolling along the 8th Army front farther east, it was disclosed yesterday. The brigade is led by Brig. Gen. Frank Benjamin, a Jew in the Regular British Army. Many of the brigade's members previously had been held in Nazi concentration camps. Their family origins cover 37 different countries.

Luftwaffe Held 'Virtually Grounded'

Rome, March 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, chief of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force declared today that the German air force is "virtually grounded."

Noting that the last six German oil refineries still in operation within range of his bombers have now come under attack, he said:

"Every day our pilots see a modern German fighting force parked on airdromes for lack of fuel. They average twenty missions daily. We average more than 2,000. The Luftwaffe is virtually grounded. I mean just that."

The U.S. 15th Air Force campaign to knock out enemy fuel sources has occupied more than 50,000 men and has cost 2,057 heavy bombers and more than 20,000 men in a year's time, Eaker said.

He pointed out that the combat crew strength of the 15th Air Force is about 20,000 and therefore that during the year this aerial arm lost the equivalent of 100 per cent of its total fighting personnel.

"We take some consolation from the knowledge that these losses have saved many thousands of ground soldiers," he added.

Maryknoll Superior Received by Pope

Vatican City, March 26 (A. P.).—Pope Pius XII today received in private audience Bishop James Edward Walsh, Superior-General of the Maryknoll Fathers (Catholic Foreign Missions Society of America) of Maryknoll, N. Y., who arrived in Italy recently from the United States.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy, March 26 (AP)—Fifth Army Headquarters announced today the award of the Distinguished Service Cross by Gen. George C. Marshall to Second Lieut. Steven M. Kosmyna, former boxer, of Perth Amboy, N. J. Lieutenant Kosmyna, a member of the Eighty-eighth Division's 350th "Battle Mountain" Regiment, was decorated for leading his platoon in taking Mount Della Croce, a strongly held peak in the Appennines.

Nazi Convoy Hit Off Swedish Coast

Stockholm, March 26 (A. P.).—Allied aircraft attacked a southbound German convoy in the Skaggerak off Sweden's western coast last night, Swedish press dispatches said today. Coastal observers were quoted as saying they saw one big explosion and a huge burst of fire.

New Finnish President Predicted

By Robert Sturdevant

Stockholm, March 26 (AP)—The retirement of aging Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim as President of the Finnish republic is expected soon as the first step in reorganization of that country's Government to conform more closely with a leftward swing reflected in the recent elections.

In all but extreme radical circles, Mannerheim is generally credited with doing an excellent job in holding the people together during the difficult days of the armistice negotiations with Russia and the subsequent withdrawal of Finland from the war.

But there is no denial that, as the personification of Finland's heretofore strongly conservative and anti-Communist elements, Mannerheim is anything but popular with Moscow.

I found on a recent trip to Finland that it is a foregone conclusion among most experts in Finland's political life that the new radical forces in Parliament will try to compel Mannerheim to step down if he does not do so voluntarily.

There seems little doubt that he will be succeeded by Premier Johq Kostit Passikivi, who commands the confidence of almost all the segments of Finland's political life.

While the radical Democratic People's Union won 25 per cent of the membership of Parliament in the recent election, the immediate fulfillment of a broad program of close collaboration with Russia, the "rooting out of Fascism," and effecting economic reforms depends on the degree of collaboration the Leftists can obtain from the Social Democrats and the more liberal elements of the Conservative, Agrarian and Swedish People's parties.

All Of Greece Occupied, Report

Athens, March 26 (AP)—A British staff officer said today that British and Greek forces had occupied all sections of Greece and installed Greek civil authority throughout the country.

The officer said only minor incidents marked the operations, started March 2 under the agreement which ended the bloody civil strife between the Government and Left Wing ELAS forces.

Some armed bands of both Nationalists and Leftists are still roaming the mountains, but on the whole the ELAS disarmament had gone off "as well as could be expected under the circumstances," he said.

Another Big Airport To Be Built in Spain

Madrid, March 26 (A. P.).—A $1,000,000 airport with four landing strips will be constructed this year near La Coruna, in extreme northwestern Spain, the Air Ministry said today.

The announcement did not say whether the field would be included with others in Spain now being rebuilt into supply and repair bases for American transport planes ferrying supplies to Allied armed forces in Europe

"Greatest Of All Time," Reich Says Of Offensive

Madrid, March 26 (AP)—The Germans say the Allied drive across the Rhine is "the greatest in intensity, preparation and size" ever launched in Europe, and say the British and American forces are using new armies and new tactics.

These quotations were sent to the evening paper Alcazar today by Joaquin Rodrigo, last of the Spanish correspondents in Berlin.

According to Rodrigo the artificial fog used by the Allies was "of a density hitherto unknown, which lasted for 30 hours." He said such fog now was hanging over the Duesseldorf, Cologne and Coblenz regions.

'Reds Respect Neighbors'

Moscow, March 26 (AP)—Hailing the Red Army in the liberated countries of Europe as "saviors of world civilization and culture," Pravda said today that Russia respected the independence of other nations and was ready to live in friendship with her neighbors.

The Communist party newspaper addressed the article to Red Army men and officers and to other Soviet citizens who have gone into liberated countries.

The Soviet citizen, Pravda said, "must be equal to his liberating mission."

Pravda warned that forces of Fascism were trying to stir up feeling against Soviet citizens abroad and told them to be particularly careful of their conduct and every action.

Speaking of their "historical mission," the editorial concluded that "everyone now recognizes that the Soviet people, with their self-sacrificing struggle, have saved the civilization of Europe from Fascist destruction."

INDIANS SLAY 500 JAPANESE

Demoralized Nipponese Lose Ten Miles In Burma

J. Grover

Calcutta, March 26 (AP) — Indian troops of the 20th Armored Division, driving 10 miles up the main trunk railway northward from

Meiktila, have captured the important highway junction of Myittha, 30 miles south of Mandalay, and slaughtered another 500 trapped Japanese, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Indicative of the demoralized state of enemy troops and communications in central Burma, the armored sweep took the Japanese by such complete surprise that a half-eaten meal was on the table in the officers' mess in Myittha when the Indians smashed into the town.

16,500 Jap Dead Counted

Bitter fighting was reported near Meiktila, where Japanese were making desperate infiltration attacks every night trying to impede the flow of supplies to Allied forces. An average of 500 Japanese were being killed daily. Since January, 16,500 enemy dead had been counted.

Heavy fighting also was reported east of Taungtha and Myingyam, northwest of Meiktila, where cut-off parties of Japanese were resisting fanatically. The enemy also was hanging on grimly at Kyaukse, on the railway between Mandalay and Myittha, with British inching ahead only slowly.

Japs Low On Guns

The 14th Army, operating south of Mandalay, has captured or destroyed some 250 Japanese artillery pieces in the last few weeks, leaving the enemy with fewer than 100 guns to support their last-ditch stand in the area.

Chinese driving toward Mandalay from the northeast cleared the last Japanese from a 40-mile stretch of the old Burma road between Lashio and Hsipaw and were within about 90 miles of Mandalay after their long push from the China-Burma border. Enemy forces retreating southeastward from Hsipaw were under almost constant harassing attacks by Allied planes.

futile effort to check the flow of supplies to Allied forces in the area. The British 14th Army is now killing more than 500 Japanese daily. Since January, 16,500 enemy dead have been counted.

Lashio-Hsipaw Section Cleared

Chinese forces pushing west from Lashio have linked up with other Chinese troops moving eastward from Hsipaw, clearing the Lashio-Hsipaw section of the Burma road.

Northwest of Meiktila in the Taungtha-Myingyam area the Japanese were offering bitter resistance.

Front line reports said that in the last few weeks the Japanese had lost 250 field pieces in the fighting south of Mandalay and were now believed to have less than 100 field guns in the 14th Army area.

HEADQUARTERS TWENTIETH BOMBER COMMAND, India, March 26 (AP)—The following Superfortress crewmen from New York have received decorations for outstanding and meritorious achievement while participating in operational and combat missions from Twentieth Bomber Command bases in India and western China:

The Air Medal—Sgt. Emil H. Lippman of Mineola, L. I.; Lieut. Raymond F. Sheets of 1815 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn; Staff Sgt. Milton Lomasky of 1022 Faile Street, the Bronx; Cpl. Sidney Godstein of 23 Lewis Street, Brooklyn; Cpl. Chester M. Smith of New Lebanon; Tech. Sgt. Irving Lash of 554 Gramatan Avenue, Mount Vernon; Sgt. Edward F. Morrissey of 161 East Eighty-eighth Street, New York City.

The Bronze Medal—Master Sgt. John Andersen of 318 Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn.

Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to Air Medal—Lieut. Edwin L. Levenson of 1878 Eighty-fourth Street, Brooklyn; Tech. Sgt. Irving Lash of Mount Vernon; Staff Sgt. Isadore Scheinman of 1261 Fifty-second Street, Brooklyn; Staff Sgt. Fred J. Wallen, 1970 East Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn; Sgt. James T. Green of 28-54 Forty-sixth Street, Astoria, L. I.; Pfc. Ignacio Vaccaro of 109 Second Avenue, New York City; Capt. Donald R. Anderson of Orchard Park, L. I.; Lieut. George L. Clark of 159-08 116th Street, Howard Beach, New York City; Staff Sgt. Daniel L. Cullinan of 969 Carroll Street, Brooklyn; Sgt. Michael Hogarty of 235 Hawthorne Street, Brooklyn; Lieut. Edgar E. Hammond of Poughkeepsie; Lieut. Elmer E. Travis of 44-15 Forty-seventh Avenue, Woodside, L. I.; Sgt. Emil H. Lippmann of Mineola; Sgt. Leo L. Magnacott Jr. of 203-66 Thirty-third Avenue, Bayside, L. I.; Sgt. Edward F. Morrissey of 161 East Eighty-eighth Street, New York City.

English Capture Myittha, Burma

Calcutta, March 26 (AP)—British 20th Division armored troops, pushing 10 miles northward along a railway from Kume, have captured Myittha, an important rail and road junction in central Burma.

Front-line reports said today the appearance of British armor took the Japanese by surprise and some 500 of the enemy were killed.

South of Kume, in the vicinity of Meiktila, Japanese troops were suffering heavy casualties in a

Communist On China Security Delegation

Chungking, March 26 (AP)—The Chinese Communist leader Tung Pi-wu was disclosed today as one of the ten Chinese delegates to the World Security Conference at San Francisco, but doubt was expressed whether the Communists would be satisfied with only one representative. Tung is the former representative of the Chinese Communists in Chungking.

Other delegates include Miss Wu Yi-fang, Michigan-educated president of Neinling College; Li Hwang, leader of China's Youth party, and Carson Chang, head of the Chinese National Socialists. The delegation, as announced previously, will be headed by T. V. Soong, Acting Premier and Foreign Minister.

Other Representatives

Other delegates named were Dr. Chung Hui Wang, noted jurist and secretary general of China's Supreme National Defense Council; Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Ambassador to Britain; Dr. Wei Tao-ming, Ambassador to Washington; Dr. Hu Shih, former Ambassador to Washington, and Hu Lin, managing director of the Takungpao.

Dr. S. Alfred Sze, former Ambassador to the United States, was named senior adviser to the delegation.

Chiang Visits U. S. Air Base

CHUNGKING, China, March 26 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek visited headquarters of the United States Fourteenth Air Force in Yunnan Province Saturday. He expressed thanks to Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault and his officers for their accomplishments and voiced the hope they would redouble their efforts to deal a fatal blow to Japan.

SHELLS LAND ON OKINAWA

Carrier Planes Also Attack; Japs Attack Fleet

Guam, Tuesday, March 27 (AP)—Okinawa, Japan's naval and air base in the Ryukyu Islands, was shelled by United States battleships and bombed by carrier planes of the 5th Fleet, Monday, the Navy announced today. There was no mention of enemy reports that landings had been attempted on those islands.

Okinawa's airfields and other installations were targets. Enemy planes attacked the American fleet group and one of the "light units"—a term often employed for a destroyer or destroyer escort—was damaged.

Six enemy planes were shot down.

A Gap For Sunday

It was the first bombardment of Okinawa, glittering prize of any offensive aimed at the Ryukyus, reported by the Navy.

Dispatches based on previous headquarters announcements that the Ryukyus — midway between Japan and Formosa—were raided and bombarded Friday and Saturday specified only Okino Daito as the target of the battleships.

The bombarding battlewagons are understood to have included some of the 45,000-ton class.

Today's communiqué left a gap for Sunday, the day Tokyo radio said landings were attempted on tiny islands near Okinawa's southwest tip. A later enemy broadcast said that up to Monday night there had been no landings.

Raiding Forces Intercepted

[Such enemy broadcasts could have been either "feelers" or propaganda efforts to placate a homeland jittery from attacks by carrier planes on the Nipponese fleet in hideouts of Japan's Inland Sea and mounting destruction of home war industries by Superfortresses.]

Today's communiqué specified only "shore installations" on Okinawa as targets of the battleships.

The first Japanese air operation against Iwo since United States Marines concluded their bloody conquest of that island in the Volcano group, 750 miles south of Tokyo, also was disclosed. Army "Black Widow" night fighters intercepted the raiding force Sunday night and "a number of enemy bombers were destroyed."

"No hostile planes reached the island," the Navy said.

325 Miles From Mainland

Tokyo radio reports said Americans started attempted landing in the Okinawa group of the Ryukyu chain Sunday morning (Japanese time) but that Japanese defenders had prevented "the landing of so much as one American soldier" up to 8.40 P.M. Monday (6.40 A.M. Monday U.S. E.W.T.). Tokyo said heavy United States naval and air attacks were continuing.

Okinawa is only 325 miles south of Tokyo's mainland—about half as distant as recently captured Iwo Jima.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communiques announced that Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's mighty Fifth fleet attacked Ryukyu objectives—including Okinawa—Friday and Saturday with aerial bombs and battleship shells.

There was no indication that the fleet activity in the area, which followed destructive blows against air and naval bases of southern Japan, had ended.

Twenty-first Bomber Command headquarters here, meanwhile, announced that five war industry plants were wrecked by the Sunday's B-29 raid on Japan's home industrial city of Nagoya.

The U. S. Fifth army air force reported that its Philippine-based bombers made new destructive raids on Formosa, the big island just south of the 600-mile Ryukyu chain.

Tokyo reports, all unconfirmed, said the attempted landings were on Toka Shima and Aka Jima, small islands west of the southwestern tip of Okinawa.

JAPS REPORT U. S. LANDING FORCES ATTACK OKINAWA

Declare Invasion Attempt Is Begun Under Cover of Battleships' Fire.

Guam, March 26 (A. P.).—American troops, supported by an intense bombardment from a large carrier-battleship task force, are attempting to land on two isles off Okinawa in the Ryukyu Island chain, only 325 miles south of Kyushu in the Japanese homeland, Domei, the Japanese official news agency, reported today.

Aerial bombardment of several of the Ryukyu Islands, including Okinawa itself, and of air bases in all of the southern Japanese home islands of Kyushu, Shikoku and Honshu, preceded the reported landings.

Bombardment Report

Tokyo said Okinawa itself was bombarded three times Saturday by United States battleships—presumably some of the biggest, newest 16-inch battlewagons in Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's 5th Fleet. Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has announced only that Minami Daito, 250 miles east of Okinawa, was shelled.

The enemy broadcast, made in English, reported the landings were attempted on Toka Shima and Aka Jima, small islands west of the southwestern tip of Okinawa.

Okinawa, most important in the Ryukyu chain and an ideal base for strikes at either Japan or the China coast, probably would be the chief objective in any amphibious operation in the central Ryukyus. It has several airfields and good harbors suitable for anchorage of large warships.

Size Of Task Force

Tokyo said a powerful United States task force of "15 standard and converted carriers, 11 battleships, 10 cruisers, 32 destroyers as well as innumerable auxiliary vessels" was lying southwest of Okinawa to support and protect the landing troops.

Japanese garrison units "now are fiercely intercepting enemy forces" that by means of "approximately 100 barges" attempted the landings, Tokyo said.

Tokyo's statement that fifteen carriers were included in the great nava' forces off Okinawa contradicted its own earlier claim of having sunk several flattops in Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's raids last week against southern Honshu, Kyushu, Shikoku and the Ryukyus. Tokyo had reported fifteen carriers originally in Mitscher's force before it claimed any sinkings.

The capture of Okinawa would give the United States control of the East China Sea and would provide air fields to strike at the Japanese homeland, Formosa and China with heavy bombloads by even the smallest bombers. Control of the East China Sea would represent possibly the war's greatest single step toward cutting Japan's lines of communication with the East Indies and other territories that produce rubber, oil and other vital supplies.

Okinawa, once an important staging point for Japanese planes en route to Formosa and the Philippines, is a long, narrow island—roughly seventy-five miles long and carrying in width from three to fifteen miles. The northwestern section is rugged, wooded, mountainous and sparsely populated, but the Japanese have built up strong bases on the hills and plateaus in the southwest, where most of its more than 400,000 people live. The land is highly cultivated.

The island is fringed with reefs, making landings in small boats or amphibious vehicles necessary and somewhat hazardous. However, available maps indicate that, once ashore, troops would have good, nearly flat or slightly rising land for a few miles inland. Such a terrain would deny the Japs one of the great advantages they have had on virtually all other Central and Far Western Pacific islands — rugged, mountainous country and cave-studded cliffs.

5 Nagoya Plants Wrecked

21st Bomber Command Reports on B-29 Demolition Raid

GUAM, March 26 (AP).—Five of Japan's big war industry plants in Nagoya were left wrecked by yesterday's B-29 demolition raid, 21st Bomber Command headquarters announced today.

Headquarters also disclosed that "first adequate photo coverage" of the March 12 and 19 mass incendiary raids showed five square miles of the heart of the city in ruins.

The plants destroyed or damaged were the Nagoya Arsenal, the Mitsubishi aircraft engine plant and the Asashi pottery works, Kurena textile plant and Mitsubishi Electrical Company, all producing articles of war.

Attacks On Ryukyus Still On, Japs Say

San Francisco, March 26 (AP)—Tokyo radio declared today that American air and naval forces were continuing attacks on the Ryukyu Islands but that the Japanese defenders had prevented the landing of so much as one single American soldier up to 8.40 P.M. Monday."

The broadcast and others recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said Ameerican carrier aircraft had made at least 430 sorties against Okinawa and other Ryukyu islands. They were also being bombarded by United States warships, Tokyo reported.

These reports followed a Domei news agency dispatch last night which said Americans were "attempting to land" on two small island near Okinawa Sunday morning.

"Japanese forces are resisting these enemy elements and heavy fighting is in progress," one dispatch said.

Pacific Marine Air Head Named

Pearl Harbor, March 26 (AP)—Fleet headquarters disclosed today that Maj. Gen. James T. Moore, veteran aviation officer of the Marine Corps, has been named commanding general of aircraft of the Fleet Marine Force in the Pacific.

General Moore, native of Barnwell, S.C., and whose residence is with his mother, Mrs. William W. Moore, Columbia, S.C., has served with Marine aviation for 24 years and been in Pacific aerial warfare for 27 months.

When the Pacific war broke out General Moore was serving as chief of the United States air mission to Peru and commanding general of the Peruvian air force.

He succeeds Maj. Gen. Francis P. Mulcahy, who is headed for a new assignment.

U. S. INVADES CEBU, TOKYO RADIO SAYS

Foe Reports New Philippine Landing—Enemy Casualties in Campaign 298,006

MANILA, Tuesday, March 27 (AP)—An American invasion of Cebu, one of the two main Philippine Islands still in Japanese hands, was reported by the Tokyo radio today, but headquarters here offered no confirmation.

The enemy broadcast said the Americans "began landings" at 7 A. M. Monday under cover of naval shelling by a task force composed of six cruisers and destroyers.

The Tokyo radio gave the landing place as at Talisay, a fair-sized town five miles south of Cebu City.

Cebu, 130 miles long and twenty miles across its widest part, is between enemy-held Negros and American-occupied Leyte Islands. It is a prime sugar-producing island, with Cebu City, midway along its eastern coast, the most populated area.

Heavy bombers have been hitting the Cebu City vicinity for days. A strong force of Thirteenth Air Force Liberators dropped 250 tons of explosives on targets there on Saturday.

This assault was reported today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who also reported a strong raid on Legaspi, on southeastern Luzon.

Legaspi's coastal defenses and communications were raked with 200 tons of bombs.

General Advances Reported

MacArthur reported an additional 14,853 Japanese dead had been counted and 171 prisoners taken in the Philippines since March 16, when he reported enemy casualties approximating 282,000.

General advances on all Philippine ground fronts were reported.

Heavy bombers hit Formosa with 67 tons of bombs concentrated in the industrial area of Takao on the southwest coast. There was no interception.

Japan's war-production capacity already badly battered by B-29 attacks in the Nippon homeland, suffered further curtailment last Friday when American bombers from Philippine bases smashed Formosa's main hydroelectric plant.

Power Plant Hard Hit

Monday's communiqué reported that more than 50 Liberator bombers and Lightning fighters dumped 145 one-ton bombs on the big Jiysugsetsu power plant. All transformers were destroyed and two generator stages hit.

A 5th Air Force staff officer said this blow would seriously affect war industries and other activities in the southern two thirds of Formosa, including two large aluminum works that were believed to have produced fifteen per cent of Japan's supply of that vital metal.

50 planes attacked Legaspi, seaport on southeastern Luzon.

A shift of units of the famous 1st (dismounted) Cavalry Division from central to southern Luzon was disclosed for the first time. The Monday communiqué said they were initiating a drive along the main highway south of Santo Tomas, in Batangas province.

Doughboys of the 25th and 32d Divisions, fighting for important Balete Pass of northern Luzon, repulsed six Japanese counterattacks.

Aluminum Output On Formosa Is Hit

Manila, March 26 (AP)—Philippine-based American bombers wrecked the big Jitsugetsu hydro electric plant on Formosa Friday in their continued pounding of this southern bastion protecting the Ryukyu islands "bridge" to Japan, headquarters reported today.

The blackout of power caused by knocking out the plant will directly affect two large aluminum plants at Takao and Karenko. They were believed to have produced fifteen per cent of Japan's aluminum.

The new blow was made by more than 50 Liberator bombers and Lightning fighters of Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead's 5th Air Force.

Airdrome, Naval Base Targets

Tainan airdrome and the Okayama naval base also were targets in the latest of the daily raids by the Philippine-based planes aiming to neutralize Formosa.

The Jitsugetsu plant was put out of commission by a concentrated shower of 145 tons of bombs. A 5th Air Force staff officer said, after studying reconnaissance photographs, that all war industries and activities on the southern two-thirds of Formosa would be seriously hampered.

MacArthur's week-end communiques reported thirteen Japanese freighters and a destroyer escort sunk or damaged in the China Sea and new aerial blows and ground advances against enemy positions in the Philippines.

Cebu Raided

More than 100 planes raided supply dumps and installations around the city of Cebu, on Cebu Island, in the central Philippines. Nearly Fifth Air Force staff officers said all transformers of the Jitsugetsu plant had been destroyed and the two generator stages had received direct hits. The lack of power directly affects two large aluminum plants at Takao and Karenko. They were believed to have produced 15 per cent of Japan's aluminum.

San Francisco, March 26 (AP). Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Yanks began landing on Cebu Island in the central Philippines Monday, the Tokyo radio said today. The report was not confirmed by MacArthur, whose latest communique, however, told of heavy air attacks on Cebu.

Filipinos Describe Jap Massacre

With American Troops in Southern Luzon, March 26 (AP)—Surviving Filipinos of the town of Bauan said today Japanese recently massacred many civilians in an act of terror rivaling the horrors of Manila's destruction.

All civilians of the town on Batangas Bay were summoned to the church February 28, the survivors told Americans of the 158th Regiment, who occupied the town.

Men Separated

Some of the townspeople became fearful, survivors said, and fled to the hills instead of responding to the summons. Others were shot trying to flee.

The church assemblage was divided, so the account continued. Women and children were taken to the school building and men and boys were herded into a large residence. The doors were locked.

Then, while Japanese gunners stood guard, violent explosions destroyed the residence. Most of those trapped inside were killed. Some, maimed, dragged themselves from the ruins only to be shot or bayoneted.

Women, Children Flee

A few, including Father Garcia (not otherwise identified), escaped in the confusion.

The women and children fled from the school as the Japanese sprinkled gasoline around many houses and set them afire. A number of invalids perished in the flames.

When the women and children returned to the town they found most of it reduced to ashes.

WITH THE AMERICAL INFANTRY DIVISION in the Philippine Islands (Delayed)—Just returned from a combat operation on Leyte during which his company participated in the capture of several Japanese fortified hills and killed 178 Japanese, Pfc. Albert J. McKee, husband of Mrs. Irene McKee of 318 West Fifty-first Street, New York City, told these experiences:

"One day we had just started up a hill, and there was plenty of firing all around. I was in a little gully at the base of the hill, laying down a base of fire for a squad in front to advance. I was up on my knees, firing, when a sniper's bullet struck the bank in front of me and threw dirt in my face. I got down . . . quick!

"Another time four of us were fixing our packs and getting ready to move out. I was just putting mine on when a mortar shell burst about five feet away. We all hit the dirt at once, and the shrapnel missed us, but the concussion almost blew me away."

WAR DECRIED IN ARGENTINA

Demonstrations Held By Nationalist Elements

Buenos Aires, March 26 (AP)—A series of anti-war demonstrations by Nationalist elements erupted today on the eve of a Government foreign policy pronouncement which the demonstrators were convinced would place Argentina into the war as a belligerent on the side of the United Nations.

Mounted police broke up a demonstration before the United States Embassy after the newspaper Critica said the Government intended to "declare Argentina in a state of belligerence with the Axis."

Declaration Today Forecast

The embassy demonstration was put on after Nationalists distributed leaflets urging the action "against war, and for peace and Argentine dignity."

Critica, an afternoon newspaper, said the Government's declaration would be made at the close of tomorrow's Cabinet meeting. The Government pronouncement had been exepcted today and the cause of the delay was not clear.

Argentina has been inching toward war for a fortnight.

The public had been primed for a war declaration and the press department had mobilized newspaper men and photographers to hear a historic pronouncement today, but after a three-hour delay while the Cabinet conferred with the army, navy and air force chiefs, the announcement was put off until tomorrow. The street demonstrations followed.

After being dispersed from the rush-hour demonstration at the United States Embassy, demonstrators milled around offices of the prodemocratic newspaper La Nacion.

Police, on the alert all day, jailed some of the more intractable demonstrators but concentrated generally on keeping the crowds moving.

Part of Florida street, the capital's famed shopping artery and a favorite spot for demonstrations, was roped off.

The demonstrators' objectives were beclouded since Foreign Minister Cesar Ameghino previously had said the Cabinet already had reached a final decision.

The eruptions did, however, evoke a Government press department communiqué which said the public "can be absolutely sure the Government will take no action inconsistent with the traditions of a free, sovereign nation."

Argentina Protests Nazi Abuse Of Family

Buenos Aires, March 26 (AP)—The Argentine Government announced tonight that its legation in Stockholm had been instructed to protest against the Germans' "brutal treatment" of Sirio Vacarezza, an Argentine citizen, and his family in Italy.

Fulfillment of the persons responsible, an apology and compensation for bodily harm and loss of property was demanded in the protest note.

Vacarezza, his wife and two sons were accused of espionage and imprisoned on June 10, 1944, in Parma province, Italy, the Foreign Ministry communiqué said.

The arrest was made, the statement said, by German soldiers under command of a Captain Zimmerman. The family subsequently was released and the intervention of Italian authorities saved Vacarezza from being executed as a spy. The family eventually escaped.

Cuba to Try Pedraza Today

HAVANA, March 26 (AP)—José Eleuterio Pedraza, a former Army colonel, and forty-four other persons charged of participating in an abortive revolution March 16 will go on public trial tomorrow on charges of conspiracy.

Banned For Clare Luce Item, Paper O.K.'d Again

Hamilton, Bermuda, March 26 (AP)—Suspension of the Midocean News, ordered by censors seven weeks ago, was lifted today.

The paper was supended after its new American editor, John R. Higgins, protested editorially at the Government's refusal to explain why the presence of United States Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce (R., Conn.) was considered a security matter.

ALASKA CRASH VICTIMS SAVED

Volunteers Go to Rescue—Bush Pilot in Mercy Flight.

Cold Bay, Alaska, March 23 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Three injured survivors of a troop transport C-47 that crashed near Cathedral Valley twenty miles from here on March 18 were flown here today by Alaskan bush pilot Eric Schutte in a ski plane that landed near the scene of the wreckage.

Three were killed in the crash. They were Lieut. Col. Stephen G. Davison of Berkeley, Cal.; Second Lieut. Ernest T. Johnson, Dunkirk, N. Y., both passengers, and Radio Operator Sergt. Robert E. Davidson of Ridgewood, Queens, a member of the crew.

Those rescued—all injured but none critically—were First Lieut. Joseph R. Alexander, Merchantville, N. J., pilot; Second Lieut. Richard L. Cocanour, Snelling, Cal., co-pilot, and Sergt. Paul Sundermier, Delanco, N. J., the aerial engineer.

Volunteers Jump to Aid Victims.

The crash occurred in midmorning as the plane was letting down through the overcast for a landing at Fort Randall. The ship hit part of a precipice. All survivors were knocked unconscious. Searching planes spotted them that afternoon and dropped supplies.

The next day passengers on planes bound east from the Aleutians volunteered to jump to the scene. First to go were Capt. P. H. Shoelander, arctic expert with Sir Hubert Wilkins's cold weather test crews in Alaska and former Swarthmore (Pa.) College professor; Chaplain Capt. William P. Mull of Dubuque, Iowa, and Capt. John Weston, Ardmore, Pa., a medical officer en route home to the States after a long stay on the Aleutian chain.

Jersey Man Also Leaps.

Three others jumped the following day—Major-Gen. Johnson, Auburn, Ala., flight surgeon from Elmendorf Field, Alaska; Pfc. Leonard E. Nemhouser, New Brunswick, N. J., and Pfc. Robert N. Gooding Logansville, Pa., medics.

None of the six had ever jumped before but all landed within four miles of the wreckage.

Afraid the injured would be unable to stand a dogsled trip out, doctors called the ski plane as it flew overhead with civilian passengers from Anchorage.

Canada Cites Supply Of Meats To Britain

Ottawa, March 26 (AP)—An Agriculture Department spokesman said tonight that Britain takes from Canada as much meat as the Dominion can provide, and that any quantity for which Britain cannot pay is covered by Canada through their mutual-aid agreement.

He was commenting upon a statement in Washington by Senator Shipstead (R., Minn.) that Britain was receiving meat from the United States through lend-lease for which she would have to pay if she obtained it from Canada.

The problem of whether meat rationing will be resumed in Canada to make larger supplies available for export has been the subject of considerable speculation recently.

Rationing Lifted Last Year

Meat rationing was lifted February 29, 1944, because the shortage of shipping space at the time limited the amount of exports. It was believed then that the interruption or rationing was temporary.

Canada has not exported beef cattle to the United States for some years, because of the necessity of meeting commitments to the United Kingdom. Current contracts call for the provision of 60,000,000 pounds of beef and 450,000,000 pounds of bacon and pork products to the United Kingdom this year.

Butter in Canada is rationed at six ounces a week per person, but this is to be increased to seven ounces April 1.

Heavier Raids Due, Koiso Tells Japs

San Francisco, March 26 (AP)—Warning that the war situation "is becoming more and more urgent," Premier Kuniaki Koiso was quoted by the Tokyo radio today as saying the Government is "consolidating the total strength" of Japan for the defense of the empire.

"The enemy's air-raids against our homeland are about to be intensified," warned the Premier in the FCC-recorded broadcast, "and the possibility of our homeland being turned into a battleground is not unexpected.

Co-Operation Sought

"The Government has sounded the clarion call to the people to rise to the occasion and to co-operate further with the Government. It has also proclaimed, far and near, the empire's unyielding stand relative to the prosecution of the East Asia war."

Koiso said laws enacted by the eighty-sixth session of the Diet, relative to national defense and war production, would be "speedily put into practice" and enforced.

Child Draft Reported

Earlier, Tokyo radio said that Japan's vast "people's volunteer army" being mobilized to meet the war situation will include "graduates of the elementary school of the National School who are over 14 years of age, men below 60 and women younger than 45."

[This report clarifies earlier Japanese broadcasts that all students past the first grade would be mobilized—the first grade probably meaning the elementary school.]

Purpose Explained

The purpose of the volunteer army, Domei news agency said in a broadcast recorded here, will be to "attend projects requiring urgent attention in defense against enemy air and land attacks, in reconstruction of areas hit by air-raids, . . . the transportation of essential materials, and to increase food production as well as the production of lumber. . . ."

Iwo Bombed 1st Time Since Fall, Japs Say

San Francisco, March 26 (AP)—The Japanese radio today reported the first raid by Nipponese planes on Iwo island "since its fall into enemy hands."

The unconfirmed dispatch, recorded here, said the raiders dropped "all their bomb loads on enemy positions" yesterday afternoon, causing fires and explosions at many points.

Ship Lost in Coral Sea Storm

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26 (AP)—The Netherland merchant navy ship Sibigo sank March 16 during a cyclonic storm in the Coral Sea, said a Netherlands Indies News Agency dispatch from Melbourne, Australia, today. Thirteen survivors of the crew of eighty-five were rescued by a Netherland steamer after they had drifted on rafts for six days.

KYUSHU BLASTED BY 150 SUPERFORTS

Big Bombers Pound Industrial, Military Targets on Jap Homeland.

WASHINGTON, March 27—(Tuesday)—(AP) More than 150 Superfortresses have again plastered war-rocked Japan, the Army reported early this morning.

The headquarters of the 20th airforce reported from Washington that the Marianas-based bombers hit industrial and military targets on the Japanese homeland island of Kyushu today (March 27, Japanese Time.)

Further details will be disclosed when the full operational reports are completed.

This is the first attack on Kyushu by the 20th airforce since January 6.

Text of the press release on this strike by the Army's mighty warbirds:

"Superfortresses based in the Marianas attacked the Japanese homeland island of Kyushu today (27th March, Japanese Time) striking in very large numbers. Industrial and military targets were the destination of the B-29 task force from Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's 21st bomber command.

"This announcement was made at Washington by the commanding general of the 20th air force, General of the Army H. H. Arnold. Further details will be revealed when complete operational reports are available."

here and past" when Congress should express to Allied nations the American policies on the treatment of war criminals. The committee is considering war-crime policies.

Russia And Commission

He said he believed that Russia has kept out of the United Nations War Crime Commission because there has been no policy expression of the United States backed up by Congress.

He proposed that Congress express in a resolution the determination of the United States:

"To join with other nations in the use of such means as may be necessary, including force, without regard to any treaties of extradition or respect to sovereignty, to secure the person or property of those persons determined to be war criminals who have already fled, or who may hereafter flee, to any neutral nation that may harbor them or afford them a place of asylum."

Treatment Of Germany

The Society for the Prevention of World War III presented a statement to the committee declaring "Germany and the German people must be so handled that they will never again dare or wish to initiate a war of aggression."

"Ninety-five per cent of the German people were wholeheartedly behind Hitler," the statement said. "An accomplice must share the guilt of his leader."

Earlier the National Lawyers Guild told Congress that "accepted legal practices are adequate" for punishment of war criminals "and resolute action therefore need not be delayed."

Martin Popper, executive secretary of the guild, made the assertion in testimony prepared for the House committed.

"Contentions Unfounded"

Noting suggestions he said had been made to the committee that punishment of war criminals would violate the principle that there can be no punishment for a crime not proviously defined by law, Popper added:

"These contentions are completely unfounded. A war crime is not an offense newly invented and retroactively fastened upon a captured enemy. Nor is it something plucked out of a vague and little-known body of international law.

"Defined simply, it is a violation of the positive laws of warfare—that is, of the specific rules which civilized nations have generally recognized as governing the conduct of war. . . .

"They forbid the killing of surrendering soldiers, the torture of prisoners of war, pillage, the deliberate killing of innocent civilians, the seizure of women for soldiers' brothels, and similar atrocities."

ICKES ASKS DELAY IN INDEPENDENCE FOR PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) Secretary Ickes said tonight that the United States should "give the Philippines whatever it wants." But expressed the view that independence now would be harmful.

"We want to aid the Philippines, whose loyalty to the United States during the war has been above any possible question," the Interior Secretary said in an interview.

War Hurt Economy

"But I fear that the war has made inroads into its economy, its peoples and its government, too severe to permit a complete break with the United States at this time.

"I believe that a High Commissioner should be sent to the islands as soon as possible; that he should study the problems there, working right along with the Philippine leaders and the Philippine people."

The comment by Ickes whose department supervises insular affairs, came shortly after the Senate passed and sent back to the House a deficiency appropriation bill which carries an authorization for $180,000 to pay the salaries of a high commissioner and assistants who would survey the economic position of the Commonwealth.

The Commissioner would report quarterly to the Philippine Rehabilitation commission which is in session in Washington, preparing plans for reestablishing the economy, industry and government of the war-ravaged commonwealth.

The Philippine provision in the bill was sponsored by Senator Tydings (D-Md.), chairman of the Commission. It was endorsed strongly by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) who had proposed earlier that "while we're talking about independence, let's give the Philippines what they need."

The Senate action and Ickes' suggestion both served to point up the question whether war in the Pacific and its aftermath in the islands leave this country in position to grant, or the Philippines in shape to accept, independence on the planned date.

Issue Debated

The issue has been debated privately by officials for months, but did not come into the open until last week when Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower commissioner and a former high commissioner, expressed the opinion that more time is needed.

Under Congressional authorization in the Tydings-McDuffie act, the independence date is July 4, 1946. Wartime legislation adopted partly to offset Japanese propaganda, authorizes independence at "any earlier date" in the discretion of the President.

Advocates of delay are by no means unopposed.

Jaime Hernandez, Philippines finance minister and vice-chairman of the Rehabilitation commission, expressed the view last night that the Commonwealth would prefer freedom under difficulties rather than prosperity with dependence.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) asserted: "We made a promise and we must keep it. I am in favor of more liberal treatment for the Philippines than is provided for now under law but believe that we should get them free at least by July 4, 1946."

Force In War-Leader Seizure Urged

Washington, March 26 (AP)—A congressional resolution approving the use of force if necessary to seize enemy war leaders who seek sanctuary in neutral countries was proposed today to the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

6 SENATORS PLAN TO MAKE STUDY OF EUROPEAN FRONT

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) A half dozen senators are going to Europe next month for an intensive survey of military operations and economic conditions, to give the Senate first hand information on war-end problems.

Chief objective of the group, members said today, will be to find out what the Army intends to do with billions of dollars in equipment and supplies when German resistance collapses and the full weight of the war is shifted against the Japanese.

To Travel by Plane

Tentative arrangements have been made for Senators Russell (D.-Ga.), Hill (D.-Ala.), Chandler (D.-Ky.), Maybank (D.-S. C.) and Bridges (R.-N. H.) to make the trip. Traveling by Army transport, the group will start in about two weeks and be gone nearly a month. Senator Revercomb (R.-W. Va.) may be added to the list or may replace Bridges if the latter is unable to go. Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) also wants to go.

Jointly the group will represent the Senate Appropriations, Military Affairs and Foreign Relations committees. Some of the criticisms of military operations and decisions voiced at a recent closed session of the latter committee with General of the Army George C. Marshall may come in for first-hand investigation.

Senator Hill told a reporter it is his understanding the group will interest itself primarily in what the Army plans to do about transferring men, equipment and supplies from the European to the Pacific fronts when the Germans are beaten.

The War department has said that as much equipment and as many supplies as feasible will be shipped to the Japanese fighting zone. The shortage of shipping, however, may force extensive re-equipment in this country of troops in transit from one theater to another.

Hill said the group will attempt to find out what equipment is suitable for the Pacific. It will inquire also, he said, into the relative merits of American and German tanks, planes, guns and materiel.

G.I. complaints that American tanks are inferior to German armor in firepower and in some other respects have occupied the attention of the Military committee in the past. The War department has said that American tanks are best for the tactical purposes to which they are put.

To Study Complaints

Hill said the group also will look into complaints that this country has lagged behind the Nazis in the production and battle-use of jet propulsion planes.

"We want to find out something about the relative value of different types of aircraft and their use," he added.

In addition, the Alabama Senator said the group probably will confer with British and French government representatives about post-war economic needs and plans of those countries.

Later it will go into Germany to survey conditions. Committee members are hoping that by the time they get there, Berlin itself will be in Allied hands. They expect to visit the Italian front but have no plans to see the Russians in action.

"We're going to face some tremendous problems when the German war is over," Hill declared, "and we ought to be equipped with first hand information about military questions and the economic needs of those countries that are likely to be coming to us for help in getting themselves on their feet."

The group tentatively chosen to make the trip includes two who went on a previous around-the world visit to war fronts more than a year ago, Senators Russell and Chandler. The five Senators who made that trip came back with some sharp criticisms of American policy. Their report, made to the Senate in an unusual closed session, provoked a series of committee hearings and made its influence felt in consideration of legislation.

COMPROMISE BILL TO CONTROL LABOR HIT BY O'MAHONEY

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) today denounced the compromise manpower bill as a "repudiation of democracy" and asserted it would "put leg irons on the men, women and children" who have built America's war machine.

Both O'Mahoney and Rep. Short (R-Mo) declined to sign the report issued by a committee of House and Senate members named to reconcile the varying manpower views of the two legislative bodies.

AFL Opposes Bill

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, reiterated that organization's opposition to any compulsory manpower legislation. In telegrams to Congressmen he said it was inconceivable that at this time "Congress would even consider the passage of a bill which smacks of slavery."

As now constituted, and still subject to House and Senate approval, the compromise would authorize War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes to:

1—Fix employment ceilings for any plant or industry.

2—Control the hiring and job transferring of workers.

3—Freeze employes in their jobs.

4—Call upon any other government agency to help him operate the program.

Chairman Thomas (D-Utah) of the Senate Military committee told the newsmen the bill was "a very strong" one, adding that he was uncertain whether the Senate would accept it.

House to Act on Bill

The compromise bill will come up in the House for action tomorrow, with little opposition anticipated there. Originally the House endorsed a work-or-jail bill, while the Senate held out for a voluntary method of directing workers into war essential industries.

"This is a tremendously dangerous bill," O'Mahoney told reporters. He complained that it included prison penalties for those who violate regulations which he said "will be written in secret, in private rooms, behind closed doors, where people who will be affected by them will have no chance to change them."

Senator Kilgore (D-West Va) said in a statement meanwhile that he would urge rejection of the compromise, having discussed the revised measure with representatives of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Federation of Labor and the CIO.

FDR SEEKS POWER TO SLASH TARIFFS

Objection by Republicans Indicates Battle Brewing in Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP) President Roosevelt asked Congress today for new power to slash tariffs to help "build an economically healthy world.

Stormy objections from Republicans who said the move would be an economic blow to the United States, indicated that Capitol Hill was heading into the hottest tariff fight since the Smoot-Hawley bill was written in 1930.

Endorses Doughton Bill

Specifically the President, in a surprise special message to Congress, endorsed a bill by Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the Ways and Means committee. This would extend the reciprocal trade agreements act for three more years and add authority to cut levies on imports 50 per cent below the levels of Jan. 1, 1945 in return for concessions from other countries.

The original trade agreements act of 1934 permitted cuts to 50 per cent of the Smoot-Hawley rates, so that on items which already have had the full permitted cut, the overall reduction might run 75 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt in his message, and Republican opponents in stormy comment, laid out the framework of argument pro and con. The argument runs:

The President — Further tariff cutting authority is necessary in order to trade other countries out of high-level duties; it means more exports as well as imports; other nations can't pay what they owe us unless we buy from them; more imports mean more processing and distributing jobs at home.

GOP Congressmen — Lower tariffs mean closed American industries and the postwar goal of 60,000,000 jobs won't be attained; the reciprocal trade program never has been actually reciprocal, and spells unemployment.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that under the act as it now stands, the United States does not have enough to offer foreign countries "to serve as a basis for the further concessions we want from them."

"This legislation is essential to the substantial increase in our foreign trade which is necessary for full employment and improved standards of living," he said.

"It means more exports and it also means more imports. For we cannot hope to maintain exports at the levels necessary to furnish the additional markets we need for agriculture and industry—income for the farmer and jobs for labor—unless we are willing to take payment in imports.

U. S. Creditor Nation

"We must recognize, too, that we are now a creditor country and are destined to be so for some time to come. Unless we make it possible for Americans to buy goods and services widely and readily in the markets of the world, it will be impossible for other countries to pay what is owed us.

"It is also important to remember that imports mean much more than goods for ultimate consumers. They mean jobs and income at every stage of the processing and distribution channels through which the imports flow to the consumer."

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), GOP leader of the tariff-writing Ways and Means committee, declared such legislation would mean that many American industries would close after the war, and "we might as well throw out the window" plans for 60,000,000 jobs. He said it would force American workers to compete with low-earning labor in other countries.

Rep. Woodruff (R-Mich), Ways and Means member, said he not only will fight the proposal for expanded authority but will seek to kill entirely "the pseudo reciprocal trade policy." It never has been reciprocal and will lead to unemployment, he said.

"This is no longer a question on which Republicans and Democrats should divide," Mr. Roosevelt told Congress. "The logic of events and our clear and pressing national interest must override our old party controversies. They must also override our sectional and special interest."

Enactment of trade and other legislation he has recommended along international lines and creation of the general organization of the United Nations, Mr. Roosevelt said, will constitute "a good beginning at creating a workable kit of tools for the new world of international cooperation to which we all look forward."

27 Americans, Deported By Germans, Disappear

Washington, March 26 (AP)—The State Department today said it had learned that 27 American citizens, who were deported by the Germans from occupied areas of Europe, had disappeared.

The department listed the names, but no American addresses. It said it was making every effort through the Swiss Government, which handles American interests in Germany, and through other appropriate channels to find out where these people are or to determine their fate.

Roosevelt's Message on Tariff and Trade

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP).—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on tariffs and trade:

To the Congress of the United States:

The coming victory of the United Nations means that they, and not their enemies, have power to establish the foundations of the future.

On April 25 their representatives will meet in San Francisco to draw up the charter for the general organization of the United Nations for security and peace. On this meeting and what comes after it our best hopes of a secure and peaceful world depend.

Owe It to Hull

At the same time we know that we cannot succeed in building a peaceful world unless we build an economically healthy world. We are already taking decisive steps to this end. The efforts to improve currency relationships by the international monetary fund, to encourage international investments and make them more secure by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, to free the air for peaceful flight by the Chicago civil aviation arrangements are part of that endeavor. So, too, is the proposed food and agriculture organization of the United Nations.

We owe it to the vision of Secretary Hull that another of the essential measures we shall need to accomplish our objective has been tested and perfected by ten years of notably successful experience under his leadership. You are all familiar with the trade agreements act which has been on the books since 1934 and which on three occasions, since that time, the Congress has renewed. The present law expires in June of this year. I recommend that it again be renewed so that the great work which Secretary Hull began may be continued.

Under him the reciprocal trade agreement program represented a sustained effort to reduce the barriers which the nations of the world maintained against each other's trade. If the economic foundations of the peace are to be as secure as the political foundations, it is clear that this effort must be continued, vigorously and effectively.

Fundamental to Prosperity

Trade is fundamental to the prosperity of nations, as it is of individuals. All of us earn our living by producing for some market, and all of us buy in some market most of the things we need. We do better, both as producers and consumers, when the markets upon which we depend are as large and rich and various and competitive as possible. The same is true of nations.

We have not always understood this, in the United States or in any other country. We have tried often to protect some special interest in excluding strangers' goods from competition. In the long run every one has suffered.

In 1934 this country started on a wiser course. We enacted into law a standing offer to reduce our tariff barriers against the goods of any country which would do the same for us. We have entered into reciprocal trade agreements with twenty-eight countries. Each one of these agreements reduced some foreign barriers against the exports of this country, reduced our barriers against some products of the other party to the bargain, and gave protection against discrimination by guaranteeing most favored nation treatment to us both. Each agreement increased the freedom of business men in both countries to buy and sell across national frontiers. The agreements have contributed to prosperity and good feeling here and in the other contracting countries.

Two-Way Trade

The record of how trade agreements expand two-way trade is set forth in the 1943 report of the Committee on Ways and Means. This record shows that between 1934-'35 and 1938-'39 our exports to trade-agreement countries increased by 63 per cent, while our shipments to non-agreement countries increased by only 32 per cent; between these same periods, our imports from agreement countries increased by 22 per cent as compared with only 12 per cent from non-agreement countries. The disruptions and dislocations resulting from the war make later comparisons impossible. The record published in 1943 is, nevertheless, as valid today as it was then. We know, without any doubt, that trade agreements build trade and that they would do so after the war as they did before. All sections of our population, labor, farmers, business men, have shared and will share in the benefits which increased trade brings.

Unfortunately, powerful forces operated against our efforts in the years after 1934. The most powerful were the steps of our present enemies to prepare themselves for the war they intended to let loose upon the world. They did this by subjecting every part of their business life, and especially their foreign trade, to the principle of guns instead of butter. In the face of the economic warfare which they waged, and the fear and counter-measures which their conduct caused in other countries, the success of Secretary Hull and his interdepartmental associates in scaling down trade barriers is all the more remarkable.

Better Chance Offered

The coming total defeat of our enemies, and of the philosophy of conflict and aggression which they have represented, gives us a new chance and a better chance than we have ever had to bring about conditions under which the nations of the world substitute co-operation and sound business principles for warfare in economic relations.

It is essential that we move forward aggressively and make the most of this opportunity. Business people in all countries want to know the rules under which the post-war world will operate. Industry today is working almost wholly on war orders, but once the victory is won, immediate decisions will have to be made as to what lines of peace-time production look most profitable for either old or new plants.

In this process of reconversion, decisions will necessarily be influenced by what business men foresee as government policy. If it is clear that barriers to foreign trade are coming down all around the world, business men can and will direct production to the things that look most promising under those conditions. In that case a real and large and permanent expansion of international trade becomes possible and likely.

But if the signs are otherwise, if it appears that no further loosening of barriers can be expected, every one will act very differently. In that event we shall see built up in all countries new vested interests in a system of restrictions, and we shall have lost our opportunity for the greater prosperity that expanding trade brings.

Wants Act Strengthened

I have urged renewal of the trade agreements act. In order to be fully effective the act needs to be strengthened at one important point. You will remember that as passed in 1934 it authorized reductions in our tariff up to 50 per cent of the rates then in effect. A good many of those reductions have been made, and those rates cannot be reduced further. Other reductions, smaller in amount, leave some remaining flexibility. In other cases, no reductions have been made at all, so that the full original authority remains.

You will realize that in negotiating agreements with any foreign country what we can accomplish depends on what both parties can contribute. In each of the agreements we have made, we have contributed reductions on products of special interest to the other party to the agreement, and we have obtained commensurate contributions in the form of concessions on products of special interest to us.

As to those countries, much of our original authority under the act has been used up. We are left in this situation: Great Britain and Canada, our largest peace-time customers, still maintain certain high barriers against our exports, just as we still have high barriers against theirs. Under the act as it now stands we do not have enough to offer these countries to serve as a basis for the further concessions we want from them. The same situation confronts us, although in a lesser degree, in the case of the other countries with whom we have already made agreements; these include France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Turkey, Sweden, Switzerland, and most of the American republics.

I therefore recommend that the 50 per cent limit be brought up to date by an amendment that relates it to the rates of 1945 in stead of 1934. Then we shall have the powers necessary to deal with all our friends on the basis of the existing situation.

The bill which the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee has introduced in the House of Representatives, H. R. 2652, would accomplish the objectives I have in mind, and has my support.

This legislation is essential to the substantial increase in our foreign trade which is necessary for full employment and improved standards of living. It means more exports and it also means more imports. For we cannot hope to maintain exports at the levels necessary to furnish the additional markets we need for agriculture and industry—income for the farmer and jobs for labor—unless we are willing to take payments in imports. We must recognize, too, that we are now a creditor country and are destined to be so for some time to come. Unless we make it possible for Americans to buy goods and services widely and readily in the markets of the world, it will be impossible for other countries to pay what is owed us. It is also important to remember that imports mean much more than goods for ultimate consumers. They mean jobs and income at every stage of the processing and distribution channels through which the imports flow to the consumer. By reducing our own tariff in conjunction with the reduction by other countries of their trade barriers, we create jobs, get more for our money, and improve the standard of living of every American consumer.

Overrides Special Interests

This is no longer a question on which Republicans and Democrats should divide. The logic of events and our clear and pressing national interest must override our old party controversies. They must also override our sectional and special interests. We must all come to see that what is good for the United States is good for each of us, in economic affairs just as much as in any other.

We all know that the reduction of government-created barriers to trade will not solve all our trade problems. The field of trade has many fronts, and we must try to get forward on each of them as rapidly and as wisely as we can.

I shall continue therefore the possibility also of reaching a common understanding with the friendly nations of the world on some of the other international trade problems that confront us. The appropriate committees of the Congress will be fully consulted as that work progresses. The purpose of the whole effort is to eliminate economic warfare, to make practical international co-operation effective on as many fronts as possible, and so to lay the economic basis for the secure and peaceful world we all desire.

Question of Security

When this trade agreement legislation and the other legislation I have recommended to this Congress is adopted, and when the general organization of the United Nations and their various special agencies, including one on trade, have been created and are functioning, we shall have made a good beginning at creating a workable kit of tools for the new world of international co-operation to which we all look forward. We shall be equipped to deal with the great over-riding question of security, and with the crucial questions of money and exchange, international investment, trade, civil aviation, labor and agriculture.

As I said in my message of Feb. 12 on the Bretton Woods proposals:

"The point in history at which we stand is full of promise and of danger. The world will either move toward unity and widely shared prosperity or it will move apart into necessarily competing economic blocs. We have a chance, we citizens of the United States, to use our influence in favor of a more united and co-operating world. Whether we do so will determine, as far as it is in our power, the kind of lives our grandchildren can live."

Roosevelt Urges Congress To Approve Food Program

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) President Roosevelt recommended to Congress today that it approve the constitution of a United Nations food and agriculture organization and authorize active American participation.

In a message to the legislators, Mr. Roosevelt said:

To Increase Farm Incomes

"Improved standards of nutrition, increased levels of farm incomes, avoidance of agricultural surpluses—these are among the important objectives that the food and agriculture organization will assist the nations of the world in achieving."

The proposed agency grew out of an International Food conference at Hot Springs, Va., nearly two years ago. It was formulated by an interim commission.

The President sent Congress the first report of this Commission together with the projected constitution of the food organization.

If this country joins the organization, Mr. Roosevelt said, "We will retain complete freedom of action in determining our national agriculture policies." The constitution, he added, gives the organization "no powers of direction or control over any nation."

American responsibilities, he said, would be of the same nature as those Congress already has authorized in approving participation in the Pan American union.

"The United Nations," Mr. Roosevelt declared, "have already made much progress in setting up an organization for international security. But our collaboration for peace must be on a broader basis than security alone. We must strive to correct the conditions that predispose people toward war or make them the ready tools and victims of aggressors.

"We shall need also to work together as nations toward achieving freedom from want. Our participation in the food and agriculture organization will be an essential step in this collaboration."

The President emphasized the food organization would in no sense be a relief agency. He said it would try to provide international services in agriculture and nutrition which have been lacking or inadequate. From all over the world, Mr. Roosevelt said, it will bring together results of research in farm problems and nutrition, and will spread ideas and advice on how the information can best be used.

Will Foster Cooperation

The agency, he added, will foster cooperation in development of "the optimum use of the resources of land, labor and science."

One of its important tasks, Mr. Roosevelt said, will be the improvement of the marketing of farm products throughout the world so farmers can find good markets at home and abroad and continue to produce as fully as consistent with sound conservation practices.

Both food and non-food products will come within range of the organization's operations, the President said, and fisheries and forests will receive attention.

The agency's budget for the first year has been placed at $2,500,000, of which the United States is supposed to chip in $625,000. In succeeding years the budget is expected to be around $5,000,000.

SENATE PASSES DEFICIENCY BILL

Additions Include Fund To Meet CCC Losses

Washington, March 26 (AP)—The Senate passed today a $2,612,715,078 deficiency appropriations bill carrying $273,837,952 above House allowances. The measure now goes back to the House for action on amendments.

Included in Senate additions to the measure was $256,764,000 to meet Commodity Credit Corporation losses up to March 31, 1944, on subsidy payments.

Other amendments:

1. Providing $996,000 in additional funds for the Social Security Board for grants to states for administration of the unemployment compensation program.

Ohio Project Included

2. Appropriating $10,307,500 to the National Advisory Committee for aeronautics, the bulk of which would be spent as follows:

Five million and five hundred and forty thousand dollars for additional construction and equipment at the Aircraft Engine Research Laboratory, Cleveland.

Four million and one hundred thousand dollars for additional construction and equipment at Langley Field, Va., $2,195,000 of which would be used for building and equipping auxiliary flight research stations outside the field area.

3. Appropriating $80,000 for salaries and expenses of the high commissioner to the Philippines for the current fiscal year to accelerate civilian rehabilitation of the Filipinos.

4. Adding $565,000 to funds of the OPA for an increased rationing and enforcement staff to enable it to bring about a more equitable distribution of meat by sterner restrictions on slaughtering and other activities of the industry.

NO CHANCE OF CHANGE SEEN IN ITALY'S STATUS

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) The State department indicated today there is no prospect of a change in Italy's status which would permit her to participate in the forthcoming World Security conference at San Francisco.

Italy would have to become a member of the United Nations to be eligible for an invitation, and it was learned that there have been no consultations toward that end.

A State department spokesman, asked whether there is any likelihood that Italy's status may be altered so she might receive an invitation, gave this answer:

"Italy's admission to the ranks of the United Nations is not a question for consideration and decision by this government alone. Only the United Nations have been invited to participate in the conference at San Francisco, which, as you know, has been called for the purpose of establishing an international organization. No provision is being made for observers from countries not invited to participate in the San Francisco conference."

DANIELS REPLACES EARLY IN PRESS POST

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—Stephen Early bowed out today as Presidential press relations secretary and Jonathan Daniels took over the post which he had been holding temporarily.

For a time Mr. Early will serve as Mr. Roosevelt's appointment secretary, taking the place of the late Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson. By June 1 he will be free to accept an offer of private employment. He said that to date he had not "accepted anything," although during the last eight years he had received some "highly flattering" proposals.

Just returned from a mission to Europe on which he surveyed pubic relations for the Army, Mr. Early was busy removing the twelve-year accumulation of papers from the desk which Mr. Daniels will occupy.

Mr. Daniels said that he and his assistant, Eben Ayers, "hoped very much to be able to do something approaching the job Steve has done, and I am as anxious to get into this hot seat as Steve is to leave it."

Mr. Daniels, a North Carolina newspaper man and author, is the son of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy in the first World War. Mr. Ayers went to the White House from the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

OAKS PLAN CALLED A START BY DULLES

Years Needed to Perfect Structure and for Law to Evolve, He Warns Capital Rally

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—John Foster Dulles described the Dumbarton Oaks security plan tonight as no more than a first step toward organized world peace.

The development of actually working machinery, he said, is a matter for the years and the evolution of international law.

Mr. Dulles supported the Dumbarton proposals, however, as having value for the purpose of bringing the nations together in the fellowship from which that law could develop.

Mr. Dulles, who is chairman of the Federal Council of Churches Commission on a Just and Durable Peace and a consultant to Governor Dewey in last year's Presidential campaign, said in a speech to a United Nations rally here:

"In the meantime conflicts of interests will still be settled primarily by power. We can hope that the power will be potential power and not actually applied power. That depends above all on the wisdom, the self-restraint and the unity of the peoples and leaders of Great Britain, Soviet Russia and the United States.

"The fact that we cannot yet have a perfect world structure does not, however, mean that we should do nothing. On the contrary, it means that the nations should get started working together in ways that can promote association and dissipate the present distrust.

"Dumbarton Oaks is a forward step because it starts that process.

"The conclusion is inescapable that the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a court and a policeman, while good as far as it goes, does not go very far. It cannot go far because of the absence of law."

Mr. Dulles earlier conferred with Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, special adviser to Secretary of State Stettinius.

After he saw Mr. Pasvolsky, Mr. Dulles was asked whether he would be at San Francisco as an observer for Mr. Dewey.

"Not for Governor Dewey particularly," he said. "I am continuously in a close advisory relation with a good many in the Republican party, National Republican Chairman Herbert Brownell and a good many Senators, and so forth. I might retain that feature of my personality."

Mr. Dulles said that he had been talking quite a bit with Senator Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, and with Comdr. Harold Stassen, two of the American delegates to the conference.

He said that Mr. Vandenberg and Comd. Stassen had indicated "they would like to have me around at San Francisco and would like to talk with me about various things."

SECRETARY ICKES SAYS COAL STRIKE IS 'UNTHINKABLE'

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP) Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes, declaring any coal strike "unthinkable" at this stage of the war, urged bituminous operators and miners today to extend their expiring contracts to May 1.

Both sides refused to authorize any statement on what their reply would be, but it was fairly well known in advance:

"We'd like to, but——."

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, has not discussed any extension with reporters, but he has exhibited his attitude in the past year. The last contract, expiring in 1943, was extended over months of negotiations, Lewis has taken the position that his miners lost money because pay adjustments finally made were not retroactive.

Therefore Lewis is reluctant to agree to an extension without a pledge from the operators that any pay increases will be granted as of April 1, the date the present contract expires.

The operators argue that any wage adjustment would require an increase in prices, and they have no assurance that Economic Stabilizer William H. Davis or the Office of Price Administration would okay an increase great enough to absorb even a month's retroactive pay.

Ickes tried though. He said in a letter to the negotiators:

"With the crucial battles that are being fought today to knock out our foes, the coal industry, management and labor alike, must continue to produce the coal so necessary to victory.

"In order that we may have a bare minimum of coal which will enable us to fight the war and to avoid extreme hardship on the home front, it is absolutely essential that there should not be the slightest interruption to the full production of coal.

"Accordingly, I call on both the mine workers and the operators to continue the uninterrupted production of coal under the terms and conditions of existing contracts, at least until May 1, with the understanding that if any wage adjustments which are approvable under the current wage policy should become effective, such adjustments shall be computed and applied retroactively from April 1, 1945."

Secretary of Labor Perkins and her chief conciliator, Howard T. Colvin, held off today to permit delivery of the Ickes letter, and a reply. The response will not be revealed before tomorrow morning, when the negotiating conference resumes.

Colvin is understood to have suggested an extension in informal talks with Lewis and Charles O'Neill, operators' spokesman, on Saturday, and an effort may be made by him to work out some plan for extending the contract which will satisfy the miners and operators.

Meanwhile, the anthracite scale committee will meet here tomorrow to formulate demands of the miners to be presented to the hard coal operators at their separate negotiations in New York, beginning April 4. The anthracite contract expires April 30.

Wilbur La Roe, Jr., counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers association, presented that accusation. He urged, too, that OPA is violating mandates laid down by Congress in the price control law.

Asks for Amendments

La Roe asked for amendments to require that OPA revise its meat pricing policies and Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) commented:

"It seems to me from your statement that what you need is not a new law but new administrators. If they are violating the law they ought to be ousted."

When La Roe completed his case before the Senate Agriculture committee, James F. Brownlee, Deputy Price administrator, told the group that OPA "takes violent exception" to many of La Roe's statements.

Invited to cross-examine La Roe or present his own case, Brownlee replied that OPA would rather make a general presentation of its views tomorrow.

Senator Ellender (D-La.) expressed disappointment.

"Why not go ahead and have a little debate with the packers?" Ellender inquired. "We could shorten things up and get to the truth much quicker."

The Senate group tackled meat as the first problem of what Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) declared will be "a nation-wide investigation of what is causing food shortages in the United States."

Thomas said the committee intended in the process to "expose the black market operations in meat, chicken, butter, sugar and other food products."

At the outset of the hearings, Wheeler said the committee ought [illegible] disposition of meat. He said he understood Canada has plenty of meat.

Senator Shipstead (R-Minn.) suggested that Britain is not getting more food from Canada because she has "to pay for it," there but does not, he said, pay for lend-leased food from this country.

In summary, La Roe's argument—one previously presented to the Senate Banking committee in hearings on price control legislation—was this:

No Margin for Profit

[illegible] ice ceilings on beef and pork [illegible] present prices for live animals [illegible] it impossible for packers to operate without losing money.

Operations on beef have been at a loss for two years but were "carried" by profit from pork. Since August, pork operations have been at a loss yet OPA has declined to give "price relief."

This situation has resulted in diversion of meat animals to "illegitimate slaughterers" and the "black market."

He believes OPA is violating the price control provision for a "fair and equitable" margin of profit for processors of agricultural products.

John Lyons, Boston attorney, presented a statement on behalf of the Atlantic Meat company, Newark, N. J., a subsidiary of Batchelder Snyder, Inc., Boston hotel supply firm. He said Atlantic Meat, killing only beef, lost $524,180 last year while Batchelder & Snyder made profits of $94,508 from beef, leaving a net loss of $429,682.

He said OPA had denied Atlantic Meat an 80 cents a hundred pounds subsidy granted comparable slaughter firms, citing as the reason its affiliation with Batchelder & Snyder. He said the theory was that the parent firm could make up the losses suffered by its subsidiary, but that in fact the Army was taking 60 per cent of Atlantic Meat's output and Batchelder & Snyder could not make up all of Atlantic Meat's losses on only 40 per cent of its output.

Packers Urge Revisions In Meat Pricing Policies

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) OPA was accused today of following a "social philosophy that regards profits as a sin" Senators inquiring into the food situation heard the Meat Producers' argument for higher prices.

The board also denied a union request for a minimum hiring rate of 95 cents an hour. Present hiring rates vary, but lie generally between 74 and 85 cents. Labor members dissented to denials of the general increase and the hiring rate increase.

The WLB unanimously directed that wage rates for new jobs may be the subject of a grievance, with final and binding arbitration, if the employee files a grievance alleging that the new rate does not bear a fair relationship to other jobs in the same plant.

Also denied, with labor members dissenting, was a union request for a guarantee of at least 40 hours pay for every week in the year.

Holding the granting of the request to be outside its authority the WLB recommended that the study of guaranteed annual wages to be undertaken by a Presidential committee include the aluminum industry."

Labor Board Orders Increase In Alcoa Shift Differentials

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) Increased shift differentials for 50,000 workers in 20 plants of the Aluminum Corporation of America were ordered today by the War Labor board.

The board directed differentials of four and six cents an hour for second and third shift work, respectively, in ALCOA plants where employees are represented by the United Steel Workers of America.

Previous differentials were three and five cents; the union had asked they be increased to 10 and 15 cents.

Aunion request for a general wage increase of 15 cents an hour was denied without prejudice to reconsideration in the event of any change in the national wage stabilization policy.

The increase in differentials was ered to bring about uniform wage structure in the industry.

The board directed that the contract between the parties should include a provision for time and one half pay for Sundays and six holidays, with Monday to be observed when the holiday falls on Sunday. The board also ordered that time and one half be paid for the sixth consecutive day of work in a regularly scheduled week and double time for the seventh consecutive day.

The board refused to order group insurance plans on paid sick leaves requested by the union, explaining it would approve such plans if jointly requested by a company and union if they are reasonable.

Two of the ALCOA plants affected by the order are located in Fairfield and Bridgeport, Conn.

FOREMEN'S GROUP RECOGNIZED AS BARGAINING UNITS

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP) The National Labor relations board reversed itself on an issue of major importance today by recognizing foremen's groups as collective bargaining units under the Wagner act.

Ruling in the case of the Packard Motor Car company, Detroit, and the Foremen's Association of America, which describes itself as independent organization, the board upset its previous decision in the Maryland Drydock case, handed down in May, 1943.

One Member Dissents

Chairman Harry A. Millis and John M. Houston signed the decision, while Gerard D. Reilly vigorously dissented, with the assertion his colleagues' course "smacks of 'peace-at-any price' policy."

Millis and Houston pointed to the foremen's strikes which held up war work in Detroit after the Maryland Drydock decision, as the supervisory groups sought recognition. They said that since the Wagner Labor Relations act was passed in 1935, rank and file employes have found it unnecessary to strike for recognition and could now "secure that right by resorting to the peaceful and orderly procedures of the board."

"We believe it reasonable to predict that the same results will flow from the recognition of those rights for supervisory employes," they added.

As a consequence of the decision, about 1,100 supervisors at the Packard plants will vote within 60 days on whether or not they wish to be represented by the Foremen's association.

Reilly said that any benefits which might result from the grant of recognition to supervisory employes "were outsighted by the dangers inherent in the comingling of management and employe functions, and in the possible restrictive effect upon the freedom of rank and file employes."

Millis and Houston, however, said the foreman's role in industry had so changed since the 1900's as to make him a mere "traffic cop" of industry today.

The majority said "he is required to adhere to fixed patterns and procedures" set by management, that he has been insulated from determining questions involving company policy, and that he has no authority to make decisions or act on discharge, transfer or reclassification of employes under him.

The board has previously interpreted the Wagner act as not covering supervisory employes, because they were considered part of management. But the majority said today:

"We feel that we would be remiss in our duty as public officials if we permitted our reluctance to alter the existing rule to blind us to the effects of the powerful economic forces which have manifested themselves since that rule was laid down.

"We are now convinced that the national interest will be better protected if the organizational activities of foremen are conducted within, rather than without, the framework of the collective bargaining statute."

Reilly said the salaries of employes in the Packard case ranged from $5,000 to $6,000, and that they "do not fall in the category of that 'one-third of the nation—ill-fed, ill-housed and ill-clothed.'

"I readily concede the importance of uninterrupted war production and concede that the particular strikes which occurred in the Detroit plants last spring would probably not have occurred if employers had been compelled to recognize the Foremen's association.

"Unfortunately, however, while a certification may take one issue out of the arena, it may merely be substituting the possibility of others. It is unfortunately no novelty to have disgruntled unions strike and interefere with production because this board had refused to recognize units which they proposed as appropriate."

Reilly suggested "a wiser remedy would be legislation conferring upon this board the same power to invoke judicial process against recalcitrant labor organizations which it now possesses with regard to disobedient employers."

HIGH COURT REFUSES THE WARD CASE AGAIN

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP)—The Supreme Court again refused today to take immediate jurisdiction of the Montgomery Ward case. The Court's action was announced in a brief order which stated merely that the Federal Government's petition for reconsideration was denied.

The tribunal, on March 12, rejected requests by the Government and Montgomery Ward that it make a speedy determination on the validity of the Army's seizure of the company's properties in seven cities.

The Government and Ward sought to appeal directly to the Supreme Court from the decision of the United States District Court in Chicago that the President lacked authority to order the facilities seized because of the company's noncompliance with a directive issued by the War Labor Board.

A direct appeal would obviate the customary argument before the Federal Circuit Court. Attorney General Biddle asked the Supreme Court to reconsider its refusal to take the case unless it first was passed upon by the Seventh Circuit Court.

Mr. Biddle said that if the Supreme Court was adamant in its refusal, more than six months would elapse before a final determination of the rights involved. Meanwhile, he said, the Government must continue to operate the Montgomery Ward properties "even though that course may require the United States to invest substantial sums of money and to incur the risks of substantial liability to Ward."

RAILROAD RATE FIGHT IN COURT

Georgia Suit Accepted For Review By High Tribunal

Washington, March 26 (AP)—Georgia won the right today to go directly into Supreme Court with a suit based on long-standing charges of Southern states that they suffer from railroad-rate discrimination.

The court, in a 5-to-4 decision, agreed to consider the State's complaint that twenty railroads have conspired against Georgia. Four justices objected that the decision opened the way to litigation that could "bring chaos in the field of interstate rate making."

Opinion By Douglas

In accepting original jurisdiction, the majority opinion of Justice Douglas said the relief sought "is not an uprooting of established rates. . . . Rate making is a continuous process. Georgia is seeking a decree which will prevent in the future the kind of harmful conduct which has occurred in the past."

"If the alleged combination is shown to exist, the decree which can be entered will be no idle or futile gesture," Justice Douglas added. "It will restore that degree of competition envisaged by Congress when it enacted the Interstate Commerce Act."

Attaches expect the court to appoint a master to take testimony and receive evidence. He would make a report and recommendation to the court. Such a procedure would mean no early decision.

Right To File Complaint

Technically the court gave Georgia the right to file the complaint. Governor Ellis Arnall, arguing recently on the issue before the tribunal, contended the railroads had conspired to prevent lower rates for his State.

The roads, Governor Arnall asserted, had set up an illegal combination giving Northern business an advantage. It is a contention that has been echoed repeatedly by Southern and Southwestern states.

Railroad attorneys declared that the lines were required to fix rates jointly and file them with the Interstate Commerce Commission. They noted that Georgia already had a similar case pending with the ICC. To receive the new suit would destroy the principle of ICC regulation, they asserted.

System Of Rate Regulation

Chief Justice Stone, in a minority opinion joined by Justices Roberts, Frankfurter and Jackson, asserted:

"It seems obvious that this court cannot give any effective relief removing the threat of injury to the State resulting from a railroad rate conspiracy without breaking down the system of rate regulation by the commission—a system which Congress has painstakingly built up. . . .

"The reasoning of the court is not and cannot be restricted to this case. If Georgia may prosecute the present suit, every shipper or consignee of freight who asserts injury by a conspiracy respecting railroad rates in violation of the anti-trust laws may maintain a like suit in the District Court. The prosecution of such suits cannot but fail to bring chaos into the field of interstate rate making."

NEWSMEN SAVED AS TYPHOON RAGES

Three Correspondents Dip Beneath Pacific Waves in Transfer to Destroyer

BALTIMORE, March 26 (AP)—The near-tragic transfer of three war correspondents from an aircraft carrier to a destroyer during a Pacific Ocean typhoon was related today by Nicholas Mangione, storekeeper third class, who was aboard the destroyer.

Mr. Mangione said photographer Charles Gorry of The Associated Press, formerly assigned to Washington; Philip Heisler of The Baltimore Sun newspapers and a Christian Science Monitor correspondent he did not name were dropped into the sea when a rope slackened, then thrown into the air when the rope suddenly went taut again. The incident occurred about three months ago.

"If it had been a little quicker, I suppose it could have broken their necks—or worse," Mr. Mangione said.

Mr. Mangione said the typhoon "had been blowing for four days. Our destroyer nearly went under. We shot a line to the carrier in the roughest weather I saw during nineteen months overseas. You get into harness made of canvas. They go around your waist and under you. Then you're fastened to the line by a kind of pulley.

"Giant waves suddenly washed us close to the carrier, just as the three fellows were in mid-ocean. That slackened the rope between the two ships. All three men went down into the blue Pacific and stayed there until the rope became taut again when waves separated the ships.

"It wasn't a long time—maybe ten seconds—but when they came up again they looked as though it had been a long time.

"The Associated Press man was a kind of comedian. He had been joking when they got into the harness.

"Mr. Heisler hung on tenaciously during the rest of the ride, but the other two acted as if they didn't care much whether they made it or not. And you couldn't blame them."

Mr. Mangione related that Mr. Heisler told him "he thought maybe they were all going to perish on that carrier he helped to ballast. They lost many planes, and there were some dead, I think. Three fires broke out. Forty-five thousand pounds of men was what saved them.

"As the ship lurched over in the typhoon, they ran from one side to another to keep an even keel. Some of them did it all night that fourth day."

In a story dated Jan. 13 Mr. Heisler related that he and Mr. Gorry joined 300 crewmen in forming human ballast on the hangar deck.

THIS IS THE THEME OF THE LATEST BRITISH OFFICIAL WAR BOOK--"RAF MIDDLE-EAST"--WHICH GOES ON SALE TOMORROW. PREPARED FOR THE AIR MINISTRY BY THE MINISTRY OF INFORMATION, IT TELLS OF THE [redacted] NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN TWO YEARS AGO.

DESCRIBING THE CRUSHING OF FIELD MARSHAL ERWIN ROMMEL'S EFFORT TO COUNTERATTACK AT A CRITICAL STAGE IN THE BATTLE OF EL ALAMEIN, THE BOOK SAYS:

"WITHIN THE SPACE OF TWO HOURS AND A HALF, THE RAF CARRIED OUT SEVEN FULL-SIZE BOMBING RAIDS ON THE [redacted] AFRIKA CORPS. THEY DROPPED 80 TONS OF BOMBS IN AN AREA MEASURING SOME THREE MILES BY TWO.

"SIX TIMES GERMAN TANK CREWS BROKE HASTILY AND SCATTERED ACROSS THE DESERT. SIX TIMES THEY REFORMED. THE SEVENTH TIME THEY DID NOT REFORM AND THE ENEMY DID NOT TRY TO TAKE THE INITIATIVE AGAIN."

DURING THE SIX WEEKS BEFORE THE BATTLE OF EL ALAMEIN, NOT A SINGLE GERMAN TANKER REACHED TOBRUK WITH FUEL FOR ROMMEL'S THIRSTY TANKS. HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE PALESTINE COASTAL FORCES FROM ALEXANDRIA SANK THEM ALL, THE BOOK DISCLOSED.

PONTOON BRIDGES.

FRONT DISPATCHES GAVE THIS VIEW, FROM NORTH TO SOUTH, OF THE VARIOUS FRONTS BEYOND THE RHINE:

CANADIANS ON THE LOWER RHINE CAPTURED BIENEN, FOUR MILES NORTHWEST OF REES AND ADVANCED A QUARTER MILE BEYOND THE TOWN. A CANADIAN PARACHUTE BATTALION HAD DROPPED INTO WESPHALIA, APPARENTLY WITH THE U.S. 17TH DIVISION AND THE BRITISH SIX AIRBORNE DIVISION, NOW LINKED WITH THE GROUND TROOPS.

A80

THE BRITISH CLEARED THE OLD WALLED TOWN OF REES AND TOOK SPELDROP TO THE NORTH. A SPEARHEAD OF SCOTTISH TROOPS GOUGED ACROSS THE SUPERHIGHWAY FIVE MILES EAST OF WESEL AND FOUGHT IN PLACES A GOOD TEN MILES BEYOND THE RIVER.

THE WHOLE LOWER RHINE BRIDGEHEAD WAS EXPANDED IN ALL DIRECTIONS. THE BRITISH 15TH DIVISION CROSSED THE REES-HAMMINKELN MILITARY HIGHWAY. RESISTANCE STIFFENED A BIT FROM GERMAN RESERVES.M

THE BRITISH 15TH DIVISION CROSSED THE REES-HAMMINKELN MILITARY HIGHWAY. RESISTANCE STIFFENED A BIT FROM GERMAN RESERVES. THE ISSEL RIVER WAS BRIDGED IN AT LEAST SIX PLACES. TRAFFIC WAS CROSSING THE RHINE IN VOLUMES EXCEEDING SCHEDULES. GROIN FELL AFTER A SAVAGE BATTLE. SO DID HAFFEN AND MEHR.

THE 30TH (OLD HICKORY) DIVISION OF THE NINTH ARMY MADE A TEN-MILE PENETRATION OF THE RUHR, CAPTURING BRUCKHAUSER AND HUNZE.

30. 24 — 24209

THE NINTH ARMY, COMMANDED BY LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON, ALSO CUT THE BERLIN SUPERHIGHWAY. THE 79TH DIVISION, ON THE RIGHT OF THE 30TH, PUSHED THREE MILES FORWARD, TOOK HEISFELD AND THEN WENT TWO AND A HALF BEYOND THE TOWN. THE 79TH ALSO WAS FIGHTING BITTERLY WITH GERMAN DEFENDERS IN WEHOVEN, NORTHEAST SUBURB OF DUISBURG, A VAST INLAND PORT OF 431,000 ROUGHLY AS LARGE AS CINCINNATI. THAT WAS THE ONLY PLACE WHERE GERMAN TANKS OPPOSED THE NINTH ARMY.

HODGES' FIRST ARMY ON THE SOUTHERN APPROACHES OF THE RUHR SMASHED DOWN THE ONLY REAL NAZI COUNTERATTACK IN FORCE YET MUSTERED EAST OF THE RHINE AND BURST OUT TO THE EAST IN THE ROLLING, GREEN HILLS WITH TWO FORCES OF ARMOR.

THE FIRST ARMY WAS FIGHTING TOWARD SIEGEN, AN INDUSTRIAL CENTER OF 32,000 SOME 240 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN. THE GREATEST PENETRATION WAS MADE BY AN ARMORED COLUMN WHICH CRASHED THROUGH A NAZI DEFENSIVE CRUST TO ERSFELD, 11 MILES SOUTHEAST OF HENNEF AND 20-ODD MILES FROM SIEGEN.

RESISTANCE APPEARED LESSENING ON THE ENTIRE FIRST ARMY FRONT.

THE FIRST DIVISION BEAT DOWN SEVERAL COUNTERBLOWS AT BIERTH AND ADVANCED MORE THAN A MILE TO NEAR BUSCH. ELSEWHERE, THE GERMANS WERE MERELY RETREATING. ONE TANK COLUMN DROVE THROUGH DARKNESS AND REACHED BERZHAUSEN, 14 MILES NORTHEAST OF LINZ.

NINTH DIVISION TROOPS IN THE CENTER WERE SLOWED BY BAD TERRAIN BUT CLEARED ALTENBURG AND PETERSLAHR, BOTH NORTHEAST OF LINZ, IN MILE OR MORE NIGHT ADVANCES.

A87

ONE ARMORED COLUMN LANCED SOUTHEASTWARD AND REACHED VALLENDAR, THREE MILES NORTHEAST OF COBLENZ. MEINBORN, ISENKORG, STROMBERG AND NAUORT WERE CAPTURED. GRENZHAUSEN WAS ENTERED.

THE 99TH DIVISION DROVE OVER TWO MILES ALONG CANALIZED ROADS IN THE ROCKY HILLS TO NEAR URBACH, 13 MILES EAST OF LINZ. IT CLEARED WILLROTH, OBERRADEN AND MEDERRADEN IN THAT AREA.

PATTON'S ARMY, FLANKING THE FIRST TO THE SOUTH, ENTERED LANGEN, SIX MILES FROM FRANKFURT, AND REACHED THE WALLDORF VICINITY, ALSO SIX MILES FROM THAT GREAT INDUSTRIAL AND TRAFFIC CENTER.

THE MAIN BRIDGE CAPTURED INTACT AT ASCHAFFENBURG IS 17 MILES SOUTHEAST OF FRANKFURT. ASCHAFFENBURG'S RAIL YARDS, WHICH HANDLED 2,500 CARS DAILY, HAVE BEEN BOMBED FREQUENTLY. THE SIEBERT TANK ASSEMBLY PLANT WAS LOCATED THERE.

THE FOURTH ARMORED (BREAKTHROUGH) DIVISION TOOK THE BRIDGE SHORTLY AFTER ITS TEXAS COMMANDER, MAJ.GEN.HUGH J.GAFFEY, WAS PROMOTED TO A CORPS COMMANDER. BRIG.GEN.WILLIAM M.HOGE, LATE OF THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISIO N, SUCCEEDED HIM.

THE NEW RHINE CROSSINGS WERE MADE BY THE THIRD ARMY SOUTH OF COBLENZ. THE THIRD ARMY'S CROSS-RHINE FRONT BETWEEN MAINZ AND WORMS WAS AT LEAST 14 MILES WIDE.

THE 90TH DIVISION ADVANCED FOUR MILES TO NEAR AGELSBACH, SIX MILES NORTH OF DARMSTADT, CAPTURING ARHEILGEN, WIXHAUSEN AND ERZHAUSEN. ONLY 45 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN IN DARMSTADT, THE REST OF ITS GARRISON HAD FLED.

THE FIFTH DIVISION GAINED TWO MILES NEAR GUSTAVSBURG, TWO MILES EAST OF MAINZ, AND CAPTURED HASSELLOCH. THE 87TH DIVISION CROSSED THE RHINE ANEW BETWEEN COBLENZ AND BOPPARD AND ADVANCED A MILE EAST. THE 26TH DIVISION ALSO WAS AMONG THIRD ARMY UNITS FIGHTING EAST OF THE RHINE.

THE MAD DASH OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION 40 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AND ACROSS THE MAIN OVERSHADOWED OTHER ADVANCES ALONG THE WHOLE FRONT.

IT STILL WAS ON THE LOOSE.
ITS TANKS WERE ON BROAD ROLLING COUNTRY WHICH LEADS ALMOST UNBROKEN ACROSS THE NARROW WAIST OF THE WAR-PINCHED REICH, STRAIGHT TO BERLIN. THE GERMAN RADIO AT FRANKFURT, A CITY OF 547,000, WENT DEAD LAST NIGHT AFTER THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION BREEZED BY.

FARTHER SOUTH, ELEMENTS OF THE THIRD ARMY AND LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY CLEARED THE LAST OF THE PALATINATE, BRINGING THE ALLIES TO THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE ALL THE WAY FROM SWITZERLAND TO HOLLAND. KARLSRUHE WAS WITHIN SIGHT FIVE MILES ACROSS THE RIVER.

UNEXPLAINED EXPLOSIONS RESOUNDED FROM ENEMY CAMPS ON THE EAST BANK OPPOSITE FRIESENHEIM, 15 MILES SOUTH OF STRASBOURG.

THE NINTH ARMY IN THE NORTH SENT A COLUMN ACROSS THE LIPPE CANAL SOUTHEAST OF GERTROP AT A POINT TEN MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.

GEN.SIMPSON WAS POURING TANKS, FIELD ARTILLERY AND INFANTRY ACROSS RHINE BRIDGES IN THE RUHR.

"A BREAKOUT FROM THE BRIDGEHEAD IS EXPECTED MOMENTARILY," AP CORRESPONDENT ROBERT EUNSON WIRELESSED.

THE NINTH'S 79TH DIVISION FOUGHT EAST OF HIERSFELD AT A POINT FIVE AND A HALF MILES PAST THE RHINE.

ALTHOUGH THIRD ARMY RAMPAGES WERE PARTLY HIDDEN BY CENSORS, THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID ONE OF THE NEW RHINE CROSSINGS WAS MADE BETWEEN WORMS AND THE CAPTURED CHEMICAL CAPITAL OF LUDWIGSHAFEN.

THIS WOULD FLANK LUDWIGSHAFEN'S TWIN CITY OF MANNHEIM. THE COMBINED CITIES HAD 427,000 POPULATION IN PEACETIMES. OTHER NEW BRIDGEHEADS WERE PLACED AT BOPPARD AND BRAUBACH.

THE GERMANS SAID FIERCE FIGHTING WAS IN PROGRESS WITH ALLIED AIRBORNE FORCES "IN THE DEPTHS OF THE MAIN GERMAN BATTLEFIELD" ON THE LOWER RHINE AND THAT MONTGOMERY'S ARMIES HAD "FORCED BREACHES IN MAJOR DEPTH."

THE GERMANS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THAT THIRD ARMY TANKS HAD BROKEN THROUGH TO REACH THE MAIN AT BOTH ASCHAFFENBURG AND NEAR HANAU, 240 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BERLIN. BOTH CITIES ARE WELL BEYOND OUTFLANKED AND BESIEGED FRANKFURT.

THE BERLIN RADIO SAID PATTON, AS WELL AS MONTGOMERY, WAS USING PARACHUTE TROOPS IN THE CONVULSED DARMSTADT-FRANKFURT AREA AND THAT INFANTRY HAD JOINED AIRBORNE TROOPS AT HANAU AND ASCHAFFENBURG.

THIS WAS THE PICTURE OUTLINED BY FRONT DISPATCHES LATE LAST NIGHT:

PATTON'S FAMED FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, CAPTURING A BRIDGE INTACT ACROSS THE MAIN RIVER SOMEWHERE SOUTHEAST OF FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN, WAS REPORTED STILL GOING STRONG UNDER A SECURITY BLACKOUT IMPOSED TO KEEP KNOWLEDGE OF ITS MOVEMENTS FROM THE ENEMY.

SPLIT INTO TWIN COMBAT COMMANDS, THE FOURTH WAS APPEALING FOR TRANSPORTATION FOR THOUSANDS OF GERMAN PRISONERS TAKEN IN THE RAPID ADVANCE, FRONT ADVICES SAID.

PATTON'S FIFTH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS ONLY 10 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FRANKFURT, AND THERE WERE REPORTS THAT THE CITY OF 546,000 POPULATION WAS BEING EVACUATED OF ALL CIVILIANS. THE FOURTH'S DRIVE HAD CARRIED NEARLY 20 MILES SOUTHEAST OF FRANKFURT.

IN DARMSTADT, A CITY OF 115,000 POPULATION 15 MILES SOUTH OF FRANKFURT, THE 90TH INFANTRY DIVISION MET ONLY SLIGHT RESISTANCE IN CLEARING OUT THE GERMANS.

THE THIRD ARMY'S NEW RHINE CROSSINGS WERE MADE BETWEEN COBLENZ AND BOPPARD, WHICH ARE SEVEN MILES APART.

GERMAN CIVILIANS WERE REPORTED FIRING AT THIRD ARMY TROOPS, WHO WERE INSTRUCTED TO SHOOT ALL SUCH SNIPERS ON SIGHT. IT WAS ONE OF THE FEW INSTANCES OF CIVILIANS CARRYING OUT HITLER'S ORDERS FOR LAST-DITCH RESISTANCE.

DISPATCHES FROM THE FIRST ARMY FRONT SAID THE BRIDGEHEAD BREAKTHROUGH WAS "ANOTHER ST.LO" FOR HODGES' TROOPS. HIS WHOOPING, TANK-RIDING DOUGHBOYS CRACKED FORWARD IN A DAWN ASSAULT YESTERDAY THAT WAS CONTINUING AT NIGHTFALL.

HEAVIEST RESISTANCE WAS BEING ENCOUNTERED ON THE LEFT FLANK BORDERING THE INDUSTRIAL RUHR, BUT A CONFIDENT COMPANY COMMANDER DECLARED "WE HAVEN'T BEEN GIVEN ORDERS TO STOP, AND WE DON'T INTEND TO SLOW UP UNTIL WE PUT ON THE BRAKES TO KEEP FROM SKIDDING INTO BERLIN."

ONE FIRST ARMY COLUMN CAPTURED FLAMMERSFELD, 14 1/2 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AND ANOTHER TOOK VALLENDAR, AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD THREE MILES NORTH OF COBLENZ. THIS WAS 11 MILES FROM THE THIRD ARMY'S NEW RHINE CROSSINGS.

THE ATTACK WAS ROLLING THROUGH THE BEAUTIFUL RHINELAND HILLS. ARMORED ELEMENTS DROVE THROUGH FLAMING ASBACH, A ROAD HUB JUST NORTH-WEST OF FLAMMERSFELD. AT SOME PLACES CHILDREN STOOD ALONG THE ROADSIDE AND CHATTERED EXCITEDLY AS THEY WATCHED THE AMERICANS ADVANCE.

A29

IT WAS THE NINTH ARMY'S 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION THAT BROKE THROUGH THE GERMAN RHINE LINE AND WAS NEARING A SUPERHIGHWAY TO BERLIN WHERE IT SWINGS EIGHT MILES EAST OF THE RHINE, A MILE NORTHEAST OF BRUCKHAUSEN.

FIELD OFFICERS SAID THE 30TH HAD BROKEN INTO "THE OPEN COUNTRY OF THE NORTHERN RUHR." ENEMY RESISTANCE WAS DESCRIBED AS COMPLETELY DISINTEGRATED. ALLIED AIRMEN SAID GERMAN ARMORED FORCES IN THE PATH OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S NINTH ARMY TROOPS WERE MILLING ABOUT IN A STATE OF CONFUSION.

ON THE SOUTH FLANK THE 79TH INFANTRY DIVISION CAPTURED THE RUHR CITY OF DINSLAKEN WITH A POPULATION OF 24,000. FOUR MILES EAST OF THE RHINE THEY PUSHED A MILE BEYOND HIERSFELD TO 10 MILES NORTHWEST OF ESSEN. THESE FORCES WERE ONLY FOUR MILES FROM DUISBURG, EUROPE'S GREATEST INLAND PORT AT THE MOUTH OF THE RUHR.

STILL FARTHER NORTH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY WELDED ITS 30-MILE BRIDGEHEAD FIRMLY WITH THE CAPTURE OF WESEL, AND DROVE EIGHT MILES OUT ON THXVVVVVVMO

STILL FARTHER NORTH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY WELDED ITS 30-MILE BRIDGEHEAD FIRMLY WITH THE CAPTURE OF WESEL, AND DROVE EIGHT MILES OUT ON THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN ACROSS SIX BRIDGES ON THE ISSEL CAPTURED BY THE ALLIED FIRST AIRBORNE ARMY.

ELEMENTS OF THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY WERE 12 MILES OR MORE BEYOND WESEL AND BATTLING BEYOND REES.

THE BRITISH SECOND AND U.S.NINTH ARMIES JOINED NEAR THE LIPPE RIVER SOUTH OF WESEL, GIVING FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S 21ST ARMY GROUP A CONTINUOUS LINE.

THE BRITISH MILITARY LEADER, ACCOMPANIED BY PRIE MINISTER CHURCHILL, CROSSED THE RHINE TO DIRECT THE MILITARY OPERATIONS.

A LINEKUP WAS EFFECTED ALSO BETWEEN MONTGOMERY'S GROUND FORCES AND TROOPS OF THE FIRST ALLIED AIRBORNE ARMY WHEN THREE TANK DESTROYERS RUMBLED INTO THE PINE WOODS HIDING THE AIRBORNE'S COMMAND POST, A DISPATCH FROM ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT HOWARD COWAN WITH THE 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION SAID.

THE BRIDGEHEAD IN THIS AREA EXTENDS FROM WESEL TO A POINT ABOUT TWO MILES DOWNSTREAM FROM REES.

TYPICAL OF THE SPIRIT WITH WHICH THE ALLIES ARE IMBUNED IN THE CURRENT OFFENSIVE WAS A BRIDGE-BUILDING FEAT SOUTH OF WESEL THAT ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WES GALLAGHER SAID BROKE EVERY EXISTING RECORD.

IN JUST NINE HOURS THE 202ND GROUP OF THE 17TH ARMORED ENGINEERS BUILT A PONTOON BRIDGE 1,146 FEET LONG ACROSS THE RHINE WHILE UNDER

MAR 26 1945

ENEMY FIRE. GALLAGHER SAID IT WAS THE LONGEST TREADWAY PONTOON BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.

MEANWHILE IN THE EXTREME SOUTH THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY HAD DRIVEN UP ALL ALONG ITS FRONT TO THE RHINE, LEAVING ONLY ENEMY STRAGGLERS ON THE WEST BANK.

MANY ANCIENT DWELLINGS ARE PRESERVED IN THE OLD QUARTER, THEIR PICTURESQUE GABLES SURMOUNTED BY THE SPIRES OF THE WELL-KNOWN GERMAN CATHEDRAL BUILT IN THE 13TH CENTURY. ARCHITECTS REGARD IT AS ONE OF THE BEST EXAMPLES OF RHENISH TRANSITIONAL STYLE.

TOURISTS FORMERLY VISITED THE GREAT CASTLE NEAR LIMBURG UNTIL ITS DESTRUCTION BY FIRE IN 1929.

WITH THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY, MARCH 26-(AP)-LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY HSOVED STRONG FORCES ACROSS THE RHINE TODAY, COMPLETING AN ALLIED SHOWDOWN CHALLENGE EAST OF THE RIVER FROM HOLLAND TO THE BLACK FOREST.

THE CROSSINGS WERE MADE AT UNDISCLOSED POINTS SOUTH OF THE THIRD ARMY'S BRIDGEHEAD IN THE MAINZ AREA.

THIS SOLID BLOW CAME IN LOGICAL SEQUENCE TO A SERIES OF WALLOPS FARTHER NORTH, AND THE ENEMY WAS UNABLE TO MUSTER ANYTHING THAT COULD STOP THE THRUST ACROSS THE RIVER.

PERHAPS NEVER HAS THE ENEMY'S GROWING MILITARY WEAKNESS BEEN UNDERSCORED SO HEAVILY AS BY PATCH'S MEN IN THEIR FEAT OF OBLITERATING 60 MILES OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND PENETRATING THE GREAT WATER BARRIER WITHIN A SINGLE WEEK AND WITHOUT A MAJOR BATTLE.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT REFERRED TO THE OPERATION AS "A BOLD AND SUCCESSFUL RIVER CROSSING INTO THE HEART OF GERMANY" AND SAID THAT THE JUMP-OFF WAS WITHOUT THE USUAL CLOSE AIR AND ARTILLERY PREPARATION.

ALL FURTHER INFORMATION WAS WITHHELD FROM PUBLICATION ON SECURITY GROUNDS BASED ON THE SUPPOSITION THAT THE GERMANS DID NOT KNOW MUCH ABOUT THIS FRESH BREACH OF THE RHINE BARRIER.

WITH THE U.S.NINTH ARMY, MARCH 26-(AP)-THE 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION'S PUSH SOUTH OF GAHLEN AND 17 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE TODAY SWEPT THROUGH VILLAGES WHERE CIVILIANS TOOK TO THEIR CELLARS AND CAME OUT WHEN THE FIGHTING WAS OVER.

UNLIKE THE BUILT UP AREA TO THE SOUTH, THE TERRITORY BEING OVERRUN BY THE 30TH IS MOSTLY OPEN COUNTRY WITH SMALL VILLAGES EVERY TWO OR THREE MILES.

"GERMAN SOLDIERS TOLD CIVILIANS THEY MIGHT AS WELL STAY PUT AS THEY WOULD GET BETTER TREATMENT UNDER THE AMERICANS THAN THEY WOULD BY FLEEING DEEPER INTO GERMANY," MAJ.JASPER ACKERMAN OF COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., A MILITARY AFFAIRS OFFICER, SAID.

ELEMENTS OF THE 116TH PANZER DIVISION, DEFEATED TWICE BEFORE BY THE 30TH AT AACHEN AND THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE, WERE RUSHED FROM THE BRITISH SECTOR.

IN THE FOREST AREA THE 29TH TACTICAL AIR COMMAND GAVE GERMAN TANKS TRYING TO MOVE INTO THE FIGHTING AREA A SEVERE POUNDING.

NINTH ARMY ELEMENTS ALSO CROSSED THE LIPPE TO PROTECT THE FLANK OF

THE 30TH AS THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY HAD NOT BEEN ABLE TO KEEP PACE WITH THE OLD HICKORY DIVISION'S PUSH. TO THE SOOUTH, THE 79TH DIVISION ENCOUNTERED SLOWER GOING IN ADVANCING ON THE ARMY'S RIGHT FLANK.

NEAR FREDERICKSFELD, THE 30TH LIBERATED A LARGE FOREIGN SLAVE LABOR CAMP WITH MORE THAN A THOUSAND POLES, RUSSIANS, CZECHS, AND A SCATTERING OF ITALIANS. THE CAMP WAS DIRTY AND THE PRISONERS IN BAD CONDITION.

OFFICERS OF THE 117TH REGIMENT OF THE 30TH SAID THE STRENGTH OF THE 116TH PANZER DIVISION'S INFANTRY COMPANIES HAD BEEN SURPRISING AND THAT APPARENTLY THEY HAD BEEN GIVEN A CHOICE OF AVAILABLE MANPOWER. SINCE THE JUMPOFF TWO AND A HALF DAYS AGO, 3,352 PRISONERS HAVE BEEN TAKEN.

THE NINTH ARMY'S SOUTHERN FLANK NOW IS ANCHORED ON THE RHINE SOUTH OF WALSUM AND SWINGS NORTH TOWARD A POINT NEAR GAHLEN.

WITH U.S.AIRBORNE FORCES EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 26-(AP)-ENEMY RESISTANCE ON THE SOUTHERN HALF OF FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S RHINE BRIDGEHEAD COLLAPSED INTO SCATTERED FIGHTING TODAY AND "THERE IS NOTHING TO HALT A BREAKTHROUGH," THE COMMANDER OF AN AIRBORNE UNIT SAID TONIGHT.

ONLY ON THE FRONT TO THE NORTH IS RESISTANCE HEAVY, AND BRITISH SECOND ARMY HEADQUARTERS INDICATED THIS SITUATION WOULD CHANGE RAPIDLY FOR THE BETTER BECAUSE OF THE GERMAN RETREAT ON THE SOUTH, WHERE THE ENEMY HAS PULLED BACK EAST OF WESEL.

EVEN NOW, THREE DAYS AFTER MONTGOMERY SENT HIS MASSIVE FORCES ACROSS THE RHINE, THE PROGRESS IN SOME SECTORS IS SUCH THAT A NEWS BLACKOUT HAS BEEN IMPOSED TO KEEP THE GERMANS IN THE DARK.

SPEARHEADS ARE QUICKLY PENETRATING THE GERMAN LINES AND CHOPPING THE ENEMY INTO BITS.

"IT'S TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE," ASSERTED AN AIRBORNE COMMANDER, "BUT WE COULD GO SLAM-BANGING DOWN THE ROAD TO BERLIN TODAY IF WE WERE PREPARED.

"I AM NOT SAYING WHAT WE ARE GOING TO DO. SUPPLIES MUST BE BROUGHT ACROSS THE RHINE AND OUR SUPPLY LINES--THE RHINE BRIDGES--MUST BE BUILT.

"YET AT WHATEVER TIME MONTGOMERY CONSIDERS FEASIBLE WE CAN BREAK THROUGH AND KEEP ROLLING. I SEE NOTHING TO HALT US."

THE STURDY COMMANDER, WHO JUMPED WITH HIS TROOPS, EXPLAINED THE PRESENT WANT OF GERMAN RESISTANCE NORTH OF THE RUHR THUS:

THE GERMAN ARMIES WHICH FLED ACROSS THE RHINE FOLLOWING THE 21ST ARMY GROUP OFFENSIVE IN FEBRUARY NATURALLY WERE DISORGANIZED.

THEN THE ENEMY APPARENTLY EXPECTED CROSSINGS NORTHWEST OF WHERE MONTGOMERY STRUCK.

FINALLY, EXCELLENT AIR SUPPORT AND AIRBORNE LANDINGS FURTHER CONFUSED AND DISRUPTED ENEMY RESISTANCE.

THE COMMANDER SAID ONE ENEMY DIVISION, THE 84TH INFANTRY, ALREADY HAD BEEN WRITTEN OFF IN THIS FIGHTING AND THAT ENEMY ARMOR HAD BEEN HEAVILY PLASTERED FROM THE AIR BEFORE IT COULD GET TO THE FRONT IN ANY FORCE.

EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES NECESSARY FOR SUSTAINED DRIVES ARE POURING ACROSS THE RHINE AT AMAZING SPEED. THE BRIDGING OPERATIONS ARE FAR AHEAD OF SCHEDULE.

LOADED TRUCKS AND ARMOR LINE THE ROADS BUMPER TO BUMPER BETWEEN THE MAAS AND RHINE. MUCH ARMOR, WHICH WOULD LEAD ANY BREAKTHROUGH, ALREADY IS ACROSS THE RHINE. AMMUNITION TOO IS PILED HIGH ON ROADS WHICH WERE BEHIND ENEMY LINES THREE DAYS AGO.

THE COMMANDING OFFICER SAID THE ENEMY HADLOST ENORMOUS QUANTITIES OF MATERIAL TO THE AIRBORNE TROOPS.

"WE CAPTURED HUGE STOCKS OF BATTERIES, GENERATORS, FIELD PIECES, AMMUNITION, RADIOS--EVERYTHING NECESSARY TO FIGHT A WAR. THEY ARE IN GOOD CONDITION, TOO. WHATEVER IS THE CONDITION OF THE GERMAN ARMY TODAY, IT IS WELL PROVISIONED WITH THE IMPLEMENTS OF WAR."

WITH THE 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION ACROSS THE RHINE, MARCH 24 (DELAYED)-(AP)-AN ARTILLERYMAN WOULD RATHER FIGHT WITH 105s AND 90 MMS--BUT HE CAN DO A GRENADE JOB IF HE MUST.

LT. COL. BILL PADDOCK OF VIRGINIA BEACH, VA., AND HIS MEN USED BOTH TO WIN A PRIVATE LITTLE WAR THEY HAD TO FIGHT AS SOON AS THEIR GLIDER SPLINTERED TO A STOP OVER HERE ON THE BUSINESS SIDE OF THE RHINE.

PERHAPS IT'S A LITTLE UNFAIR TO THE GERMANS--DELIVERING A READY-MADE BATTLE RIGHT ON THEIR DOORSTEP ALL WRAPPED UP IN GLIDERS.

THEY DIDN'T KNOW--THOSE JERRIES HOLED UP IN A BIG FARM HOUSE--WHAT WAS IN THE COLONEL'S GLIDER WHEN THEY STARTED PEPPERING AWAY. FOR ALL IT HAPPENED THAT PADDOCK IS IN CHARGE OF ARTILLERY AND ANTI-TANK PIECES FOR COL. JAMES PIERCE'S 194TH REGIMENT OF GLIDER INFANTRY. HE BROUGHT HIS WEAPONS WITH HIM--AND SOME GRENADES.

"THERE WERE ABOUT A DOZEN OF US," HE SAID AS HE SAT ON THE GROUND DANGLING HIS FEET INTO A STRAW-FILLED FOXHOLE, AMMO TACKLED THAT HOUSE RIGHT UP THERE. THAT BLANK SPACE YOU SEE--A BARN STOOD THERE. WE BURNED IT DOWN. TOASTED A COUPLE ER IN THERE.

"WE FIGURED THERE WEREN'T MORE THAN FIVE OR SIX KRAUTS IN THE HOUSE, SO IT WAS A GOOD IDEA TO GET RID OF THEM BEFORE WE WENT SCOUTING AROUND TO FIND THE REST OF OUR OUTFIT. WE WORKED OUR WAY UP TO THE EDGE OF THE YARD BUT THEY WERE STUBBORN AND WOULDN'T COME OUT. THEY JUST KEPT POT-SHOOTING US.

MAR 26 1945

"WE GOT SEVERAL WITH GRENADES--[illegible] PITCHED THEM IN THEIR DUGOUTS, BUT I GOT TIRED FOOLING AROUND WITH THEM SO CALLED FOR SOME ARTILLERY. SEE THAT BIG HOLE IN THE SIDE OF THE WALL?"

HE POINED TO AN OPENING THROUGH WHICH YOU COULD DRIVE A TRUCK.

"WELL," PADDOCK ADDED, "WE CHUCKED SOME MORE GRENADES IN AND WE WERE JUST ABOUT READY TO USE A LITTLE PHOSPHORUS WHEN THEY STARTED POURING OUT. YOU KNOW I TOLD YOU WE THOUGHT THERE WERE FIVE OR SIX? WELL, THEY STARTED COMING OUT WITH THEIR HANDS UP FROM THE LOFT, FROM THE CELLAR, FROM EVERYWHERE. WHAT A SCRAP THEY COULD HAVE GIVEN US IF THEY'D HAD THE MIND."

WHEN THE SHOOTING WAS OVER, THE SCORE STOOD 12 GERMANS KILLED, FIVE WOUNDED AND 44 TAKEN PRISONER. TWO OF PADDOCK'S MEN WERE WOUNDED.

ROME, MARCH 26--THE OLD ADAGE HAS IT THAT "COMPARISONS ARE ODIOUS." THIS IS GENERALLY TRUE AND NEVER MORE SO THAN WHEN ONE ATTEMPTS TO COMPARE THE HABITS, MANNERISMS, APTITUDES AND METHODS OF DIFFERENT NATIONALS.

BUT IN THE COURSE OF UNDERSTANDING THE PEOPLES OF OTHER COUNTRIES COMPARISONS, BOTH AT A PHYSICAL AND PHYSOLOGICAL LEVEL, ARE INEVITABLE. WHEN THEY ARE MADE IN GOOD FAITH THEY CAN BE USEFUL.

HERE FOLLOWS A POTPOURRI OF SUCH COMPARISONS AS THEY HAVE BEEN POINTED OUT TO ME INNUMERABLE TIMES BY BOTH AMERICANS AND BRITISH.

THE MOST MARKED COMPARISON BETWEEN BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES HERE IN ITALY IS A MATERIAL ONE. THE VAST BULK OF AMERICAN MILITARY SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT IS OF A HIGHER QUALITY--AND ALWAYS IN MORE GENEROUS QUANTITY.

IT IS A FAMOUS FACT, FOR EXAMPLE, IN ITALY THAT THE RATIONS IN AMERICAN MESSES ARE SUPERIOR. NOT ONLY ARE THE STAPLES OF THE GI'S DIET MORE BALANCED AND GENEROUS THAN HIS COUSIN'S, EVEN IN THE FIELD, BUT HE HAS ACCESS TO INNUMERABLE "EXTRAS" WHICH ARE CONSIDERED A RARITY BY HIS COUSIN.

ALSO THE GI'S CLOTHING IS BETTER, IF NOT MORE SERVICABLE.

THE GREATEST SINGLE COMPARISON IN INDIVIDUAL LIFE FACING THE AMERICAN AND BRITISHER IS THAT THE LATTER IS REQUIRED TO DO FOUR YEARS OVERSEAS AS AGAINST THE AMERICANS TWO BEFORE HE IS ELIGIBLE FOR A FURLOUGH.

MAR 26 1945

THERE IS MANY A BRITISH SOLDIER IN THIS THEATER WHO HAS HAD FIVE YEARS OF OVERSEAS SERVICE. NOW THIS IS NO COMFORT TO AN AMERICAN FAMILY WHICH HAS NOT LAID EYES ON ITS "JOE" FOR OVER TWO YEARS.

BUT IT IS USEFUL TO MENTION THE FACT FOR THE BENEFIT OF AMERICAN HOME GRUMBLERS WHO SOMETIMES ASK WHETHER THE BRITISH SOLDIER IS PLAYING HIS FULL PART IN THE WAR.

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL OF TALK IN AMERICA TO THE EFFECT THAT WHEN THE EUROPEAN WAR IS OVER THE BRITISH WILL "PULL OUT" OF EUROPE AND GO HOME, LEAVING TO THE AMERICANS THE TASK OF CLEANING UP THE PACIFIC LARGELY ALONE. IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT IN THE ARMED FORCES OVER HERE THE IMPRESSION IS QUITE THE CONTRARY.

THE AVERAGE BRITISH SOLDIER CERTAINLY WANTS TO GO HOME AS MUCH AS

THE AMERICAN, AND THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN IS NOT AS REAL TO HIM AS TO THE AMERICAN. HE HAS NO "PEARL HARBOR." NEVERTHELESS HE SEEMS TO TAKE IT FOR GRANTED THAT WHEN THE "HUN" IS BEATEN HE WILL BE SHIPPED OUT THROUGH THE SUEZ TO THE FAR EAST, TO MALAYA AND SINGAPORE.

IF THERE IS ANYTHING HE WILL FIGHT ABOUT--OFF DUTY--IT IS THE SUGGESTION THAT HE IS NOT WILLING TO DO HIS FAIR SHARE AGAINST THE COMMON ENEMY.

AN UNFRIENDLY ITALY WHICH WOULD REPEAT THE SAVAGE PATTERN SET IN GREECE OR THE PATTERN THAT IS FORMING IN THE BALKANS SEEMS TO CONCERN REMOTE AMERICA, AND THE AMERICANS REMOTE FROM IT, VERY LITTLE. BUT IT WOULD BE BAD NEWS FOR THE BRITISH.

IT IS WELL KNOWN THAT THE AMERICANS ARE QUICKER "TO TAKE OFF THE MART" IN ANY ENTERPRISE THAN THE BRITISH ARE. BUT AN APPRECIATION OF THE STRATEGIC AND ECONOMIC IMPORTANCE OF A FRIENDLY ITALY AFTER THE WAR HAS MADE THE BRITISH POLICY HERE IN MANY RESPECTS FAR CLEARER AND MORE ADVANCED THAN OUR OWN.

THE NEED FOR BRITAIN TO ENTRENCH ECONOMICALLY AND POLITICALLY IN THIS COUNTRY WHICH LIES ACROSS ALL HER EMPIRE TRADE ROUTES HAS RESULTED NOT ONLY IN BRITISH PRESSURE FOR A MONARCHY SUPPORTED BY BRITISH ARMS IN THE POSTWAR PERIOD BUT ALSO IN THE BRITISH SENDING A LARGER--AT LEAST LARGER THAN OUR OWN--

MAR 26 1945

ECONOMIC MISSION TO ITALY.

THIS MISSION HAS ALREADY GOT THE JUMP ON THE AMERICANS IN PINNING DOWN CERTAIN POSTWAR SHIPPING, COMMUNICATIONS AND BANKING INTERESTS IN ITALY.

AND WHY NOT?

EVERY BRITISHER WITH ANY AUTHORITY THAT I HAVE EVER DISCUSSED THE MATTER WITH IN ITALY HAS EXPRESSED HIMSELF AS BEING EAGER AND WILLING --VERY MUCH SO--TO COOPERATE TO THE GREAT EXTENT WITH AMERICAN ECONOMIC INTERESTS AND POLITICAL POLICY IN THE MEDITERRANEAN.

E9

BUT THEY ARE NOT WILLING AT ALL TO LEAVE HANGING IN THE BALANCE ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL DECISIONS CRUCIAL TO THEIR NATIONAL LIFE WHILE AN AMERICAN GOVERNMENT AND STATE DEPARTMENT AND ALL ITS PEOPLE DEBATE, EXPLORE, CRITICIZE AND PROCRASTINATE THE DECISIONS THE COUNTRY WISHES TO TAKE.

THE STUBBORN AND UNALTERABLE FACT IS THAT THE BRITISH UNION IS AN EMPIRE AND THAT THEIR HOME ISLAND LIVES ON EXPORT TRADE TO IT.

TODAY THE BRITISH KNOW WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN ITALY. THEY ARE PROTECTING ONCE AGAIN THE INTERESTS OF THEIR NATION. THESE ARE CLEAR TO THEM, AND WHY SHOULD THEY NOT BE, HAVING BEEN HAMMERED HARD ON THE ANVIL OF MANY WARS THROUGH THE CENTURIES?

FOR THE MOMENT AMERICA'S ONLY CLEAR-CUT FOREIGN POLICY IN ITALY IS TO DO AS GOOD AS JOB AS WE CAN IN FEEDING THE ITALIANS AND IN RETURNING RAPIDLY THEIR OWN COUNTRY TO THEM, HOWEVER THEY MAY WISH TO GOVERN IT, AND GET HOME. AT THIS POLICY WE ARE DOING AS WELL AS COULD BE EXPECTED.

(NR) ROME,MARCH 26-(AP)-MAJ.JOHN HOGAN, 167 SUMMIT AVENUE, JERSEY CITY,N.J., HOLDER OF THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS, SILVER STAR, AND PURPLE HEART, CAME UP WITH THE IDEA FOR THE AIR RAID ON BERLIN FROM ITALY.

THE 15TH AIR FORCE SAID THAT SATURDAY'S RECORD 1,600-MILE-ROUND-TRIP RAID DURING WHICH 15 JET PROPELLED GERMAN PLANES WERE KNOCKED DOWN--THE LARGEST SINGLE DAY'S BAG OF THE NEW ENEMY CRAFT--WAS A LAST MINUTE IDEA, AND IT WAS HOGAN'S.

THE NIGHT BEFORE, HEADQUARTERS EXPLAINED, PILOTS WERE BEING BRIEFED FOR AN ATTACK ON A TARGET SOME 100 MILES CLOSER TO ITALY THAN BERLIN WHEN HOGAN NOTICED THERE WOULD BE ENOUGH RESERVE FUEL AND GOOD ENOUGH WEATHER TO SWITCH THE OBJECTIVE TO BERLIN.

HOGAN SOLD THE IDEE, BUT ONLY AFTER THE SUGGESTION HAD BEEN GREETED AT FIRST AS A GAG. BUT ONCE SOLD, THE COMMANDERS WENT TO WORK ON IT.

A GRADUATE OF RUTGERS UNIVERSITY AND A WING NAVIGATOR, HOGAN WAS WOUNDED DURING A B-17 RAID OVER HUNGARY LAST JUNE AND HAS BEEN GROUNDED SINCE.

HE PARTICIPATED IN THE NORTH AFRICAN, SICILIAN AND ITALIAN CAMPAIGNS. SON OF MR. AND MRS.HENRY D.HOGAN OF JERSEY CITY, THE MAYOR ENTERED THE AAF IN 1941.

PREVIOUS TO SATURDAY'S ITALY-BASED RAID, IT HAD NOT BEEN CONSIDERED "FEASIBLE OR POSSIBLE" FOR THE BIG BOMBERS AND THEIR ESCORT TO STRIKE THE NAZI CAPITAL FROM ITALY.

SGT.HOWARD WEHMER, 108 DURIE AVENUE, CLOSTER,N.J., KNOCKED DOWN ONE OF THE JETS IN SATURDAY'S RAID.

CAY SUNDSTROM, EDITOR OF THE LEFTIST DAILY VAPAA SANA (80,000 CIRCULATION) DECLARED IN AN INTERVIEW HE THOUGHT THERE IS A GOOD PROSPECT FOR COOPERATION BETWEEN THE DEMOCRATIC UNION AND SOCIAL DEMOCRATS, AS WELL AS WITH "DEMOCRATIC MINDED" PERSONS FROM OTHER PARTIES.

Add Stockholm Finnish (Stockholm) x parties

A61

SUNDSTROM, A FORMER SOCIAL DEMOCRAT IMPRISONED FOR THREE YEARS FOR LEFTIST VIEWS, WAS ELECTED TO PARLIAMENT. HE, AS WELL AS OTHER CANDIDATES FROM AMONG THE LEFTIST SOCIAL DEMOCRATS, OBTAINED FAR LESS POPULAR SUPPORT THAN DID 39 COMMUNIST CANDIDATES WHO GOT THEIR SEATS UNDER THE BANNER OF THE DEMOCRATIC UNION.

THERE ARE TWO FACTS WHICH MAY HAVE A STRONG BEARING ON THE NEW PARLIAMENT'S ABILITY TO "DEMOCRATIZE" THE GOVERNMENT IN LINE WITH SOVIET POLICY AND PRINCIPLES OF THE CRIMEA CONFERENCE.

THESE ARE THAT ANY CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES REQUIRE A TWO-THIRDS VOTE OF THE PARLIAMENT, AND ANY PROPOSALS FOR CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES REQUIRE A FIVE-SIXTHS VOTE FOR IMMEDIATE CONSIDERATION, OR OTHERWISE MUST AWAIT ACTION BY THE NEXT TERM.

STOCKHOLM, MARCH 26-(AP)-AFTONBLADET'S BERN CORRESPONDENT SAID ALLIED TROOPS ENTERED FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT SUNDAY MORNING.

HE SAID THE ALLIED TROOPS FOUND FRANKFURT, A CITY OF 547,000, VIRTUALLY AEMPTIED OF ITS POPULATION.

SWISS BORDER REPORTS QUOTED BY AFTONBLADET SAID AMERICAN FORWARD ELEMENTS HAD ALREADY REACHED WIESBADEN, THREE MILES NORTH OF THE MAIN RIVER AND 19 MILES WEST OF FRANKFURT.

(THE FRANKFURT RADIO BROADCAST WARNINGS LAST NIGHT THAT AMERICAN TANKS WERE NEAR THE CITY, THE LONDON RADIO WAS QUOTED BY CBS TODAY. THE LAST FRANKFURT BROADCAST WAS AT 12:15 A.M., AND THE STATION HAS NOT BEEN ON THE AIR SINCE ALTHOUGH IT WAS DUE AT 6 A.M., THE BROADCAST ADDED.)

THE AFTONBLADET CORRESPONDENT SAID FROM 10,000 TO 15,000 PARTISANS, COMPOSED CHIEFLY OF POLISH AND RUSSIAN LABORERS, WERE WAITING IN THE BLACK FOREST OF SOUTHWESTERN GERMANY FOR THE MOMENT TO STRIKE.

CAIRO, MARCH 17 (DELAYED)-(AP)-CPL. JAMES HESSE, 1421 COOLIDGE AVE., WICHITA, KANS., ONE OF APPROXIMATELY 1,200 AMERICANS WHO ARRIVED AT A MIDEAST PORT TODAY ABOARD A REPATRIATION SHIP AFTER THEIR ESCAPE FROM THE GERMANS DURING THE SOVIET WINTER OFFENSIVE, MADE THE ROUNDTRIP FROM FREEDOM TO PRISONER TO FREEDOM AGAIN IN LITTLE MORE THAN A MONTH.

HE WAS CAPTURED DURING FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT'S ARDENNES OFFENSIVE WHILE FIGHTING INSIDE THE SIEGFRIED LINE. HE WAS FREED BY THE RUSSIANS A LITTLE MORE THAN A MONTH LATER.

I SAW 20-YEAR-OLD HESSE ABOARD THE REPATRIATION SHIP. WEARING A RUSSIAN FUR CAP, HE LOOKED JAUNTY, HEALTHY AND LITTLE THE WORSE FOR WEAR, ALTHOUGH HE WAS THIN.

HESSE HAD LITTLE TO SAY ABOUT HIS CAPTURE, IMPRISONMENT AND ESCAPE, BUT HIS STORY IS A TALE OF COURAGE AND ENDURANCE ESPECIALLY AFTER JAN. 20 WHEN THE GERMANS BROKE UP THE PRISON CAMP FOR A MARCH WEST OVER THE FROZEN POLISH PLAINS.

THIS IS THE STORY HESSE, WHO INCIDENTALLY TURNED OUT TO BE A FRIEND OF MY COUSINS IN WICHITA, WALTER AND ROBERT CHURCHILL, SONS OF THE WALTER CHURCHILLS OF HOLYOKE ST., TOLD ME:

"ALONG WITH ABOUT 20 OTHERS I GOT CUT OFF AT SCHONEBURG INSIDE THE

SIEGFRIED LINE DURING THE GERMAN SURPRISE OFFENSIVE IN DECEMBER. THE GERMANS MARCHED US EAST FOR A FEW DAYS THEN PUT US IN BOXCARS AND SHIPPED US TO A CAMP SOMEWHERE NEAR ALTBURGAND, IN POLAND.

"LESS THAN A MONTH AFTER WE GOT THERE THE GERMANS ORDERED THE CAMP BROKEN ONE NIGHT--JANUARY 20TH I BELIEVE--AND WE STARTED WALKING WEST. I DIDN'T KNOW WHERE WE WERE GOING--JUST WENT.

"WE KEPT MARCHING FOR A COUPLE OF DAYS AND THEN DECIDED TO GET AWAY. A LOT OF US HID IN OLD BARNS OR HOUSES AND THE POLES DID EVERYTHING POSSIBLE FOR US AND HID US FOR A LONG TIME WHILE THE GERMANS WERE STILL MOVING BY.

"FINALLY WE DECIDED TO TRY TO GET BACK EAST. WE HEARD WARSAW WAS A COLLECTING POINT SO WE JUST HITCH-HIKED ALONG WITH THE RUSSIANS GOING THAT WAY. THEN WE WERE MOVED DOWN TO ODESSA AND HERE I AM.

"I AM GLAD TO BE GOING HOME."

TOKYO REPORTS HAVE FREQUENTLY PRECEDED OFFICIAL U.S.ANNOUNCEMENTS OF INVASIONS AND AIR ATTACKS ON THE MAINLAND.

IF AN INVASION OF THE OKINAWA GROUP WAS STARTED SUNDAY, IT WOULD BE JUST EIGHT DAYS AFTER NIMITZ ANNOUNCED IN A MARCH 17 COMMUNIQUE THAT "THE BATTLE OF IWO ISLAND HAS BEEN WON."

OKINAWA IS ABOUT 900 MILES ALMOST DUE WEST OF IWO.

GG VX311PCW

THE ATTACK ON OKINAWA WAS PRECEDED BY WEEK-LONG CARRIER PLANE BLASTING OF JAPANESE AIRFIELDS FROM WHICH THE ENEMY MIGHT HAVE HARASSED AN AMPHIBIOUS LANDING; BY SEVERE CRIPPLING OF REMNANTS OF THE IMPERIAL FLEET, BOMBED AND TORPEDOED BY CA Add From Okinawa (Wake) x Gilas, RIER PILOTS WHO CAUGHT THE WARSHIPS IN THE NARROW INLAND SEA; AND BY THE ARMY'S GIANT B-29 BOMBERS WHICH WROUGHT SUCH DESTRUCTION ON WAR PLANTS IN TOKYO, NAGOYA, OSAKA AND KOBE THAT JAPAN'S PRODUCTION PROGRAM WILL BE SET BACK FOR MONTHS, AND BY PHILIPPINES-BASED ARMY BOMBERS WHICH BLASTED AIRFIELDS AND OTHER INSTALLATIONS ON FORMOSA.

NIMITZ REPORTED TODAY THAT THE LATEST ATTACK BY MITSCHER'S CARRIER PILOTS DESTROYED EIGHT SHIPS--THREE LARGE CARGO VESSELS, TWO DESTROYERS AND THREE OTHER ESCORTS--IN THE EAST CHINA SEA. THE SCENE WAS WEST OF AMAMI ISLAND IN THE NORTHERN RYUKYUS, ONLY 440 MILES FROM THE CHINA COAST.

OTHER CENTRAL PACIFIC ACTIVITY INCLUDED AN ATTACK ON A MEDIUM CARGO SHIP IN THE NORTHWESTERN RYUKYUS BY A NAVY SEARCH LIBERATOR; SEVERE CRIPPLING OF TWO SMALL CARGO VESSELS IN THE BONINS BY NAVY SEARCH VENTURAS; AND CONTINUATION OF NEUTRALIZING ATTACKS BY ARMY AND MARINE FLIERS ON CHICHI JIMA IN THE BONINS; ON MARCUS, YAP AND BABELTHUAP.

MEANTIME, 21ST BOMBER HEADQUARTERS REPORTED THAT FIVE BIG WAR PLANTS WERE WRECKED IN SUNDAY'S B-29 RAID ON NAGOYA AND THAT RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOS DISCLOSED FIVE SQUARE MILES IN THE HEART OF THE CITY WERE DEVASTATED BY THE MARCH 12 AND 19 INCENDIARY BOMBING OF THAT CITY.

PLANTS DAMAGED OR DESTROYED IN SUNDAY'S COMBINED DEMOLITION AND INCENDIARY BOMBING WERE NAGOYA ARSENAL, MITSUBISHI AIRCRAFT ENGINE PLANT, ASASHI POTTERY WORKS, KURENA TEXTILE PLANT AND MITSUBISHI ELECTRICAL CO. PHOTOS SHOWED AICHI AIRCRAFT ENGINE PLANT AND NAGOYA ARSENAL WERE DAMAGED IN EARLIER RAIDS.

MM1155PPW

SOUTHWESTERN TIP OF OKINAWA. Add Guam Okinawa (Wake) x of Okinawa.

"THE ENEMY LANDING ATTEMPT WAS MADE," THE DOMEI AGENCY SAID, "AFTER CONTINUOUS AERIAL BOMBING ATTACKS AND NAVY BOMBARDMENTS BY THE ENEMY TASK FORCE SINCE THE MORNING OF MARCH 24." IT SAID SHIPS OF THE FIFTH FLEET WERE SOUTHWEST OF OKINAWA, SUPPORTING THE INVASION.

NIMITZ COMMUNIQUE ISSUED SUNDAY SAID FLEET AIRCRAFT ON MARCH 23 AND 24 ATTACKED OKINAWA AND OTHER ISLANDS. BATTLESHIPS BOMBARDED UNDISCLOSED "COASTAL OBJECTIVES".

THE MONDAY COMMUNIQUE REPORTED FIFTH FLEET CARRIER AIRCRAFT DESTROYED A JAPANESE CONVOY OF THREE CARGO SHIPS AND FIVE WARSHIPS IN RYUKYU WATERS MARCH 24.

OKINAWA, THE LARGEST OF THE KURILES, IS JAPAN'S MAIN BASE BETWEEN THE MAINLAND AND FORMOSA. IT IS ABOUT 75 MILES LONG AND RANGES FROM 3 TO 15 MILES IN WIDTH.

THE DENSE POPULATION TOTALS SOME 435,000, OF WHICH ABOUT 65,000 LIVE IN THE PRINCIPAL CITY OF NAHA.

Add Manila Philippines (Watchorn) Jap vital medal.

FORMOSA'S TAIHAN AIRDROME AND THE OKAYAMA NAVAL BASE ALSO WERE BLASTED. THESE IMPORTANT BASES ARE IMMEDIATELY SOUTHWEST OF THE RYUKYU ISLANDS WHERE, ACCORDING TO RADIO TOKYO, AMERICAN FORCES BEGAN AN INVASION SUNDAY MORNING.

MAR 26 1945

OTHER PHILIPPINE-BASED PLANES WERE REPORTED BY WEEK-END HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUES TO HAVE SUNK OR DAMAGED 13 JAPANESE FREIGHTERS AND A DESTROYER ESCORT IN THE CHINA SEA, BLASTED INSTALLATIONS AROUND CEBU, CENTRAL PHILIPPINES, AND HIT LEGASPI PORT ON SOUTHEAST LUZON.

ON LUZON ISLAND ELEMENTS OF THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION, SHIFTED TO BATANGAS PROVINCE, STARTED A NEW DRIVE IN THAT SECTOR.

A HALF DOZEN JAPANESE COUNTERATTACKS IN THE BALETE PASS REGION OF NORTHEAST LUZON WERE BLOODILY REPULSED BY DOUGHBOYS OF THE 25TH AND 32ND DIVISIONS.

GUAM, TUESDAY, MARCH 27-(AP)A "VERY LARGE" FORCE OF MARIANAS-BASED B-29S--PRESUMABLY MORE THAN 200--BATTERED THE SOUTHERN JAPANESE ISLAND OF KYSHU SHORTLY BEFORE NOON TODAY, ATTACKING AIRFIELDS AND BASES ALL THE WAY TO THE COAST FRONTING ON THE EAST CHINA SEA.

THE TARGETS ATTACKED INCLUDED A BIG AIRCRAFT PLANT AT OMURA ON THE WEST SIDE OF KYUSHU BETWEEN SASEBO AND NAGASAKI. THIS AREA ONCE WAS HIT BY SUPERFORTRESSES FROM THE CHINA-BURMA-INDIA THEATER. THUS FOR THE FIRST TIME, THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND HIT A TARGET WITH THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND HAD ATTACKED FROM ANOTHER DIRECTION.

A162FX

IT WAS THE FIRST SUPERFORTRESS ATTACK FROM THE MARIANAS ON ANY OTHER JAPANESE ISLAND EXCEPT THE MAIN ONE OF HONSHU, WHERE THE TARGETS HAVE INCLUDED TOKYO, NAGOYA, OSAKA AND KOBE.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE 21ST, IN ANNOUNCING TODAY'S RAID SPECIFIED IT WAS NOT THE LOW LEVEL TYPE RECENTLY MADE AGAINST HONSHU CITIES.

AMONG KYUSHS AIRFIELDS HIT WERE THOSE AT OITA, WHICH GUARDS THE SOUTH ENTRANCE TO THE INLAND SEA OF JAPAN, AND TACHIARAI.

THE KYUSHU ATTACK BY THE SUPERFORTS SWUNG AMERICAN AIR POWER BACK AGAINST AN ISLAND WHICH WAS HARD HIT MARCH 18 AND 19 BY CARRIER PLANES OF VICE ADM. MARC A.MITSCHER'S TASK FORCE. THE NAVY DISCLOSED TODAY THAT MITSCHER'S GROUP IS BOMBARDING AND RAIDING THE RYUKYUS AT POINTS 300 MILES SOUTHWEST OF KYUSHU.

IWO JIMA (DELAYED)--MARINE CPL.LUTHER C.CRABTREE, 20, HAD TO GET THAT OTHER MARINE'S BODY BACK ALTHOUGH IT MEANT CRAWLING SEVERA HUNDRED YARDS UNDER HEAVY MACHINE GUN FIRE. THE BODY WAS HIS BROTHER'S.

THE BROTHERS, CORPS.LUTHER AND HAROLDW.CRABTREE, 22, SONS OF MR.AND MRS.HENRY CRABTREE OF 248 BENFIELD AVE., COLUMBUS, OHIO, LANDED IN THE SAME PLATOON WITH THE IWA ASSAULT WAVES.

ON THE EIGHTH DAY OF BATTLE, THEIR PLATOON ASSAULTED A SERIES OF PILLBOXES. LUTHER, A DEMOLITIONS MAN, WAS BLOWING UP JAPANESE PILLBOXES. HAROLD WAS LEADING A RIFLE SQUAD SOME DISTANCE AWAY. SUDDENLY A BURST OF MACHINE GUN FIRE KILLED HAROLD.

"I JUST COULDN'T SEE LEAVING HIM OUT THERE FOR THE JAPS TO GET HOLD OF SO I DECIDED TO GET HIM," LUTHER SAID. "FOUR OF US GRABBED A STRETCHER AND OUR COMPANY COMMANDER CALLED FOR A SMOKE BARRAGE FROM OUR MORTARS TO SHIELD US AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE.

"OUT WE WENT AND A CROSS-FIRE OF MACHINE GUN ROUNDS FROM TWO JAP PILLBOXES DIRECTED US TO WHERE HE WAS. WE ROLLED HIM ONTO THE STRETCHER AND MADE A RUN FOR IT, GETTING BACK INTO OUR OWN LINES SAFELY."

ONE OF THE MARINES WHO WENT OUT FOR HAROLD'S BODY WAS PFC WILLIAM C.ERLER JR., 21, OF 1234 22ND AVE.,COLUMBUS. HE AND THE TWO CRABTREE BROTHERS ENLISTED TOGETHER DEC.9,1942.

"THE SMOKE COVERED US O.K.," ERLER SAID, "AND WHEN WE PICKED UP HAROLD, THREE OTHER MARINES, NAILED BY THE SAME SPURT OF MACHINE GUN FIRE, WERE THERE ON THE GROUND. HAROLD, LUTHER AND I HAD BEEN TOGETHER EVERY DAY SINCE WE ENLISTED. I JUST COULDN'T SEE LEAVING HIS BODY OUT THERE."

THE TWO OTHER MEN WHO AIDED IN THE RESCUE WERE PFC MERLE E. HUCKABEY, 20, OF 1706 MONROE ST.,AMARILLO,TEX., AND PFC JAMES L.FOURTIER, 20, OF ROUTE 1, MOXEE CITY,WASH.

TWENTY-FIRST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, MONDAY, MARCH 26-(AP)-FIVE OF JAPAN'S BIG WAR INDUSTRY PLANTS IN NAGOYA WERE LEFT WRECKED BY SUNDAY'S B-29 DEMOLITION RAID, BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

HEADQUARTERS ALSO DISCLOSED THAT "FIRST ADEQUATE PHOTO COVERAGE" OF THE MARCH 12 AND 19 MASS INCENDIARY RAIDS OF THE BIG MARIANAS-BASED BOMBERS SHOWED FIVE SQUARE MILES OF THE HEART OF THE CITY IN RUINS.

THE PLANTS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED WERE THE NAGOYA ARSENAL, THE MITSUBISHI AIRCRAFT ENGINE PLANT AND THE ASASHI POTTERY WORKS, KURENA TEXTILE PLANT AND MITSUBISHI ELECTRICAL COMPANY, ALL PRODUCING ARTICLES OF WAR.

THE AICHI AIRCRAFT ENGINE PLANT AND THE NAGOYA ARSENAL, AS WELL AS BARRACKS AND OTHER BUILDINGS IN THE VICINITY OF THE SUPPOSEDLY EMPTY NAGOYA CASTLE, WERE SHOWN TO HAVE BEEN DAMAGED IN THE MARCH 12 AND 19 RAIDS.

RECONNAISSANCE REPORTS SHOWED THAT THE FIRE-SWEPT SECTION REPRESENTED 11.6 PER CENT OF THE TOTAL CITY AREA.

SOME SAIPAN-BASED BOMBER CREWS IN SUNDAY'S DEMOLITION RAID SAID CLOUDS BROKE OVER NAGOYA TO GIVE THEM A GOOD VIEW OF THE TARGET.

"WE COULD SEE IT PERFECTLY AND I THINK IT WAS WELL BOMBED," SAID CAPT.R.H.GAMBLE, BOMBARDIER, OF (123 EAST 53RD ST.) NEW YORK CITY, N.Y.

IT WAS THE 24TH MISSION AGAINST THE JAPAN MAINLAND FOR GAMBLE'S PLANE, NAMED "THE THUMPER" AND PILOTED BY CAPT. J.M.CAMPELL OF GREENSBORO,N.C.

MAJ.JOHN W.LIVINGSTONE OF ALMOND, WISC., SAID THE ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS HEAVY. "WE DIDN'T GET HIT," HE SAID, "BUT IT WAS THE THICKEST, MOST ACCURATE I'VE EVER SEEN."

CAPT. LINDEN O.BRICKER, PLANE COMMANDER, OF COLUMBIA, MO., SAID: "ONE OF THE BIGGEST FIRES I EVER SAW WAS BURNING NEAR THE TARGET AREA."

COL. ROBERT A.PING OF (245 RALEIGH AVE.) HAMPTON, VA., LEADER OF THE TINIAN-BASED BOMBERS IN THE RAID, SAID: "THERE WERE LOTS OF EXPLOSIONS IN THE FACTORY AREA."

LT.FRANK A. [illegible]ROWCROFT OF MUNCIE, IND., ALSO MADE TWO RUNS IN HIS GUAM-[illegible]ED BOMBER.

UNDATED JAPANESE BROADCAST (280)
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 26-(AP)-JAPAN'S INVASION FEARS CENTERED ON THE RYUKYU ISLANDS MONDAY---SOME REPORTS SAYING AMERICAN LANDINGS HAD BEEN "ATTEMPTED"--AS PREMIER KUNAIKI KOISO WARNED THE HOMELAND THAT THE WAR SITUATION "IS BECOMING MORE AND MORE URGENT."

TOKYO RADIO SAID IN A SERIES OF BROADCASTS RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION THAT UP TO 8:40 P.M. MONDAY (JAPANESE TIME--6:40 A.M. MONDAY, U.S.ESTERN WAR TIME) THE TYUKYUS' DEFENDERS HAD "PREVENTED THE LANDING OF SO MUCH AS ONE AMERICAN SOLDIER." THE BROADCASTS SAID THE RYUKYUS, PARTICULARLY OKINAWA AND MIYAKO ISLANDS, WERE UNDER CONTINUED HEAVY U.S.AIR AND WARSHIP ATTACK.

THESE REPORTS WERE UNCONFIRMED.

KOISO ISSUED HIS WARNING IN CONNECTION WITH THE GOVERNMENT'S ORDER FOR FORMATION OF A "PEOPLES VOLUNTEER ARMY" TO INCLUDE "GRADUATES OF ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS OF THE NATIONAL SCHOOL WHO ARE OVER 14 YEARS OF AGE, MEN BELOW 60 AND WOMEN YOUNGR THAN 45."

THE PREMIER DECLARED AMERICAN AIR RAIDS "ARE ABOUT TO BE INTENSIFIED" AND THAT THE "POSSIBILITY OF THE HOMELAND BEING TURNED INTO A BATTLE FIELD IS NOT UNEXPECTED."

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE TOSHIO SHIMADA WAS QUOTED AS TELLING THE HOUSE OF PEERS THAT AMERICAN AIR RAIDS HAD CAUSED "CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE" TO THE FOOD SUPPLY.

SHIMADA DECLARED THE BASIC JAPANESE RICE RATION OF ABOUT ONE-SIXTH OF A QUART PER PERSON DAILY WAS INSUFFICIENT BUT THAT "I HAVE THE ABSOLUTE CONFIDENCE AND DETERMINATION TO MAINTAIN THIS RATION."

TOKYO RADIO SAID THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT'S REFUSAL TO CONTINUE REPRESENTING JAPANESE INTERESTS IN ALLIED COUNTRIES, BECAUSE OF MISTREATMENT OF SPANIARDS IN THE PHILIPPINES, WAS DUE TO AN AMERICAN "SLANGER CAMPAIGN."

THE BROADCAST, BEAMED TO EUROPE, DECLARED PHILIPPINE ATROCITY REPORTS WERE "MERELY CALUMNIES RELATING TO THE DESTRUCTION OF MANILA."

Yanks Advance 27 More Miles; Rout Underway

Bedmedr

PARIS, Wednesday, March 28—(AP) Allied armies poured east in a torrent through smashed German lines yesterday, led by U. S. First Army tank forces knifing 27 more miles eastward and breaking across the Dill river where the enemy was desperately trying to rally for a stand 235 miles from Berlin.

The entire front blazed with the fires of victory as seven Allied armies pressed home what Gen. Eisenhower declared was one of the greatest triumphs of the war. A front dispatch said "the rout is under way."

NIGHT

Nazi Power Broken

The Rhineland battle, forever a black day in Prussian military history, had stripped the Germans of the power to make another successful stand although Eisenhower said they yet would form a temporary line.

But now one of those lines had been broken by the First Army's dash, which swept into Herborn and across the Dill river, even as the enemy tried to form a line there to repair the disasters of the Rhine.

Twelve miles to the sout[illegible]ther First Army tank force was closing on Wetzlar, [illegible] beyond the Rhine.

News blackouts closed over [illegible] spearheads, just as they did over racing U. S. Third Army tank columns, which had shredded defenses of the river Main at many points southeast of Frankfurt and by enemy account were loose 225 miles southwest of Berlin.

On the north flank, the British Second Army broke completely through the enemy lines on the north German plain and dashed eastward almost unopposed under another security blackout.

The U. S. Seventh army lashed out from its new bridgehead north of Mannheim, cut the Frankfurt-Mannheim super highway at a second point and was nearly 10 miles east of the Rhine. Widening the bridgehead to 19 miles, it may already have linked up with the Third army's crossings southeast of Mainz.

Patton Sweeps Ahead

The extent of the day's sensational advances could not be told but the enemy said U. S. Third Army columns were approaching Wuerzburg in Bavaria, 223 miles from Berlin, and had reached Lohr, 225 miles from the rubbled German capital.

The U. S. Ninth Army, which was the first to break out of the Wesel bridgehead, alone was striking the fire of stiff resistance but even here the enemy had been driven from Wehofen, the northern suburb of Duisburg, greatest river port in Europe.

Canadians after more than two days of toe-to-toe slugging struck a soft spot in their cross-Rhine positions and drove two miles west into Dornick, only three miles from the German city of Emmerich.

Eisenhower declared that the Germans "as a military force on the Western Front are a whipped army" and predicted that the enemy ultimately would be beaten into unconditional surrender, although "darn hard fighting" still lay ahead.

The latest advances by the U. S. First army put Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges troops less than 250 miles from a junction with the Russian forces of the east, a junction that would blast all hope of organized resistance in southern Germany.

"It really looks like we are in the clear at last," said one officer. "The enemy is getting more and more disorganized. He doesn't know where to look for us next."

Hodges had at least five separate armored columns on the loose.

One of these columns, the Ninth Armored division, crossed the Lahn river at fallen Limburg and sped 20 miles down a super highway to within 12 miles of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Germany's ninth largest city, which was being hammered by the Third army.

Yanks Enter Frankfurt

Sixth Armored division infantry charged into the heart of Frankfurt after seizing a damaged railroad bridge in the face of blistering mortar and machinegun fire. Fighting also raged across the river Main in Hanau, 10 miles east of Frankfurt. The Third army now controlled 30 miles of the Main's south bank from Mainz to Hanau.

Westward, the U. S. First and Third armies joined forces beyond the Rhine after the First army captured Ehrenbreitstein, opposite Coblenz. The Germans in front of these two forces were being caught in a sack 45 miles long by the converging Americans at Frankfurt.

The British breakthrough came in an area northeast of where armor earlier in the day passed through the lines of infantry that had captured Bruenen, six miles northeast of Wesel.

As enemy resistance sagged all along Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's front, the U. S. Ninth army deepended its Ruhr positions to 14 miles and was within two miles of the communications center of Dorsten, due north of the great arsenals of Essen.

The official German news agency submitted that the Rhine front had been "thoroughly shaken" and described Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's deep smash as "a surprising turn of developments."

Another account said the First Army attack "has assumed such speed" that it was apparent the Americans intended "to go on nonstop until such moment when a new defense line or supply difficulties will call a halt to their tank spearheads."

Another enemy broadcast said the Allied smash had strained the German front forces "to the very limit of their endurance."

Tanks Menace Nuernberg

(A Blue network broadcast from Paris said Allied fighter pilots reported Third Army tanks were menacing Nuernberg, nearly 100 miles beyond the point where Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces were officially placed. Nuernberg was the site of the annual Nazi party Congress.)

A powerful armored column of the First army swept another 22 miles northeast from the ancient city of Limburg, which was entered in Monday's sensational splurge, and was reported within two miles of Wetzlar, some 30 miles almost due north of Frankfurt.

Another tank force spilled down a super military highway southeast from Limburg to within a dozen miles of a junction with Third army forces fighting in Frankfurt. Wetzlar is approximately 235 airline miles from Berlin.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' roaring First Army tank forces registered gains as high as 27 miles during the day, maintaining constant pressure on the frantic and disorganized enemy. During Monday night Hodges' infantry first crossed a hastily-built bridge over the Lahr river at Limburg, and with the dawn his tanks began tearing along the super highway toward Frankfurt.

Hodges's Men 54 Miles Past Rhine, Patton's Perhaps 100 And Only 223 From Berlin

Paris, March 27 (AP)—Allied tanks broke into the open in powerful pushes from their many bridgeheads east of the Rhine today and General Eisenhower declared that the main enemy lines had been broken in a great Allied victory.

The United States 1st Army's powerful tank teams, pacing one attack, drove 54 miles east of the Rhine to within 2 miles of Wetzlar, north of Frankfurt, and 237 miles from Berlin. Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's forces spilled across the Lahr River and flowed to the southeast to within 12 miles of Frankfurt.

First Army tanks also lanced into Weilburg, 244 miles southwest of Berlin and far northeast of Limburg.

The enemy said, too, that 3d Army columns were approaching Wuerzburg, in Bavaria, 223 miles from Berlin, and had reached Lohr, on the road to Nuernberg.

On the northern end of the front, the British 2d Army also broke into long gains the extent of which were concealed by a news blackout, and even on the British left flank where the bitterest resistance of all has been encountered the Germans showed signs of collapsing, with Canadians and Highlanders making gains up to 3 miles.

Hours ago 1st Army tanks lanced into Weilburg, 244 miles southwest of Berlin. A field dispatch filed later said this army made spectacular new gains in the continued sweep toward Berlin against opposition that had fallen apart. Censorship, however, prevented the naming of places reached. The Nazi retreat became a rout; thousands of German captives streamed to the rear. The Germans said that 3d Army columns were approaching Wuerzburg, in Bavaria, 223 miles from Berlin, and had reached Lohr, 225 miles from the capital.

Wuerzburg and Lohr are barely more than 100 miles from Czechoslovakia, long since being rolled up by Russian armies charging in from the East.

7th Army Gets 19-Mile Rhine Bridgehead

In the north, the 21st Army Group was slugging out gains against collapsing German resistance in a prelude to what may become the decisive breakthrough of the campaign. Ninth Army troops fought in the suburbs of Duisburg and within artillery range of such Ruhr industrial cities as Essen, Duesseldorf, Gelsenkircken, Mulheim and Oberhausen. Several miles were gained in the center and south of the north front.

The 1st Army's dash—far past the Rhineland hills into open and sparsely wooded farm country in the heart of Germany—had outflanked the whole Ruhr from the south.

The United States 7th Army, fighting south of the 3d, was disclosed to have forged a 19-mile-long Rhine bridgehead north of outflanked Mannheim and driven it 4 miles into inner Germany in the first few hours. Seventh Army prisoners in twelve days totaled 35,000.

German strength was reported slackening even in the critical northern sector—where flat tank country leads to the north door of Berlin. The 9th Army deepened its front to 14 miles and got within 2 of Dorsten.

Chaos was apparent in German retreats in some sectors and even in the enemy's radio broadcasts. The Berlin radio told cut-off troops and officials to "report immediately to their respective authorities and again take up duties in defense of the fatherland." This was the army that set out in 1939 to conquer the world.

Patton Fanning Out Time And Again, Germans Say

The Germans appeared greatly concerned about the 3d Army push beyond Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Germany's ninth largest city, which was being mopped up. Confirming that Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was bearing down upon Wuerzburg, the enemy radio said:

"This breakthrough specialist, remaining faithful to his practice of ruthlessly keeping his advances fluid, is fanning out time and again with assault spearheads. He is trying to open a drive for the Wetterau and Kinzig valleys. A third tank wedge is advancing from Aschaffenburg [22 miles southeast of Frankfurt] toward Wuerzburg and has gained considerable ground."

Lohr, which the Nazis said Patton had reached, is 40 miles southeast of Frankfurt and 21 miles northwest of Wuerzburg. Patton's dash appeared to have cut the Stuttgart-Hannover highway, which a Berlin broadcast termed "the most vital communication line back of the front."

Lohr is more than halfway across Germany from Luxembourg to Czechoslovakia. A drive across southern Germany to the Russian lines some 250 miles east would throw a cordon over the top of the reported German "mountain redoubt" in southern Bavaria, northern Italy and Austria and bar access to the fastness of hundreds of thousands of Germans fighting on the Western and Eastern fronts.

Patton's breakthrough gains were shrouded by a security blackout.

[A Blue network correspondent, Herbert Clark, said in a Paris broadcast today that Allied flyers reported that tanks of the 3d Army were menacing Nuernberg, nearly 100 miles beyond the point where the news blackout had masked the 3d's movements. There was no confirmation from other sources.

[Patton's spearheads also were threatening a cluster of jet-propelled fighter bases at Kitzingen, 10 miles beyond Wuerzburg, Clark said.]

The Germans said they had evacuated Offenbach, manufacturing center of 80,000 on the Main 5 miles east of Frankfurt.

U.S. 7th Gets Strong Cross-Rhine Foothold

The American 7th Army established a strong lodgement across the Rhine north of Mannheim yesterday.

Troops of the 15th Corps crossed the Rhine in assault boats, ferries and amphibious vehicles in a sector flanking the 3d Army's breakthrough beyond Frankfurt.

Six towns were captured and four others were partly occupied. They were in the area north of Mannheim to a point 10 miles northeast of Worms—within 10 miles of the 3d Army bridgehead.

Even Greater Breakthrough Seems Imminent In North

And to the north, American and British advances against collapsing German resistance in the Ruhr and in Westphalia promised an imminent breakthrough of perhaps even more decisive character.

The German defenses have been completely broken beyond Brunen, 15 miles north of Duisburg, and the British 2d Army is racing eastward tonight almost unopposed, said a dispatch from that front.

A security veil around the 2d Army's movements hid the exact extent of the territorial gains there too, however.

Simultaneously with this breakthrough on the east flank

ot the Ruhr bridgehead, the German front on the north flank, where the most fanatical resistance on the entire East Rhine front has been met, appeared to be collapsing.

Signs That Nazis Are Pulling Out Their 'Chutists

There were indications that the enemy might be pulling out his parachute troops, who had been contesting with Highlanders and Canadians for every foot of shell-torn ground.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, employing at least five armored divisions east of the original Rhine bridgehead, sent motorized infantry close behind the tanks and self-propelled guns.

Altenkircken, a secondary traffic center 16 miles north of Coblenz, was captured overnight. The 1st Army caged 4,782 prisoners and was estimated to have from 8,000 to 10,000 more streaming to the rear without guards.

Nazis Have But Two Chances Of Prolonged Resistance

How near the Allies in the west and the Russians in the east were to final victory, no one could say. But the extent to which the Germans can scratch together reserves and hurl them into the path of the onrushes should foretell the outcome within a few days.

Lacking a mobile reserve to rush up from the heart of Germany, the Nazis had two chances of any prolonged resistance:

1. They might shift troops from the Russian front and invite disaster there.

2. They might rely on armed civilians to fight town by town to block the Allies. White flags that flyers saw hastily flung out over roadside towns through which American armor was driving and over road-jammed columns of refugees fleeing east did not seem to presage a citizen-army stand, however.

Everywhere on the American 1st Army front except the left flank along the Sieg River, German resistance split at the seams. The 1st Division beat down a company counterattack at Eitorf, 10 miles east of Siegburg, and advanced 4 miles.

33 Miles Gained In Day

The tank column that reached Weilburg on the 1st Army's right flank had smashed forward 33 miles in a single day. This was the deepest 1st Army penetration and it placed the 1st within 290 miles of Russian lines southeast of Berlin. Patton's 3d Army was only 250 miles from the Russians at last reports, nearly a day ago.

Scores of villages were taken, entered or bypassed by the rampaging 1st Army.

To the north, American 9th and British 2d Army forces were sweeping eastward through the ruined factories of the Ruhr and on the north German plain leading to Berlin's back door.

Essen, greatest city of the Ruhr, was outflanked and also threatened frontally by 9th Army forces at Sterkrade, 7 miles northwest. Americans were in the suburbs of Duisburg, a Rhine port of 431,000. The whole Ruhr Valley was partly outflanked on the north by a British advance of 15 miles or more on the Westphalian plains.

Southern Flank Turned

Its southern flank was turned completely by 1st Army columns that ran to Hachenburg, 33 miles east of the Rhine and 74 miles south of Hamm, eastern exit of the valley.

German resistance, strongest in the north, became so weakened before the charges of Americans, Canadians, Britons, Scots and Welshmen that Field Marshal Montgomery appeared on the verge of perhaps the most decisive breakout of the whole campaign.

Gains Immense Everywhere

Gains were immense on the whole active 175-mile front. The Germans were bewildered and, in large part, disorganized.

Huge stores of military booty were captured in Limburg, near-by Obertiefenback and Hasselbach were taken.

One of the 1st Army's columns swung onto a superhighway and lanced down it virtually unopposed through Limburg and beyond.

Hublingen Entered

A second column raced into Hublingen, north of Limburg and 36 miles from Marburg, on the road to Berlin.

The 3d Army had both tanks and infantry of at least five divisions in and beyond Frankfurt. Some reports indicated that the Germans were making only a desultory defense of that city.

The 4th Armored (Breakthrough) Division was on the Main River at Hanau, 10 miles east of Frankfurt. There was no indication of its direction across the captured Aschaffenburg Bridge 22 miles southeast of Frankfurt.

Allied airborne troops north of the Ruhr between the British 2d and American 9th armies took 3,000 more prisoners. The British got within five miles of Bocholt, fortified Westphalian traffic and industrial center.

Low clouds hung over the front, curtailing aerial operations. There were scattered showers.

Hard Fight Below Sieg

The heaviest tank fighting on the 1st Army front came at a point a few miles south of the Sieg River. In a 7-mile push, one armored column had to beat a flaming path through enemy mortars, machine-gun nests, anti-tank guns, bazookas, rifle and grenade, rocket and artillery fire.

EISENHOWER SAYS ENEMY 'WHIPPED' AS MILITARY UNIT

Declares Allies Will Force Unconditional Surrender on Germans.

MAR 28 1945

SEES FIGHTING AHEAD

Warns Against Expecting 'Race Toward Berlin', No Hint Given of Surrender.

Received

PARIS, March 27—(AP) Gen. Eisenhower asserted today that the German army "as a military force on the Western front is a whipped army" with its lines broken by one of war's greatest victories, but there was no hint that the enemy had been driven to the point of surrender.

"I am not writing off this war," he told a press conference on his return from the front. "No one knows what the Germans will do in his own country, and he is trying hard."

No Race for Berlin

Warning against expecting any race for Berlin, the Supreme commander said that despite the tremendous Allied victory in the Rhineland "that does not mean a front cannot be formed somewhere where our maintenance is stretched to the limit."

"My honest opinion," he continued, "is that there will be no negotiated unconditional surrender. There will be an imposed unconditional surrender.

"Between the Allies in the West and Russia, we will take over Germany. Whether the Germans know it or not, we will know it is unconditional surrender."

Eisenhower authorized only the direct quotations given in this dispatch.

Smiling and confident, Eisenhower said the day would come when he could tell correspondents that all organized resistance on the Western Front was broken, but he was making no forecasts of when that would be.

But in discussing new tanks which recently have appeared on the battlefield, he said that if the war continued a little longer these and other new weapons would make themselves felt—indicating that perhaps he feels the great day of victory is nearer than he will admit.

He cautioned correspondents against being too optimistic regarding the end of the war and declared there was "darn tough fighting ahead."

While the Germans are whipped, he said he saw no sign of their capitulation.

But he cautioned that the drive beyond the Rhine was no non-stop affair. His armies can go only as far as they can be supplied and since there are no railroads across the Rhine at present, that distance is limited for the time being.

Sees Drive Limited

Then with the confidence he always has reposed in correspondents, Eisenhower told them how far that was. But it is not for publication since it might help the enemy.

It is farther than the public might think, but it will not take the western Allies up to the present Russian lines.

Allied advances eastward will be limited by the ability to supply them, Eisenhower said. How far his armies already have gone, he could not say because, as he explained, he had been away from headquarters for three or four hours.

While bridges are being thrown across the Rhine in 10 hours, it takes time to build railway bridges, and the lack of rail communications will for the present limit the eastward advance, Eisenhower said.

The Germans are expected to establish a new line along that limit. If they fall back into Bavaria, they probably will draw back their northern flank, he said, and if they stand along the sea in the north they probably will fold back the southern flank, fighting the usual tough delaying actions.

"I believe that, so far as he is able, the German will stand and fight wherever we find him," the General declared.

"The elimination of German troops west of the Rhine was one of the greatest victories of this or any other war."

The Germans, he said, decided to stand west of the Rhine in the face of overwhelming Allied attacks and were destroyed. That, he added, was the greatest error since the enemy's Ardennes offensive last December and the German decision to stand and fight after the Allies broke out of the Normandy beachhead last Summer.

The General remarked that Nazi mentality apparently dictated the decision to stand and fight everywhere, and said he expected this formula to be continued.

Enemy Stripped of Power

Now the enemy was stripped of the power to form another strong, continuous line, and once the Allies build up strength beyond the Rhine, the march eastward will continue.

The loss of the three great industrial regions of Silesia, the Ruhr and Saar, Eisenhower said, would limit the time the Germans could wage organized warfare unless they could come up with new inventions not requiring heavy industry.

Victory in the Rhineland was achieved quicker and at less cost than the Allied generals had expected, and it cost the Germans 250,000 men in captives alone since March 1, he said.

That victory ended one phase of the Allied campaign, and now begins another; the penetration into the heart of Germany and the annihilation of remaining Nazi power.

Eisenhower said that after reaching the Siegfried Line last Autumn, the Allies had these alternatives: to attempt to break through and cross the Rhine at a given point by a concentration of power, or to defeat the German army west of the Rhine.

There was considerable difference of opinion as to which was the better plan, the Supreme commander said, but he and many others favored the latter on the grounds that, with any sizable German force left west of the Rhine, there always was the danger of disastrous counterattacks.

If the Allies could not defeat the Germans west of the Rhine, they would have still less chance of doing so across the Rhine.

Then, referring to heavy German losses since March 1, he said: "You can see what a quarter of a million men would mean to the German army east of the Rhine."

Plans for the attacks began early last fall, he said, and the program was a 1-2-3 assault which would successively expose the German flanks.

Asked whether the Germans now might not fall back on the west, preferring occupation by the western powers to Russia, the General replied:

"I don't know who the Germans consider their worst enemy."

Praises Commanders

Eisenhower paid high tribute to all his field commanders and to supply organizations, and as usual stressed his formula of teamwork, not only among the Allies, but among land, sea and air forces.

"Team work wins wars," he said.

"Victories to the west of the Rhine were carved out by soldiers and tacticians, but they depended terrifically on the supply people and taxed the flexibility of the supply system to the utmost.

"To implement the attack, our ports worked night and day. During February we cleared 55,000 tons of supplies daily through them, even though our biggest and only undamaged port was under constant V-bombing attack.

MAR 28 1945

Allied Chief Sees No Negotiated Surrender —Says End Will Come When Two Fronts Meet Inside Reich.

30. 24— 24247

Paris, March 27 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower said today that the main German defense line in the west had been broken, and the Germans were a whipped Army. But there still may be tough fighting ahead and the enemy may form a new front where maintenance problems would handicap the Allies, he added.

The Supreme Commander declared he believed there would not be a negotiated unconditional surrender of Germany, but rather that unconditional surrender would be imposed when the Allies in the west linked with the Russian armies.

The commander characterized Allied victory in the battle of the Rhine as one of the greatest of this or any other war. It marked, he added, the end of one phase and the beginning of another, which is the penetration into the heart of Germany and the annihilation of remaining resistance.

The Germans, he said, have suffered a defeat they cannot afford, and need more strength than they now have in the west to establish another line. But Allied troubles are not yet over, he added. There may be stern fighting ahead, especially in the north.

He warned against expecting a straight Allied run to Berlin.

"I am not writing off this war," he said. "No one knows what the German will do in his own country, and he is trying hard."

The Rhineland campaign has gone faster and at less cost than expected, Eisenhower disclosed, adding that the Germans would probably hold on for some time along a line formed by the limits of Allied maintenance power.

Eisenhower made it clear that maintenance problems for the present would permit Allied armies to go only a certain distance east of the Rhine, but naturally did not publicly reveal what the distance was.

The General said that while bridges are being thrown across the Rhine in as little as ten hours, it is not possible to build rail bridges across the Rhine in a short time, and the lack of rail communications would for the present limit the extent to which the Allies can go. He expected the Germans to establish a new line along this limit, after building up supplies across the Rhine, the Allies can then attack again.

He said that if the Germans decided to fall back into Bavaria they would probably pivot their north flank back, and if they decided to make a stand along the seacoast to the north they would probably fold back their south flank, employing the customary delaying actions.

"I believe so far as he is able, the German will stand and fight wherever we find him," Eisenhower said. "The elimination of German troops west of the Rhine was one of the greatest victories of this or any other war."

Smiling and confident, the Allied leader told correspondents at his headquarters that the day would come when he could say to them that all organized resistance on the western front had been broken, but he declined to forecast when that would be.

He announced the Allies had taken 250,000 prisoners on the western front since March 1.

Cites Nazis Mistakes

Eisenhower told correspondents that he didn't know where some of his forces were because he had been away from his headquarters for three or four hours.

He said that the German decision to stand before the Rhine in face of overwhelming Allied attacks instead of retiring across the river has resulted in the effective destruction of German military power in the west, and was the greatest error since the German decision to stand and fight after Allied armies had broken out of the Normandy beachhead. The Nazi mentality apparently dictated a decision to stand and fight everywhere, he said, and he expected that this formula would continue to be adhered to.

After reaching the Siegfried Line last autumn, the Allies had two alternatives, Eisenhower continued. One was to attempt to break through the West Wall and cross the Rhine at a given point by massing concentrated power. The other was to defeat the German Army west of the Rhine. There was considerable difference of opinion as to which was the better plan, the Supreme Commander said, but he and many others favored the latter on the grounds that with any sizable German force left west of the Rhine, there was always the danger of disastrous counter-attack.

FRANKFURT GAINS SLOW

Elite Guard, Police And Air Wardens Battle Yanks

With 6th Armored Division in Frankfurt Suburbs, March 27 (AP). The Americans are fighting their way block by block through Frankfurt-on-Main. Resistance is heavy and the going is slow.

The core of Frankfurt's defense is built around 3,000 Elite Guard fanatics augmented by hundreds of Nazi policemen, air-raid wardens, railway workers, firemen and street sweepers.

Over Partly Wrecked Span

Even while fighting out the suburbs on the southern side of the River Main, doughboys swept across a partly wrecked railway bridge into the city itself.

Tonight it was hard to say how much of Frankfurt the Americans held, but at most it was only a few blocks.

Five miles south of Frankfurt the Americans captured the main airport—second largest in Germany. It formerly was a Zeppelin base, and a handsome book in the administration building listed passengers on early Zeppelin flights, including many Americans.

Ringed By Burned Planes

The skeletons of 50 burned German planes ringed the airport. Two Junkers 88's were left on the field, which is so big that little American artillery spotter cubs looked like toys as they landed and took off.

Stockholm reports heard here said the Germans were not defending Frankfurt. Actually, the city's defenders are fighting hard with everything from bazookas fired from basements to anti-aircraft guns deflected and firing from parks. Eighty-eight milimeter artillery shells are coming from all directions.

The damaged bridge across the Main into the prinicpal part of Frankfurt was seized yesterday, and infantry raced across in a hail of bullets and shells, gaining their bridgehead inside Germany's ninth largest city.

Three Bridges Blown Up

The Germans had succeeded in blowing up three bridges but the damaged fourth was captured by armored infantry under command of Lieut. Col. Emory Lagrew, of Lexington, Ky.

The central portion was damaged so that armor could not cross immediately, and the wall of machine-gun fire thrown from the north seemed more than humans could penetrate.

But somehow the Americans did it, crouching and running into the storm of lead after the southern end of the bridge had been grabbed by the 15th Tank Battalion.

The first Americans sprinting across were led by Lieut. Everett Martin, of Brayan, Texas. The second group across was headed by Lieut. Wilmer Jones, of Waynesburg, Ky.

Concentrates Artillery

Amazingly, the white-hot German fire missed most of the doughboys, but the enemy made up for this failure later with a murderous artillery concentration on the southern end of the bridge, landing shells into the area from which the Americans were jumping off.

The German artillery fire fell continuously for six hours and sporadically throughout the night. The barrage was the worst some correspondent shave seen in three years of war reporting.

Numerous correspondents were pinned down in cellars unable to leave to file their stories until today. Two press jeeps were riddled and the driver of one was slightly wounded, but miraculously no correspondents were hit.

More Than 600 Taken

More than 600 prisoners were taken in the first twenty hours of the Frankfurt attack, and scores more were marching back steadily as the Americans poured terrific fire into the town.

In the outlying suburbs it had been easier. Lieut. Col. Frank Britton, of Hartford, Conn., whose armored infantry battalion participated in the bridge seizure, walked into one village escorted only by Capt. Fred Keffer, of Olympia, Wash., and told civilians they would not be molested if they raised white flags. They promptly complied and tipped him off to the whereabouts of 90 German soldiers.

Many such villagers smiled and shouted greetings to passing Americans, but some women wept.

Fighting Erupts in Hanau

Fighting also erupted in Hanau, beyond the Main River, ten miles east of Frankfort, but there was no confirmation here of enemy reports that Third Army tanks were in Lohr, twenty-five miles farther east.

The suburbs of Niederrad, Sachsenhausen and Schwanheim south of the river, and Offenbach, one of Frankfort's biggest suburbs on the north bank, were cleared.

The south bank of the Main River now is controlled by the Third Army all the way from Mainz to Hanau, a distance of thirty miles.

Fourth Armored Division troops are fighting inside Hanau.

The Twenty-sixth Infantry Division cleared the towns of Ueberach, Oberroden and Offenthal, seven to nine miles southeast of Frankfort.

The Ninetieth Infantry Division, encountering resistance ranging from strong to weak, captured Sprendlingen and Dietzenbach, four and five miles southeast of Frankfort.

An enormous quantity of new booty has been captured. Also taken were thirty tanks newly-repaired.

Take 600 Prisoners

More than 600 prisoners were taken in the first 20 hours of the Frankfurt attack, and scores more were marching back steadily as the Americans poured terrific fire into the town.

In the outlying suburbs it had been easier. Lt. Col. Frank Britton of Hartford, Conn., whose Armored Infantry battalion participated in the bridge seizure, walked into one village escorted only by Capt. Fred Keffer of Olymphia, Wash., and told civilians they would not be molested if they raised white flags. They promptly complied and tipped him off to the whereabouts of 90 soldiers.

Many such villagers smiled and shouted greetings to passing Americans, but some women wept.

Tehn, as Pfc. Harold Bovem of McBain, Mich., put it, "all hell broke loose around the crossing site."

For hour after hour the Germans slammed in fire from more than 100 88-millimeter guns, more than 170 mortars and numerous 105-millimeter anti-aircraft guns firing vicious air bursts that made many a jagged leg and arm wound.

"I've seen lots of shelling but never anything like this," said Sgt. Gordon Bentley of Petersburg, N. Y., one of a group of engineers waiting to repair the bridge as soon as fire slackened.

Sitting in a cellar, he said, "the house above us has received at least eight direct hits. I'm thankful the Germans build such substantial cellars.

1st Army 'Running Wi' Through Reich

By Don W

With the United S... 1st A...
Driving East, March 27 (AP)—... victory-flushed 1st Army continued its sweep toward Berlin today with armored and infantry columns running wild in another 24 hours of spectacular gains.

Except for stubborn enemy resistance in front of the 1st Infantry Division just south of the Sieg River at the southern boundary of the Ruhr industrial region, enemy opposition has fallen apart before the hammering from Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's mighty tank forces.

The armored columns are followed closely by infantry, and are flowing eastward over roads like water churning down stream beds.

Prisoners Pouring In

The rout is under way and hundreds of ...isoners overrun by the swift armored dash are pouring back, sometimes without even a guard.

The advances are so swift thta even divisional headquarters maps most of the time are far behind the actual gains of the columns, and corps headquarters officers just shake their heads and point vaguely to the east, saying: "They're somewhere out there."

The priority on bridges and roads is to the east, and supplies are pouring behind the rampaging armor and motorized infantry.

Convoys Roll Ahead

At one Rhine bridge, an almost endless convoy was rolling across and military police shuttled back and forth on the road to break up any possible traffic jam. On the eastern bank, trucks waited for a break in traffic. They were jammed with German prisoners who stared at the truck columns as though they couldn't believe such action was taking place before them. Most of these prisoners looked very young.

There is heavy traffic on all Rhine bridges, and from the looks of the roads General Eisenhower had built up tremendous stock piles in anticipation of this drive on Berlin.

In the thick of the fight were the ..., 99th, and 78th Infantry divi...ns. But there were other divisions, including powerful armored divisions, whose identities still are covered by security censorship.

At one command post, Major Walter Hillenmeyer, of Lexington, Ky., watched as maps were marked showing new locations of the armored spearheads.

"Not Enough Maps"

"The trouble is," he said, "we can't keep enough maps on the wall to keep up with the advances."

The attack boiled on east of Altenkirchen and ancient Limburg. It spilled across the Lahn River to engulf Limburg. It rolled to the east, mile after mile falling behind the roaring tanks.

Areas that only a few days ago were battle zones now are quiet sectors being taken over by rear echelon units moving up across the Rhine. The whole front is ablaze with the fire of victory. An infectious spirit of competition is spurring one division to outdo another in the race.

I tried to catch up with the forward spearheads today but it was impossible. They were moving too fast and the roads were jammed with miles-long convoys thundering forward with food, gasoline, ammunition, ordnance equipment and material to keep the attack rolling undiminished.

1ST ARMY PLUNGES; PRISONERS AGAPE

Tanks Race Across Dill River and Flow Around Enemy Troops in Towns

GERMANS ARE ASTOUNDED

Captives Unable to Grasp the Situation—Our Spearheads Way Out in Front

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY, March 27 (AP)—United States First Army tanks drove into Herborn, forty-seven miles east of the Rhine, today and cracked the Dill River line, on which the Germans had planned to make their last stand after the rupture of the Rhine line.

The smashing drive into Herborn, which is thirteen miles northwest of the confluence of the Dill and Lahn Rivers at Wetzlar, put the far-ranging American armored column less than 240 miles from Berlin.

"There is no doubt we have broken the Nazis' Dill River line even before they could get it set," said Major Haynes Dugan of Shreveport, La.

Great Armored Sweep

Riding in scores of Sherman and light tanks, red-eyed Americans who had not slept for two nights and three days still were pushing on tonight, weary but eager to sweep ahead in one of the greatest armored marches in history.

"It really looks like we are in the clear at last," said Lieut. Col. Andrew Barr of Urbana, Ill., formerly a Yale history professor and Securities Exchange Commission member. "The enemy is getting more and more disorganized. He doesn't know where to look for us next."

Early tonight the First Army applied a security blackout on news of its eastward positions to prevent giving the enemy any information. The German Army's own communications have collapsed in some areas, and enemy radio "feelers" have multiplied in efforts to gain information about the whereabouts of the Americans.

Major Dugan thus summed up the deterioration of enemy defenses in the eastward path of the First Army's sensational advances:

"Sunday, the first day, we met enemy mine fields that were thoroughly laid and guarded by anti-tank and machine guns. Yesterday the Jerries were putting out mines hastily wherever they could.

"Today, well, if we have run into any mine fields at all, I haven't heard of them. The Germans haven't had a chance to plant them; they've been too busy trying to save their own skins."

Many German soldiers are changing to civilian clothing and moving back westward to their Rhineland homes along with swarms of French, Polish, Greek and Belgian war prisoners and slave laborers. There have been some scattered reports of some of these Germans laying mines behind the leading American tank elements in order to hamper supply columns, but Major Dugan said, "The vast majority of German civilians are keeping out of the way as much as possible and doing what they are told."

Some Furious Fighting

Major Dugan emphasized that while resistance had been comparatively light in the central and southern quarters of the battle-front, the left-flank advance along the Sieg River line had produced some of the most furious battling of the war. He said:

"We knocked out some twenty tanks and self-propelled guns in the last three days in our sector alone and most of them were on the left flank. The Germans put a strong and well-organized force there to guard the Ruhr district, and two of our task forces cracked up against parts of five divisions—three Panzer, one Panzergrenadier and one infantry."

Major Dugan grinned as he added:

"Well, we have rolled more than fifty miles in less than three days. We feel it's safe to say now that our bridgehead over the Rhine is secure."

The command post of this one armored division has moved three times today in order to keep in touch with its wide-roaming leading columns—and sometimes they still are out of reach. Last night, after chance shells set ablaze two American ammunition trucks on a near-by ridge, the Germans pumped a heavy barrage into the command post and riddled the commanding general's trailer with shrapnel.

"He is getting used to it now," said Major Dugan. "That was the third time his trailer has almost been destroyed since we started fighting in Europe."

The general himself was in a farmhouse only a few feet from the trailer. He escaped injury.

Trip On Hitler-Paved Roads A GI Joyride

By Harold V. Boyle

On the Road to Berlin, March 27 (AP)—This is the greatest armored joyride in history—and Adolf Hitler literally paved the way to his own downfall.

The great single and double lane highways he built in peace to shuttle his armies out from the heart of Germany to attack neighboring countries are proving his undoing.

They are smooth concrete avenues to Berlin and other great German cities over which the mightiest masses of armor ever assembled in the West are rolling at true Blitzkrieg pace in a dozen columns, coming from so many directions the Germans are powerless to scrape together enough troops to halt them all.

Military Gone To Pieces

The Nazi military machine has gone to pieces on its own home grounds. It is in chaos in many sectors. Tanks of Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's United States 1st Army and Lieut. Gen. George Patton's 3d Army have yet to crack up against a really strong line—and there is none yet in sight.

Hodges has thrown into the grinding combat the largest tank task forces ever used by any American Army on one battlefront—forces which make El Alamein look like a sandlot maneuver. And other attacking Allied armies have armored strength almost as powerful.

Greatest Thrill

To ride in a halftrack or light tank spearing through obscure flaming German villages is one of the greatest thrills of war—because at the end of this long, hot, dusty, uncomfortable trek lies victory. When the attack opened before dawn Sunday, veteran tankmen were cautiously hopeful. They weren't sure just what kind of anti-tank defenses were ahead. Now that the march is under way at full speed, they are exuberantly confident.

Halting briefly by the side of a burning German house to munch a quick lunch of K-rations, cheese and crackers, First Lieutenant Glenn Adkisson, of Lincoln, Neb., executive officer of a light tank company, poked his head out of the turret and smiled grimly from a cheerful, dirt-streaked face.

Lieutenant Optimistic

"It's gone a lot easier than we thought—even though they told us this wouldn't be a tough one," he said. "We think the war will be over soon now. Soon as we get clear of these woods and hills we will end it pretty quick."

"Yeah, we will do it easy now—the German Army isn't much good any more," chimed in his gunner, Pfc. Wilbur Burgess, Chicago Heights, Ill., and the driver, Tech. 5/g Nearson Burgess, Highland Home, Ala., poked out his grinning helmeted head to add:

"It can't last much longer. They are giving up too easy. We just passed up a column of 500 prisoners going back and the day isn't half done."

Most Tank Crews Agree

That's the way most tank crews feel—it can't go on much longer.

Minefields, roadblocks and anti-tank guns slow these giant columns only momentarily. Doughboys leap from the iron tanks and sweep in from the flanks to drive away or kill the enemy anti-tank gunners with rifle fire. Bulldozers move up in front of the column under cover of protecting tank guns and shove aside road-blocking debris from blown bridges and overhead spans as combat engineers sweep a path through the minefields. Then the column smashes forward again at full speed.

Whenever the columns run into a strong enemy position, one section coils off to deal with it as the rest of the tanks wheel onward. In this leapfrog fashion doughboy and tank teams have kept up the impetus of the advance.

Catch Nazis Off Guard

They have swept through some towns so fast the householders hadn't time to put up white flags of surrender and the surprised Nazi garrisons were caught outside their positions, their guns unmanned. After a few minutes' shelling they give up readily and infantry units then move in to clean out snipers.

No attempt is being made to save Nazi real estate. Whenever the tankmen suspect a building or home may house a German strongpoint, they blow it apart and race by.

"Fire First" Is Motto

"When in doubt—fire first," is their motto.

Armored vehicles escort ammunition and food trains trailing behind the far-ranging columns and guard them from ambush. Despite advances of 20 to 35 miles a day, no tank has run out of shells and no man has gone without food.

"We are getting most of the men at least one hot meal a day, even at the rate they are traveling and fighting," said one commander. "I don't know any other army in the world that could equal our combat supply record in this advance toward Berlin."

NEW ALLIED TANKS APPEAR ON WEST FRONT

PARIS, March 27.—(AP) Gen. Eisenhower said today that some new American and British tanks equivalent to the German Tiger and Panther models now had appeared on the battlefield.

Their numbers are not large but will increase, Eisenhower, the Supreme command of the Western Allies said at a press conference.

(Eisenhower did not identify the new tanks. It has been announced previously that the new American T-26 "Pershing" tank is in production.)

Noting statements that American tanks were inferior to those of the enemy, he said the Sherman tank, when first used by the British in Egypt's western desert, was superior to anything the Germans had, and that the Germans produced the Panther and Tigers to match the Sherman.

Patton Calls U.S. Tanks Best in War

General Says German Machines Are Far Below American in Mobility.

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr. has fired a high-velocity volley of words and figures at "certain misguided or perhaps deliberately mendacious individuals" who criticize American tanks.

The War Department made public today a letter from the Third Army commander to Lieut.-Gen. Thomas T. Handy, deputy chief of staff in which Gen. Patton said that it had been stated at home that American tanks are not comparable with the German Panther or Tiger tanks. This, said Gen. Patton, is wholly incorrect for several reasons.

One he cited is that since the Third Army started fighting the Germans last August tank losses have been virtually double those of the Third—2,287 to 1,136.

Gen. Patton conceded that if an American Sherman medium tank were to engage in a fixed-place duel with a Tiger the medium would not last. But he insisted the purpose of the American tank is not to engage in a slugging match but to attack from the rear.

Writes His Views.

The text of Gen. Patton's letter, written from Third Army headquarters under date of March 19 and referring to the presence of the army at Mainz, Germany, follows:

"It has come to my knowledge that certain misguided or perhaps deliberately mendacious individuals, returning from the theater of war, have criticized the equipment of the American soldier. I have been in command of fighting units since the 7th of November, 1942, and may therefore claim some knowledge of the various types of equipment.

"With reference to the tank, either Mark V (light) or Mark IV (medium), it has been stated at home that these tanks are not comparable with the German Mark VI, the so-called Panther and Tiger type tanks. This statement is wholly incorrect for several reasons.

"Since August 1, 1944, when the Third Army became operational, our total tank casualties have amounted to 1,136 tanks. During the same period we have accounted for 2,287 German tanks, of which 808 were of the Tiger or Panther variety, and 851 on our side were Mark IV.

Refutes Inferiority Charge.

"These figures of themselves refute any inferiority of our tanks, but let me add that the Third Army has always attacked, and therefore better than 70 per cent of our tank casualties have occurred from dug-in anti-tank guns and not enemy tanks, whereas a majority of the enemy tanks put out have been put out by our tanks.

"It is patent that if a Tiger tank with an enormous thickness of armor were put at one end of a village street and engaged in a fire fight with a Mark IV tank at the other end, the Mark IV tank would not last. However, the great mobility of the Mark IV tank usually enables it to circumcumvent the slow and unwieldy Tigers and not to engage in a slugging match but to attack them from the rear.

"With the advent of the heavy, cumbersome Tiger tank, the German, in my opinion, lost much of his ability in armored combat These tanks are so heavy and their road life is so short that the German uses them as guns and not as tanks—that is, he uses them on the defense.

Enemy Losses Heavy.

"Had the armored divisions which accompanied the Third Army across France been equipped with Tiger tanks, the road losses would have been 100 per cent by the time we reached the Moselle River. As it was, the road losses on our long-lived tanks were negligible.

"In the current operation, had the Fourth Armored Division been equipped with Tiger and Panther tanks and been required to make the move from Saargue-mines to Arlon, then through to Bastogne, from Bastogne to the Rhine, and now to Mainz, it would have been necessary to re-armor it twice; and furthermore, it would have had serious if not insurmountable difficulty in crossing rivers.

"Finally, we must remember that all our tanks have to be transported on steamers, and the difference between forty tons and seventy tons is very marked. A seventy-ton tank could never have been brought ashore in landing boats, as many of our medium tanks were. Nor could they have marched from the Cotentin Peninsula to the Rhine as practically all of our tanks have been required to do.

"In mechanical endurance and ease of maintenance, our tanks are infinitely superior to any tank in the theater of war. The outstanding advantage which our tanks possess over the German tank is the mechanical traverse and stabilizer, through the use of which we get most of our kills."

The Mark IV is generally known in this country as the M-4 (Sherman) and the Mark V as the M-5 (General Stuart).

52 Years Old, He's In 'Hitler Youth'

With U.S. 3d Army, March 27 (AP).—A German soldier captured in the Frankfurt suburbs today told his captors he was 52 years old.

"What is a man your age doing in the army?" asked Lieut. Col. Ernest Mitchell of Lexington, Mass.

With a weary grimace, the prisoner replied, "I'm a member of the Hitler Youth."

German Generals Among Prisoners

NIGHT

With the U.S. 3d Army, March 27 (AP)—Two Nazi major generals, several colonels and fifteen lieutenant colonels were captured today by doughboys in a roundup of more than 1,200 prisoners in the vicinity of Ehrenbreitstein across the Rhine from Cologne.

General Chaffee Is in Action

EAST OF THE RHINE WITH THE UNITED STATES 9TH ARMY, March 27 (AP).—A new American nineteen-ton light tank mounting a 65-mm. gun and called the General Chaffee, in honor of the first head of the American armored forces, has been operating on the western front since about the first of the year, it was revealed today. The General Chaffee replaced the rather cumbersome and easily spotted American light tanks of the General Stuart model.

Gallagher

It has proved a considerably better machine than the previous American light tanks, which were too high and too lightly armed. The old light tanks had 37-mm. guns. The new tank has no counterpart in the German Army, where light tanks have almost disappeared.

7,000 CIVILIANS IN SHELTER FREED

DAY

Germans Had Been Trapped During 4-Day Battle

Evinson

Wehoffen, Germany, March 27 (AP).—After a four-day battle in front of an air-raid shelter here, American doughboys released 7,000 German civilians who had been trapped inside—and hundreds of them wept because they were not freed by Nazi troops instead.

"It is the end of the fatherland," many of them moaned, shaking their heads.

"Now Have Nothing Left"

NIGHT

One emaciated blond woman of about 25, wailed, "everything is lost. We thought some way we would win but now we know we have nothing left. All is gone."

The civilians possessed only the clothing they wore when the Allies' 600-shells-a-minute barrage opened up on this mining community suburb of Duisburg at 1 A.M. Saturday.

Stringy-haired women held dirty babies that cried for food. For four days and three nights all had sat on board benches, listening to the battle that raged across the shelter entrance. To leave meant exposure to both sides, so they had stayed.

Fired On By Germans

Once a few civilians tried to surrender but Germans fired on them and they ran back into the shelter.

The shelter, built two years ago, consisted of three concrete-walled tunnels, each 100 yards long, under a slag pile at a coal mine.

Most of the occupants were women. All were dirty and poorly dressed. Some smiled, but most either wept or stared blankly.

Soldiers under Lieut. Col. Clarence Gooding, of the 79th Infantry Regiment, reached the east end of the slag pile early in the offensive. There they ran into such a wall of machine-gun fire that they were held up until today.

6000 CIVILIANS REPORTED IN TRAP

Walsum, Germany, March 26 (Delayed) (A. P.).—A German Red Cross nurse said today more than 6,000 German men, women and children have been trapped in air raid shelters near the town of Wehoffen since an American artillery barrage began shortly after midnight Friday and must go without food and water until the battle lines pass. Wounded, the nurse walked through American lines this morning.

German soldiers will not evacuate the civilians to their lines, she told Sergt. Bernard Bernof of Camden, N. J., member of the Seventy-ninth Division.

"About 200 men, 1,000 children, and more than 5,000 women are trapped in three connecting air raid shelters in a slag pile near Wehoffen," she said. "Many are wounded. Some lost their arms or legs while running across the fields when the shells started to fall so thick. Hundreds were killed and many children in the shelter now are orphans."

Americans Repay German Girl

By Harold V. Boyle

With the U.S. 1st Division beyond the Rhine, March 27 (AP)—Trudi, a 20-year-old German girl, was in an American field hospital today after risking her life to give first aid to wounded American soldiers.

Vengeful Nazis shot her and burned her home, and she was found near the blazing farmhouse, lying on the gronud, writhing in pain.

Doesn't Forget a Friend

Her hospital bed is surrounded by gifts of fruit, candy and cookies from grateful Americans for whom she dared the shellfire of her own countrymen, and there was no fine for fraternizing in this case.

"The 1st Division doesn't forget a friend," said Capt. Maxie Zera, of the Bronx, N.Y., who told the story.

The incident occurred last Saturday while Company C of the 16th Infantry was engaged in a savage fight for Griesbach, on the northern end of the United States 1st Army's Remagen bridgehead. Several Americans fighting near the farmhouse were wounded, and their comrades were too closely engaged to help them.

"This girl was watching from a window in the farmhouse," Captain Zera related. "She ran out to do what she could. There was much she did. Shell splinters were flying all over the area and machine-gun rifle bullets cracked near by. Trudi a girl who never had seen a battle before, paid them no attention. Skillfully and gently, she bandaged the wounded men. When other infantrymen worked over to her position she helped them improvise litters to carry off the casualties.

Look Her Up Quickly

"Momentarily, then, the platoon had to pull back. Trudi returned to her farmhouse. Several hours later Company G took the town after driving out the last Jerries. One of the first things the boys did was to hunt up the German girl who had helped save their buddies' lives. They wanted to thank her."

The wounded girl explained to an American who understood German:

"After you left, a German captain learned I had helped your wounded. He had me shot and ordered his men to burn down all the buildings on our farm."

U. S. AIRSTRIP OVER RHINE

Clerks and Draftsmen Create Field, Already in Use

Signal Corps

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, United States Ninth Air Force, March 27 (AP)—The first American airfield east of the Rhine began functioning at twilight today.

Security considerations made it impossible to disclose the location of the field now, but dozens of clerks, draftsmen and draftsmen know where it is because they built it with pick and shovel and without benefit of engineering equipment that still has not reached the most forward positions.

NIGHT

Headquarters service troops of the Ninth Engineer Command Regiment were summoned from administrative tasks to enable the first American planes to land east of the river.

Headquarters men of the 925th Engineer Aviation Regiment, under the command of Col. Thomas A. Glass of Joliet, Ill., who got up front in jeeps, resorted to primitive methods rather than wait for the slow-moving heavy equipment.

The first assignments were to remove American wounded.

away when he heard it had been given to officers who never had been in combat and held desk jobs.

A Walking Arsenal.

Johnston carried a .45 on his hip. He fired it by fanning the hammer in the old Western style. On his shoulder he carried a German pistol. In his hand he carried a Springfield rifle. He kept a sub-machine gun and a sawed-off shotgun in his jeep. He used them all. On one occasion he climbed into a tank in the midst of a battle and fired its 75 millimeter gun. Even with all his shooting irons Johnston weighed only 127 pounds.

Colorful and cocky he won the adoration of his men the first time he went into battle. When his company fell into a trap, near Geilenkirchen during the division's first action, Johnston brought them out by crawling 1,200 yards under sniper and heavy machine-gun fire to bring help. On six occasions he led a "march fire" assault—which means firing from the hip in a running attack.

Johnston had his own personal patrol which he led into enemy

G. I. Wounded 8 Times Says, 'I'm Just Lucky'

WITH UNITED STATES 7TH ARMY (AP).—Private First Class Danny B. Marshall's reaction to eight wounds received in the Italian and French campaigns is, "I'm just lucky, that's all."

The 45th Division infantryman from Holdenville, Okla., explains how he got them just as tersely: "From time to time I was hit."

Yanks Argue Way Out Of Captivity

With the 7th Army, March 27 (AP).—Private Culver Holt, of Baltimore, was one of three 42d Division medics who used phrase-book German to argue their way out of captivity and send their five erstwhile captors to an American prisoner cage.

Private Holt and two other medics crawled into a trench to escape fire only to find it occupied by Germans, who promptly put their guns against the unarmed aidmen and forced them into a pillbox.

Getting out their phrase book, the three convinced the Germans—one of whom had been in the army nine years—that they were surrounded by Americans and not only would it be a good idea to let the medics go, but it would be even better to accompany the Americans back to the latter's lines.

Western Front's Three-gun Midget Is Dead

The Indestructible Major Met End He Foresaw, a Direct Hit.

By WES GALLAGHER.

In Germany, March 27 (A. P.).—The western front's three-gun indestructible midget is dead. He died as he sometimes expressed the hope he would—by a direct hit from an 88.

He was Major James V. Johnston, 28, 5 feet 5 fighting machine from Portland, Ore., who in a few short weeks had become a legend with the Eighty-fourth Infantry Division. No one knows how many Germans he disposed of. In one attack alone, he killed twenty and captured eighty-eight. He was in the forefront of every fight the division had.

His only decoration was a bronze star, and he threw that lines on dull days. It's a wonder he lived as long as he did. Men had begun to think of him as indestructible.

No Use for Germans.

His contempt for the enemy was complete. He liked to tell prisoners, "I have been at many country fairs and half a dozen sideshows but I never have seen anything that could beat you squareheads yet."

His concern for his own troops equaled his dislike of the enemy. He would give shivering doughboys the clothes off his own back—and he always carried K rations. He never ate them himself. Every man in the battalion was accustomed to pour complaints into his receptive ear.

His habit of walking around nonchalantly under fire made him a choice sniper target. But it took an 88 to kill him with a direct hit. He died in one of the division's last battles before reaching the Rhine.

Soviet Tanks Strike Within 61 Miles of Vienna Limits.

RACE ACROSS HUNGARY

Two Red Armies Link Up for Assault Against Sudeten Mountains.

Wheeler

LONDON, Wednesday, March 28 —(AP) Armor-paced Russian forces plunged within 61 miles of Vienna's city limits, herding the Germans back upon the Austrian border now 23 miles away from Soviet units charging across the tableland of northwestern Hungary, Moscow announced last night.

Far to the north, other powerful Russian [illegible] NIGHT crashed into the center of the landlocked Danzig and fought through the streets of the neighboring Polish port of Gdynia, the Soviet communique said.

Fall Believed Imminent

The fall of these two vital Nazi naval bases on the Baltic appeared imminent. Their capture would give the Russians a psychological as well as a military triumph, for it was over Danzig and the adjacent Polish corridor that Adolf Hitler found a pretext for launching the Second World War Sept. 1, 1939.

In German Upper Silesia and adjacent Polish Silesia, Marshal Ivan I. Petrov's Fourth Ukraine army linked up with the First Ukraine army commanded by Marshal Ivan S. Konev, and the two massive forces lashed out together on an 80-mile-wide front against the Germans' Sudeten mountain positions.

Soviet units on the left flank of this front, which faces generally southward, won positions 14 miles northeast of Moravska - Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city guarding the northern route to Prague and already threatened Vienna.

After capturing the Polish city of Ryenik, 13 miles east of Ratibor, Soviet forces drove nine miles beyond that eight-way highway junction and took Loslau (Wodzislaw) for their closest approach to the Moravian gap.

In all, the Russians captured more than 40 towns and villages in that area, including the important junction point of Zory (Sohrau), eight miles southeast of Rybnik.

Threaten to Trap Nazis

On the other flank they took Strehlen, 20 miles below besieged Breslau. The entire drive toward Moravia threatened the entrapment of thousands of Germans deployed to the southeast along the now-breached Hron river in Slovakia.

In a sweeping drive in Hungary between the Danube and Lake Balaton Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine Army swept up more than 200 cities, towns and hamlets.

Advancing eight miles northwest of captured Lovaszpatona, the Russians took Tet, 23 1-2 miles from the Austrian border and less than 61 miles from Vienna's city limits. To the west, Kisber fell, further severing the southern communications of the outflanked Danube river bastion of Komarom (Komarno) and the vital communications hub of Gyor. With the capture of Acs, six miles southwest of Komarom and 16 miles northeast of Gyor, the Russians threatened the Nazi forces in both those defensive centers barring the Danube valley invasion route to Bratislava and Vienna.

By enemy account the First White Russian army was pouring a "ceaseless stream" of men across the Oder, widening its offensive front in Berlin's forefield. The Russians were shelling 40-mile stretch of this front northward from Frankfurt and had pushed into Nazi defenses at Genschmar, six miles northwest of captured Kuestrin and 34 miles from the Reich's imperiled capital, Berlin said. The Germans previously had placed the Russians 31 miles east of Berlin at Golzow, four miles south of Genschmar.

Drive Toward Vienna

In northwestern Hungary Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukraine Army and a wing of Marshal Rodio Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army were driving against Vienna's outer defenses south of the Danube river.

According to the German communique the Third Ukraine Army has reached the lower Raba river which runs within 20 to 23 miles of the Austrian border and 60 to 65 miles of Vienna.

The river flows into an arm of the Danube at outflanked Gyor, the stronghold guarding the Bratislava gap entrance to Vienna.

The point where the Russians reached the river was not disclosed in the enemy war bulletin, but Tolbukhin's surging armored spearheads may have driven from Papa or the area of Lovaszpatona, towns taken by the Russians Monday within 8 1-2 and 12 miles respectively, of the river. Such an advance would have carried the Russians over the Marcal river, which closely parallels the Raba in that area. Together these two streams form Vienna's first defense line.

A Berlin military spokesman said the Russian drive in Hungary "has assumed the proportions of a great offensive," and added: "The beginning of this battle, which looks promising for the Russians, has distinctly made Hungary a new center of gravity on the Eastern front."

Equipment Speeded Up

Moscow dispatches said Russian engineers were hurrying up equipment for a swift crossing of the Raba. Fast Soviet screening units with jeeps and motorcycles slashed Nazi defenses ahead of the tanks, destroying road blocks and disorganizing the German withdrawal.

The Germans said Russian forces were extending a bridgehead west of the Hron River in the area of Leva (Levice), 92 miles east of Vienna, in an offensive across the plains leading 68 miles westward to the Bratislava Gap.

While Moscow did not confirm this crossing, it announced Monday that 2d Ukraine Army units in a sector 31 miles to the northeast had crossed a 36-mile stretch of the Hron and captured Banska Bystrica, 125 miles east of Vienna.

Germans Lose 2 Silesian Towns To Russians

DAY

London, March 27 (AP)—The 1st Ukrainian Army in a double-edge lunge in Silesia has captured Strehlen, 21 miles south of Breslau, and Rybnik, 80 miles to the southeast and about 20 miles from the Czechoslovak stronghold of Moravska-Ostrava, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

The German high command earlier declared the 3d Ukrainian Army in western Hungary had struck to the Raba River, which flows 20 to 30 miles from Austria and 60 to 65 from Vienna.

Strehlen was stormed by troops striking southwest from Ohlau and Brieg in the rich industrial basin of German Silesia.

Threat To Czechoslovakia

Rybnik is in Polish Silesia, 14 miles east of Ratibor, and the attack here appeared to be a wheeling action that may push into Czechoslovakia.

Berlin broadcasts said the twin thrusts in Silesia both were aimed at breaking through to the Moravian gap to Prague and Vienna, while the assault by the 2d and 3d Ukrainian armies up the Danube was aimed at the same objectives from the southeast.

The situation on the Hungarian front was becoming hourly more acute, Berlin commentators said.

The broadcast German communiqué did not disclose the point where the Soviets reached the Raba in northwestern Hungary, but the river flows into an arm of the Danube at Gyor, stronghold guarding the Bratislava gap entrance to Vienna.

Two Possible Locations

Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's troops may have reached the Raba, upstream from Gyor, in an advance from Papa or the area of Lovaszpatona farther northeast. Both towns were seized yesterday.

[The 1st Ukrainian Army has invaded Czechoslovakia and reached Troppau (Opava) and Moravska-Ostrava, a BBC broadcast quoting the German radio and heard by CBS said today.]

Tanks Vienna-Bound

Tanks of both the 3d and 2d Ukrainian armies were beating toward Vienna along the south bank of the Danube, and Germans were resisting fiercely.

The German communiqué also declared the Russians had scored new breaches on the Berlin front near Kuestrin on the Oder, and said "superior" Soviet forces were battling in the fringes of the Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia.

The Russians had surged to within 16 miles of Gyor in yesterday's advances, closing to within 31 miles of Austria and 69 of Vienna.

Planning Swift Crossing

Moscow dispatches said Russian engineers were hurrying up equipment for a swift crossing of the Raba.

The German communiqué reported a bitter defensive battle on the Raba, and in the areas south of Gyor and southwest of Papa.

A German military spokesman declared: "Fighting in Hungary has assumed the proportions of a great offensive. The beginning of this battle, which looks promising for the Russians, has distinctly made Hungary a new center of gravity on the Eastern f[illegible]

Seize 100 Towns.

Tolbukhin's Third Army seized more than 100 towns and villages, advancing up to nine miles on a sixty-five-mile front across northwest Hungary. In the center his troops captured Papa, eleven-way road and rail center twenty-five miles southwest of Gyor, in a four-mile advance that cut the railroad and highway linking Gyor with Szombathely near the Austrian-Hungarian border. Fifteen miles south of Papa other Third Ukrainian Army spearheads seized Devecser.

Front dispatches said that Red Army tanks were cutting behind the German lines, blasting communications and scattering the Nazi defenders. The Germans massed along the Marcal River, Vienna's first defense line. The advance elements of Tolbukhin's forces were only six miles from the river, and the Red Army Air Force in clear weather pounded the river line.

Railroad Junction Taken

Tolbukhin's forces outflanked Kisber, railroad junction 17 miles south of Komarom, by cutting its rail communications with Gyor after taking Romand, 11 miles east of Kisber. His infantrymen seized Bakonypeterd, 16 miles southeast of Gyor, and Lovaszpatona, 7 miles west of Bakonpeterd and also 16 miles from Gyor. The latter marked the closest approach to Vienna.

BOMBERS LOOSE 11-TON BOMBS ON SUBMARINE PENS

Deane

LONDON, Wednesday, March 28 —(AP) British bombers hurled their new 11-ton bombs on Nazi submarine pens for the first time yesterday and during the night Mosquitos attacked Berlin for the 36th consecutive night.

Rainy weather gave the Reich a temporary respite from other raids by [illegible] NIGHT bombers in daylight Tuesday.

Lancasters dropped the "volcano" bomb on concrete U-boat shelters at Farge, near Vegesack and 10 miles down the Weser river from Bremen. They also hit a nearby oil storage depot and the Konigsborn and Sachsen benzol plants near Hamm.

In spite of the weather, Eighth Air force fighters escorted RAF Lancasters which heavily bombed the railway center of Raderborn, 40 miles east of Hamm. It was the 42nd day of '43 that heavy bombers from England have raided Germany.

Fliers who used the volcano bombs on the submarine pens said the delayed fuses prevented full observation but they saw "black holes" in the roofs which previous bombs had failed to penetrate.

More than 100 Nazi tanks, 1,800 freight cars and 1,200 motor vehicles were hit in Monday's tactical air force operations. In some cases dive-bombers dropped explosives only 40 yards ahead of the British army lines. Berlin was bombed last night for the thirty-fifth consecutive night.

The Air Ministry announced that preliminary reports indicated good results from an attack by RAF costal command Liberators on seven German U-boats, a destroyer and 14 other ships in the western Baltic last night. All the raiders returned.

Volcano Bombs Rained On Farge U-Boat Pens

DAY

London, March 27 (AP)—RAF Lancasters hurled 11-ton volcano bombs on submarine pens for the first time at Farge, northwest of Bremen, today in heavy attacks.

Weather had curtailed air operations over western Germany during the morning.

Farge is a small Weser River shipbuilding town near Vegesack, 10 miles upstream from Bremen. An oil-storage depot in the same area also was attacked, and other Lancasters bombed the Koenigsborn and Sachsen benzol plants near Hamm.

100 Tanks Crippled

Earlier, it was announced that more than 100 German tanks were destroyed or crippled by American and British dive bombers yesterday as Allied armies across the Rhine received the closest air support on record.

Several Nazi tanks and self-propelled guns were blasted out of hedgerows only 40 yards ahead of the British lines. The Tommies waved their tin hats at the pilots.

RAF reconnaissance planes discovered the 11th Panzer Division, which the Germans were known to have been holding in reserve for a possible counterattack, hiding in a woods near Field Marshal Montgomery's right flank. With the aid of the United States 9th Air Force, the armored concentration was dispersed. At least 50 of its tanks were known to have been demolished.

Oil Train Fired

The air forces maintained a stranglehold on German railways feeding the battlefront.

RAF Spitfires set afire a 30-car oil train believed earmarked for the Nazi air force on a secondary line south of Enschede late yesterday. After dark, American Black Widow night fighters exploded two ammunition trains near Wuppertal.

Berlin was attacked by RAF Mosquitos for the 35th consecutive night.

Rail Cars Destroyed

During the day, 1,065 freight cars were destroyed, 800 others damaged, 99 locomotives knocked out, 83 barges sunk or damaged, 83 horse-drawn vehicles destroyed and 1,128 motor vehicles shot up.

Nineteen field guns, each drawn by eight horses, were bombed and strafed in the Ruhr.

Flying from Italian bases in support of the Russian offensive on the Eastern front planes of the United States 15th Air Force destroyed or severely damaged 1,500 units of rolling stock, shot down five enemy planes and blocked five through-rail routes in raids on the German rear lines in Austria and Hungary.

The attacks hammered the rail yards at Bratislava, Szombathely, Straszhof, Brueck and Wiener Neustadt.

51,673 U. S. Sorties Flown in Week

LONDON, March 27 (AP)—United States Air Forces flew 51,673 sorties against German targets in the week of March 18-24, just before the new Allied Rhine offensive, and lost 227 planes while destroying 375 German aircraft, headquarters of the United States Strategic Air Forces in Europe announced today.

England Apologizes For Hague Bombing

London, March 27 (AP)—Royal Netherlands Government officials said today they had received from the British Government an apology for the accidental bombing of the Hague March 3, which Dutch spokesmen said had killed 800 civilians and left "a great number homeless."

The British apology, which called the bombing "a deplorable catastrophe," was handed to the Netherlands Government here, and also was broadcast to the Dutch people.

"The Netherlands Government is satisfied with the British apology," a Dutch official said.

Flyers Questioned

Pilots and bombardiers of the RAF 2d Tactical Air Force were being questioned by high-ranking British air officials who sought to fix responsibility for what was described as "an error of judgment."

The Dutch request for an explanation of the bombing was made to the British after underground reports from the Hague had reached the Netherlands Government, describing a heavy loss of life and severe damage caused by the incident, which occurred during an RAF sweep against German rocket-launching sites.

The British statement said a preliminary inquiry showed the bombs "most unfortunately" fell wide of their mark and hit a residential section.

"Deepest Regrets"

In the broadcast apology, the British official statement said the British people, and particularly the RAF, wished to express the deepest regrets for "this terrible accident" and "heartfelt sympathy to all those who suffered from the result of this misfortune."

The statement added that the Dutch people must realize "too well" the hazards of war, explaining that "it is not always possible to prevent accidents of this kind."

"The RAF, however, will do its utmost to ensure that no such mistakes occur again, and in their attacks on this indiscriminate rocket weapon which the enemy is using from Dutch soil will do all they can to avoid risk to the Dutch people," the statement said.

FRONT SHAKEN, NAZIS ADMIT

Patton's Smash Called Surprising Turn Of Developments

London, March 27 (AP)—The official German news agency acknowledged tonight that the German Army's Rhine front was "thoroughly shaken," and described Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's deep smash across the Reich's waist as "a surprising turn of developments."

DNB Commentator Dr. Max Krull quoted "competent German circles," however, as saying the Germans are "not lacking reserves in the hinterland to build up a new defensive wall."

Krull declared that Patton's drive eastward, which could lead to a juncture with a Russian push westward from Silesia, "points to other strategical objectives, one being the historic plan to separate northern and southern Germany through a line of the River Main."

Heavy Allied Losses Claimed

Krull asserted Allied successes were being paid for "with tens of thousands of dead and other heavy losses."

The Transocean agency's correspondent, Franz Westhoff, reported the German defense ring on the middle Rhine had been "tensed to the breaking point during the last few days by continuous attacks of superior tank and air forces and by a hurricane of American artillery."

Another report said, "the ancient university town of Heidelburg, which still is outside the battle zone, was heavily shelled from the left bank of the Rhine."

Deserters A Problem

German soldiers along the West front were reported by the Luxembourg radio tonight to be "deserting in such numbers that German authorities are helpless to round them up."

The Luxembourg broadcast quoted Swiss sources on the wholesale desertions as the Nazi press and radio ordered "all stragglers" and cutoff officers and men to "report immediately to their respective authorities and take up again their duties in defense of the fatherland."

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Nazi radio commentator, said Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s rampage into Bavaria had made it impossible to tell where the front was.

Miracle Held Futile

Referring to Patton as "this American breakthrough specialist," Sertorius said the 3d Army commander was "remaining faithful to his practice of ruthlessly keeping his advances fluid and fanning out time and again with assault spearheads."

An aide of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels warned the German people that this was a week of highest decision in which it would be futile to "look around for a miracle from the outside."

The anti-Nazi Free German press service, which professes to have a direct pipeline to reliable informants in the Reich, said in Stockholm that Hitler conferred with closest party leaders at Berchtesgaden Sunday and that a further meeting was set for today at which "great decisions" could be expected.

The Stockholm correspondent of the London Daily Sketch had a similar report. He said sensational developments were expected because of the signs of extreme agitation in the German propaganda ministries.

New Airborne Blow Expected

Even while admitting the Germans were being hurled back on virtually the entire front, a DNB military commentator warned the home front that General Eisenhower still had not thrown in all of his forces and hinted at the possibility of further airborne operations.

"According to reliable information," the commentator said, "the Allied high command is in a position to throw in six airborne divisions. Just over two of them so far have been employed."

The German-controlled Swedish telegraphic bureau in Stockholm, quoting a dispatch from Berlin, said Patton's 3d Army advance toward Fulda and Wuerzburg threatened to cut the main highway between Hannover and Stuttgart and "crack the whole West front into two parts."

The Paris radio, quoting a German broadcast, said Field Marshal von Rundstedt, the former Western front commander, was being held under arrest by SS Gruppenführer Muehlmann, called the "hangman of generals."

The broadcast said Muehlmann previously had "taken under his protection Nazi Generals Fritsch, Reichenau and Kluge, all of whom soon died in mysterious circumstances."

Goebbels Aide Warns Nazis 'Decision' Is Near

London, March 27 (AP)—The German people were told today by an aide of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels that this was a week of highest decision, in which it would be futile to "look around for a miracle from the outside."

"Mind you," said Commentator Dr. Otto Kiregk on the German home radio, "this decision has to be fought out.

"We had hoped to fight the battle of decision far beyond the borders of the German Lebensraum. We have failed in this aim and now the burden is even heavier, because we have to fight on German soil. . . . We walk into a week of highest decision fully conscious of our strength, knowing the Allies have troubles in occupied territories, and that if we keep up our resistance success will be ours in spite of all."

Russia Convoys Lost 8.4 P. C.

LONDON, March 27 (AP).—Allied convoys to Russia—running one of the most hazardous war routes—have suffered losses of only 8.4 per cent, Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, disclosed today at a luncheon honoring the Soviet armed forces.

Churchill Sidesteps Query On Peace

London, March 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill in Commons today sidestepped a direct answer to a question whether Germany had sought peace "during recent months" and turned thumbs down on a demand for assurance that Parliament would be notified when and if such a moment arrives.

Laborite Rhys Davies formally inquired whether "in view of the importance of bringing the war to an early close, do you think it fair that this Parliament should not be told if and when the Germans are proposing to lay down their arms, and the conditions under which they would be prepared to lay them down?

Inter-Allied Matter

"Has the German Government made any proposals to lay down their arms and what are the conditions?"

Churchill replied that "such matters if they arose at any time would first of all enter immediately into the province of inter-Allied discussion. We should not be entitled to disclose any matters of that kind except purely military surrender at the front."

"On anything which touches peace negotiations and so on," he continued, "we should immediately communicate with our Russian and American allies and the House would have to wait necessarily until these discussions had taken place. They all lie in the power of the Crown which is vested in the executive."

"I Like That"

Laborite Evelyn Walkden broke in to declare that "one soldier's life is more valuable than days of talk in Parliament, and we have to stop shooting first and talk afterward."

"That sounds very good," Churchill agreed. "I like it very much."

The exchange arose when Davies asked for assurance that Commons would have a chance of discussing terms for Germany's laying down arms. Churchill replied with a terse, "No, sir."

Just returned from the Western front, Churchill was give a rousing ovation when he entered the chamber.

He said the British Government would keep in mind the possibility of obtaining timber over a period of years from Germany as part of its share of "indemnity in kind" after the Reich's fall. This question had been raised by Sir William Davidson, Conservative, who declared large amounts of wood would be required for housing and other purposes, and that it would be impossible to obtain it from regular sources.

REICH PRISON CAMPS LISTED

British War Secretary Gives Last-Known Locations

London, March 27 (AP)—The chaos in Germany resulting from the Russian sweep toward Berlin and the British-American offensive on the west has caused the Allies to lose track of thousands of Allied soldiers taken prisoner by the enemy.

Sir James Grigg, British War Secretary, replying to a question in Commons, gave the following list today of the last-known information concerning the German prisoner-of-war camps where the Allied soldiers were held.

(Stalag means enlisted men's camp, Stalag Luft airmen's camp and Oflag officers' camp.)

Stalag 2A, majority of prisoners dispatched by train to Stalag 357 at Fallingbostel in Hannover province.

Marching Through Hannover

Stalag 2B and 2D, were marching through Hannover province on March 10.

Stalag Luft 4, have been distributed among Stalag Luft 1 at Barth on the Baltic; Stalag 10B at Sandbostel south of Bremen; Stalag 11B at Fallingbostel; Stalag 357 at Fallingbostel, and Stalag 13D at Nürnberg.

Stalag 111B, last known location at Stalag 111A at Luckenwalde, south of Berlin.

Stalag 111C, near Werneuchen northeast of Berlin on March 10.

Stalag Luft 111, distributed among Marlag, Milag and Bremen; Stalag 7A at Moosburg in Bavaria and Stalag 13C at Hammelburg in northern Bavaria.

Stalag Luft 7, last known location at Stalag 111A at Luckenwalde.

Sick Go By Train

Stalag 8A, sick entrained for Stalag 11B and the remainder were marching east of Kena on March 9.

Stalag 8B, on the march near Rakonitz in southern Bohemia on March 7. Some sick went by train to Stalag 13B at Weiden.

Stalag 344 and dependent work detachments, distributed among Stalag 11B at Fallingbostel; Stalag 11C at Hammelburg; Stalag 7A at Moosburg; at Stalag 9B at Wegscheide Badorb in Thuringia.

Stalag 12C, on the march west of Soemmerda in Thuringia.

Stalag 20A and 20B, on the march southwest of Danzig March 10.

Oflag 64, transferred to Oflag 13B at Hammelburg.

Work detachments situated to the east of Stalag 4A were evacuated westward March 13.

New Janning's Film Announced By Berlin

London, March 27 (AP)—The German news agency DNB reported in a broadcast from Berlin today that Carl Ludwig Diehl of the films had signed a contract to appear in a new Emil Jannings motion picture entitled "Where Is Herr Billing?"

The broadcast apparently was intended to scotch rumors that Jannings had been arrested and killed because of suspected connections with anti-Nazi activities.

Rundstedt Arrested?

London, March 27 (AP)—The Paris radio said today that "according to a radio station broadcasting in German" Field Marshal von Runstedt, former commander of Nazi forces on the Western front, has been taken from his estate and placed under arrest.

The Soviet news agency Tass also carried a report that Runstedt was arrested, attributing it to the Paris radio.

The Paris radio said Runstedt is now under the guard of S. S. Gruppenfuehrer Muehlmann, called 'the hangman of generals,' who had previously taken under his 'protection' Nazi generals Fritsch, Reichenau and Kluge, all of whom soon died in mysterious circumstances."

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, former commander of German forces in Italy, has reportedly succeeded Runstedt as Western front commander.

Support Of War Babies Taken Up In Commons

London, March 27 (AP)—Questions were raised in the House of Commons today about the support of children fathered by Canadian and American soldiers in Britain.

Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, who brought up the question, said some members of the Canadian forces had refused "to accept any liability" for such children.

Rhys Davies, Laborite, declared, "It is a serious matter, especially in relation to girls who cannot get any money from American soldiers—there are more of these than Canadian soldiers." He asked for "representation to several governments abroad." Dominions Under Secretary Paul Emrys-Evans said the question would require legislation both in Britain and abroad.

Davis Says OWI Plans To Quit After War

London, March 27 (AP)—Elmer Davis, chief of the OWI, said today in a press conference that his agency planned to operate in Europe as long as both the Japanese and European conflicts last but after the war "we are counting on the press associations to do the news jobs."

London Underwriters Raise War-Risk Rates

London, Wednesday, March 28 (AP)—War-risk insurance rates on cargoes to and from ports in North and South America, Portugal and West Africa have been raised by London underwriters.

The changes:

North and Central America (Atlantic and Pacific ports), 3½ per cent from 2; South America (Atlantic and Pacific ports), 3½ from 2½; Portugal, 3½ from 2½; West Africa, 3½ from 2.

Rates on coastal voyages affecting Portuguese East Africa were slightly lowered.

Briton Would Scrap U.S. War-Built Ships

Liverpool, England, March 27 (AP)—Sir Nicholas Cayzer, retiring chairman of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, said today that most of the shipping built by the United States during the war should be scrapped after the armistice.

"If this huge volume of tonnage, mainly ramp and tanker in type, is thrown on the freighter markets," he declared, ". . . its effect on both shipping and shipbuilding industries of this and other maritime nations, including the United States, would eb disastrous.

"The only sensible solution is to treat the great bulk of it as what it in fact is—namely, a war plant to be scrapped or sterilized when the war ends."

Earl Harrison Arrives in London

London, March 27 (A. P.).—Earl Harrison, New American representative on the inter-governmental committee on refugees, arrived in London today. He succeeds Myron Taylor.

Trade Accord Signed By France And Britain

Paris, March 27 (AP)—French Finance Minister Rene Pleven, and Sir John Anderson, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, signed a financial and trade accord today granting each nation the equivalent of $25,000,000 credit for purchases of each other's produce.

The agreement replaces a pact signed early in the war.

Germans In Italy Increase Gunfire

Rome, March 27 (AP)—In an apparent effort to relieve Allied pressure on the 5th Army front south of Bologna, German artillery and mortar fire has been considerably stepped up, the Allied high command said today.

A heavy two-hour barrage during which the enemy hurled more than 1,000 rounds of artillery fire battered American positions on the central Italian front around Vergato, German strong point 17 miles south of Bologna.

Elsewhere on the 5th Army front activity was limited to patrols, headquarters said.

To the east along the Adriatic sector enemy patrols, using powerful searchlights, raided 8th Army positions north of Faenza last night. The raiders were repulsed with a loss of two killed, fourteen captured and five wounded. A similar patrol was beaten off northwest of Bagnacavello, 10 miles north of Faenza.

Eighth Army patrols made a small-scale attack northwest of Faenza on a hill overlooking the Marradi-Castel Borognese highway, but withdrew in the face of stiff enemy fire.

Rail and highway communications in the Po Valley were attacked by tactical air force planes in night bombing assaults.

Attempt Reported On Il Duce's Life

Rome, March 27 (A. P.).—A Partisan who crossed German lines from north Italy was quoted by the Rome press today as saying an unsuccessful attempt to kill Benito Mussolini was made recently in Milan. A soldier was reported to have fired a pistol at the former Duce during inspection of a "black brigade," but he missed.

2 Soldiers Sentenced To Death For Murder

Rome, March 27 (AP)—Privates Werner E. Schmeidel, who enlisted at Fort Knox, Ky., and James W. Adams, who enlisted from Oklahoma City, Okla., were convicted today by a court-martial of the murder of an Italian civilian during a holdup and were sentenced to death by shooting.

Both men had pleaded innocent. They were on the witness stand about one minute each. They testified they were intoxicated and that the gun was discharged by accident in the cafe where the slaying took place. There was no cross-examination.

The eight-man military tribunal reached its verdict after twenty minutes of deliberation, and took an equal amount of time to fix the penalty. Adams remained stoical, but Schmeidel showed signs of strain.

Flynn Visits Troops Near Italian Front

With the United States Fifth Army, March 27 (A. P.).—Edward J. Flynn, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, visited a field command post today and lunched with Lieut.-Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr., Fifth Army commander, and other officers.

Riding in a jeep, he inspected the Gothic Line fortifications and other areas through which the Americans pushed last fall.

Schnurre, Negotiator For Hitler, In Sweden

Stockholm, March 27 (AP)—Karl Schnurre, one of Hitler's outstanding trade negotiators, arrived quietly in Stockholm today by a regular Berlin plane. He was picked up at the Bromma airfield by a German legation car instead of taking the usual airline bus into the city.

There was no news concerning the purpose of his visit—one of several here recently by trusted Nazi emissaries. A Swedish spokesman said Schnurre had nothing to negotiate as far as this country was concerned.

Stockholm, March 27 (AP)—Dispatches from Berlin said a decree had been issued permitting women, children and others not regarded as essential for defense of the capital to leave the city without special formalities.

2 Japanese Battleships Listed by Reds as Sunk

Naval Handbook Also Says Six Carriers Were Lost

MOSCOW, March 27 (AP).—Two Japanese battleships, both of 29,330 tons, the Kongo and Kirisima, are listed as having been sunk in the Red Navy's "Handbook of the Composition of the World's Fleets," issued today.

The Russian naval book said six Japanese aircraft carriers—the Ryukaku, 20,000 tons; the Hiryu, 10,000 tons; the Soryu, 10,000 tons; the Kaga, 26,900 tons; the Syokaku, 15,000 tons, and the Akagi, 26,900 tons—had been sunk.

The book also made public the details of the delivery by Great Britain and the United States to the Soviet Union of the British battleship Royal Sovereign and the American cruiser Milwaukee. (The Navy Department announced last June that a cruiser had been transferred on lend-lease to Russia.)

The Royal Sovereign, built in 1915, has been remodeled by the Red Navy and is now called the Archangel. The Milwaukee, built in 1923, is now the Murmansk.

Liberated Russians Reach Odessa by Ship

Moscow, March 27 (AP)—Two ships filled with Russian men, women and children liberated by United States and British armies, arrived at Odessa yesterday.

Most of the liberated Russians, back in their homeland after two years of captivity, had been in northern France. Many of them had been sent there by the Germans to build fortifications against the Allied invasion.

JAP RESISTANCE STIFFENS IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, March 27 (AP)—Japanese resistance in central Burma between Mandalay and Meiktila was reported increasing today, with trapped enemy forces apparently massing for a breakout attempt eastward toward Thailand over the hills and mountain trails.

Front line reports said the Japanese, originally estimated at 30,000 in the Mandalay-Meiktila-Myingyam area, were believed to be concentrating at Kyaukse in an effort to drive eastward out of the Irrawaddy river bend. British and Indian troops were slowly closing in on the strongpoint from the north, south and west.

In the area north and west of Meiktila's main airfield heavy see-saw fighting was reported with the Japanese infiltrating into British positions by night and the Tommies rooting them out by morning.

The recent capture of Meiktila by the Allies cut southern escape routes of the Japanese from northern and central Burma, and the invaders stubbornly have attempted to crack through British armor in the area.

Northeast of Mandalay Chinese First army troops operating along the Burma road were reported within four miles of Mingayi, a road junction.

West of the Irrawaddy in the rich Yenangyaung oil fields the Japanese still were putting up strong resistance, especially in the area around Chauk.

South and east of Mandalay, except for isolated pockets, Japanese resistance was reported practically liquidated.

Japs Bypass Nanyang In Driving Southward

Chungking, March 27 (AP)—The Chinese high command said tonight Chinese troops, slashing southward in Honan province in a week-old offensive on a front extending 100 miles westward of the enemy-controlled Peiping-Hankow railroad, had bypassed the Honan city of Nanyang.

Nanyang, 200 miles north-northwest of Hankow, is one of the more important bastions of the Free China defense system.

The high command reported Japanese troops 20 miles west of Nanyang and said 200 enemy cavalrymen had been killed in a clash with Chinese.

The Japanese drive is aimed at capturing airbases and rich wheat crops in the area and protecting their overland north-south transcontinental rail communications.

Chinese Retard Jap Smash At U.S. Airbase

Chungking, March 27 (AP)—The Chinese high command declared today that bitter fighting is taking place in northern Hupeh and southern Honan provinces, where the Japanese are trying to close a vise on Chinese forces.

Japanese columns hammering southward in Honan on a 90-mile front stretching westward from the Peiping-Hankow railroad are continuing their advance, aimed at eliminating air bases, seizure of wheat crops and protecting the railroad.

Enemy Drive Slowed

One enemy column reached the vicinity of Nanyang, important highway center 150 miles north-northwest of Hankow, after jabbing the Chinese back approximately 50 miles.

In Hupeh, where two Japanese columns are stabbing toward the important American air base at Laohokow, about 200 miles northwest of Hankow, the Chinese said they had retarded the invaders. At last report the enemy's nearest spearhead was within 50 miles of this objective.

In northwestern Honan, where the Japanese are engaged in a diversionary westward push along the Lo River, 500 enemy troops were reported killed in heavy fighting around Changsuichen, 70 miles from the Shensi border.

In Hunan province besieging Chinese troops reached the walls of Yuhsien, a highway center 45 miles east-northeast of Hengyang.

Chinese Retrained

Gen. Ho Ying-Chin, chief of the Chinese general staff, and Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure, commanding general of the Chinese Combat Command, returned to their headquarters after an 11-day, 850-mile tour in Yunnan province. They inspected picked Chinese Army units being retrained, regrouped and equipped by the Americans for a coming Chinese counteroffensive.

General Ho told the troops that "only an offensive can lead us to victory." General McClure informed one unit that Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander in chief of United States forces in the Chinese theater, would be back in China before the end of the month, and that "when he returns he will have new plans for operations in this theater."

LANDING ON CEBU MADE BY YANKS

Torch Put To City By Japs; Mortar Fire Is Heavy

Yanks continue attack on Ryukyus; Japs make surprise raid on Iwo Jima . . . . . Page 5

Manila, Wednesday, March 28 (AP). Veteran Yanks of the 8th Army's Americal Division landed on Cebu Island against well-prepared beach defenses Monday morning after effective naval and air bombardment and quickly speared 2½ miles northward almost to the outskirts of Cebu City, which was burning from Japanese torches.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the invasion today in a communiqué which said the Japanese defenders were caught "off guard." Front dispatches reported, however, that the Americans encountered stiff mortar fire on the beaches, which were elaborately rigged for defense.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz wrote that "the Japanese must have known the Yanks were coming to Cebu. They had everything ready for a long, tough fight."

Big Bridge Blown Up

He said that although the amphibious buffaloes used by the assault waves were pinned down on the beach by mortar fire, the Yanks piled out and started inland afoot against disorganized resistance.

A spokesman said first close-range contact with Japanese did not come until Americans were 3,000 yards inland.

As Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold's Americans knifed inland the enemy fell back. The Japanese finally blew the big three-span highway bridge across the Mananga River, just north of the beachhead.

The landing was made near Talisay, which is about 5 miles south of Cebu City, midway along Cebu's east coast.

Cebu, one of the two major Philippine islands which remained in Japanese hands, is between Negros and Leyte in the central part of the archipelago.

Big Fire At Refinery

Japanese defenders were burning and blasting Cebu City, second city of the Philippines, which has 150,000 inhabitants.

Shortly after the Americans landed, large fires appeared in the center of the city and at the massive coconut refinery just across the harbor on Mactan Island. This is the biggest refinery in the Philippines.

Correspondent Bergholz reported that within an hour after the initial landing "tremendous explosions rocked us, 10 miles from the city, and the heart of the metropolis appeared to have burst."

The Cebu electric plant and installations at the modern airfield northwest of the city apparently had been set aflame in a manner reminiscent of the way Japanese devastated the heart of Manila.

Guerrillas Provide Help

The principal concentration of Japanese was expected to be around Cebu City, one of the main sugar ports of the Philippines.

Guerrilla organization was exceptionally strong on Cebu and was effective in squeezing Japanese from the mountainous rear areas.

The Americal Yanks, who got that name because they trained in New Caledonia, received their baptism of fire in the Solomons.

General Arnold's men had figured earlier in the central Philippines campaign by landing on the tiny islands of Ticao and Burias in the Sibuyan Sea off southern Luzon. In that operation, they helped clear a supply channel to shattered Manila along the most direct route through the Philippines from the United States.

In Monday's operation, the Yanks landed at Talisay, midway along the east coast 5 miles south of Cebu City.

On southern Luzon Island the 11th Airborne Division drove 3 miles to within a mile of Lipa, key road and rail center of southern Batangas province, while the 1st Cavalry Division, moving down from the north, advanced an equal distance to seize Malvar airfield.

Invasion Of Cebu Told By Japs

Manila, March 27 (AP)—Invasion of Cebu Island by American forces under cover of bombarding warships was reported by Tokyo radio today, but Gen. Douglas MacArthur, announcing the heaviest air raid yet on that central Philippine island, offered no confirmation. Cebu is one of the two major Philippine islands still in Japanese hands.

The enemy radio said American troops "commenced landings" yesterday morning at Talisay, a fair-sized town about five miles south of the island's principal port, Cebu City, midway along the east coast.

Pre-Invasion Shellings

A task force of six cruisers and destroyers shelled the area beforehand, Tokyo radio reported.

Cebu, a prime sugar-producing island, is about 150 miles long and only 20 miles across at its widest part. Guerillas have been active on Cebu, as on other Philippine islands.

Heavy bombers have been giving the Cebu city vicinity increasing attention in recent weeks. The area was given a 250-ton pounding Saturday. Smashing air blows from the northern to the southern tips of Luzon were also announced.

More than 100 5th Air Force bombers and fighters struck the port area at Legaspi, on southeastern Luzon, with 200 tons of bombs Saturday. Intensive bombing and strafing strikes were carried out against northern Luzon. More than 100 medium bombers and dive bombers attacked the Baguio area and Balete Pass Friday and the following day flew more than 150 sorties against Baguio and the battlefront area east of Manila.

Formosa was bombed again with 87 tons of explosives Saturday. There was no interception as the Liberators unloaded their bombs on the Takeo industrial area.

297,024 Jap Casualties

MacArthur reported an additional 14,853 Japanese dead had been counted and 171 prisoners taken in the Philippines since March 16, when he estimated enemy casualties at 282,000. His new count brought the total to 297,024.

Progress was reported on Luzon's scattered ground fronts. South of Manila the 11th Airborne and 1st Cavalry divisions were pressing toward a juncture around Tanauan, on the main north-south highway. In the north the 25th and 32d divisions were encountering stiff resistance from entrenchments as they converged on Balete Pass. They had to root the enemy from one tunnel after another. One force had to build 25 miles of mountain road to outflank enemy strong points.

JAPS DESTROYING CEBU, SECOND CITY OF PHILIPPINES

By RICHARD BERGHOLZ

WITH THE AMERICAL DIVISION ON CEBU, Philippines, Mar. 26—(Delayed)—(AP) The second largest city of the Philippines, beautiful Cebu, started disappearing from the face of the earth today.

Already scarred from three years of war, the once proud city of 150,000 people began to explode and burn as Japanese demolition squads went about their work.

Smashed in First Invasion

During the Japanese invasion early in the war, about a third of the city, including most of its key installations, were destroyed by Americans and Filipinos.

Ruthless Nipponese destruction during enemy occupation accounted for more of the city. Recent Yank air strikes expanded the damage.

But there was some of Cebu left—until the first wave of Americal troops landed five miles south near Talisay town today. Then the fireworks began.

Almost exactly at 8:30 a. m., which was H-Hour, the first big fire appeared in the center of the city. At 8:40 a. m., there was a big explosion and fires at the massive coconut oil refinery just across the harbor on Mactan island.

This was the biggest refinery in the Philippines and had been used continuously by the enemy for vital all-purpose oil, including engine lubricants.

At 9 a. m., tremendous explosions rocked us, 10 miles from the city. The heart of the metropolis appeared to have burst.

One former Cebu resident said it was the city electric plant and surrounding installations being destroyed.

At 9:20 a. m., the first explosions could be seen around Cebu's fine docks.

At 9:22 a giant mushroom of smoke sprouted over the modern airfield northwest of the city.

The town is burning as I write this and there are occasional explosions. Most of the city is obscured by smoke but high on a foothill west of Cebu stands the impressive provincial capitol. In front of it, is the symmetrical Osmena fountain. Cebu is the home of Sergio Osmena, president of the Commonwealth.

The Japanese must have known the Yanks were coming to Cebu. They had everything ready for a long, tough fight when Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold's veteran doughboys stormed ashore this bright, calm morning.

Japs Prepared

Elaborate, extensive beach defenses had been thrown up. Many tank traps and road blocks scarred the main paved highway at important road junctions. Land mines and barbed wire were spread on the fringe of a coconut plantation bordering the beach.

But it takes more than that to stop these jungle-trained Yank veterans. Although amphibious buffalos used by the assault waves were pinned down on the beach, the Americans piled out and started driving inland against disorganized resistance. Within 90 minutes after they hit the beach, elements of a former Illinois National Guard speared over 800 yards inland.

Elements of a former Boston, Mass., National Guard regiment drove through the beachside town of Talisay, then punched inland more than a quarter of a mile.

The Japanese had the landing beach picked out, the defenses ready and bided their time while Rear Adm. Russel Berkley's warships pounded the area. They even managed to survive a terrific rocket barrage laid down by gunboats under Capt. Albert Sprague, of Revere, Mass., whose wife lives at Burlingame, Calif.

Admiral Sprague was the Seventh Fleet commander for the amphibious operation.

When the first Buffalos snorted out of the water up the sandy beach, the Japanese opened up with mortars. At first they lobbed big 90 mm. mortar shells around the stalled Buffalos. Then they followed up with knee mortar fire.

It bothered the Yanks for a short while but the fire slackened when spotter planes hovered over the area watching for bursts.

The toughened Yanks knifed inland while the enemy fell back. The Nipponese finally blew up the big three-span highway bridge across the Mananga river.

Three Bronze Stars Awarded on Luzon

With Forty-third Division, P. I., March 27 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Leonard F. Wing, expressing satisfaction with the swift progress of his Forty-third (Winged Victory) Division in the mountain campaign of central Luzon, awarded bronze stars to three field commanders today. He presented the awards in the field to Col. Joseph P. Cleland, Omaha, commander of the 103d Regiment; Col. George E. Bush, Gallipolis, Ohio, 172d, and Lieut.-Col. Wilber E. Bradt, Bangor, Me., commander of the 152d Field Artillery.

Radio Men Elude Mindanao Foe

THIRTEENTH UNITED STATES AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, March 27 (AP)—A hand-picked platoon of radio technicians was taken to Mindanao by submarine and successfully operated a radio station there for five months prior to the American invasion of the island this month. The group of thirty-nine enlisted men was led by 23-year-old Lieut. Edward T. Pompea of New London, Conn. They landed on the southern Philippine island last September.

Nimitz Keeps Japs In Dark As He Pushes Ryukyus Raid

Guam, Wednesday, March 28 (AP). Still denying the enemy any hint of his intentions, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today reported carrier planes and fast naval ships of the United States Pacific Fleet continued their intense bombardment of the Ryukyus. He totally ignored repeated Japanese broadcasts that American troops had made amphibious landings on two tiny islands near strategic Okinawa in the center of the island chain.

Nimitz did not even locate the targets for Tuesday's bombardment but they presumably were on Okinawa and possibly adjacent small islands, as were three others in the last four days.

10 Days Of Bombing

Tuesday was the tenth consecutive day that Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier pilots have bombed, rocketed and strafed targets from southern Honshu to the southern Ryukyus, and the fourth day in five that Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's new 16-inch gun battleships have poured explosive charges into shore defenses in Okinawa or vicinity.

Almost as if he were laughing at Tokyo's repeated "fishing for information" brodacasts, Nimitz reported in today's communiqué that carrier aircraft "continued to attack enemy forces and defense installations in the Ryukyus and surface units attacked coastal objectives with naval gunfire."

Navy Research Planes Active

Despite the Admiral's silence, there was cause for speculation that invasion-frightened Japan's reports of landings on two tiny islands off the southwestern coast of Okinawa may be the forerunner of an amphibious operation.

The pattern would follow eleven previous Central Pacific amphibious operations conducted by Nimitz's forces, except that if no landings yet have been made, the preliminary bombardment would be the longest before any troops went ashore.

Nimitz also reported navy search planes struck in the vicinity of Hahijo Island, only 150 miles south of Tokyo, Monday, and damaged three small cargo ships. Continued neutralizing and harassing air strikes on Marcus, the Palaus, Yap, Truk, Wake and Marshalls Islands were carried out.

U.S. Beachheads Set Up In Ryukyus, Japs Report

Guam, March 27 (AP)—A Japanese imperial communiqué announced flatly today that United States forces established beachheads Sunday on the Kerama islands, just off Okinawa, in the Ryukyus.

The Japanese reports said Aka, Zamami and Tokashiki were the islands invaded in the Kerama group.

The customary claim of annihilating enemy landing forces was omitted in the communiqué broadcast.

The report of United States landings has not been confirmed by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's headquarters.

Heavy Air Blows

American communiqués, however, did report damaging blows to Japan's underside by B-29's, B-24's, and fleet surface and aerial bombardments.

These are the blows which have usually preceded former landings—and again may cast their shadow ahead:

1. Shore installations of Okinawa Island were raked by Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's 5th Fleet guns for three consecutive days. Radio Tokyo said they had entered the fourth day.

2. Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's swift carrier planes, which recently raided the near-by home island of Kyushu, blasted Okinawa's air installations. Radio Tokyo said 1,250 United States carrier planes knifed into Okinawa's vitals.

3. A large fleet of Marianas-based B-29's raided homeland airdromes within easy airplane reach of Okinawa.

4. Planes operating from the Philippines, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, continued to lambast Formosa's air installations to the south of Okinawa.

Japs Fear Further Moves

Bespeaking its fears, Radio Tokyo said: "Behind the large-scale operations of the enemy forces there is certain to be another operation in the making. The enemy strives to pin down our air force po... of activity prior to the actual la... ing of landing operations."

...uter quoted the Tokyo radio ...ying: "These operations are ...bly only a preliminary to a ...ng on the island of Okinawa, which must be expected in the next few days."]

Okinawa is less than 400 miles from the Japanese home islands—an easy two hours' bomber trip or a day's steaming by warship.

Ship Toll Claimed

[Japanese headquarters claimed, also without confirmation, that five large warships were sunk off the Ryukyus, another five seriously damaged and 154 planes shot down or damaged.]

Formosa is being neutralized daily by planes from the Philippines. Today the enemy radio, without confirmation, reported extension of the paralyzing naval and air sweep of the Allies 260 miles southwest of Formosa, saying ten cruisers shelled the tiny island of Patras, midway between the Philippines and Hong Kong.

Plane Assembly Plant Hit

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's B-29's departing from their low-level tactics which devastated vital industrial sectors of Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya and Kobe on Honshu Island, delivered a high-altitude attack shortly before noon today on Kyushu. The enemy placed the raid's duration at "about an hour."

The targets extended to the west coast of Kyushu, where the planes hit a big aircraft assembly plant at Omura—thus for the first time blasting a point previously hit from the east by B-29's of the China-India theater.

Omura, one of Japan's biggest naval air stations, stands guard over the near-by naval base of Sasebo.

America's biggest and fastest battleships, freely prowling waters off the Ryukyus, which extends to within 80 miles of Japan, poured shells Monday into the shore defenses of Okinawa while carrier planes dived down on inland airfields and installations.

The double-barreled assault added another devastating chapter to the most extensive task force operation of the Pacific war.

Inland Sea Raid

The operation began March 18 with flattop raiders cratering airfields the length and breadth of of Kyushu. The next day, Mitcher's air arm crippled seventeen enemy warships, including one 45,000-ton battleship and several carriers, in hideouts of the Inland Sea. Today Navy Secretary Forrestal sent his congratulations, saying the Inland Sea attack "thrilled the nation." Thirty-six other enemy ships, mostly freighters, were sunk or damaged.

Also on March 19, more than 300 Superforts hit Nagoya with 2,500 tons of incendiaries.

March 20 and 21, Mitscher's carrier planes, covering retirement of his task force, fought with Japanese planes, piling up a total bag for four days of more than 700 aircraft.

Nagoya Bombed Again

March 22, while MacArthur's bombers carried on the offensive against Formosa, Mitscher's force refueled, then tore into the Ryukyus Friday and Saturday. Saturday the Superforts went back to Nagoya, blasting the Mitsubishi aircraft plant.

The enemy air force reacted to yesterday's Okinawa attack, sending out planes which succeeded at a cost of six raiders in damaging a light warship, presumably a destroyer.

The Okinawa targets were not specified, but the largest segment of its population of more than 400,000 is in the southern part, where the chief city, Naha, is situated. Military defenses are in that area.

Around 15 to 20 miles to the west of Naha is the Kerama group. They are small island, including Tokashiki, Aka, Zamami, Kuba, Geruma and Mae.

Okinawa is 300 miles southwest of Japan and a little over 800 miles west of conquered Iwo, where the enemy air force failed in a raiding attempt Sunday night. Today's communiqué said the raiders were intercepted by army Black Widow night fighters before they could reach Iwo and "a number of enemy bombers were destroyed."

200 JAPS ATTACK U.S. PILOTS ON IWO

GUAM, Wednesday, March 28—(AP) Two hundred or more Japanese, well supplied with grenades and carrying rifles or revolvers, broke into a bivouac area of Army fighter pilots and aviation service troops on Iwo Jima in a well organized surprise attack Monday.

Marines of the Fifth Division finally smashed the attack, killing 196 Japanese.

Organized resistance ended on Iwo on March 16, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced several days ago.

American casualty figures were not available.

Some of the attacking Japanese, including a number of officers, were armed with M-1 rifles, presumably taken from Marine dead during the battle for Iwo.

One bazooka also was found among the enemy dead the next morning the report said, indicating the attack occurred at night.

Marines under Maj. Robert Riddell, a battalion commander, attacked the enemy near the beach southeast of the central airfield half an hour after the Japanese hit the aviation camp. A few Nipponese got away.

Forty swords were found after the attack, which was described as a stealthy onslaught, not a Banzai charge.

How Honolulu, Badly Hit, Was Saved by Crew

Navy Releases the Story of Cruiser's Survival of Torpedo Attack at Leyte

Admiral Ernest J. King, United States Fleet commander, disclosed today in his annual report that the light cruiser Honolulu was heavily damaged last Oct. 20 during the first day of the invasion of Leyte in the Philippines. Here is a first hand account of the mishap by Leif Erickson, Associated Press war correspondent who sailed to Leyte on the Honolulu.

ABOARD U. S. S. HONOLULU OFF DULAG, Oct. 21 (Delayed) (AP).—A flaming, blasting aerial torpedo hit this veteran light cruiser amidships yesterday, killing and burning many of her crew. Alert damage control action saved her from capsizing or sinking.

Radioman Third Class Leon Garsian, of Union City, N. J., was trapped alone for sixteen hours in a radio compartment below decks before a repair crew could cut through a bulkhead with acetylene torches to rescue him.

Garsian's experience was the most spectacular of many gallant performances by the Honolulu's men when a surprise, single plane attack hit and hurt the ship affectionately called "Blue Goose" by her crew.

A phone connection was established with Garsian soon after the torpedo ripped into the ship. He was sealed in a small compartment with water-tight doors holding of a flood of water and oil in all compartments around and above him.

Alone in Darkness

From the flag bridge, I talked with him over the phone. Garsian told me he could feel the water leak in through a door at first. The blast had blown out the lights and he was in blackness.

"I had a mattress down here," Garsian said. "I ripped it open and stuffed padding around the door. I got the water stopped. Everything's under control in here now."

Garsian knew the compartment near him had been flooded and that all hands on watch there had been lost.

But his voice was cheerful as he wise-cracked, "I'm hungry now. I guess I'll get pretty hungry before they can get me out of here."

By freakish chance, I took off in an observation plane twenty minutes before the Honolulu was hit and returned an hour later to see the "Blue Goose" listing sharply to port.

From men I'd begun to know as shipmates I obtained an account of the third torpedo hit the Honolulu has taken in the Pacific war to date. She was taking a breather after two days of bombarding the Leyte coast. Her skipper, Captain H. R. Thurber, of Hoquiam, Wash., former Navy public relations chief, was having his hair cut on the bridge, when lookouts shouted the alarm "Torpedo plane port quarter!"

Backing Saves Ship

The plane sneaked in low behind the 1,000-foot-high Catmon Hill, the Honolulu's last shelling target.

Thurber saw that the plane already had dropped its "fish" and gave the order to back up at full speed. This probably saved the ship from a crippling, possibly fatal, hit to the after engine room.

The torpedo hit portside just forward of the bridge superstructure. A flaming blast shattered a compartment where a marine anti-craft crew was berthed. Virtually every one there was killed.

A jet of flame swept a 40-mm. ammunition hoist into a ward-room where officers had been enjoying ice cream. A flash of flame seared the entire wardroom.

Quartermaster First Class Robert D. Vodden, of Fresno, Calif., the ship's boxing champ, went down to the marines' compartment and helped drag out eight men. Five were dead.

The damage control job directed by Lieut. David P. Klain of Los Angeles and his assistant, Lieut. Louis S. Clapper of Unionville, Mo., was universally praised by all hands.

A few minutes after the torpedoing the ship was listing heavily to port. All hands topside turned to, throwing overboard every thing loose on the port side. The danger of capsizing seemed great, but damage-control men stopped the list by pumping and counter-flooding. These men, wearing oxygen masks, worked in fume and vapor-filled spaces.

After two hours' work the ship was leveled but had settled four feet at the bow. Two salvage tugs had pulled alongside quickly, taking the ship in tow and helping out with the pumping.

With the tugs, Captain Thurber maneuvered into shallow water where the main deck would remain above water if the ship settled.

A grievous new hurt on "Blue Goose's" day of misfortune came during a Japanese air attack at dusk as Thurber maneuvered toward shallow water. An anti-aircraft fragment from a near-by ship hit the Honolulu's high rigging, bringing it crashing down on 40-mm. ammunition clips behind an a.-a. gun mount. Three or four rounds of ammunition exploded, killing two men and wounding six. This happened three or four hours after the torpedoing.

Down in his radio compartment trap Garsian told a phone watcher buddy, Radioman 3-c. William Gallegher, of 111 Congress Street, Brooklyn, he was going to sleep. A night-long watch was kept on Garsian's phone line.

By morning the flood in a compartment next to Garsian's had been pumped out so that an acetylene crew from the tugs could reach it. He was rescued in good shape.

The Honolulu Hit by Japs

Navy Reveals Aerial Torpedo Damaged Light Cruiser Badly During Leyte Invasion.

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—A Japanese aerial torpedo seriously damaged the light cruiser Honolulu on the first day of the Leyte invasion last October 20, killing sixty-five crewmen and wounding forty-seven. The Navy, reporting this today, said the 10,000-ton cruiser is back in this country for repairs and will fight again. She made the 12,000-mile trip to the United States under her own power.

First disclosure of damage to the Honolulu, known to her crew as the "Blue Goose," came in Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King's annual report. The Navy later released details.

The Honolulu was part of a naval force that supported Gen. Douglas MacArthur's first landing in the Philippines. She had hurled tons of shells at the Japanese on October 19 and resumed the bombardment the following day until MacArthur's troops hit the beach. Then she took up a position off shore to await further firing instructions.

In the afternoon, the Japanese torpedo plane struck. Lookouts saw the plane sneaking in and sounded the alarm. The cruiser's skipper, Capt. H. R. Thurber of Hoquiam, Wash., maneuvered the ship but failed to dodge the torpedo. It struck amidships near the magazines of a five-inch and a 40 mm gun. Only a few shells exploded, but two fires broke out and several compartments were flooded.

Thurber ran the cruiser into shallow water and pumping operations were started. Within a short time, the ship was ready to head home. The Honolulu, commissioned in 1937, carries a normal complement of about 870 men.

Japanese Casualties Far Above Australia's

Canberra, Australia, Wednesday, March 28 (AP)—Australian troops have killed 3,489 Japanese and captured 101, compared to 1,108 casualties in their own ranks since they relieved United States forces in the Solomons, New Guinea and New Britain.

Giving figures for the period from last November (exact date unannounced) through March 17, Prime Minister John Curtin reported today Australian casualties have been 374 killed, 711 wounded and 23 missing.

New Zealand Cuts War Loan

WELLINGTON, N. Z., March 27 (AP)—A war loan of £25,000,000—a reduction of £15,000,000 from last year's—is the goal for this year.

Canberra, March 27 (A. P.).—At a farewell luncheon given him today, Nelson T. Johnson, retiring American Minister to Australia, said that the American and Australian troops and their leaders have set a record of understanding and harmonious collaboration unequalled elsewhere.

In 1941, he said, he had had misgivings as to the possibility of "two free-wheeling sorts of people getting along." He added that the crime record of American troops in Australia has been lower than in any other war theater.

SAYS U. S. JUNKS NEEDED SUPPLIES

Melbourne, March 27 (A. P.).—Gordon Holland, an Australian war correspondent, reported today that difficulties with the American authorities over valuations and lend-lease have slowed up the liquidation of Japanese in the Aitape area of New Guinea.

When the Australians took over from the Americans in that theater, he wrote, the departing troops dumped a number of jeeps, trucks, ambulances and amphibious ducks into the sea. These, he said, required from little to full overhauling and repair but they would have been invaluable to Australian ordnance and mechanical engineers. The Australians begged that these written-off vehicles be given to them but the Americans were unable to comply because of lend-lease complications, Holland said.

The Australian advances are limited because the men have to build roads with picks and shovels and hack out bridges with old-fashioned tools, he added.

ARGENTINA WARS ON AXIS

More Openly Designed To End American Isolation

Buenos Aires, March 27 (AP)—Argentina's military government declared the existence of a state of war with the Axis nations today in a move frankly designed to end its diplomatic isolation.

The decree issued by the Government stated that war was declared against Japan because of the attack on the United States at Pearl Harbor and against Germany because Germany was Japan's ally.

The decree as broadcast by the Government radio also expressed the Government's adherence to the Chapultepec acts in accordance with the invitation issued by the Mexico City conference of American republics.

30. 24 — 24255

To Control Opposition

It concluded with a statement that appropriate measures would be taken to supervise the activities of companies, individuals and organizations which might affect Argentina's relations with other American countries or threaten their peace.

The decision to declare war was the most difficult the administration of President Edelmiro Farrell has yet had to make. Three weeks of intensive discussion were required before conflicting views within the Government and the armed forces could be resolved.

The decision cost the Government its Minister of Justice and Education, Etcheverry Boneo, who resigned last Saturday when he saw that the declaration of war was inevitable.

American Solidarity Sought

A preamble to the war decree said the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor affected the interest of Argentina as recognized in a measure adopted in 1941 declaring the United States nonbelligerent in the struggle against the Axis. It added that Argentina desired to establish solidarity with other American republics and share the responsibility in future events.

The war declaration came little more than a year after the military regime, then headed by Gen. Pedro Ramirez, severed relations with the Axis.

That rupture was the immediate cause of the overthrow of Ramirez and his replacement by Farrell, who now is obliged to assume even greater responsibility before the country and the armed forces.

Nationalists In Opposition

The decision was made in the face of opposition from the now disillusioned Nationalists who once were the Government's most enthusiastic supporters. It also was contrary to the desires of some factions in the army. But it clearly was the result of realization that the invitation of the Mexico City conference, suggesting that Argentina make herself eligible to join the United Nations, represented the nation's last chance to resolve its international difficulties.

Aware that the war declaration is likely to be unpopular among those sectors of the population which sympathized with the Axis cause from the start, the Government took extraordinary measures to preserve order.

May Bar Nazi Money Theft

The Government probably will take rigid steps long desired by other American nations to eliminate the danger of the Nazi machine's finding refuge for its funds and undercover workers in this country.

Having declared war, the Government now faces a period of intense diplomatic activity in an endeavor to qualify for participation in the United Nations' San Francisco conference.

There has been speculation that Argentina might offer to play an active part in Allied military operations. The Argentine Navy, which ranked seventh in the world before the war, is understood ready to play an active role. The Argentine Army, trained by a German military mission before the war, is handicapped, however, by lack of equipment.

Argentina At War With The Axis

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 27 (AP)—Argentina today declared a state of war with the Axis.

Presidential Secretary Coronel Gregorio Taube announced that the Cabinet had adopted a decision which involved the "grave decision of declaring a state of war with the Axis nations."

The announcement followed a Cabinet session of nearly two hours at which the finishing touches were put to a weeks-long deliberation to determine what Argentina could do to satisfy the requirements of the Mexico City Inter-American Conference invitation to rejoin the American family of nations.

Communique Promised

Taube said the decisions would bring Argentina into "effective union with the American nations" and that a communiqué would be issued later.

Some reports said Argentina probably would move promptly to re-establish relations with Soviet Russia in event the Cabinet's decision wins for Argentina recognition and admission into the United Nations.

It was considered likely that conversations to that end would be initiated in Washington.

There has been some speculation that Argentina would not be able to attend the San Francisco world security conference, even though she declared war on the Axis, unless she first re-established friendly relations with Moscow.

Embassies Guarded

Extra police guards were stationed at public buildings, embassies and newspaper offices to guard against any disorders in connection with today's decision.

At least 69 persons were still in jail as a result of last night's demonstrations provoked by young Nationalist elements.

As a sequel to that outburst police closed the headquarters of the Nationalist Youth Alliance, one of the organizers of the demonstration.

ARGENTINA BREAKS WITH NAZIS, JAPS

Americans Discuss Recognition of Government After War Declaration.

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP) Representatives of the other American countries set up oiled machinery tonight for recognition of Argentina, which declared war on the Axis today. Recognition is expected within a week.

The ambassadors met on sudden notice with Assistant Secretary of State Nelson Rockefeller and are scheduled to meet again tomorrow morning.

By then, one said, they should receive formal notification through the Pan-American union of Argentina's war declaration and decision to adhere to the Mexico City resolutions.

The next step probably will be Argentine signature of the resolutions, including the Act of Chapultepec pledging American republics to put down aggression from within or without the hemisphere.

It is not yet clear whether recognition will follow or precede Argentine signature of the United Nations declaration.

While there is a slim possibility of a hitch, most diplomats feel that recognition of Argentina and her return into the Western hemisphere group of nations after a year-long isolation is now definitely settled.

Each government will have to act on its own so far as re-establishing relations with Argentina is concerned, but the policy is a joint one.

Other United Nations, including Russia, must be consulted before Argentina signs the United Nations pact. However, pleased with developments thus far, diplomats appeared confident that the road has now been smoothed for a reunion with Argentina.

Argentina is expected to sign the United Nations declaration in Washington. Then, providing Britain, Russia and China approve, the Latin American country will get a bid to San Francisco meeting for the organization of world peace-enforcing machinery.

Diplomats estimated that the time necessary for communicating with their various governments and going through the indicated ceremonies would take about a week.

Immediately after the meeting the State department declared that the Argentine action "is welcomed here as indicating the intention of Argentina to participate actively in the war against the Axis and to make its national policy conform to the procedure outlined" in the Mexico resolution on Argentina.

That resolution charged Argentina "to put herself in a position" to join the United Nations and sign the Mexico pact.

The statement was cautiously worded but it was understood that officials considered the Argentine move a great step forward.

Argentina's Declaration of War Against Axis

BUENOS AIRES, March 27 (AP)—Text of the Argentine Government's declaration of a state of war against the Axis countries:

In view of the communication from the Director General of the Pan American Union enclosing a copy of the final act of the Inter-American Conference on the Problems of War and Peace held at Mexico City, and an authenticated copy of Resolution 59, approved March 7, 1945, by the twenty American states that participated in the aforementioned conference, and

Considering that Article VI of the cited resolution referring to our country establishes that the final Act remains open for the adherence of the Argentine nation and authorizes the President of the conference to communicate with the Government of Argentina through the medium of the Pan American Union,

That in the said resolution it is recognized that the unity of the peoples of America is indivisible, and it affirms with certainty that the Argentine nation is and always has been an integral part of the union of American republics, and that it equally considers that complete solidarity and common policy among the American states against threats of acts of aggression from any state against any American state are essential to the peace and security of the hemisphere, and

That the Government of the Argentine Republic, consequent with the invariable foreign policy of Argentina, ratified [illegible] position contrary to aggression and in solidarity with its sister nations by means of declarations by the Acting Foreign Minister, March 7, of the present year, in which he referred especially to former manifestations of this attitude of the Government in conformity with Argentine tradition and doctrine;

That, considering that the Act of Chapultepec and the principles it enumerates have been incorporated in the international law of our hemisphere, and since 1890 has orientated at all times the foreign policy of the nation and coincides with the principles of the international doctrine of Argentina;

That the Republic of Argentina has collaborated always with the states of America in all action tending to link the peoples of the hemisphere;

That this traditional policy for generations of Argentines from the early days of our independence has been inspired by the sentiment of real and effective Pan Americanism, in consequence of the imperative mandate of noble principles that has regulated always our international life, manifested and proclaimed by the Republic of Argentina in Pan-American conferences and incorporated into multilateral legislation in the labor of the Pan American Union and fulfilled in the field of action with disinterested effort;

That in view of the unanimous gesture of the sister nations that attended the Conference of Mexico, the Government of the nation, animated by the most elevated ideals of hemisphere solidarity, and the directing norm of our international policy, cannot remain indifferent to the high spirit of American confraternity;

That Japan injured the United States at Pearl Harbor, as was recognized officially by the Argentine Government in a decree of Dec. 9, 1942, declaring the latter state, upon whom Germany later declared war, as a non-belligerent;

That there did not remain discounted new aggressions on the part of Japan against certain American nations;

That neighboring and friendly countries now find themselves in a state of belligerency with the Empire of Japan by which they are exposed to possible attack by the latter;

That in view of this situation, and new events that have occurred, the Government of the nation, consequent with its tradition of American solidarity, proposes once again to unify its policy in common with the other states of the hemisphere to occupy the place that corresponds to it and to the end of sharing the responsibilities that may devolve upon it;

That the Government of the nation accepts and finds itself prepared to put into execution the principles, declarations and recommendations that were the fruit of the Conference of Mexico;

That the dispositions of Article 77, Section 21, and Article 86, Section 18, of the National Constitution and the jurisprudence of the Supreme Court of the nation authorize the taking of the means necessary for acceptance by the Government of the Republic of the invitation of our sister nations; and,

That in order to adopt such means the Executive power of the Government in the present circumstances considered it necessary to compare opinions that assure a knowledge of the general will.

Therefore, the President of the Argentine Nation in general meeting of the Cabinet decrees:

(1) The Government of the nation accepts the invitation offered to it by the twenty American Republics participating in the Inter-American Conference on the Problems of War and Peace, and adheres to the final act of the said conference.

(2) To the end of identifying the policy of the nation with that of the other American Republics and establish solidarity with them against threats or acts of aggression by any country against any American state, there is declared a state of war between the Republic of Argentina on one part and the Empire of Japan on the other.

(3) There is also declared a state of war between the Republic of Argentina and Germany, in view of the character of the latter as an ally of Japan.

(4) The respective Ministries and Secretariats of the State will adopt immediately the measures necessary for a state of belligerence, as well as those that are required to put an end definitely to all activity of persons, firms and enterprises of whatever nationality, that might make an attempt against the security of the state or interfere with the war effort of the United Nations or threaten the peace and good-will, welfare and security of the American nations.

Canadian Offer Of Beef Cattle Refused By U.S. Last Autumn

Ottawa, March 27 (AP)—Canada asked officials in Washington and individual American packers last fall to take Canadian beef cattle to help relieve crowded stock yards in Winnipeg, but was turned down, J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, told the House of Commons today.

Seeking to correct what he called a misconception both in the United States and in Canada regarding the relative meat supply situation in the Dominion, Gardiner declared consumption of meat in the United States was now "slightly higher' per capita than in Canada, where it is estimated at approximately 141 pounds a year.

Distribution Problem In U.S.

Gardiner attributed any greater hardships in the United States to distribution difficulties.

He said Canada had only half a dozen large cities and was able to shift supplies readily from city to city to meet regional shortages and assure "a more equitable distribution."

Last fall, when it became difficult to move beef cattle to relieve Winnipeg stock yards, Canada "put the matter up to Washington officials and certain packers in St. Paul and asked them to agree to take so many hundreds or thousands of cattle to be processed," Gardiner said.

The St. Paul packers said they "couldn't handle the cattle," and Canada "had the same information" from the Washington officials, Gardiner continued. He did not name the American officials concerned.

Queried On News Report

Gardiner's statement was in reply to a question concerning a news report that Lieut. Col. R. W. Olmstead, director of supply for the Commodity Credit Corporation in the United States, had told a Senate subcommittee in Washington yesterday that "we have made efforts to get large quantities" of meat from Canada but that Canadian Government officials would not permit exports."

The situation prevailing last fall, when storage facilities and shipping space limited the processing and shipping of beef and production was high, may develop again this spring, Gardiner said, but at the present time he said Canada's own processing plants were not fully occupied.

12 Jap Officers Get Administrative Posts

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Appointment of a dozen Japanese lieutenant generals to military administrative posts was announced today by Tokyo radio in a broadcast heard here.

Lieut. Gen. Maseo Yoshizumi was named chief of the Military Affairs Bureau in the War Ministry, succeeding Maj. Gen. Joichiro Sanada.

The eleven other generals were assigned to Army Ordnance Administration headquarters "in order to strengthen" that branch of the service.

20-Year War Group Meets

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—A "committee for a 20-year war" held its first meeting in Tokyo today, the Tokyo radio reported, to discuss its basic theory that "the longer the war lasts, the better for Japan."

The broadcast heard by the FCC said the committee was organized by eight "influential citizens" headed by Hachiro Arita, former Japanese Foreign Minister.

Japanese radio commentators have said that a long war would find President Roosevelt or Prime Minister Churchill either dead or too old and that American-British leaders then would "understand Japanese war policies."

NEW B-29 ATTACK REPORTED BY NIPS

Claim Southern Japan Hit By Incendiaries And Explosives

San Francisco, March 27 (AP)—Tokyo radio said southern Japan was attacked for the second time in twelve hours Tuesday by Superfortresses. The enemy said the second raid was made by 50 to 60 B-29's, which dropped incendiaries and explosives for two hours and a half around midnight Tuesday (Tokyo time).

The report, unconfirmed immediately by Allied sources, was put out by Japanese Domei News Agency and intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

Headquarters of the 21st Bomber Command at Guam previously had reported a raid by more than 200 Superforts around noon Tuesday (Japanese time) on Kyushu.

Jap Praise Defense

The time specified by Tokyo for the second raid would be 10 A.M. Tuesday, Eastern War Time.

The enemy broadcast said the second raid resulted in damage to the cities of Kokura and Moji on northern Kyushu. Kokura is a transportation center of more than 170,000 population and has a vast army arsenal.

Northern Kyushu rims the south part of Japan's Inland Sea where the enemy home fleet was hard hit more than a week ago by carrier planes of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force.

The enemy broadcast claimed Japanese defense units "achieved considerable war results" against the B-29's making the second strike.

JAP HOME ISLAND BOMBED BY B-29S

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—More than 150 Superfortresses have again plastered war-rocked Japan, the Army reported today. The headquarters of the Twentieth Air Force announced that Marianas-based bombers hit industrial and military targets on the Japanese homeland island of Kyushu. Further details will be disclosed when the full operational reports are completed. This is the first attack on Kyushu by the Twentieth Air Force since January 6.

ADMIRAL KING SEES NAVY SET TO CRUSH JAPS

But Says That a Quick and Easy Victory Cannot Be Taken for Granted.

INSISTS WARSHIPS NEED MEN

In His Annual Report He Points Out the Renewed Importance of Battleships to Fleet.

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—Germany's collapse can mean only a "redistribution" of naval might, Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King declared today, and even then no quick and easy victory can be taken for granted.

Admiral King made the assertion in his annual report as Commander in Chief of the fleet. Emphasizing the differences between the European and Pacific wars and the vast supply task still confronting the Navy, he added, "We are only now gaining a position from which we can assault the heart of the Japanese strength."

"We have heard much of things being ahead of schedule in the Pacific," Admiral King said. "Actually we have had no schedule, except to go as far and as fast as the means at hand would permit. The very speed of the Pacific advance," he continued, "has created new production problems."

In Europe, Admiral King said, the Navy's task became secondary with the successful completion of the "Battle of the Beaches" in Normandy, while in the Pacific "the problem that we have had to solve is how to project a fleet throughout a vast ocean area initially dominated by the enemy. We are solving this problem by rapidly establishing repair and supply bases in enemy islands as we captured them, and by pushing our supplies forward in ships of the train to supply our task forces at sea."

Needs More Officers.

The Navy still, the five-star admiral said, has a "critical need for combat and seagoing officers and enlisted personnel."

Looking to the post-war fleet—its size yet to be determined—Admiral King said, "It is assumed in all plans now under consideration that many more officers and men will be needed than can be provided by personnel now in the regular Navy." These comprise only about 16 per cent of the wartime Navy.

While stressing that there can be no demobilization of naval forces until the defeat of Japan is at hand, Admiral King added:

"However, for more than a year we have worked on demobilization methods and have completed tentative plans. We are considering priority for severance, and intend, when the time comes, to give due consideration to length of service, service outside the continental limits, combat service, and parenthood."

The report, covering operations which carried the Pacific battle line more than 3,000 miles westward—from the Marshall Islands into the South China Sea and the approaches to Tokyo—said that during 1944, "the whole of the United States Navy in the Pacific was on the offensive."

Points to Amphibious Role.

Admiral King recalled that in his report a year ago he emphasized how naval operations had undergone an evolution from the defensive. Today he invited special attention to the significant role of amphibious operations during the year.

Saying the Pacific war is still in the "crossing the ocean" phase, he added: "The essential element of our dominance over the Japanese has been the strength of our fleet. The ability to move troops from island to island, and to put them ashore against opposition, is due to the fact that our command of the sea is spreading as Japanese naval strength withers."

One of the interesting features of the Pacific war, Admiral King said, is the "renewed importance of battleships."

"The concentrated power of heavy naval guns is very great by standards of land warfare, and the artillery support they have given in landing operations has been a material factor in getting our troops ashore with minimum loss of life. Battleships and cruisers, as well as smaller ships, have proved their worth for this purpose."

In the Atlantic, Admiral King said, the anti-submarine war has been on a fairly low scale during the last year. "The German submarine force apparently has been engaged in 'licking its wounds' after the rough handling it received in 1943. It is assumed that the long period of relative quiescence has been employed for building more effective types of submarines. The possibility of a renewed outbreak of submarine activity, must, therefore, be guarded against."

Halsey Longs To Go Back And Finish Job In Pacific

Philadelphia, March 27 (AP)—Expressing impatience to return to his "unfinished business in the Western Pacific," Admiral William F. Halsey said today that it "didn't make much difference whether or not the Japanese fleet comes out of its home waters.

"They're just plain rats and like rats you usually have to dig them out of their holes," he said at a press conference during a visit to the Philadelphia Naval Air Supply Depot.

Visits Former Supply Officer

Halsey, who spent the last few weeks with his family, came to the depot to visit Capt. Charles W. Fox, assistant supply officer, who was supply officer on the Enterprise when it was Halsey's flagship.

The quality of Jap pilots is deteriorating, the Admiral said, but the aircraft hasn't changed much.

"They do awfully fancy maneuvers," he said, "particularly when they're falling into the water."

Asked about the possible effect of Russia joining the Japanese war or the force of the British fleet in the Pacific, Halsey refused any predictions.

"I don't give a damn who licks the Japs," he said.

U. S. SUBMARINE ALBACORE MISSING

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—The submarine Albacore is overdue from patrol and presumed lost, the Navy announced today. The next of kin of the approximately sixty-five officers and men aboard have been notified.

The vessel was the forty-first submarine lost from all causes since the start of the war and the thirty-fifth reported overdue and presumed lost. Four have been reported known sunk and two destroyed to prevent capture. The Albacore was the 275th naval vessel of all types lost during the war.

The vessel was commanded by Lieut.-Commander Hugh R. Rimmer, whose wife lives at 9 Normandy Lane, Manhasset, L. I. His parents, Major and Mrs. Henry H. M. Rimmer, live at 90 Alhambra Way, San Francisco. He held the Silver Star medal and a letter of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy, the latter for his "prompt and well-directed actions in the face of danger" in directing the escape of his men from a vessel during a serious fire aboard.

The Albacore was built by the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn., and commissioned June 1, 1942. She displaced 1,525 tons.

MANPOWER BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Compromise Bill Giving Byrnes Great Power Goes to Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP) Manpower legislation arming War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes with an enforcement club of jail sentences and fines squeaked through the House today by a seven-vote margin.

A vote of 167 to 160 sent to the Senate the compromise bill giving Byrnes power to fix ceilings on employment to freeze workers in their jobs and to regulate hiring and rehiring. Violations of his orders by either employer or employe would be punishable by one year in jail and a fine of $10,000.

Fight Expected In Senate

An even harder fight on the bill is expected in the Senate, which probably will take it up tomorrow. During the two months of battling on Capitol Hill which produced the compromise measure, the Senate balked on a less sweeping measure adopted by the House.

While Republicans did most of the talking against the bill during the one hour of debate permitted today under House rules, 48 Democrats joined them in voting against it. The 160 votes the opponents mustered surprised even the bill's most vehement foes.

Backing the measure worked out by Senate and House conferees during two weeks of give-and-take sessions were 139 Democrats, 27 Republicans and the lone American-Labor member.

The bill passed the House originally on February 1, providing for the induction, fine or imprisonment of draft-age men refusing to take or keep essential jobs at local draft board request.

On March 8 the Senate passed an entirely different measure, levying penalties on employers violating job ceilings fixed by the War Manpower commission and extending the bill's coverage to all working men and women, regardless of age.

Draft-board jurisdiction was left completely out of the compromise the Senate-House conferees wrote. Administration was given to the Director of War Mobilization, with power for him to call upon other agencies to help enforce the law.

House Will Make Study Of Nation's Food Supply

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP) The House voted today for a food investigation of its own, while Senators heard industry complaints and OPA denials that price controls caused meat shortages.

Cattle producers and slaughterers told the Senate Agriculture committee in its investigation that OPA policies have upset the normal procedures for producing and distributing a good supply of meat

Brownlee Defends OPA

And the same committee heard from Deputy Price Chief James F. Brownlee that there is no evidence that OPA policies have "in any way" restricted the total supply of pork and beef.

Brownlee said reports of packer profits do not substantiate claims of spokesmen for processors that the latter are operating at a loss.

The National Farmers Union came to the defense of the OPA in a statement saying packers are spear-heading a big business attempt to discredit price control.

"The meat industry spokesman and champions are taking a public-be-damned position," said the statement, issued by the union's board of directors and state presidents "They are inviting inflation."

Meanwhile, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones said the public could expect growing demands—military, lend-lease and foreign relief on the nation's food supply. In a speech prepared for radio broadcast (MBS), Jones said American civilians can make more sacrifices than heretofore made.

Jones said, however, the nation should not make foreign commitments which "we cannot possibly fulfill."

The House decision to investigate the whole food field was by a vote of 292 to 7. Rep. Anderson (D-NM) will head a special seven man committee.

OPA today authorized the Army and Navy to pay increases of from 25 cents to $1.50 per hundred pounds for a number of pork items.

Higher Army-Navy prices for some pork cuts, the OPA explained, will have no effect on retail prices. They are intended, it said, to assure the services of "their share of meat."

OPA added that in preparing meat for the services and Lend-Lease, "there are certain costs incurred by the meat industry that these allowances will help to meet."

Reports Before Senate Group

Brownlee's declaration was before the Senate committee. He said that reports of packer profits do not substantiate claims of spokesmen for processors that the latter are operating at a loss.

In a Senate speech, Senator Wherry (R-Neb) said a meat shortage "is with us now," and blamed activities of the OPA, War Food Administration, the War Production board and Selective Service for what he declared is a "looming" general food shortage, Selective Service, he said, has been inducting many farm workers "in contradiction to the plain language of the Tydings amendment."

The meat industry representatives asserted specifically that:

(1) Ceiling prices on cattle discourage the feeding of lean cattle to heavy weights, thus depriving the country of between 200 and 500 pounds of beef per head on the great bulk of cattle marketed.

(2) Margins allowed slaughterers are insufficient, thereby forcing many slaughterers to engage in black market sales or to operate at a loss. Black markets contribute to an uneven distribution of the reduced supplies of meats among consumers.

Suggestions for remedying the situation included (1) increases in ceiling prices on meats and (2) an upward revision in the government's beef cattle subsidy program. The latter would be designed to allow cattle feeders a wider margin between prices of unfattened and fattened cattle and to give slaughterers a wider margin on slaughtered cattle, putting them in better position to compete with black markets.

DEVELOPMENTS ON MEAT FRONT

House Votes Special Probe. Army, Navy To Pay More

Washington, March 27 (AP)—The meat argument stampeded around Capitol Hill today with these developments:

1. The House voted, 292 to 7, for a special investigation of the food situation, particularly to answer the question: What's become of the meat?

2. The OPA, long under fire of cattle men and packers, authorized the Army and Navy to pay from 25 cents to $1.50 per hundred pounds more than they have been paying for a number of pork items.

3. Deputy Price Chief James F. Brownlee declared there is no evidence that OPA policies "have in any way" restricted the total supply of pork and beef.

4. Cattle producers and slaughterers told the Senate Agriculture Committee that OPA policies have upset the normal procedures for producing and distributing meat.

Representative Anderson (D., N.M.) will head the House investigation. It has for its general purpose the same goal the Senate group has been pursuing for weeks.

No Effect On Retail Prices

Higher army-navy prices for some pork cuts, the OPA explained, will have no effect on retail prices. They are intended, it said, to assure the services of "their share of meat."

OPA added that in preparing meat for the services and lend-lease, "there are certain costs incurred by the meat industry that these allowances will help to meet."

Industry Contentions

The meat industry representatives asserted specifically that:

1. Ceiling prices on cattle discourage the feeding of lean cattle to heavyweights, thus depriving the country of between 200 and 500 pounds of beef per head on the great bulk of cattle marketed.

2. Margins allowed slaughterers are insufficient, thereby forcing many slaughterers to engage in black-market sales or to operate at a loss. Black markets contribute to an uneven distribution of the reduced supplies of meats among consumers.

Single American Air Line In Foreign Field Urged

Trippe Backs McCarran Bill at Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON, March 27 (AP).—Arguing for a single American air line in foreign transport, Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, said today "multiplicity" of effort would cost an extra $30,000,000 a year.

This sum would come either from American taxpayers, in the form of subsidy, or from American travelers in higher fares, he told a Senate Commerce subcommittee.

Mr. Trippe indorsed the McCarran bill setting up American air lines in the foreign field. By concentrating behind one such line, jointly owned by the air-line industry, Mr. Trippe said, "we can compete on even terms with foreign-flag monopolies."

The head of Pan-American expressed opposition to a recommendation of a Civil Aeronautics Administration examiner to give the American Export Line a permanent share in the foreign-travel field and to allow it, with C. A. A. and Presidential approval, to merge with American Airlines, Inc.

This step, he said, would give "the largest domestic air line" a share in half of the American market in international air traffic.

"It is contrary to public interest," he added.

UNITED NATIONS' JURISTS TO MEET

Washington, March 27 (A. P.). United Nations jurists are to meet in Washington prior to the San Francisco world security conference to draft preliminary plans for an international court of justice. The State Department disclosed today that invitations for such a gathering had gone out.

The invitations, sent by the United States on behalf of Great Britain, Russia and China, which are co-sponsoring the San Francisco meeting, set April 9 for the discussions on a court. The San Francisco meeting is due to start April 25.

It is expected that the jurists will decide to make some changes in the permanent court of international justice, established in The Hague after the last war, instead of drawing up an entirely new one.

NAVY SLASHES SHIPBUILDING

Cuts $1,000,000 'Insurance' Program 75 Per Cent

Washington, March 27 (AP)—The Navy today cut back drastically its latest warship-building program even as Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King said "No quick and easy victory (over Japan) can be taken for granted."

A $1,000,000,000 "insurance" construction program announced March 6 was slashed 75 per cent. This reduced a projected big new fleet of 84 warships of all categories totaling 636,860 tons to twelve escort carriers of 150,000 tons. Other phases of the Navy's over-all building program were not affected.

However, it was reported that the joint chiefs of staff, who decided upon the warship building cut, are questioning the Maritime Commission on the need of building about 40 new tankers now planned for delivery this year and next.

No Pacific Schedule

Admiral King's note of caution was included in his annual report as fleet commander in chief, which also said the war in the Pacific "today is ahead of our expectations of last year."

Although emphasizing there has been no Pacific schedule "except to go as far and as fast as the means at hand would permit," the Fleet Admiral said the "very speed" of the advance on Tokyo "has created new production problems."

Most of the ships involved in the program cutback today would not have been completed until next year or 1947. The Navy said the full project was conceived as "insurance" against the possibility of additional losses as the fleet closes in on Japan and the tempo of the war steps up. It was calculated the program could be abandoned if progress of the war made it evident that the additional ships would not be needed.

Steel Shortage Is Factor

The cut, decided upon by the joint chiefs of staff, was based on several factors. One was, of course, the present size of the fleet.

Another and possibly more compelling factor was the critical shortage of steel now hampering war production. Although construction was not to have started until after midyear, orders for materials would have caused an added drain on steel mills late in the April-May-June quarter and would have required heavy deliveries in the last half of the year.

Admiral King's report again stressed that Germany's collapse can mean only a redistribution of naval might, not naval demobilization.

The Navy's chief problem in the Pacific, he said, "is how to project a fleet throughout a vast ocean area initially dominated by the enemy."

Problem Being Solved

"We are solving this problem by rapidly establishing repair and supply bases in enemy islands as we capture them, and by pushing our supplies forward in ships of the train to supply our task forces at sea."

The Fleet Admiral also made these points:

The Navy still has a "critical need for combat and seagoing officers and enlisted personnel."

One of the interesting features of the Pacific war is "the renewed importance of battleships. The concentrated power of heavy naval guns is very great by standards of land warfare, and the artillery support they have given in landing operations has been a material factor in getting our troops ashore with minimum loss of life."

ARMY NOT FOR RADIO MERGER

Disagrees With Navy Plan for Unification.

Washington, March 27 (A. P.).—The Army disagreed today with the Navy's proposal for a mandatory post-war consolidation of all American international communications facilities under a single monopoly.

Major-Gen. Harry C. Ingles, chief signal officer, told Senate post-war policy planners that the War Department "does not feel competent" to suggest the form of a unified system or to propose a design for it. However, he said he favored voluntary procedure for consolidations, and added he thought "a partial consolidation might be advantageous." He did not specify what facilities might be embraced in a partial merger.

Navy Secretary Forrestal recently told the Interstate Commerce Committee that the Navy favors a mandatory merger into one private company of all American communications facilities abroad, with representatives of the Cabinet making up five of the twenty directors.

State Department Not Ready.

There were two other developments indicating lack of agreement among administration agencies on the communications problem:

1. The committee was told that the State Department would not be ready to submit its testimony before Saturday.

2. Charles I. Stanton, deputy administrator, testified that the Civil Aeronautics Administration is not convinced "of the need for a complete merger into a single company."

Stanton thought it would be better to merge telegraphic and other wire type companies into one organization and radio types into another. He said his interest was to preserve separate facilities for quick exchange of messages for the protection of international air flights.

MAR 28 1945

Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) brought out from Francis C. De Wolf of the State Department's Division of International Communications, that the State Department is not yet ready to present recommendations. Mr. De Wolf reminded him that the State Department "has a new team," referring to the recent appointment of a new Under-Secretary and other assistants.

Army's System World's Greatest.

"The State Department has been pressing for action for two years," Mr. Wheeler asserted. "Now we are ready to give it action, it is not ready with its views." Mr. De Wolf said the department would be ready Saturday.

Gen. Ingles said the Army now has the world's greatest international communications system, estimating its cost at $162,000,000, instead of $250,000,000, as the committee previously understood. He said about 90 per cent of the equipment was situated abroad, but that the greater part of it could be put into commercial use after the war is over. It is the most modern available, he said, but radio is making such rapid progress that it could become obsolete in five to ten years.

The present permanent court of international justice was set up in The Hague after the last war. Andrew Carnegie, steel magnate, built a peace palace to house it.

Officials said the question remains open as to whether a new court will move back to the same building.

Responsible authorities seemed relatively unconcerned that several nations, the neutrals, belong to the court but not to the United Nations. They will be left out of the present meeting, but eventually will be asked to join.

U.S. In 2-Point Program

The United States is prepared to ask two changes in the statute of the existing court:

1. References to the League of Nations should be revised to mention the new security organization.

2. A provision for amendment of the statute should be included.

However, many Latin-American countries, in their commentaries on Dumbarton Oaks, asked that specific ties be established between the court and the security council—assuring enforcement of the court's decisions.

American officials indicated they think these enforcement provisions should be placed in the Dumbarton Oaks charter instead of the treaty setting up the court, however.

It is disclosed the decision to hold the conference preliminary to the San Francisco meeting was ratified at Yalta during the San Francisco conference next month today started a torrent of rumors about immediate victory in Europe.

So far as the White House was concerned they were only rumors.

It all began when Jonathan Daniels, Presidential press secretary, was asked whether he looked for a very large outpouring from Washington to the world security conference, starting April 25.

Message Of President

"No, very definitely we don't," Daniels said. "The President has sent a message to the Secretary of State and members of the Cabinet pointing out to the Secretary of State the importance of all chiefs of mission remaining at their post during this critical time, and a similar message to members of his Cabinet agreeing (sic) he felt that they should stay at their posts."

By chiefs of mission, Daniels said he meant American ambassadors and ministers to other nations.

Wants Small Groups

Through Secretary of State Stettinius, as chairman of the American delegation to the San Francisco Conference, Daniels said the President "has asked the members of the delegation to keep their advisers and so forth to a compact group in order that there won't be a strain on transportation within the country or on hotel facilities so that we can take care of our distinguished guests from other countries."

Daniels was asked whether members of the Cabinet other than Stettinius were supposed to go to San Francisco and why a message was sent to the Cabinet.

"It was not a matter specifically of singling out the Cabinet," Daniels said, "but we want to keep all officials there at a minimum at a time when we are going to have travel and hotel facilities and so forth for people from all over the world."

Congress Not Included

A similar request, he said, has not been transmitted to members of Congress.

"Is this request based solely on the matter of travel and hotels or also on the world situation?" a reporter inquired.

"Well," Daniels replied, "so far as the ambassadors and ministers in the other countries are concerned, it is felt at this time that they ought to be on their own jobs."

Dated March 16

Daniels made known that the President's communication to Cabinet members was dated March 16.

When, on the basis of Daniels's remarks, rumors of immediate peace began to circulate, the White House was deluged with telephone calls. Daniels's office was kept busy explaining that the primary purpose of the presidential request was to reduce the load on transportation and hotels and to keep diplomats at their posts instead of visiting San Francisco.

Text Of Memorandum

Later, the White House made public the memorandum Mr. Roosevelt sent Secretary Stettinius on March 16. It said:

"As the next few months will be of critical importance, I feel it is essential that all chiefs of missions remain at their posts. I hope you will bear this in mind in connection with the plans you are drawing up for those who will accompany our delegates to the San Francisco conference. I am informing the other members of the Cabinet that I feel it is equally important to them to remain in Washington during this same period.

Keep At Minimum

"I should also appreciate it if you, in your capacity as chairman of the American delegation to the forthcoming United Nations Conference at San Francisco, would notify the other delegates that in making plans for advisers and other assistants to accompany our delegation I shall want them to be guided by the necessity of keeping our official group there to the minimum consistent with the importance of the issues involved.

"Your aim should be the formation of a compact United States group which will put the least possible burden upon already severely taxed transportation and housing facilities in order to insure appropriate accommodations for the distinguished visitors who will come to this country to attend the conference."

WORLD-COURT PARLEY CALLED

United Nations To Meet April 9—U.S. Seeks 2 Changes

Washington, March 27 (AP)—United Nations diplomats will meet in Washington April 9 to plan an international court.

The State Department announced today that invitations had gone out on behalf of the same nations that are sponsoring the world-security meeting in San Francisco April 25.

The Washington draft is to be presented at San Francisco, probably to be signed alongside a charter for a world peace organization.

Minor Changes Expected

The United States is expected to present a draft to the meeting here April 9, suggesting only minor changes in the existing World Court, which the Senate twice refused to permit this country to join.

F. D. R. Stand-By Request Made For Frisco

Washington, March 27 (AP)—United Nations jurists are to meet in Washington before the San Francisco World Security Conference to draft preliminary plans for an international court of justice. The State Department disclosed today that invitations for such a gathering had gone out.

HOUSE INCREASES CCC CREDIT POWER

Washington, March 27 (A. P.)—The House today approved legislation extending the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation two years and increasing its borrowing powers from $3,000,000,000 to $4,750,000,000. Early Senate concurrence was expected to send the legislation to the White House.

The CCC is the Government's agency supporting farm commodity prices. Definite ceilings on commodity subsidies are written into the new legislation, including $568,000,000 under the dairy production program for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1946.

The House passed a separate bill authorizing the Defense Supplies Corporation to continue subsidy payments on flour in an amount not to exceed $190,000,000 during the fiscal year ending June 30. 1946.

Stassen Winds Up Duties With Fleet

San Francisco, March 28 (A. P.).—Commander Harold E. Stassen, former Governor who has been named a delegate to the United Nations Conference here April 25, was back in the Pacific war area today preparing to bring to an end his duties as Fifth Fleet flag secretary, Twelfth District headquarters announced.

Wave of Premature Victory Reports Spreads

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP) A wave of premature reports and rumors of victory in Europe spread over the country today as United Nations armies continued their rush toward Berlin.

One flood of rumors grew from a White House disclosure that President Roosevelt wants his cabinet officers and United States diplomats abroad to stay at their posts during the San Francisco conference starting April 25.

The White House later made it clear that Mr. Roosevelt's memorandum on the subject, sent to Secretary of State Stettinius on March 16, did not spell any immediate German collapse. The purpose, it was explained, was to reduce the strain on transportation and hotel facilities in San Francisco and keep officials at their posts at a critical time.

In New York, the Blue network said that Gil Martyn, broadcasting from Los Angeles, had said "electrifying news" had come that the President and his cabinet "are preparing for victory."

Soon after the Martyn broadcast, Blue went on the air from New York with the statement that a "routine announcement" from the White House "was misinterpreted as a hint that big news was forthcoming from Europe."

"One of the three major news services (the International News service) carried the story with the interpretation that the White House expected word of victory," Blue's New York announcement said.

"This interpretation since has been found to be without any foundation. There has been no suggestion from any Washington officials that any armistice announcement is imminent."

A news flash that "Eisenhower says Germans quit," was broadcast to Pacific coast states and Arizona this morning by radio station KHJ at Hollywood.

William M. Green, a news editor for the Don Lee-Mutual network, said the flash was based on a garbled dispatch of the International News Service, and that listeners were so informed about two minutes after the flash was broadcast.

DAVIS SAID THE OWI PLANNED TO TAKE PART IN THE RE-EDUCATION OF GERMANY AFTER THE WAR WITH "HARD FACTS" BUT DISCOUNTED THE POSSIBILITY OF AN OFFICIAL U.S. GOVERNMENT NEWS AGENCY BEING SET UP AFTER THE WAR.

THE OWI HEAD SAID, HOWEVER, THERE WAS A PLAN FOR THE STATE DEPARTMENT TO ABSORB SOME OF OWI'S INFORMATION ACTIVITIES SUCH AS GATHERING TEXTS OF SPEECHES AND OFFICIAL DOCUMENTS IN PEACE TIME.

DAVIS SAID HIS MISSION TO EUROPE WAS TO HELP COORDINATE THE WORK OF THE ALLIED PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE BRANCH WITH THE OWI AND STATE DEPARTMENT IN RE-EDUCATING THE NAZIS.

IN RESPONSE TO A QUESTION AS TO WHETHER OWI PLANNED TO PUBLISH NEWSPAPERS AS PART OF GERMANY'S "RE-EDUCATION," DAVIS SAID "EVENTUALLY THERE WILL HAVE TO BE NEWSPAPERS, BUT BY JUST WHOM THEY WILL BE PUBLISHED HAS NOT BEEN DECIDED."

AT AN EXHIBITION OF AMERICAN SUBSTITUTES WHICH HAD BEEN KEPT SECRET FOR THREE YEARS, L. P. LISTER, MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THE UNITED KINGDOM COMMERCIAL CORPORATION, EXPLAINED HOW HE AND THREE ASSISTANTS IN AMERICA, ONE BRITISH AND TWO AMERICAN, OBTAINED GIFTS OR LOANS FROM AMERICAN FIRMS OF NEARLY 15,000 EXHIBITS, COMPLETE WITH PRODUCTION DATA.

BY SPECIAL PASS, EXPERTS FROM THE SERVICES, INDUSTRIES AND GOVERNMENT PRODUCTION DEPARTMENTS HAVE BEEN VIEWING SUBSTITUTE MATERIALS RANGING FROM PLASTIC MACHINE TOOLS AND PAPER GASOLINE CONTAINERS TO TOY CHECKER BOARDS AND FURNITURE.

THE KNOWLEDGE GLEANED FROM THESE EXHIBITS HELPED BRITAIN TO CONTINUE HER OWN RESEARCH TO SAVE VALUABLE RAW MATERIALS AND RESTRICTED SHIPPING SPACE.

BY JOHN F.CHESTER

LONDON, MARCH 27-(AP)-PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, APPEARING IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS AT AN HOUR WHEN GERMAN ARMIES OF THE WEST REELED BACK BEFORE THE GREATEST ALLIED VICTORY OF THE WAR, SQUELCHED TODAY ANY POSSIBLE ELEVENTH HOUR SEPARATE PEACE PROPOSALS BY THE ENEMY.

WITH A CURT, "NO SIR," HE ANSWERED A QUESTION AS TO WHETHER PARLIAMENT WOULD HAVE A CHANCE TO DISCUSS ANY GERMAN PROPOSALS FOR LAYING DOWN ARMS.

ANY SUCH PROPOSAL, CHURCHILL SAID, WOULD BE COMMUNICATED FORTHWITH TO RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES, BOUND UNEQUIVOCALLY TO DECLARATION THAT HITLER'S GERMANY MUST ACCEPT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OR BE FLATTENED.

THIS, HE ADDED, WAS A MATTER FOR THE EXECUTIVE, NOT PARLIAMENT--IN OTHER WORDS, CHURCHILL, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PREMIER-MARSHAL STALIN.

CHURCHILL SPOKE JUST BEFORE GEN.EISENHOWER OPINED IN PARIS THAT UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WOULD BE IMPOSED, RATHER THAN NEGOTIATED.

CHURCHILL TOLD COMMONS IT WOULD BE INFORMED ONLY IF THERE WAS "A PURELY MILITARY SURRENDER AT THE FRONT," WHICH EISENHOWER DOES NOT EXPECT.

THE PRIME MINISTER DUCKED A DIRECT QUESTION WHETHER THERE HAD BEEN ANY PEACE OVERTURES IN RECENT MONTHS.

LABORITE RHYS DAVIES PUT IT AT THE TAIL END OF A QUERY WHETHER PARLIAMENT SHOULD BE INFORMED ABOUT WHEN AND HOW GERMANY PROPOSED TO LAY DOWN ARMS.

"SUCH MATTERS," CHURCHILL REPLIED, "IF THEY AROSE AT ANY TIME WOULD FIRST OF ALL ENTER INTO THE PROVINCE OF INTER-ALLIED DISCUSSION.

"WE SHOULD NOT BE ENTITLED TO DISCLOSE ANY MATTERS OF THAT KIND, EXCEPT PURELY MILITARY SURRENDERS AT THE FRONT.

"ON ANYTHING WHICH TOUCHES PEACE NEGOTIATIONS AND SO ON, WE SHOULD IMMEDIATELY COMMUNICATE WITH OUR RUSSIAN AND AMERICAN ALLIES, AND THE HOUSE WOULD HAVE TO WAIT NECESSARILY UNTIL THESE DISCUSSIONS HAD TAKEN PLACE."

LONDON, March 27--(AP)--The daily sketch quoted a dispatch from its Stockholm correspondent today as saying that Adolf Hitler has summoned a special meeting of his Nazi Gauleiters at Berchtesgaden.

As a preliminary to the meeting, the sketch said, Hitler conferred with his closest associates last Sunday at a secret session at which no army leaders were present.

These developments an assertion that "sensational events" were expected in Germany.

FIRST AND THIRD ARMY TROOPS WERE DISCLOSED ALREADY TO HAVE LINKED UP FOUR MILES SOUTH OF COBLENZ, FAR BEHIND THE PLUNGING SPEARHEADS.

A15

THE ADVANCES WERE SO SWIFT THAT OFFICERS AT AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS COULD ONLY SHAKE THEIR HEADS AND POINT VAGUELY TO THE EAST AND SAY "THEY'RE SOMEWHERE OUT THERE."

THOUSANDS OF PRISONERS OVERRUN BY FIRST AND THIRD ARMORED COLUMNS STREAMED TO THE REAR, SOMETIMES WITHOUT A SINGLE GUARD. BRIDGES AND ROADS TO THE EAST WERE JAMMED WITH SUPPLIES POURING IN BEHIND THE RAMPAGING ARMOR AND MOTORIZED INFANTRY. THE IDENTITIES OF THE POWERFUL ARMORED DIVISIONS LEADING THE BREAKTHROUGH WERE CONCEALED TEMPORARILY.

ONLY THE AMERICAN NINTH ARMY STILL WAS MEETING STIFF RESISTANCE AS IT FOUGHT SAVAGELY INTO THE RUHR EAST OF WESEL. AFTER BEING HELD FOR 15 HOURS, LT. GEN. WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S 30TH DIVISION DROVE EASTWARD TWO MILES WITHIN TWO MILES OF DORSTEN, WHICH IS 16 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AT WESEL. THE 79TH DIVISION TOOK HOLTEN, AT THE EDGE OF THE RUHR NEAR STERKRADE, SEVEN MILES NORTHWEST OF ESSEN.

A16

PRISONERS FROM A PANZER DIVISION WHICH BROKE UNDER THE NINTH ARMY'S VIOLENT ATTACK SAID THEY HAD SUFFERED SUCH EXTREME LOSSES IN THE LAST 36 HOURS THEY NO LONGER COULD RESIST.

BRITISH AIRBORNE TROOPS PUSHED TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF BRUNEN, FIVE MILES NORTHEAST OF WESEL, WHILE THE AMERICAN 17TH AIRBORNE SMASHED THREE MILES TO GRUDENBURG, SIX MILES EAST OF WESEL, AND LINKED UP FIRMLY WITH THE NINTH ARMY'S 30TH DIVISION.

NORTH OF BRUNEN, BRITISH SECOND ARMY FORCES WERE REPORTED SMASHING EASTWARD ALMOST UNOPPOSED, WITH CENSORSHIP HIDING THEIR EXACT MOVEMENTS. THE FANATICAL RESISTANCE WHICH SCOTTISH AND CANADIAN TROOPS HAD BEEN MEETING IN THE REES AREA, AT THE NORTHERN END OF FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRIDGEHEAD, APPEARED TO BE COLLAPSING, A FRONT DISPATCH SAID.

A17

AT THE EXTREME WEST FLANK OF MONTGOMERY'S HOLDING, CANADIANS DROVE TOWARD FORNICK AND EMMERICH. OTHER UNITS SLICED ACROSS THE EMMERICH-RE[illegible] HIGHWAY IN GAINS UP TO THREE MILES BEYOND MILLINGEN. HIGHLANDERS AS[illegible]IDE THE MILLINGEN-ANHOLT ROAD NORTHEAST OF MILLINGEN SMASHED TO W[illegible]IN A MILE AND A HALF OF ISSELBERG.

MONTGOMERY'S PUSH HAD SWEPT UP 16,000 PRISONERS IN FOUR DAYS--MORE THAN 5,00[illegible] OF THEM FALLING TO THE U.S. NINTH ARMY AND 11,148 TO BRITISH [illegible] FORCES. THE [illegible]TH ARMY'S 79TH DIVISION WAS FIGHTI[illegible]WITHIN [illegible]ALF-MI[illegible] OF A SI[illegible]ANE SUPERHIGHWAY WHICH SLICES

LT. GEN. ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S U.S. SEVENTH ARMY CLIMAXED ITS LONG DRIVE NORTHWARD FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN BY MAKING TWO CROSSINGS OF THE RHINE EARLY MONDAY IN THE AREA NORTH OF MANNHEIM, IT WAS DISCLOSED. A FIRM BRIDGEHEAD SOME 19 MILES WIDE BY FOUR DEEP HAD BEEN SECURED BY NOON MONDAY AND SIX TOWNS ON THE EAST BANK HAD BEEN CLEARED OF NAZIS.

A18

THERE WAS NO INDICATION OF THE DIRECTION PATCH'S DRIVE WOULD TAKE FROM THE RHINE. FEW LARGE TOWNS LIE IN THE LOOP OF THE RHINE FACING HIM, BUT 120 MILES DIRECTLY EAST LIES NUERNBERG. AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS HELD HALF THE TOWN OF GERNSHEIM AT LAST REPORT. LAMPERTHEIM AND BURSTADT IN THE AREA ACROSS THE RIVER FROM WORMS ALSO WERE PARTLY IN AMERICAN HANDS. SANDHOFEN, A MILE NORTH OF MANNHEIM, WAS SEIZED SOON AFTER PATCH'S TROOPS CROSSED IN RUBBER BOATS AND AMPHIBIOUS VEHICLES.

IN ITS DASH DOWN THE AUTOBAHN SOUTHEAST OF LIMBURG TODAY THE FIRST ARMY'S NINTH ARMORED DIVISION PASSED SCORES OF GERMAN TANKS, TRUCKS AND HALFTRACKS ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS IN THEIR FLIGHT--APPARENTLY BECAUSE THEY HAD RUN OUT OF FUEL. IT WAS THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION WHICH CAPTURED THE REMAGEN BRIDGE AND GAVE THE FIRST ARMY ITS BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE RHINE.

A FIELD DISPATCH SAID THAT SHEER GUTS AND THE BRILLIANT LEADERSHIP OF LT. COL. EMBRY LAGREW OF LEXINGTON, KY., ENABLED DOUGHBOYS OF PATTON'S SIXTH ARMORED INFANTRY TO SEIZE THE DAMAGED RAIL BRIDGE AT FRANKFURT AND COME TO GRIPS WITH NAZI TROOPS HOLDING THE MAIN CITY EAST OF THE RIVER.

A19

THE STRUCTURE WAS RAKED BY DEADLY FIRE FROM ENTRENCHED ENEMY TROOPS ON THE EAST BANK, BUT LAGREW'S MEN DASHED ACROSS AND GAINED A FOOTHOLD AND THEN STUCK IT OUT THROUGH A FIERCE ARTILLERY BARRAGE UNTIL THEY WERE REINFORCED.

REFERRING TO PATTON AS "THIS AMERICAN BREAKTHROUGH SPECIALIST," GERMAN MILITARY COMMENTATOR CAPT. LUDWIG SERTORIUS SAID THE THIRD ARMY COMMANDER WAS "REMAINING FAITHFUL TO HIS PRACTICE OF RUTHLESSLY KEEPING HIS ADVANCES FLUID AND FANNING OUT TIME AND AGAIN WITH ASSAULT SPEARHEADS." SURVEYING THE FRONT AS A WHOLE, SERTORIUS SAID DESPAIRINGLY, "IT'S HARDLY POSSIBLE TO GAIN A CLEAR PICTURE OF THE SITUATION."

AN AIDE OF PROPAGANDA MINISTER GOEBBELS TOLD THE GERMAN PEOPLE THAT THIS WAS A WEEK OF HIGHEST DECISION AND THAT IT WAS FUTILE TO "LOOK FOR A MIRACLE FROM THE OUTSIDE."

A20

FRANKFURT, BIRTHPLACE OF GOETHE AND CENTER OF THE GERMAN ELECTRO-CHEMICAL INDUSTRY, WAS FOUND TO HAVE BEEN BADLY WRECKED BY ALLIED BOMBINGS, WITH AN ESTIMATED 90 PERCENT OF ITS BUILDINGS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED. ONLY ABOUT 200,000 OF ITS PEACETIME POPULATION OF 550,000 WERE REPORTED STILL IN THE CITY. A DOZEN AIRFIELDS DOT THE FLAT PLAIN AROUND THE METROPOLIS.

THE WEATHER BROKE BAD FOR THE ALLIES FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE AIR FORCES BEGAN THEIR TREMENDOUS BOMBING PRELUDE TO THE PRESENT OFFENSIVE. THERE WERE SCATTERED SHOWERS ALONG THE FRONT AND CLOUDS HUNG SO LOW OVER THE NORTHERN HALF OF THE BATTLEFIELD THAT TACTICAL FORCES WERE NOT ABLE TO ENGAGE IN EXTENSIVE OPERATIONS THERE. THE FRANKFURT AREA WAS BATTERED, HOWEVER, AND FIGHTER-PILOTS TOOK A HEAVY TOLL OF GERMAN ROAD CONVOYS FLEEING BEFORE THE ALLIED ONSURGE.

FIRST PRISONERS TAKEN BY THE SEVENTH ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE WERE DESCRIBED AS POOR-LOOKING MATERIAL, INCLUDING MANY OLD MEN AND YOUTHS AND AIR FORCES PERSONNEL HASTILY HAULED INTO BATTLE.

THE GERMANS SAID THE THIRD ARMY HAD FOUGHT INTO THE STREETS OF OFFENBACH, AN IMPORTANT MAIN RIVER MANUFACTURING CITY OF 80,000, FIVE MILES EAST OF FRANKFURT. FRANKFURT ITSELF WAS HOPELESSLY OUTFLANKED AND BESIEGED--AND PERHAPS EVACUATED.

PROGRESS OF THE FIRST ARMY EAST OF BONN AND BELOW THE RUHR'S SOUTHERN LIMITS WAS SWIFT AND LARGELY CENSORED TO KEEP THE GERMANS CONFUSED. EVEN THE SIZE OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' STRIKING FORCE WAS OBSCURE. THE FACT THAT CENSORS ALLOWED IT TO BE DESCRIBED AS THE LARGEST TANK FORCE EVER USED IN THE WEST MEANT THAT A MINIMUM OF FIVE TANK DIVISIONS WERE POWERING THE DRIVE--LAST REPORTED 247 MILES FROM BERLIN--BECAUSE PATTON USED FOUR TANK DIVISIONS IN THE MOSELLE CAMPAIGN.

WHERE THE SEVENTH ARMY CROSSED THE RHINE WAS A SECRET, TOO. THE GERMANS REPORTED STREET FIGHTING OUTSIDE KARLSRUHE, CAPITAL OF BADEN, FIVE MILES EAST OF THE RIVER.

MAR 28 1945

ONLY THE FRENCH FIRST AND NEW U.S. 15TH ARMY HAVE NOT YET BEEN REPORTED ACROSS THE RHINE.

LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.(TEXAS BILL)) SIMPSON'S NINTH ARMY STRIKING THROUGH THE DIFFICULT BUILT UP SECTION OF THE RUHR--ALMOST A CONTINUOUS CITY OF 5,000,000--DROVE FOUR MILES BEYOND THE DUESSELDORF-ARNHEM SUPER-HIGHWAY AND REACHED THE LIPPE RIVER AT GAHLEN, 13 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.

AT LAST REPORTS, FAR BEHIND ACTUAL DEVELOPMENTS, THE NINTH ARMY WAS WITHIN 32 MILES OF THE MAJOR TRAFFIC CENTER OF MUENSTER (143,748); 12 OF GELSENKIRCKEN (313,000); 23 OF DORTMUND (537,000); TWO OF OBERHAUSEN (191,305) AND FIVE OF MULHEIM (136,805.) ESSEN IS A CITY OF 660,000 AND HOME OF THE BOMB-POCKED KRUPP WORKS.

THE NINTH HAD TAKEN 4,500 PRISONERS SINCE CROSSING THE RHINE.

AN AMERICAN AIRBORNE DIVISION LINKED UP WITH NINTH ARMY TROOPS ALONG THE LIPPE RIVER AND MOVED THREE MILES CLOSER TO BERLIN.

ONE LONG RANGE NINTH ARMY GUN SCORED A DIRECT HIT ON A GERMAN RAILROAD GUN IN THE OSTERFELD RAILYARDS EIGHT MILES AHEAD. NO GERMAN COUNTERATTACK WORTHY OF THE NAME HAS YET DEVELOPED ON THE NINTH ARMY FRONT.

"THE WHOLE OF GERMAN RESISTANCE AGAINST THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY BETWEEN WESEL AND REES WAS COLLAPSING TODAY AND THE BRITISH WERE SWEEPING ON," AP CORRESPONDENT NED NORDNESS REPORTED FROM THE SECOND ARMY FRONT. "THERE APPARENTLY IS LITTLE TO HALT THE ARMY FROM MOTORING THROUGH GERMANY."

AT LEAST THREE CORPS WERE POWERING THE BRITISH ATTACK, SWELLED BY MASSED TRAFFIC MOVING ACROSS AT LEAST EIGHT LIGHT BRIDGES OVER THE RHINE ON THE SECOND ARMY FRONT ALONE.

RINGENBERG FELL. TROOPS CROSSED THE ISSEL RIVER AGAIN TWO MILES WEST OF DINGDEN. RESISTANCE SLACKENED CONSIDERABLY NORTH OF REES BEFORE ATTACKS OF THE CANADIAN THIRD DIVISION AND SCOTTISH LOWLANDERS OF THE 15TH DIVISION. MILLINGEN WAS CLEARED.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, NOTING THE SWIFT, CONTINUED DISENTEGRATION OF GERMAN FORCES IN THE WEST, SAID 15,132 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN SUNDAY ON ALL FRONTS.

ACCOMPLISHMENT AS A DOUBLE CROSSING OF THE ALLIED ARMIES

A SECURITY BLACKOUT DIMMED THE FULL PROGRESS OF THE ALLIED ARMIES FIGHTING ALONG THE FLUID WESTERN FRONT, BUT LATE FRONT ADVICES DISCLOSED THAT U.S.FIRST ARMY TROOPS HAD THRUST 35 MILES OUT OF THEIR REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD. HITLER'S RHINE RIVER LINE APPEARED SHATTERED BEYOND REPAIR.

LT.COURTNEY HODGES' FIRST ARMY DOUGHBOYS AND LT.GEN.GEORGE S. PATTON'S THIRD ARMY WERE RACING NECK-AND-NECK FOR BERLIN, WITH THE LATTER BELIEVED WELL BEYOND THEIR LAST REPORTED POSITIONS 40 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.

REPORTS THAT PATTON'S FORCES

(LONDON NEWSPAPERS CARRIED UNCONFIRMED REPORTS THAT PATTON'S FORCES WERE 70 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE IN THE WUERZBERG AREA. A BRITISH BROADCAST SAID THE FRANKFURT-AM-MAIN RADIO STATION HAD ANNOUNCED THAT ALLIED ARMORED SPEARHEADS HAD DRIVEN WITHIN 10 MILES OF FULDA, 54 MILES NORTHEAST OF FRANKFURT.)

FOR LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY VETERANS THE RHINE CROSSING WAS THE CLIMAX TO A 700-MILE DRIVE FROM THE BEACHES OF SOUTHERN FRANCE. THE GERMANS SAID HIS FORCES WERE HAMMERING AT THE GATES OF KARLSRUHE, SUGGESTING THE CROSSING WAS IN THAT AREA.

THE 35-MILE THRUST BY FIRST ARMY TANK FORCES CARRIED INTO THE HIGHWAY TOWN OF HECKHOLZHAUSEN, WITHIN 247 MILES OF BERLIN. OTHER ARMORED UNITS BROKE INTO LIMBURG, A ROAD JUNCTION CITY 8 1/2 MILES SOUTHWEST OF HECKHOLZHAUSEN.

A13

A FRONT DISPATCH DESCRIBED HODGES' TANK FORCE AS THE GREATEST EVER ASSEMBLED ON THE WESTERN FRONT. IN LIMBURG HIS SUPPORTING INFANTRYMEN WERE CLEARING OUT THE GERMANS IN STREET-BY-STREET FIGHTING. TWELVE AND A HALF MILES NORTH OF LIMBURG ANOTHER FIRST ARMY ARMORED COLUMN REACHED HUBLINGEN.

PRISONERS SURRENDERED SO FAST TO THE ADVANCING DOUGHBOYS THAT MILITARY POLICE WERE CALLED TO RUSH FORWARD AND AID IN HANDLING THEM. THERE WAS NO SOLID LINE IN FRONT OF THE FIRST ARMY. THE ENEMY WAS CHOPPED UP INTO ISOLATED POCKETS.

(MORE)

JUST 32 MILES SOUTHEAST OF LIMBURG, PATTON'S TANKS WERE PROWLING THE RUBBLE-STREWN STREETS OF FRANKFURT, MILES OF THE CITY OF 546,000 POPULATION WERE IN RUINS, CREATED BY ALLIED BOMBING OF ITS ARSENALS.

ELEMENTS OF THE SPEEDING FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION REACHED THE MAIN RIVER OPPOSITE HANAU, 10 MILES EAST OF FRANKFURT AND 13 MILES NORTHWEST OF THE CAPTURED BRIDGE AT ASCHAFFENBURG. THE BRIDGEHEAD BETWEEN MAINZ AND WORMS WAS 30 MILES WIDE AND AT LEAST 30 MILES DEEP--A SECURITY BLACKOUT ON THE FOURTH'S PROGRESS PREVENTED DISCLOSURE OF ITS EXACT DEPTH. LOCATION OF A NEW THIRD ARMY RHINE CROSSING WAS LIKEWISE WITHHELD.

MEANWHILE TO THE NORTH THE BRITISH SECOND AND THE U.S.NINTH ARMIES WERE STRIKING WITH SUCH FORCE IN THE RUHR AND ON THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN THAT A FIRST ALLIED AIRBORNE ARMY OFFICER DECLARED "THERE IS NOTHING TO HALT A BREAKTHROUGH."

THE NINTH ARMY SPEARED 17 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE, FOUGHT INTO THE NORTHERN SUBURBS OF THE RUHR PORT OF DUISBURG AND WAS BY-PASSING THE

LT.GEN.WILLIAM SIMPSON'S FAMED 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS SWEEPING THROUGH VILLAGES WHERE UNEVACUATED GERMAN CIVILIANS TOOK TO THEIR CELLARS AND CAME OUT WHEN THE FIGHTING WAS OVER. A MILITARY AFFAIRS OFFICER SAID THE GERMAN SOLDIERS HAD ADVISED THE CIVILIANS TO STAY PUT BECAUSE THEY WOULD GET BETTER TREATMENT FROM THE AMERICANS THAN BY FLEEING DEEPER INTO THE REICH.

ELEMENTS OF THE GERMAN 116TH PANZER DIVISION WERE THROWN AGAINST THE 30TH DIVISION, UNITS OF WHICH WERE NINE MILES NORTH OF ESSEN AFTER A FOUR-MILE ADVANCE. A TANK BATTLE RAGED FIVE MILES SOUTHEAST OF BORSTEN, 17 MILES FROM THE RHINE DUE EAST OF WESEL.

THE 79TH DIVISION WAS FIGHTING IN WEHOVEN, NORTHEAST SUBURB OF DUISBURG.

U.S.AIRBORNE FORCES NORTH OF WESEL, TOGETHER WITH THE SIXTH BRITISH AIRBORNE, CRASHED THROUGH BROKEN AND DISORGANIZED ENEMY FORCES. BRITISH PARACHUTE TROOPS DROVE WITHIN A HALF MILE OF BRUENEN, THREE MILES BEYOND THE ISSEL RIVER NORTH OF WESEL, WHILE AMERICAN AIRBORNE UNITS MADE SIMILAR GAINS EASTWARD.

THE NEWS BLACKOUT HID THE ENTIRE STORY OF THE BRITISH ADVANCE, WHICH HAD CARRIED 15 MILES ONTO THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN.

THE CANADIANS AT THE WEST END OF THE MORE THAN 31-MILE-LONG BRIDGEHEAD CAPTURED MILLINGEN, FOUR MILES NORTH OF REES, AND TOOK BIENEN, FOUR MILES NORTHWEST.

...MATERIAL FORWARD TO BACK THE ATTACK.

"I SHOULD MENTION TOO, THE SUPERB WORK OF THE MEDICAL SERVICE IN THE EVACUATION AND CARE OF CASUALTIES."

THE GENERAL SAID ALL UNITS HAD BEEN INSTRUCTED TO SEIZE ANY OPPORTUNITY THAT CAME THEIR WAY OF GETTING ACROSS THE RHINE, EITHER BY GRABBING A BRIDGE OR USING BOATS. THE LUCKY SEIZURE OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE AT REMAGEN PAID BIG DIVIDENDS.

THE ARMY IN OCCUPIED AREAS WILL ESTABLISH ORDER UNTIL THE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS DECIDE WHAT IS TO BE DONE WITH GERMANY, EISENHOWER SAID. ANY CIVILIAN RESISTANCE WILL BE DEALT WITH STERNLY ON THE SPOT.

IT CANNOT BE DENIED THAT THERE HAS BEEN SOME FRATERNIZATION OF ALLIED TROOPS WITH GERMANS, HE NOTED, DESPITE ORDERS AGAINST IT, BUT THE GENERAL CONDUCT OF THE ALLIED SOLDIERS HAS BEEN EXEMPLARY.

LAUGHING, EISENHOWER SAID HE WOULD BE THE LAST TO DENY THAT SOLDIERS SOMETIMES SLIPPED IN BACKDOORS TO GET A LITTLE RHINE WINE OR WHATEVER ELSE THEY MIGHT BE AFTER.

THE SUPREME COMMANDER SAID CASUALTIES IN THE BIG THRUST ACROSS THE RHINE IN THE WESEL AREA WERE LIGHTER THAN EXPECTED.

ON THE FIRST DAY, THE 79TH DIVISION OF THE U.S. NINTH ARMY SUFFERED 13 KILLED, AND THE 30TH INFANTRY DIVISION 15 KILLED. THE OPERATION IS GOING FASTER THAN EXPECTED.

EISENHOWER ALSO GAVE HIS OPINION ON THE RELATIVE MERITS OF FIELD MARSHAL ALBERT KESSELRING, NEW GERMAN COMMANDER IN THE WEST, AND FIELD MARSHAL KARL VON RUNDSTEDT, THE DEPOSED COMMANDER.

A26

HE SAID RUNDSTEDT PROBABLY WAS A MORE FINISHED SOLDIER, BUT THAT KESSELRING WAS CLOSER TO THE NAZI PARTY AND HAD A WAY OF INSPIRING HIS MEN. HE SAID HE KNEW NOTHING ABOUT RUNDSTEDT'S WHEREABOUTS OR WHETHER HE WAS DEAD OR ALIVE.

NO GERMAN GENERAL, NO MATTER HOW GREAT A LEADER HE IS, CAN SERVE GERMANY NOW, HE ADDED.

THE MAINTENANCE PROBLEM ACROSS THE RHINE IS A BIG ONE. CAESAR THREW A BRIDGE ACROSS THE RHINE IN 10 DAYS, AND COL.MASON YOUNG OF THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY GOT ONE ACROSS IN 10 HOURS AND 11 MINUTES, THE GENERAL REMARKED.

BUILDING A RAILWAY BRIDGE IS A MUCH LONGER JOB HOWEVER. EISENHOWER THEN TOLD CORRESPONDENTS THE DISTANCE FROM RAILHEADS THAT ARMIES CAN BE SUPPLIED BY TRUCKS--BUT THIS WAS NOT FOR PUBLICATION.

THE FIGURE IS IMPORTANT, FOR IT MEANS THE DISTANCE THE ARMIES CAN ADVANCE BEYOND THE RHINE BEFORE SETTLING DOWN TO WAIT FOR THE RAILHEAD TO MOVE UP.

...MQ1018PEW

ASKED WHETHER HE THOUGHT THE WESTERN ALLIES OR THE RUSSIANS WOULD BE THE FIRST INTO BERLIN, EISENHOWER SAID THE MILEAGE FAVORED THE RUSSIANS, AS THEY WERE 33 MILES FROM BERLIN.

THE DECISION WAS TO CONTINUE PRODUCING SHERMANS IN SUCH NUMBERS AS TO OVERWHELM THE ENEMY

...AND AT THE SAME TIME TO WORK ON A SUPERIOR TANK.

IT WOULD BE IDLE, HE CONCEDED, TO SAY THAT A SHERMAN COULD MEET A PANTHER OR A TIGER ON EQUAL TERMS, BUT THE ALLIES HAVE SHERMANS IN GREATER NUMBERS THAN ENEMY TANKS AND, ONCE THE BREAKTHROUGH IS MADE, COMMANDERS SAY THEY PREFER THE SHERMAN TO ANY OTHER.

AMONG THE HUGE STORES OF ENEMY SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT CAPTURED WERE SOME OF THE LARGEST SELF-PROPELLED GUNS EVER TAKEN ON THE WESTERN FRONT, INCLUDING ONE FERINAND, A 70-TON GIANT. MANY OF THE GUNS WERE TAKEN INTACT BEFORE THE GERMAN CREWS COULD DAMAGE THEM.

IN A SIX-HOUR DRIVE ALONG ONE ROAD LEADING TO THE FRONT TODAY I COUNTED MORE THAN 200 KNOCKED-OUT VEHICLES--TANKS, PIGHT GUNS, MOBILE ANTI-AIRCRAFT PIECES, TRUCKS LOADED WITH DRUMS OF OIL AND GASOLINE, OFFICERS' CARS AND MOTORCYCLES. MOST OF THEM HAD BEEN WIPED OUT BY ALLIED FIGHTER-BOMBERS RANGING AHEAD OF THE TANK COLUMNS.

EVERY WOODS YIELDED STORES OF ABANDONED MILITARY MATERIAL. IN ONE VAST EVERGREEN FOREST AMONG THE TUMULTOUS HILLS SEVERAL MILES NORTH-EAST OF ALTENKIRCHEN WERE HIDDEN IMMENSE PILES OF AMMUNITION AND EXPLOSIVES--SEVERAL HUNDREDS, PERHAPS THOUSANDS, OF TONS. BLUE PRIMER CORDS WERE ATTACHED TO THEM, BUT THEY HAD NOT BEEN BLOWN UP. THE SOLDIERS ASSIGNED TO THAT TASK HAD FAILED.

"SLEEP IS ONE OF OUR BIGGEST PROBLEMS NOW," SAID MAJ.JAMES A. ALEXANDER, JR., 1514 PINEHURST STREET, JACKSON. MISS., A FORMER LAWYER. HE, IKE THE MEN IN THE ARMORED VEHICLES, HAD GONE MORE THAN 60 HOURS WITHOUT REST. "OUR BOYS ARE REALLY GETTING BUSHED. THEY HAVE BEEN GOING ALMOST THREE DAYS AND THREE NIGHTS WITHOUT SLEEP. RIDING A TANK IN COMBAT IS A HELL OF A JOB. IT REALLY WEARS A MAN DOWN. AS LONG AS THEY KEEP MOVING, THE MEN ARE ALL RIGHT. BUT WHENEVER A COLUMN PAUSES FOR A MOMENT, THEY DOZE OFF."

BUT BEHIND THE FORWARD COLUMNS EVERY ROAD IS CHOKED WITH OTHER TANK UNITS PUSHING ON TO THE FRONT. THEY ARE READY TO LEAPFROG INTO ACTION AND KEEP THE FIRST ARMY ROLLING ITS TIDAL FLOOD OF ARMOR THROUGH INNER GERMANY TO A UNION WITH THE RUSSIANS AND VICTORY.

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY, MARCH 27-(AP)-THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY'S POWERFUL TANK-PACED ATTACK DROVE 54 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE TO WITHIN TWO MILES OF WETZLAR TODAY, SPILLED ACROSS THE LAHN RIVER, AND FLOWED TO THE SOUTHEAST TO WITHIN 12 MILES OF FRANKFURT.

THE TANK COLUMNS ROARED OUT FOR GAINS OF EIGHT TO 27 MILES ON THE THIRD DAY OF LT.-GEN.COURTNEY HODGES' ATTACK, AND KEPT UP THE PACE UNDIMINISHED AGAINST DISORGANIZED ENEMY RESISTANCE.

DURING THE NIGHT, INFANTRYMEN CROSSED THE LAHN RIVER AT LIMBURG. TANKS CAME BEHIND THEM OVER A HASTILY-BUILT BRIDGE.

THE COLUMN BEGAN ROLLING DOWN A SUPERHIGHWAY TO THE SOUTHEAST AT DAWN AFTER QUELLING ENEMY INFANTRY, AND LATE THIS AFTERNOON HAD LUNGED 20 MILES TO WITHIN 12 MILES WEST OF FRANKFURT.

FOUR MILES SOUTH OF COBLENZ, HODGES' MEN LINKED WITH LT.-GEN. GEORGE PATTON'S NORTHERN BRIDGEHEAD FORCES FOR THE FIRST MEETING OF THE TWO ATTACKING ARMIES EAST OF THE RHINE.

THE DEEPEST PENETRATION OF ANOTHER DAY OF SPECTACULAR GAINS REACHED TO ALTENBERG, TWO MILES WEST OF WETZLAR. IN THE NORTH ANOTHER TASK FORCE PUSHED UP 27 MILES FROM WAHLROD TO HERBORN ON THE DILL RIVER 49 MILES FROM THE RHINE. THE DILL WAS REACHED AT ANOTHER POINT 20 MILES NORTHEAST OF LIMBURG NEAR FLEISACH AND EDINGEN.

THIS THUNDERING HERD OF TANKS KEPT DRIVING EVEN WHEN THERE WAS ENEMY RESISTANCE IN SMALL TOWNS IN THE LINE OF ADVANCE. THEY JUST FLOWED AROUND WHATEVER SMALL ENEMY FORCES WERE HOLED UP IN BUILDINGS, AND LEFT THE CLEANUP JOB FOR OTHERS BEHIND.

TROOPS FOLLOWING THE TANKS INTO ALLENDORF AND GANDERBACH CLEANED OUT RESISTANCE THREE MILES BEHIND THE SPEARHEADING ARMOR WHERE THE ENEMY HAD SELF-PROPELLED WEAPONS AND INFANTRY.

CENSORSHIP PERMITTED DISCLOSURE THAT IT WAS THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION WHICH CAPTURED LIMBURG. THE NINTH WAS THE OUTFIT THAT SEIZED THE REMAGEN BRIDGE AND GAVE THE FIRST ARMY ITS BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE RHINE.

WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY, MARCH 27-(AP)-EXPLOSIVE DENTISTRY BY NINE ENGINEERS OPERATING IN DARKNESS EXTRACTED SIEGFRIED LINE DRAGON TEETH SO THE 44TH ARMORED DIVISION COULD RUMBLE THROUGH.

SOON AFTER THE NINE PICKED SOLDIERS UNDER LT.CHARLES BARDWELL, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., STARTED OUT FROM THE 125TH ARMORED ENGINEER BATTALION HEADQUARTERS CARRYING 375 POUNDS OF TNT THEY WERE CAUGHT IN A HEAVY ARTILLERY AND MORTAR CONCENTRATION.

SGT.BILL REYNOLDS, AUGUSTA, GA., WAS WOUNDED IN THE CHEEK BUT WENT ON. ANOTHER MAN HAD TO BE EVACUATED TO THE REAR AND PFC.SAM PEARCE, KYLERTOWN, PA., CAME UP AS A REPLACEMENT, TAKING OVER THE WOUNDED MAN'S 50 POUNDS OF EXPLOSIVES.

AFTER THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILE ON THE ROAD THEY TOOK TO THE FIELDS, TRUSTING TO LUCK TO KEEP THEM CLEAR OF MINES, AND REACHED A WALL IN FRONT OF THE DRAGON'S TEETH ABOUT 3 A.M. BARDWELL WENT OVER THE WALL WITH REYNOLDS AND SGT.RAY HODSON, BARRY, ILL., LAYING A CORD TO MARK THE PATH OF DESTRUCTION.

THEN SGT.ORLANDO THOMAS, DUNKIRK, N.Y., WENT OVER THE WALL CARRYING 75 POUNDS OF TNT INTENDED FOR THE LARGEST TOOTH ON THE FAR SIDE OF THE BELT, CLOSEST TO THE ENEMY. HE WAS FOLLOWED BY SGT.DONALD ARCHULETA, DENVER, COLO.; CPL.WARREN SHELLY, GUTHRIE CENTER, IOWA; CPL.RALPH BREEDLOVE, DAWES, W.VA.; AND CPL.BILL BLISS, CHICAGO.

EACH MAN TIED HIS CHARGE TO THE CONCRETE OBSTACLE PICKED OUT FOR HIM, THEN CLIMBED BACK OVER THE WALL TO THE ASSEMBLY POINT WHERE ALL HAD GATHERED BY 5:48 A.M., JUST 12 MINUTES BEFORE THE PRE-ATTACK BARRAGE WAS DUE TO START.

THEN, AS THEY RAN SWIFTLY TOWARD THE REAR, AN EARTH-JARRING EXPLOSION CAME BEHIND THEM. THEY STOPPED RUNNING LONG ENOUGH TO SHAKE HANDS ALL AROUND AND TO LAUGH.

GUAM, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28-(AP)-JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS SAYS AMERICAN FORCES HAVE INVADED KERAMA ISLANDS IN THE RYUKYU CHAIN, 400 MILES SOUTHWEST OF THE NIPPONESE HOMELAND, AND TARGETS OF THE U.S. FIFTH FLEET BATTLESHIP AND CARRIER AIRCRAFT ATTACKS IN RECENT DAYS.

THE TOKYO RADIO SAIS THE ENEMY HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TUESDAY THAT "A CONTINGENT OF ENEMY FORCES" LANDED ON THE KERAMAS SNDAY. U.S. FLEET HEADQUARTERS AT GUAM HAS NOT CONFIRMED THE ENEMY CLAIM.

AMERICAN COMMUNIQUES TUESDAY TOLD OF BLOWS DELIVERED BY 5TH FLEET WARSHIPS AND PLANES, ARMY LIBERATORS AND SUPERFORTRESSES AGAINST JAPANESE DEFENSES, FACTORIES AND MILITARY BASES FROM FORMOSA NORTHEASTWARD TO KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST MAIN ISLAND OF THE NIPPON ARCHIPELAGO.

THE KERAMA ISLANDS, 15 MILES WEST OF OKINAWA ISLAND IN THE RYUKYUS, WERE BLASTED BY U.S. CARRIER PLANES LAST FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, WHILE BATTLESHIPS BOMBARDED OKINAWA INSTALLATIONS FOR THE FIRST TIME, AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS SAID. THE WARSHIPS AGAIN TURNED THEIR GUNS ON OKINAWA MONDAY.

JAPANESE HEADQUARTERS DID NOT SPECIFY WHICH OF THE ISLANDS IN THE KERAMA CLUSTER WERE INVADED BY THE YANKS, NOR WAS THERE CLAIM THAT THE INVADERS HAD BEEN THROWN BACK.

THE NIPPONESE COMMUNIQUE MADE THE WHOLLY UNCONFIRMED ASSERTION THAT "FURIOUS" JAPANESE AIR ATTACKS RESULTED IN THE SINKING OF FIVE AMERICAN WARSHIPS, WITH FIVE MORE SUNK OR SERIOUSLY DAMAGED, AND THAT 44 U.S. PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN AND ABOUT 110 DAMAGED.

OKINAWA, MAIN TARGET OF ADM. RAYMOND A. SPRUANCE'S 5TH FLEET SINCE HIS AIRCRAFT BROKE OFF HEAVY ATTACKS ON JAPAN'S SOUTH COAST LAST MID-WEEK, CONTAINS MANY AIRFIELDS, WITH A NAVAL BASE AT NAHA ON THE ISLAND'S SOUTHWEST COAST.

AMERICAN BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ON THE KERAMA ISLANDS WOULD BE IN STRATEGIC POSITION TO CONTINUALLY NEUTRALIZE OKINAWA'S AIR AND NAVAL STRONGPOINTS AND STRIKE NORTHWARD TO THE JAPANESE MAINLAND.

SUPERFORTS OF THE MARIANAS-BASED 21ST BOMBER COMMAND MADE THEIR FIRST ATTACK ON KYUSHU ISLAND TUESDAY, STRIKING ESPECIALLY AT A BIG AIRCRAFT ASSEMBLY PLANT AT OMURA ON THE WEST COAST, FORMERLY A TARGET OF CHINA-BASED B-29S.

THE PLANES, POSSIBLY NUMBERING 200 OR MORE, POUNDED IMPORTANT AIR DEPOTS IN TACHIARAI AND OITA AND THE OMURA FACTORY WITH "GOOD TO EXCELLENT RESULTS", THE 20TH AIRFORCE REPORTED AT WASHINGTON.

ALL OF THE SUPERFORTS RETURNED TO THEIR BASES.

JAP BROADCASTS

SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 27-(AP)-TOKYO BROADCASTERS JOLTED JAPANESE RADIO LISTENERS TODAY WITH CLAIMS OF AMERICAN INVASIONS IN THE RYUKYU ISLANDS ONLY 400 MILES FROM THE NIPPONESE HOMELAND AND IN THE PHILIPPINES.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID "ENEMY FORCES" LANDED ON THE KERAMA ISLANDS IN THE RYUKYUS SUNDAY, AND DOMEI NEWS AGENCY REPORTED THAT YANKS COMMENCED LANDINGS ON CEBU ISLAND, PHILIPPINES, YESTERDAY.

THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION BY UNITED STATES AUTHORITIES OF THE JAPANESE RADIO STATEMENTS, HEARD BY THE FCC.

BATTLESHIPS AND CARRIER AIRCRAFT OF THE U.S. FIFTH FLEET BOMBARDED AND BOMBED RYUKYU ISLANDS, INCLUDING THE KERAMA GROUP BUT MOSTLY THE MAIN ISLAND OF OKINAWA, LAST WEEK END AND MONDAY.

THE JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE ALSO CLAIMED WITHOUT CONFIRMATION THAT THE AMERICAN FLEET AND INVASION FORCES WERE MET WITH "FURIOUS ATTACKS" BY NIPPONESE AIRCRAFT, WHICH SANK FIVE LARGE WARSHIPS, SANK OR DAMAGED FIVE MORE AND SHOT DOWN OR DAMAGED 154 YANK PLANES.

DOMEI SAID THE INVASION OF CEBU, WHICH WITH NEGROS IS THE ONLY REMAINING MAJOR PHILIPPINE ISLAND NOT INVADED BY AMERICANS, WAS UNDERTAKEN WITH NAVAL SUPPORT.

THE WASHINGTON ANNOUNCEMENT THAT MARIANAS-BASED SUPERFORTRESSES OF THE 21ST U.S. BOMBER COMMAND ATTACKED KYUSHU ISLAND IN THE JAPANESE HOMELAND TODAY WAS SUPPLEMENTED BY A TOKYO BROADCAST SAYING THAT "APPROXIMATELY 100" OF THE GIANT PLANES MADE THE ASSAULT.

DOMEI SAID THE RAID LASTED AN HOUR AND WAS THE FIRST ONE MADE BY B-29S FROM THE MARIANAS ON KYUSHU, REUTHERNMOST OF THE NIPPON MAIN ISLANDS.

THE TOKYO RADIO SAID A "COMMITTEE FOR A 20-YEAR WAR" MET IN THE JAPANESE CAPITAL TODAY FOR THE FIRST TIME FOLLOWING ITS ORGAN-IZATION BY "INFLUENTIAL CITIZENS" HEADED BY HAC

NEW BRIDGEHEADS

Ninth Army, Meeting Stiffest Opposition, Reaches Duisburg Suburbs.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Thursday, March 29.—(AP) Gen. Eisenhower's Allied armies made whirlwind advances up to 27 miles through collapsing German resistance yesterday as British tanks broke through north of the Ruhr and the U. S. First and Third armies neared a link-up deep inside the Reich.

Cities and towns fell in wholesale lots to infantrymen following closely behind the armored spearheads which had broken completely through the German defensive crust and were overrunning the Reich under a veil of secrecy that prevented pinpointing their latest advances.

The Fourth armored division of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army raced 27 miles northward from Hanau to a point only six miles southeast of Giessen, through which Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First Army had passed earlier in the day. There was a possibility that these two armies already had made a junction in that area, approximately 225 miles from Berlin, closing a trap around Nazi forces still fighting in Frankfurt, half of which had been cleared.

Germans in Wild Retreat

North of the Ruhr the Germans were reported in wild retreat ahead of British tanks which broke out of Field Marshal Sir Montgomery's bridgehead, now exploding in all directions. Montgomery's armor, with British and American troops riding on the backs of the tanks, broke loose on an 11-mile front and raced down broad highways toward Muenster and Berlin. Canadian troops stormed into Emmerich, on the Rhine near the Dutch border.

The American Ninth Army, still encountering the fiercest opposition faced by any of the seven Allied armies east of the Rhine, wheeled south into the industrial Ruhr and smashed through the northern suburbs of Duisburg to the wharves along the Ruhr river.

The U. S. Seventh Army cleared the northern part of the industrial city of Mannheim on the Neckar river while other units drove as much as 32 miles east of the Rhine, making contact with the Third Army along the Main river.

The Seventh and Third armies also merged their footholds along the Rhine. The Third army established another bridgehead at Wiesbaden and, with the First and Third solidly linked farther north, the Americans controlled the east bank of the great river all the way from Bonn to Mannheim.

It was another day of spectacular gains on the whole front, some of them not announced in order to keep the enemy in the dark. But it was disclosed officially that the Third Army was at least 69 miles east of the Rhine.

Indicative of the close cooperation between the First and Third armies, members of Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th army group, was disclosure at Bradley's headquarters that "a strong armored column" had been sent south from the First army sector into the Third army area in order to speed up the Third's advance. There was no amplification of this news, however.

Fourth Column Runs Wild

The Fourth Armored column did the last 25 miles of its spectacular dash in about 10 hours, meeting virtually no opposition and running with open throttles much of the time. Another column of the Fourth drove into Altenstadt, 10 miles north of Hanau, and then pushed on to the vicinity of Nieder Florstadt, 19 miles south of Giessen. Aschaffenburg, 12 miles southeast of Hanau, was cleared of the enemy and Third army troops crossed the Main there. Wiesbaden, famous spa west of Frankfurt, also was taken.

A late front dispatch said Gen. Hodges had sent a First army armored column driving southeast from Giessen to close the gap between his and Patton's armies. Patton's infantry cleared Bischofscheim, three and a half miles northeast of Frankfurt.

Fighter pilots ranging out in front of the roaring American tank columns searching for the enemy reported they could find only scattered targets. There were no signs of any German troops or tanks coming up to meet the swift and powerful thrust toward Berlin. There were not even road blocks or mines to slow the eastward surge.

Only Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's U. S. Ninth army, fighting grimly into the Ruhr valley, continued to meet fierce resistance. Doughboys of the 79th division captured three great war production factories as they fought into the outskirts of Duisberg, and the bridgehead as a whole was enlarged to 16 miles deep by 14 wide. The 79th held the northern area of Duisberg and some of the docks of that once great industrial metropolis.

The German high command declared that Patton's Fourth armored Division had driven into Gemuenden, 43 miles east of Frankfurt and 218 miles from Berlin. A subsequent enemy broadcast said the column had pushed five miles farther northeast within 213 miles of the rubbled capital.

Far-ranging tank forces of the First army raced eastward at the center of the front over roads cleared of the enemy. Giessen, 225 miles from Berlin, was overrun in an early morning dash and a tank column smashed on through Belinhausen, eight miles farther north and 69 miles beyond the Rhine.

The full, magnificent story of the First and Third army advances was hidden by a censorship imposed Tuesday night. The demoralized enemy did not know where the American spearheads were, and the First army was not meeting even token resistance.

New Rhine Crossings

Far behind the battle's forefront, Third army troops forced new crossings of both the Rhine and Main rivers and captured Wiesbaden, five miles west of Frankfurt, in which street fighting raged through the second day. The Allied commission sat in Wiesbaden after the last war.

American and British fighter-bomber pilots striking at the Nazis in the path of the breakthrough said the enemy was becoming a complete rout. So fast was the advance that the bombline for fliers had to be changed every 20 minutes.

Of the British Second army breakout in the north, field correspondents were permitted to say that tank-riding infantrymen had captured Dorsten, 16 miles east of the Rhine, and that mechanized units were piling on eastward. Montgomery's troops were in the outskirts of Borken, north of Dorsten and 20 miles from the Rhine.

Bewildered German civilians, trying to flee deeper into Germany upon orders of Nazi authorities, were overtaken by the swift surge of Allied armor, and so began the weary trek back to their homes. Riding some of the British tanks were American airborne troops.

East of Rees there was heavy fighting in the streets of Haldern, the single point in the entire Ruhr bridgehead where there remained a determined pocket of resistance. North of Millingen the whole line moved up more than a mile and Canadian troops were approaching Anholt. The center of Montgomery's line was within a half-mile of the Bocholt-Anholt railway.

Capture of Krechting, east of Bocholt, gave the British possession of an important bridge on the highway between the Rhine and the area to the south. Fighting was in progress in the outskirts of Bocholt. Pilots flying over the area between Dorsten and Bocholt said the Allied advance was so swift they were having difficulty avoiding bombing their own troops.

Churning American tanks raised great clouds of thick, clinging dust, blanketing Doughboys and armor and making it necessary to cover rifle muzzles. Nothing like it had been seen since the chalk-white dust of Sicily.

German prisoners streaming to the rear where dirty, haggard and hungry. Breakdown of the enemy's supply system left them without food or shells for their guns. Almost every forest engulfed in the First army drive was found stacked with tons of ammunition and supplies which the Nazis never had a chance to use.

Many of Hodges' and Patton's men had been advancing three days and nights virtually without rest or sleep, and their eyes were red and dust-clogged. The rumor spread among them that the Germans might resort to poison gas in an attempt to stop the armored avalanche, but few believed the enemy would be that foolhardy.

So panicky was the German retreat that many road bridges were found intact.

Hundreds of Allied war prisoners, including French, Poles, Greeks and Russians, were being liberated by the advancing columns. White clothes flapped from almost every German home.

(In a broadcast from Germany, Matthew Holton of the BBC said: "I don't say the war is over, but it's nearly over. Everybody here will be surprised if the Germans are still fighting on May 1.")

A total of 19,712 prisoners were taken by all the Allied armies on Monday. Tuesday the Third army bagged at least 3,825, the First 6,500 and the Seventh 2,500. Other thousands had not been processed.

While bitter fighting continued inside Frankfurt, the Third army's Sixth armored division cleared four of the city's suburbs, including Offenbach, population 80,000, and seized the great Frankfurt airfield, second largest in Germany. The Germans said "violent fighting" was going on in the northern suburbs of Mannheim, at the southern end of the Seventh army's Rhine bridgehead.

A delayed dispatch disclosed that 290 wounded American prisoners of war were liberated when the Seventh army captured Heppenheim inside its Rhine bridgehead. They were found in a hospital with 800 other Allied prisoners.

They had been badly fed, and although they had been there for only a few weeks they had lost from 10 to 100 pounds, said Lew Hawkins of the Associated Press. Censorship would not permit correspondents to send the names of the rescued men.

At least three Seventh army striking forces were across the principal Frankfurt-Darmstadt-Heidelberg traffic artery and a fourth was smashing into Vierrenheim to widen the arc around Mannheim. Some of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's units had reached points more than 35 miles east of the Rhine and had made contact with the Third army along the Main river south of Aschaffenburg.

Seventh army troops still were cleaning up scattered pockets of Nazis west of the Rhine. One group of 30 Germans attacked an ordnance unit 12 miles west of the river yesterday in hopes of seizing some jeeps. Mechanics grabbed weapons, killed seven and captured 20.

were overrun 69 miles from the Rhine, but a news blackout cloaked further movements of the charging columns.

LONG

Paris, March 28 (AP)—The Germans declared tonight that American 3d Army tanks had reached the heart of the Reich, 213 miles from Berlin. At the same time, the German armies north of the Ruhr broke into wild retreat before the massed might of Allied armor and infantry.

The German disintegration increased as four powerful Allied armies broke clear through collapsed defenses at points 145 miles inside the Reich.

The 4th Armored Division—the mystery spearhead of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army—was definitely on the loose well beyond Aschaffenburg, 22 miles southeast of falling Frankfurt-on-the-Main. It presumably was in or through the Spessart Hills, 100-odd miles from Czechoslovakia.

Yank Armor Reported 5 Miles Past Gemuenden

The German communiqué said the 4th Armored got into Gemuenden, 218 miles from Berlin, and the Berlin radio said it had driven 5 miles farther northeast, within 213 of the capital. Gemuenden is 145 miles inside the Reich.

Third Army troops have seized Wiesbaden and sped on within 7 miles of a junction with the 1st Army north of the Main River, a field dispatch said. Wiesbaden was taken by troops that threw a new bridgehead across the Rhine. The crossing of the Main, a considerable distance away, was made against but little resistance.

The exact forward locations of the United States 3d and 1st and British 2d armies were all masked in a news blackout, however, to keep the Nazis confused.

The 1st Army was 120 miles inside central Germany, 225 miles from Berlin, at last reports. Indications were that it really was appreciably farther.

furt.

Frankfurt's Suburbs Being Mopped Up

Frankfurt itself was doomed. Two 3d Army divisions mopped up the southern suburbs and the western part of the city, a major railroad center and one of Hitler's most important arsenals.

DAY

"Military disaster has overtaken the German army," Correspondent William Frye reported from British headquarters in the flat tank country leading to the north gate of Berlin.

British units pushed within half a mile of Borken and 2 of Bocholt. Raesfeld was within sight. Hamm, the railroad center where the Ruhr Valley ends in the east, was less than 35 miles away.

Field Marshal Montgomery's armored breakthrough between Bocholt and Dorsten started off with a 7-mile sprint toward Muenster, capital of Westphalia, before censors clamped down.

British Believed Striking For Ems River

How far the British were was anybody's guess, but it seemed clear that they were through the crust of Nazi defenses and out in the open on the Westphalian flatlands in a rush for the River Ems.

The American 9th Army bypassed Duisburg after clearing its northern suburbs and veered sharply southeast toward Essen, the Ruhr's largest city. The 9th was 7 miles from the Krupp works at Essen. It captured Hamborn, site of one of the Fritz Thyssen steel works, in the north block area of Duisburg.

The 35th Infantry, capturing Holten, also drove close to one of Germany's largest synthetic oil plants.

British Tanks Make Breakthrough

South of Holten, Sterkrade has been taken.

On the 9th Army's left flank British tanks, carrying [illegible] American airborne troops, pushed forward in a breakthrough.

The entire area between Bocholt and the Lippe River, a distance of 12 miles, was a wide gap opening the roads to Berlin.

Canadians got into the important Rhine bastion of Emmerich in hard fighting. The city was reported to have broken out in a rash of white flags.

Prisoners taken yesterday included these: 1st Army, 6,697; 3d Army, 4,312; 7th Army, 2,500, and 9th Army, 714. The British had not reported.

Fighting In Mannheim's Suburbs

Seventh Army troops fought in the suburbs of Mannheim, great chemical center of 283,801, opposite captured Ludwigshafen on the Rhine.

First Army troops were either in or within sight of Giessen, an important traffic center 225 miles southwest of Berlin, after sensational overnight advances.

The weather for the second day restricted tactical air support, but more than 400 American heavy bombers dealt Berlin a fierce blow. Road jams east of virtually captured Dorsten were strafed.

3 Armies Form Solid Front

The 7th Army drove 32 miles beyond the Rhine, reached the River Main and formed with the 3d and 1st armies a solid front in the tank country of inner Germany.

The 7th cut the Frankfurt-Heidelberg highway in four places and captured scores of towns.

One force smashed into Virenheim, 10 miles northwest of Heidelberg and 5 northeast of Mannheim.

Grosumstadt, 12 miles east of Darmstadt, was taken by the force that reached the Main south of Aschaffenburg.

Other Towns Captured

The 7th Army advance was declared officially to be increasing in speed against decreased resistance. Among the larger towns captured were Zwingenburg, Bensheim, Heppenheim, Laudenbach, Hemsbach and Sulzbach. Roadblocks and snipers were the chief obstacles. The Germans appeared to be concerned over the threat to the Neckar Valley.

The 1st Army tank and infantry forces that reached the Giessen area were 60-odd miles beyond the Nazis' shattered Rhine Line.

3d Seizes Much Booty

The 3d Army had captured Frankfurt's airport, second largest in Germany. This once was a Zeppelin base. Its captors found it ringed with the wrecks of 50 burned Nazi planes.

Two thirds of Hanau, on the Main 10 miles east, was captured; mopping up continued in Aschaffenburg.

The 1st Army tank force, the greatest ever unleashed in the West, drove another 8 miles beyond Wetzlar during the night. Motorized infantry was closing up swiftly behind the armor, mopping up bypassed pockets on the way.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's troops, making one of the greatest dashes of the war over the plains of central Germany, were red-eyed for lack of sleep.

The British 2d Army in the Westphalian plain north of the invaded Ruhr appeared to have achieved another breakthrough of collapsed German defenses. The British fought into the important road center of Dorsten, 16 miles east of the Rhine city of Wesel, and into Isselburg near Holland, 10 miles east of Emmerich. Canadians got within 2½ miles of Emmerich on the Rhine, capturing Vrasselt.

The American 9th Army captured the large Ruhr town of Holten and its Ruhrchemie synthetic oil plant. It took Wehofen, northern suburb of Duisburg, and was described in a front-line dispatch as beginning the "dirty job of cleaning up the Ruhr Valley, Hitler's greatest arsenal, and its 5,000,000 civilians."

7th Deepens Bridgehead

The latest of General Eisenhower's nine armies to cross the Rhine, the American 7th, deepened its bridgehead north of besieged and outflanked Mannheim to 10 miles on a 19-mile front.

On the Eastern front, the Russians smote the foe in massed power, forming a giant vise with General Eisenhower's forces on the last land held by Hitler—an area shrunken from the confines of most of continental Europe between the Pyrennes and the Volga.

The Ruhr itself was cracked upon by the 9th Army, outflanked entirely on the south by the 1st and partly outflanked in the north by the British.

1st And 3d Link Up

The 1st and 3d armies were racing neck and neck through middle Germany, but the 3d's more sensational gains were not disclosed. These two superb armies of General Bradley linked up behind the Rhine city of Coblenz after capturing the imposing fortress of Ehrenbreitstein.

Another linkup at Frankfurt seemed imminent. Patton's 6th Armored Division had cleaned out four of the Frankfurt suburbs, including Offenbach, itself a city of 80,000 and the most important industrial center in Hesse. Third Army infantry fought block by block in Frankfurt, crossing the Main River on a damaged railroad bridge.

Nazis Declare Patton 145 Miles In; Only 213 From Berlin

MAR 29 19

With the U.S. 1st Army, March 28 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's far-ranging tank columns were racing eastward today on clear roads, with the enemy unable to put up even token resistance.

Giessen, 225 miles from Berlin, and Bellnhausen

14,000 More German Troops Surrender

At least 14,000 more Germans surrendered as American and British tanks raced through roadside towns without defenses and beyond bewildered Nazi civilians littering the landscape with white flags.

Flyers back from raids in the north, where the bomb-line sometimes had to be advanced every twenty minutes, said the Germans appeared to be in rout before a British armored breakthrough toward the Westphalian capital of Muenster, 30 miles away at last reports.

The American 1st, 3d and 7th armies united in a solid front 80 miles wide from besieged Mannheim to east of Bonn. The 7th Army had raced 32 miles east of the Rhine to join the 3d on the Main River below Aschaffenburg, which 3d Army troops were mopping up southeast of Frank-

"A news blackout shrouded the progress of the 1st Army's advance columns," Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported in telling of the 8-mile gain beyond Wetzlar. This suggested that the 1st Army was much closer to Berlin than even the 225 miles from the Giessen area.

At Weilburg, infantry crossed the Lahn River and established another bridgehead. The river was solidly held almost to Wetzlar and German resistance was "feeble," Whitehead said. Besides the 6,500 prisoners counted yesterday, hundreds more Germans were streaming to the rear in columns of trucks that had delivered supplies forward to the weary tankmen.

Herborn Entered

One 1st Army column lanced into Herborn, a road center northwest of Wetzlar, and another steel spearhead veered southeast from Limburg down a superhighway to within a dozen miles or less of Frankfurt.

The 35th Division joined the American 9th Army's 30th and 79th divisions in attacks across the Rhine.

"Mopping up in the Ruhr is complicated by the millions of civilians who will have to be fed," Associated Press Correspondent Robert Eunson reported.

Average gains by the British 2d Army of Lieutenant General Sir Miles C. Dempsey were 7 miles eastward and 4 to the north. Demolitions and explosions marked the German retreat routes.

400 FLYING FORTS HIT BERLIN AREA

New Evacuation Plans Announced by Germans for Berlin Residents.

CHAMBERLIN

LONDON, March 28—(AP) Four hundred U. S. Flying Fortresses struck enemy armament plants in Berlin today in the fifth major daylight assault this year on the gutted Reich citadel. All "superfluous" residents were ordered by the Germans to flee the dying Nazi capital.

The new evacuation plans were broadcast to Berliners by the German radio after the attack, which boosted the total bomb weight hurled on the capital since the start of the war to almost 75,000 tons—more than the Germans have dropped on the whole of England.

The plans indicated that women and children would leave Berlin while able-bodied men remained to work in war plants and built barricades for a last-ditch stand as the Russians close in from the east and American and British columns plunge on from the west.

While the Berlin raid was in progress, a force of about 500 other British-based American planes raided Hannover.

Targets in the Berlin area included plants in the western Spandau district manufacturing Panther tanks, armored cars and trucks, and at Falkensee, 15 miles northwest of the heart of Berlin.

Flak Still Heavy

Most of the bombing at both Berlin and Hannover was done by instrument as heavy clouds obscured the targets. Heavy anti-aircraft fire was encountered over Berlin.

"Germany may have lost the war, but those flak gunners don't know it," one crewman commented.

More than 350 Mustang fighters accompanied the bomber fleets, but found no Nazi interceptors along the routes.

The new Berlin evacuation measure, the German radio said, was taken in view of "the continued air terror against Berlin." All persons not needed in the capital, especially women and children, are to be taken to an area "not endangered from the air," although what area of the Reich this might be was not stated.

Hit Oil Stores

U. S. Ninth Air force bombers based on the continent ranged deep into Germany and blasted oil stores. One group struck at Neuenheese, southeast of Paderborn, where clouds prevented visual bombing but columns of black smoke streamed through the overcast at 8,000 feet within a few minutes after the bombs were dropped. Another attack was directed at Erbach, east of Wuerzburg.

Fighter-bombers supporting ground troops were hampered by weather, but reported attacks on a group of German vehicles moving eastward near Wuppertal in which 46 of the vehicles were smashed by rockets.

Ninth air force fighter bombers destroyed 314 out of 800 German vehicles they spotted fleeing eastward from Giessen, and reported a total of 1,727 vehicles of all types shot up during the day for a loss of six planes. Altogether, continent-based planes made more than 2,300 flights despite unfavorable weather.

Heavy bomber loss tabulations were incomplete.

900 Forts Rip Berlin, Hannover War Plants

JAMES SAH

London, March 28 (AP)—More than 400 United States Flying Fortresses attacked war plants today in Berlin—where new orders for evacuation of women, children and all unneeded persons were issued—while more than 500 other Fortresses hammered similar targets in Hannover.

There was heavy anti-aircraft fire over the Reich capital, where targets included plants making Panther tanks, armored cars and trucks in the Spandau and Falkensee districts, 8 and 15 miles west and northwest of the heart of Berlin.

Escorted By Mustangs

The bombers were escorted by 350 Mustang fighters.

Light and medium bombers of the United States 9th Air Force based on the continent took up the task of blasting German oil stores—a task largely reserved heretofore to the heavy strategic bombers.

One mission went to Neuenheerse, southeast of Paderborn, where reconnaissance showed twelve large tanks above ground protected by concrete blast walls.

Erbach Also Attacked

Other large-scale attacks were made on oil storage centers at Erbach, east of Wursburg.

The German news agency DNB made the announcement that steps would be taken to remove all unessential citizens from Berlin, which also underwent its 36th consecutive RAF Mosquito raid last night.

Similar plans have been reported by the Japanese for Tokyo and thus Allied air power was forcing further emergency measures in the last two remaining major Axis capitals.

Fifth Big Day Raid

Today's raid was the fifth major daylight assault of the year on Berlin.

The last previous United States 8th Air Force attack on Berlin was a record 3,000-ton assault by 1,300 bombers March 18, but only last Saturday 500 United States 15th Air Force Fortresses smashed at the capital in the longest northern flight from their bases in Italy.

In addition to hitting Berlin proper five times since the first of the year, the American heavy bombers also attacked the German army command headquarters at Zossen, practically a Berlin suburb, in a daylight raid March 15.

U.S. Flyers Maul Land Convoys

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Two large German motor convoys, totaling more than 800 vehicles loaded with soldiers, were mauled today by United States 9th Air Force fighter-bombers which caught them fleeing eastward from Giessen. At least 314 buses, trucks and staff cars were listed as destroyed and seventy-two damaged, as 250 planes dumped bombs on them and then raked the columns with machine-gun fire.

PLANES LAUNCHED FROM SMALL SHIPS

LONDON, March 28.—(AP) During the most critical period in the battle of the Atlantic a number of British merchant ships were equipped with "postage stamps" landing decks enabling them to carry their own aircraft protection without sacrificing cargo tonnage, the admiralty disclosed tonight.

The vessels, grain-type freighters requiring a minimum amount of alteration, were forerunners of the navy's "Woolworth carriers" now used for escorting ocean convoys. They were operated by the Merchant Navy and carried fleet air arm pilots.

"In some cases the pilots had a flat space of only about 400 feet from which to take off and land," the admiralty announcement said. "Considering the alarming deck movement frequently encountered in the Atlantic, this was no small feat."

NEW TYPE ROCKETS FIRED BY U.S. PLANES

LONDON, March 28—(AP) New five-inch high velocity rockets which can pierce thick armor of the Nazis' biggest tanks as well as heavy reinforced concrete now are being fired by U. S. Ninth Airforce Thunderbolts, it was revealed today.

Bigger and more deadly than the rockets previously launched by American planes, the new projectiles are six feet long and weigh about 140 pounds. They are aimed with the conventional gunsights from launchers under the wings. They can be fired singly or in salvoes and are more accurate than bombs.

The Ninth Airforce said the Thunderbolts can carry the rockets as well as a full load of ammunition and bombs.

McCulloch Heads 8th Air Force Service Post

London, March 28 (AP)—Col. John H. McCulloch of Louisville, Ky., assumed command of the 8th Air Force Service Command today, succeeding Col. James F. Early, of Worcester, Mass., who has returned to another assignment in the United States.

The command is based in England, but its repair and maintenance and salvage operations also are carried out at advance depots in France, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg and Germany.

Nazi Asks 'Faith' To Back Fight

London, March 28 (AP)—A German radio propagandist declared today that "iron discipline in the army and courts-martial certainly are not enough to make the people continue the fight of their own accord with bare courage."

"Faith and conviction also are needed," said the commentator, George Schroeder.

The German people can scarcely be blamed for asking: "How is the war possibly to be won?" said Schroeder, adding that for the present Nazi propagandists had only one theme, that "a lost peace is worse than war."

The Counterattack—When?

He and his associates were reported facing "the most difficult task of trying to answer the people's most insistent question: When will the German counteroffensive in the East promised by Guderian and Goebbels three weeks ago begin?"

"There is no hope that the German high command's silence on this question will be broken," Schroeder said. "This silence certainly is a big handicap for the German propaganda machine."

The Paris radio meanwhile quoted Swiss reports that Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, after two days of deliberation, had turned down Hitler's request to take command of German armies in the West, saying there was no chance of stopping the new Allied offensive.

Frankfurt Radio

A German home broadcast indicated Americans might have seized the Frankfurt radio.

"An enemy-controlled radio station is broadcasting false news on the wave length of the Frankfurt radio to spread unrest and confusion among the German civilian population near the front," it said. "These enemy reports sometimes are made under the names of leading Frankfurt personalities to heighten the effect."

GERMANS CONCEDE, THEN DENY DEFEAT

One Broadcast Admits End, Others Claim Repulses—Allies' Pity Is Sought

KASTSCHKE

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, March 28 — German broadcasters virtually admitted today that their cause was lost, then shifted the propaganda line abruptly tonight and contended: "German resistance all along the Western Front is stiffening."

The Allies' front dispatches reported the drives from the west continuing generally deeper into Germany although much of the front was under a security blackout. The Germans, possibly fishing for information, claimed that their defense was growing more successful.

The German broadcasters asserted that an American tank force had been "encircled and completely annihilated" at Gemuenden, dwelt upon the bitter house-to-house fighting in Frankfurt On Main, and said the British forces on the lower Rhine had been held on both sides of the Wesel Forest.

In sharp contrast, an earlier German broadcast appealed directly to the Allied soldiers for sympathy, declaring "the German people can be reproached for many things, but they would be as glad as you if the war were to end soon."

"Final Victory Yours"

"Every day it looks more and more as if final victory will be yours," said the commentator, who identified himself simply as "Hans."

He spoke over the Nazis' main front-line propaganda station at Arnhem.

"I just can imagine how pleased you are feeling now that you at last are in the country you have conquered and about whose inhabitants you have heard such dreadful things," he said.

"I can imagine what it feels like to hear day after day of the victories of one's comrades . . . but now is the time to ignore all you have been told about the German people and judge for yourself. Ask yourself if you have found the Germans self-satisfied, overbearing, fanatical, heartless and brutal."

Gestapo/At Last Helpless

Another Nazi top-flight propagandist—George Schroeder, chief correspondent for the Transocean agency—acknowledged that even Heinrich Himmler's dreaded Gestapo was not enough now to make the German people want to fight on.

"Iron discipline," he said, "certainly is not enough to make the people continue the battle. . . Faith and conviction also are needed."

Schroeder said the "most difficult task was trying to answer the people's most persistent question: When will the German counteroffensive in the east promised by Goebbels three weeks ago begin?"

"There is no hope that the German high command's silence on this question will be broken," he said.

Fresh Pinch In Food

With confusion spreading throughout the Reich as Allied armies gobbled up more and more German soil and warplanes battered the transport system, a further restriction in food rationing was reported in a Berlin dispatch to the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet.

The dispatch said there was no longer any fixed food obtainable for the greater part of the ration coupons and all distribution now was based on the amount of different supplies available in local areas.

Berlin To Be Cleared

New plans for the further evacuation of bomb-battered Berlin were announced by the German radio, indicating that all women and children would be cleared from the capital while able-bodied men will remain for a last-ditch stand.

An urgent Berlin broadcast told the Germans that "an enemy-controlled radio station is broadcasting false news on the wave length of the Frankfurt radio to spread unrest and confusion among the German civilian population near the front."

Reports from Stockholm that Hitler's ace trade negotiator, Karl Schnurre, was in Sweden with peace feelers were denounced as "lies" by the German Foreign Office.

Peace Negotiations Denied

The German Foreign Office declared: "Schnurre often travels to Stockholm to discuss German-Swedish trade relations. This is also the reason for his present visit. It has nothing to do with peace feelers."

In Stockholm a Swedish official said Schnurre had nothing to negotiate so far as Sweden was concerned.

Swedish officials said that neutral country was preparing for a heavy flow of German deserters and Danish and Norwegian Nazis, and that the justice department was seeking parliamentary tightening of regulations governing undesirable refugees.

Nazis To Quit Nuernberg

Sweden has made it plain that "war criminals" could not expect refuge there.

Another report from Stockholm quoted the anti-Nazi Free German press agency as saying that Himmler had ordered the evacuation of Nuernberg, Nazi party shrine, and the removal of all party records to Berchtesgaden.

GREAT TANK DRIVE OVERWHELMING FOE

Germans Are Unable to Meet First Army With Even Token Resistance—Fliers Help

WHITEHEAD

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY, March 28—Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' far-ranging tank columns were racing eastward today on clear roads, with the enemy unable even to challenge the advances with token resistance.

Giessen, 2[illegible] from Berlin, and Bellnhausen were overrun sixty-nine miles from the Rhine, but a news blackout cloaked movements of the charging columns making swift progress. Bellnhausen is 221 miles from Berlin.

Under censorship restrictions correspondents are able to tell only half the story of the First Army's magnificent advance since it broke out of the bridgehead at dawn Sunday. However, even news of any spectacular gains deep into the heart of Germany would be withheld from the people at home until such time as the Army decides to lift the secrecy on movements of the columns.

The theory behind this is that with the break-through and demoralization of the enemy the Nazis themselves do not know where our spearheading elements are and that the locations must be kept from them.

Fighter pilots ranging out in front of the roaring columns searching for the enemy reported they could find only scattered targets in the path of the advance. There were no signs of any German movements of troops coming up to meet this powerful American threat to Berlin.

Advance tanks reported there were no road blocks or mines to slow their sweep, and infantry was moving up behind as fast as available transport could bring them forward. But there were not enough vehicles to move an entire army at once, and most infantry men were heading east as fast as they could march along the dusty roads.

The longest advance that correspondents were able to report officially for the day was a twenty-mile jump by one column north of Giessen to Bellnhausen, on the Lahn River. But this does not tell the story, for the begrimed, tired and red-eyed tankmen of the First Army are making one of the greatest armored marches of all time.

Miles behind the leading tanks, doughboys of the Ninth, Second and Ninety-ninth Infantry Divisions mopped up isolated, bewildered resistance left in a few small towns.

To speed up Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's advance the First Army sent one armored column driving to the southeast to close the gap between the two armies.

Credit to the Air Forces

A share in the success of the First Army's magnificent drive goes to the Tactical Air Force, which for days has been pounding the enemy's rail lines, marshaling yards and highways to isolate the area and prevent the Germans from bringing up heavy reinforcements.

"We never succeeded in cutting the rail lines and sealing off the area west of the Rhine," an air officer said, "but we think air interdiction in this operation succeeded."

Infantry units moved up rapidly behind the armored forces to wipe out bypassed pockets of German resistance.

In the center of the dust-grimed First Army front an armored force thrust another eight miles beyond Wetzlar to a point sixty miles east of the Rhine. At Weilburg infantrymen crossed the Lahn River and established another bridgehead.

This morning General Hodges' troops had a solid hold on the Lahn's north banks from the Rhine almost to Wetzlar as doughboys cleaned out pockets of feeble enemy resistance passed in the rush of the American attack.

More than 6,500 prisoners passed through the cages yesterday and hundreds of others were streaming to the rear today. They passed roaring columns of trucks carrying food, gasoline and ammunition forward to tankmen.

Allied Drive in Germany Leaves News Men Behind

WHITEHEAD

Advance Beyond Rhine a Dark, and Censored Secret

WITH UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY, March 28 (AP).—The war has run off and left the "front-line" correspondents.

Nobody knows just where the front is, and trying to get up forward to get news from spearhead elements is giving newsmen a worse beating than they took during the dash across France last summer.

The surging attack has left the press camp far in the rear, and as a base of operations it now is almost useless, except for daily briefings by a staff officer in the morning and late afternoons, meals and a place to sleep.

But no correspondent can get too far away from the censorship and communications center, so the daily problem is to get as much news as possible, and then to get back and get it sent.

Only Small-Arms Fire Resists New Crossing

WHITEHEAD

U.S. 3d Army, Germany, March 28 (AP)—The exact location of the new crossing of the Rhine by the 3d Army cannot be told because of the security blackout. The bridgehead, however, is between the one established earlier east of Boppard, 10 miles south of Coblenz, and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's first foothold east of the Rhine below Mainz.

The new crossing was made early this morning against scattered opposition, mostly from small arms. Two small counterattacks were defeated without loss of ground.

Crossings east of Boppard now are consolidated into a single bridgehead 19 miles wide and 17 miles deep at its greatest penetration.

Spearheads Advance

[The report does not take into account Patton's armored spearheads last reported 22 miles southeast of Frankfurt at Aschaffenburg, some 40 miles beyond the Rhine.]

The 87th (Golden Acorn) Division—boys from Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, New York and New Jersey—advanced up to 7 miles on a 4-mile front and entered Katzenelnbogen, 17 miles east of the old walled Rhine town of Boppard.

The division cleared eight small towns, all 10 to 18 miles southeast of Coblenz, and occupied 9 miles of the south bank of the Lahn River from the Rhine eastward.

Bad Schwalbach Entered

Other 3d Army infantry stabbed 5½ miles east, entering the large town of Bad Schwalbach, 11 miles northwest of Mainz and 8 northwest of Weisbaden. Another column pushed 5 miles east, reaching the Presberg area, 6 miles north of Bingen at the bend of the Rhine.

Units of the 4th Armored Division reached points 2 miles north of Hanau and north of the Main River.

Between Frankfurt and Hanau, the 90th Division crossed the Main and advanced 3 miles north.

First In Frankfurt

K Company of the 11th Regiment, led by Lieut. Irven Jacobs, was the first of the 5th Division to enter Frankfurt, just as it was the first of the 3d Army units to cross the Rhine.

Seligenstadt, 5 miles south of Hanau, was captured.

The Germans fired more than 500 rounds of artillery onto the captured and damaged railroad bridge in Frankfurt in the hour before noon yesterday.

Third Army gunners brought down their one thousandeth plane, a lone aircraft flying east of the Rhine.

Former Zeppelin Base Taken

WITH U. S. 3RD ARMY IN GERMANY, March 28 (AP).—Germany's second largest airport, the former Zeppelin base five miles south of Frankfurt, is in American hands. Units of the 6th Armored Division, which captured the field, found it ringed with skeletons of fifty burned Nazi planes.

3d, 45th Divisions Lead Jump

WITH THE UNITED STATES SIXTH ARMY GROUP, March 28 (AP)—The famed Third Infantry and the Forty-fifth (Thunderbird) Infantry Division spearheaded the American Seventh Army's jump across the Rhine Sunday, it was disclosed today. The Thunderbird Division is commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert Frederick, formerly head of the American Special Service forces in Italy. The Third is commanded by Maj. Gen. John (Iron Mike) O'Daniel.

Rhine Bridge Record Claimed

With the U.S. 7th Army East of the Rhine, March 28 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Leonard A. Purdue, of Des Moines, Iowa, said today he believed his engineer battalion had set a new record for bridging the Rhine by throwing across 1,000 feet of pontoons that carried tanks in eight hours flat.

290 WOUNDED U.S. PRISONERS FREED BY SEVENTH ARMY

HAWKINS

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY AT HEPPENHEIM, March 27.—(Delayed)—(AP) Two hundred and ninety wounded Americans and 800 other prisoners of war were freed when Seventh Army infantry captured this town today.

All reported they had been very badly fed, most having lost from 10 to 100 pounds, with the average about 35 pounds.

Pathetically thankful, pathetically happy, the men urged that correspondents be permitted to send their names to America, but Supreme Headquarters in Paris declined to waive the rule that such disclosures must be made first to relatives through the War department.

A young American lieutenant, who with a major did medical and surgical work for all the American prisoners, said the daily diet was about 700 calories, in contrast with the American military hospital allotment of 3,500 to 4,000 calories for wounded men.

"That 700 calories is a slow-starvation diet even for a well man, and for a wounded man it makes it next to impossible to recover fully," he said.

"We protested repeatedly to the German commandant but he said he just couldn't get any more food—which wasn't true.

"I actually had one patient whose weight went down from 280 to 180 pounds.

Never Heard of Penicillin

"We were fairdly well supplied with surgical instruments and drugs, including sulfa, but we had no plasma or blood for transfusions, and the Germans had never heard of penicillin.

"It seems almost a miracle that we had only ten deaths in two months, but we would have had even fewer if there had been sufficient food."

Between ravenous bites of "K" rations, one private told this story of three and one-half months of starvation which was basically the story of them all:

"The main part of our food was one loaf of bread a day for ten men. For breakfast we had ersatz coffee, without sugar or milk, of course. For dinner we had soup made of potato peelings. That's just what it was. The damned Germans ate the potatoes and used the peelings for soup for us.

"At night we had more thin soup, sometimes with a small piece of potato in it, but never any meat or vegetables.

"Once every two weeks we got a piece of cheese about one-quarter of an inch thick and one inch square. That was all.

"We were so weak we had to spend most of our time in bed, even if wounds didn't keep us there. This was particularly true in winter, when there was no heat and not enough blankets.

"I weighed 165 pounds when captured in the Ardennes in December. Now I weigh 135."

Filth was another ordeal. Each man got a "guest-size" piece of poor soap once a month. It apparently contained no fat, for it would not lather at all. Bedclothing was changed once a month, and there was one clean towel for each two men every two weeks.

Bitter Over Treatment

These men said the Americans received no Red Cross packages, although some French, Serbian and Moroccan prisoners received some packages. These sold some of their American cigarettes to the Americans for the equivalent of $40 a package.

Many of the Americans were bitter about this, saying, "those—used to get good American food and walk along the corridor, waving a piece of cheese or candy just to tantalize us.

"The French and Serbs were better treated all around than we were. They got better food, clean sheets, oftener, and so forth."

The Americans blamed this discrimination on the commandant, a German major, a man of about 40, who was captured hiding in the hospital basement.

"He just didn't like Americans," one prisoner said.

However, he was extremely servile when captured. Most of the German staff had left two days ago, confirming the Americans' belief that American forces were near. When the first G.I. came along this morning, the whole hospital went mad with joy.

U.S. Soldiers Take Over In Suburbs Of Duisburg

Near Duisburg, Germany, March 28 (AP)—About 100,000 residents of suburbs of Duisburg surrendered their towns to seven American soldiers today and declared that the German Army had evacuated the city itself and that the remaining Volkssturm defenders had thrown down their arms and were ready to quit.

The United States 9th Army is still north of the Rhine-Herne Canal, outside Duisburg, so that the actual situation inside Duisburg remains obscure.

Second Lieutenant Frank W. Pew, 21, Framingham, Mass., said that he and six men were on the west bank of the Rhine at the town of Homberg this morning they saw white flags waving in the opposite bank.

Pistols Put Away

They rowed across to see what was going on.

"The Jerries started to get impatient and began to stamp their feet and yell and wave at us," Pew said. "We only had two pistols in my boat, so we put them away. One Jerry policeman pulled out in a boat to meet us while two others on the bank saluted us and stood at attention.

"One fat character came up and said he was the burgomeister of Ruhrort. He talked to Staff Sergeant Melvin Renner, of Crete, Neb., who speaks German. He told Renner the German Army had cleared out and the civilians wanted to surrender.

"We started walking into the town and soon had about 200 people following us."

Women Kinss Americans

The burgomeister and policemen made speeches on the street corners, telling civilians not to worry, because the war soon would be over, Pew said.

Hundreds of civilian women—young and old—rushed up and hugged and kissed the Americans, he said. An American medical aid man set up a first-aid station and treated several wounded civilians.

Renner and Sergt. Robert Waldo, of Pittsfield, Wis., and Pfc. Walter Graf, Chicago, stayed with Lieutenant Pew, while Staff Sergeant Steve Stepien, Pittsburgh, took the boat to another suburb, where the performance was repeated.

With Stepien were the medic, Private Adrian Huckabot, of Fort Worth, Texas, and Pfc. William Cole, of Apollo, Pa.

The Americans said they roamed the suburban streets for two hours without any trouble.

born, Ruhrchemie and Rurbenzig, as well as synthetic oil plants and a steel helmet factory were captured while the Nazi garrisons defending them hurried to change from their uniforms to civilian clothes.

The thickly populated Ruhr Valley presented the hardest nut this veteran division has been called upon to crack. Sobbing women and children gave field commanders almost as much trouble as the fighting Wehrmacht.

Just Another "Joint"

Flame-throwing British tanks rumbled down Hamborn's cobblestone streets ahead of the 313th Infantry Regiment commanded by Col. Edwin M. Van Bibber, of Bel Air, Md. Opposition was stiff when the Maryland colonel struck at noon, but the Nazis quit after a brief fight and those who didn't surrender or change to civilian clothes fled south across the Duisburg dock area.

The Thyssen steel works at Hamborn were a major factor in Hitler's war machine from the beginning, but tonight its great mills were quiet, and to the American doughboys the plant was just another "joint."

"The souvenirs ain't much good around here," one Yank observed.

At Holten, Col. Warren A. Robinson, Los Angeles, sent his 314th Regiment on to the south, but stiff opposition held them up just after the synthetic oil plant there had been cleared.

Fuel Center Taken

Ruhrchemie, which has been making fuel for Hitler's forces, was taken by a battalion led by Lieut. Col. Dale Hogoboom, of Minot, N.D. His Company G was commanded by Lieut. Paul A. Hurst, St. Joe, Mo., and it captured 120 civilians in the factory area.

The 79th Division now holds the Ruhr Valley south to the Rhein-Herne Canal, including the northern section of Duisburg and some of the docks of that once great German industrial metropolis.

today into the north block area of Duisburg.

The 315th Infantry Regiment, capturing Holten, also drove close to one of Germany's largest synthetic oil plants. South of Holten Sterkrade has been taken.

On the Ninth Army's left flank British tanks, carrying American air-borne troops, pushed forward in a break-through. The entire area between Bocholt and the Lippe River, a distance of twelve miles, was a wide gap opening the roads to Berlin.

Indications on the Ninth Army front are that one of the great tank battles of the Western Front is still to be fought.

3 Big War Factories Taken

IN THE OUTSKIRTS OF DUISBURG with the United States Ninth Army, March 28 (AP)—Three great war production factories of Germany fell today to Maj. Gen. I. T. Wyches' Seventy-ninth Division doughboys, who fought their way among the smokestacks of the Ruhr against self-propelled 88's and German machine-gunners perched in upper-story windows.

The Thyssen steel works at Hamborn, Ruhrchemie and Rurbenzig as well as synthetic oil plants and a steel helmet factory were captured, while the German garrisons defending them hurried to change from their uniforms to civilian clothes.

To Speed Up Patton

U.S. 12th Army Group Headquarters, March 28 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Omar N. MAYOR OF AACHEN IS MURDERED BY NAZI ASSASSINS

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY, March 28.—(AP) Three German parachutists in uniform assassinated Franz Oppenhof, 41, Allied-appointed mayor of Aachen, on Sunday midnight, it was disclosed today.

The assassins shot the burgomeister in gangster fashion and escaped.

Hitler often has threatened retaliation against Germans who cooperate with the Allies, and some persons believed the killing was the first manifestation of this policy. Military intelligence investigators, however, said they had established no motive as yet.

The slaying posed a major problem for Allied authorities, already hard-pressed to find community leaders without the taint of Nazism who can assume posts in the civil government formerly held by Nazis.

Just before his death Oppenhof and his wife had been visiting a neighbor, who told army investigators this story:

The mayor received a telephone call at about 11:30 p. m. from the maid at his home, saying three men were waiting there to see him. He returned to his house, accompanied by the neighbor, and found three men waiting for him on his back porch. They said they were German fliers who had crashed and that they wanted food, shelter and protection. The neighbor said Oppenhof replied he would be obliged to turn them over to U. S. Army authorities.

The neighbor returned to his own house to inform the mayor's wife that he would be delayed and shortly afterward Oppenhof was shot through the temple.

A passing patrolman heard the shot and fired at three fleeing figures, the army was told. Apparently the assailants escaped uninjured.

Allied Mayor In Aachen Is Fatally Shot

WHITEHEAD

With the U.S. 1st Army, March 27 [AP—Delayed]—Franz Oppenhof, 41-year-old burgomeister of Aachen and first mayor appointed by the Allied Military Government in a major German city, was assassinated Sunday night, it was announced today.

Oppenhof was shot through the temple at 11.30 P.M., as he stood on the back porch of his home on the outskirts of the city.

Military intelligence officers investigating the case said the motive had not yet been established, and that it had not yet been established officially whether the mayor was killed by Nazis because he had assumed the post of burgomeister under the Americans.

Neighbor Tells Story

This was the story that was given by Oppenhof's neighbor to the Army:

Oppenhof and his wife were at a neighbor's home when the burgomeister's maid called and said three men were waiting to see him.

The neighbor accompanied the official to his home. A uniformed trio met the Mayor on the back porch and told them they were German Air Force officers whose plane had crashed. They said they wanted food and shelter, and protection from the Americans.

Request Rejected

The Mayor was quoted by his neighbor as replying that he would be obliged to turn the group over to American Army authorities.

The neighbor returned to his own home and informed Oppenhof's wife the Mayor would be delayed. Shortly afterward, Oppenhof was shot.

Prior to the capture of Aachen last Otcober by the 1st Army Oppenhof was an attorney for the archdiocese of the Catholic Church in Aachen and Duesseldorf.

It was known at the time that his appointment by the military government was opposed by trade unionists who had suspected him of Nazi sympathies.

Problem For Allies

But, inasmuch as Oppenhof had chosen to accept the American appointment, many civilian community leaders in Aachen have adopted the view that the assassination was the work of Nazis.

Oppenhof's death thus poses a problem for Allied authorities who are seeking community leaders to take over positions previously held by Nazis.

Hitler Remembered As 'Stupid Soldier'

Huenxe, Germany, March 28 (AP). A 64-year-old former soldier who fought in the same brigade as Hitler in the last war was appointed chief of police in this village today.

The former first sergeant said he remembered Hitler as a rather "stupid soldier" and for that reason he had any faith in Hitler's ability to lead Germany."

Because he was a former Socialist Democrat, the Nazis removed Hitler's former comrade from his job as policeman in 1933 after twenty years' service. He said he never joined the Nazis.

"I was a sergeant in one regiment while Hitler was a runner in another," he said. "The two regiments worked together most of the war and I saw him a lot."

Fatigue Marks Dusty Advance Toward Berlin

Weary Doughboys Sleep on Tank Backs; Unguarded Nazis Stream Other Way

By Hal Boyle

WITH AN AMERICAN ARMORED COLUMN IN GERMANY, March 28 (AP).—Sights and scenes on the road to Berlin:

Worn out by three days and nights of continuous advance, doughboys nod and fall asleep on iron beds—the backs of the tanks they are riding into battle. . . .

German prisoners streaming back guardless with upraised hands are dirty, haggard and hungry. . . . Breakdown of the Nazi supply system left them without food to feed themselves or shells to feed their guns. . . . Yet almost every big forest is packed with stored tons of enemy ammunition and supplies. . . .

Now that spring has returned the odor of death rises from the battlefields. . . . That is the only virtue war has in winter—you can't smell it so much. . . . Dogwood trees and fruit orchards bloom in meadow and hillside, and soldiers look at them and think of home. . . . Dead horses dot the countryside. . . . The troops agree there is no smell worse than a dead horse. . . . If they were killed close to a highway some one douses the carcass with gasoline or oil and sets it afire. . . .

A dust pall cloaks field and forest wherever tank columns churn. . . . It is yellowish-gray dust, and it blankets every man and machine. . . . It cakes in the wrinkles of your face and neck, and collects in small pockets of mud in the corners of your eyes . . . doughboys tie pieces of cloth or rubber over rifle muzzles to keep it out. . . . There has been no dust like this since the chalk-white clouds of Sicily, where walking was choking misery. . . . The troops who fought there believe the Sicilian dust will never settle but still hangs suspended in the air where it was stirred up by American boots. . . .

Rumor spreads that the Germans may try to use gas to halt the armored break-through. . . . Few believe even the Nazis would be that foolhardy, with the war already lost—but each German soldier still carries his gas mask in a long metal cylinder. . . .

Some lines of retreating German motorcars, ack-ack guns and mobile 88s were shot up so recently they are still flaming as the Americans march past. . . . The Germans are falling back so fast they are failing even to blow road bridges.

Beyond Altenkirchen, hundreds of Allied war prisoners were set free by German guards who deserted their posts . . . They walk back to the Rhine . . . one column of French, Polish, Greek and Russian soldiers wave happily at the tanks and give the "V" signal. . . . Behind them walks a German with a small boy. . . . He waves his hand tentatively, too. . . . He's ready to change bandwagons.

White dish towels, sheets and tablecloths flap from almost every home. . . .

Nazis' Bridge Plot Foiled

At a Rhine River Bridgehead, March 18 [AP—Delayed by Censor]. Four German swimmers in waterproof suits and their leader, an SS lieutenant, were captured during an unsuccessful attempt last night to blow up some American bridges across the Rhine in the Remagen sector.

Each had time charges of explosives set to go off at 1 A.M.

Doughboys Of 79th Division Capture Thyssen Steel Works

EUNSON

In the Outskirts of Duisburg with 9th Army, March 28 (AP)—Three great war production factories of Germany fell today to Maj. Gen. I. T. Wyches's 79th Division doughboys who fought their way among the smokestacks of the Ruhr against self-propelled 88's and Nazi machine-gunners perched in upper-story windows.

The Thyssen steel works at Hamborn, Ruhrchemie and Rurbenzig as well as synthetic oil plants and a steel helmet factory were captured while the German garrisons defending them hurried to change from their uniforms to civilian clothes.

The thickly populated Ruhr Valley presented the hardest nut this veteran division has been called upon to crack. Sobbing women and children gave field commanders almost as much trouble as the fighting Wehrmacht.

Flame-throwing British tanks rumbled down Hamborn's cobblestone streets ahead of the 313th Infantry Regiment, commanded by Col. Edwin M. Van Bibber of Bel Air, Md. Opposition was stiff when the Maryland colonel struck at noon, but the Germans quit after a brief fight and those who did not surrender or change to civilian clothes fled south across the Duisburg dock area.

The Thyssen steel works at Hamborn were a major factor in Hitler's war machine from the beginning, but tonight its great mills were quiet and to the American doughboys the plant was just another "joint."

The Seventy-ninth Division now holds the Ruhr Valley south to the Rhein-Herne Canal, including the northern section of Duisburg and some of the docks of that once great German industrial metropolis.

American troops on the east bank of the Rhine caught the Germans and their raftlike charges in the glare of searchlights and opened up with machine guns.

One charge was exploded in the river and the others were upset. The German officer and one wounded man were captured by Lieut. Kenneth Farrens, Cheyenne, Wyo. The other three were picked up on the west bank.

The men had been trained at a special school for water demolition. The party had set out from Hammerstein, eight miles above the wrecked Ludendorff span, at 9 P.M.

British General, Nazi Switch Jobs

Limburg, Germany, March 28 (AP). An ailing British major general, a prisoner since the fall of France, took command of a German hospital center here as spearheads of the American 9th Armored Division drove into this old cathedral town this week.

"You will be commandant here when the Americans arrive," a German colonel told Maj. Gen. Victor M. Fortune, former commander of the 51st Highland Division.

From a hospital window the Nazi colonel and British officer watched together. As the first tanks rolled into view down the autobahn from Cologne, the two men—their roles of captor and captive now reversed—walked into the yard holding a white tablecloth between them. The first American soldier to reach the former British commander was Capt. Hal J. Blue, of New York city.

Freed from Limburg also were approximately 2,500 Allied soldiers, including more than 2,000 Russians, 116 British and Americans, 85 French and 40 East Indians.

Bombers Wipe Out City

On March 19 Allied bombers struck. They came in waves, and scores of bombs whistled down.

When the flames flew away Altenkirchen and the headquarters for one German army had been wiped out. As a human community the village has almost ceased to exist.

Future air marshals can cite Altenkirchen as a perfect example of precision bombing. I have seen many examples of concentrated bombing in two and one half years in the war zones, but none where so many bombs fell with so little waste in so small a target area.

Important Road Hub

Altenkirchen is an important road hub and its narrow streets were perfect military objectives for warplanes seeking to choke them with the debris of German homes so that Nazi army vehicles could not retreat through them to the safety of inner Germany.

Before army engineers bulldozed the rubble aside the streets were impassable. So great was the destruction that even now only narrow lanes have been cleared wide enough to let Allied armor sweep through on the spectacular advance from the Rhine.

Passover At Aachen, First Time Since 1938

Advanced Headquarters U.S. 9th Air Force, March 28 (AP)—For the first time since 1938, there was a public observance of the Passover at Aachen today.

Jewish-American soldiers and a handful of German Jews assembled in a partially destroyed barn for the service. The GI's, with battle equipment, sat at tables to receive the matzos and consecrated wine.

The barn was the most habitable place for the service that could be found in battered Aachen. German civilians, long indoctrinated with anti-Semitism, watched impassively as the Jews gathered. The service was conducted by Capt. Robert S. Marcus, New York, 9th Tactical Air Force chaplain.

Gen. Clark Tells Patriots To Be Ready To Help Allies

HEINZERLING

Rome, March 28 (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark, indicating that large-scale Allied action on the stalemated Italian battlefront was in prospect, today ordered patriots in northern Italy to be ready at a "moment's notice" to aid his armies.

The patriots "will be called upon to be of specific assistance to my armies shortly," the commander of the Allied 15th Army group said.

New Recruits Banned

The Allied commander advised patriots not to take on new recruits because, he said, many Italians "will try to join the winning side with suddenly acquired enthusiasm" when the end approaches.

Clark hinted at ideological differences among the patriots in northern Italy, urging that there be "no political discord."

Clark, in concluding, told the patriots that "more detailed instructions will follow in due time."

Patrol Clashes Only

As Clark broadcast his message, the long Italian front was quiet except for a few patrol clashes.

Patriots in the Brenner Pass and along the rail lines north of Bologna leading to the pass were urged to prepare immediately for sabotaging the German escape routes.

Italian Assembly Created

Rome, March 28 (AP)—The Cabinet of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi today created a consultative assembly to act in an advisory capacity until all Italy is liberated and a permanent form of government can be established.

The assembly will comprise appointees of the major political parties, anti-Fascist former Deputies and representatives of labor syndicates and cultural institutions, including a number of recently repatriated Italians.

Italy Patriots Told To Stand By

HEINZERLING

Rome, March 28 (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark, the Allied commander in Italy, declared today that a German retreat northward was inevitable "sooner or later" and ordered Patriots to stand by to strike at a moment's notice to hamper the withdrawal.

He said the Patriots "will be called upon to be of specific assistance to my armies shortly" and that a large-scale action by the Allied forces was in prospect.

"The Germans inevitably will retreat sooner or later, leaving Fascist troops to cover their rear," Clark said.

Urged To Prepare

Patriots on escape routes north from Bologna to the Brenner Pass and along railroads leading to the Alpine passes should prepare now for their job of hampering the withdrawal, Clark added.

He advised them not to take on new recruits because of many Italians who "will try to join the winning side with suddenly acquired enthusiasm" as the end approaches. He urged, rather, that the Patriots raise the quality of their formations.

Clark asserted that when the German retreat came "the order to those of you who are in areas of opportunity will be to harry their retreat by interrupting communications and by killing Germans."

More Arms Promised

He added:

"That time is not yet. But it is certain that Patriots in the central Apennines area will be called upon to be of specific assistance to my armies shortly. They already are well armed and more help will come to them."

The entire Italian front was quiet as Clark broadcast his message. Only a few patrol skirmishes broke the monotony of a March drizzle.

In the central sector patrols reported that Germans had cleared out of several localities where there had been sharp clashes in recent weeks.

Air Ministry Men Missing On Flight

JONES

London, March 28 (AP) — The famous Liberator Commando, with Commander R. A. Brabner, 33-year-old British under secretary for air and Parliament member, and at least four other Government officials aboard, is missing on a flight across the Atlantic from England to Canada.

Prime Minister Churchill, a frequent passenger aboard the plane on trips to history-making conferences around the world, announced in the House of Commons today that the last contact with the plane was made early Tuesday.

Churchill said weather for the flight had been favorable and that air-sea rescue searchers started a hunt for the plane immediately, but so far had found no trace of the ship.

Commander Brabner was to represent the British Government at exercises ending the British Commonwealth air training program in Canada.

Also in the party were Air Marshal Sir Peter Drummond, air minister for training; Sir John Abraham, deputy under secretary at the Air Ministry; H. A. Jones, Air Ministry director of public relations, and E. Twentyman, British representative in Washington on the interim commission of food and agriculture organization and the international wheat council.

British Official Plane Missing

London, March 28 (AP) — Commander R. A. Brabner, 33-year-old Under Secretary for Air and member of Parliament, together with "other senior Air Ministry officials and public servants" are missing on a plane flight to Canada, Prime Minister Churchill announced today in Commons.

The last contact with their plane was made early Tuesday, he said.

Brabner was to represent the British Government at ceremonies terminating the British Commonwealth air training program in the Dominions.

Others In Group

Among those accompanying Brabner were Air Marshal Sir Peter Drummond, Air Minister for Training; Sir John Abraham, deputy under secretary at the Air Ministry, and H. A. Jones, Air Ministry director of public relations.

Churchill said the weather for the flight had been favorable, and that air-sea rescue searches were started promptly, but so far without trace of the plane.

Food Representative

Also in the party was E. Twentyman, British representative in Washington on the Interim Commission of Food and Agriculture Organization, and of the International Wheat Council.

Churchill disclosed the group was traveling in a Liberator in which he and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden "have made many journeys."

"I cannot think that anything short of the most intense care and effort have been made, but such journeys cannot be wholly free from elements of danger," he added.

Once-Lovely Nazi Town Completely Wiped Out

By Harold V. Boyle

Altenkirchen, Germany, March 27 [AP—Delayed]—If ever there was a hell on Nazi soil it is Altenkirchen.

This once-lovely village 25 miles east of Bonn in hills that fall away from the Rhine paid a bitter price for housing a German army headquarters.

Less than two weeks ago high German army officers worked here day and night in a picturesque old building trying to reorganize Nazi defenses to contain the then slowly spreading Remagen bridgehead.

Germans Hurled Back against Austrian Border—Soviet Forces in North Capture Naval Base of Gdynia by Storm in Bitter Fighting.

By ROMNEY WHEELER

LONDON, Thursday, March 29.—(AP) Two Russian armies, hurling the Germans in northwestern Hungary back against the Austrian border, have captured four enemy strongholds and breached the vital Raba river defense line guarding Vienna, [illegible] miles away, Moscow announced last night.

With the capture of Gyor and Komarom the Russians cracked the Danube valley's defenses before the Bratislava gap, a key to Vienna.

Other Russian troops far to the north captured the Germans' major Baltic naval base of Gdynia by storm and occupied the western part of nearby Danzig after bitter fighting.

The combined Second and Third Ukraine armies under Marshals Rodion Y. Malinovski and Feodor I. Tolbukhin made drives in Hungary through disintegrating German defenses on a 120-mile front. Scoring gains up to 17 miles, the Russians pushed within 10 miles of the Austrian border.

Striking on a 29-mile wide sector, the Third Ukraine army crossed the Raba, seizing the seven-way road and rail junction city of Csorna, eight miles beyond the river, and the important communications hub of Sarvar, 14 miles east of Szombathely, a major bastion in Vienna's defense system.

Together the two rampaging armies swept up nearly 200 Hungarian cities, towns and hamlets and captured 1,500 Germans. Gyor and Komarom fell to the Second Ukraine army, driving westward along the Danube's south bank.

Located 57 miles from Vienna and 38 miles southeast of Bratislava, Gyor is the largest railway center in western Hungary. Komarom, 20 miles northeast of Gyor, lies on the south bank of the Danube opposite the Czechoslovak city of Komarno. Komarom and Komarno, situated at the confluence of the Vah river with the Danube, form a major Danube valley strongpoint barring the way to the 16-mile wide gap between Bratislava and the northern shore of the Neusiedler See (lake) toward which Tolbukhin's men are driving.

Four Massive Armies

The Russian gains across the canal-laced Hungarian plains constituted the southern arm of a larger operation in which four massive Soviet armies are smashing at the ancient gateways to Bohemia and Moravia and forging a huge pincers on Czechoslovakia and Austria.

The only reference in the Russian communique to operations along the northern arm of the pincers was a statement that Soviet heavy bombers had blasted Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city, guarding an ancient invasion route to Prague and Vienna, 135 miles to the southwest.

The Germans said, however, that powerful Russian tank, infantry and artillery teams had succeeded in smashing Nazi defenses before the Moravian gap. Moscow announced Tuesday that Russian units had won positions 14 miles northeast of Moravska-Ostrava.

The Germans also declared that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army, striking out in Berlin's defensive forefield, had seized the fortress town of Lebus, on the Oder river's west bank five miles north of besieged Frankfurt and 38 miles from the threatened Reich capital.

A Moscow dispatch said the Russian supply system was "working all-out to prepare a spring offensive" on this front closest to Berlin.

500,000 Troops Available

In the north the Russians have speeded operations to clean out Baltic pockets to free men for the frontal assault on Berlin. By enemy estimate 500,000 Russians will be available for the Berlin drive once all Nazi resistance has been stamped out along the Bay of Danzig.

The Russian units which took Gdynia also captured 9,000 German prisoners and seized a great quantity of war material, the Moscow communique said. In the coordinated attack on Danzig, 10 miles southeast of Gdynia, other Russian assault elements crossed an arm of the Vistula river between Danzig and the coast and surged onto Holm island. They were clearing the Germans from the built up part of that island, a shipbuilding area 5 1-2 miles wide and 3 1-2 miles deep.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 29 (Thursday).—Two swiftly advancing Russian armies captured four main German strongholds in northwestern Hungary yesterday, cracking the Raba River defense line guarding Vienna, and driving to within ten miles of the Austrian border and forty-seven miles of the Austrian capital.

Moscow made known the disintegration of the Nazi defenses in Hungary soon after Premier Stalin announced the capture of the Germans' major Baltic naval base of Gdynia.

Attacking on a 120-mile front, the combined 2d and 3d Ukrainian Armies under Marshals Rodion Y. Malinovsky and Feodor I. Tolbukhin advanced up to seventeen miles. Malinovsky's troops, striking along the south bank of the Danube, breached the Danube Valley's defenses northwest of Budapest with the capture of Gyoer and Komarom, while Tolbukhin's men crossed the Raba and seized Csorna and Sarvar.

Zhukov Takes Lebus

Simultaneously, the Germans said, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army, striking out in Berlin's defensive forefield, had seized the fortress town of Lebus, on the Oder River's west bank five miles north of besieged Frankfurt am Oder and thirty-eight miles from the Reich capital.

A Moscow dispatch said the Russian supply system was "working all-out to prepare a spring offensive" on this front closest to Berlin.

The Russian gains across the canal-laced Hungarian plains constituted the southern arm of a larger operation in which four Russian armies are smashing at the ancient gateways to Bohemia and Moravia and forging a huge pincers on Czechoslovakia and Austria.

One German commentator said central Russian forces were attacking Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third city, guarding an ancient invasion route to Prague and Vienna, with hundreds of tanks and strong infantry and artillery units. The Russians won positions fourteen miles from the city Tuesday.

Way to Gap Opened

Gyoer, fifty-seven miles from Vienna and thirty-eight miles southeast of Bratislava, Slovak capital, is the largest railway center in western Hungary. Komarom, twenty miles northeast of Gyoer, lies on the south bank of the Danube opposite the Czechoslovak city of Komarno. The two cities, at the confluence of the Vah River with the Danube, form a major Danube Valley strongpoint, barring the way to the Bratislava Gap.

Crossing the Raba River line to the southwest, an outer natural defense barrier for the Austrian capital, tank-led columns of the 3d Ukrainian Army seized the road and rail junction city of Csorna, eight miles beyond the lower Raba, and the communications hub of Sarvar, twenty-nine miles farther southwest.

Csorna, on the main railway and highway connecting Gyoer with the Austrian border city of Sopron, is forty-seven miles from Vienna and ten miles from the Austrian frontier. Nineteen miles ahead of the onrushing Russians in this sector is the Neusiedler See, a shallow 130-square-mile lake, which is part of Vienna's defenses.

At Sarvar the Russians were twenty miles from the Austrian border and sixty-three miles southeast of the Austrian capital. The city is fourteen miles east of Szombathely, a major bastion in Vienna's defensive system. A Moscow dispatch said that whatever man-power reserves the Germans were able to muster from within Austria were being deployed along the Szombathely-Sopron railway.

Far to the north, assault forces of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian Army seized Gdynia twenty-four hours after they broke into that pre-war Polish port and occupied the entire western part of nearby Danzig, Moscow said. The Russians captured 9,000 Germans in Gdynia.

The capture of Gdynia left the Germans with only three major pockets along the Baltic: at Danzig itself, on the Samland Peninsula west of the besieged East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, and in western Latvia, where the remnants of thirty German divisions have been pinned against the coast since last fall.

In East Prussia the 3d White Russian Army, continuing its mop-up of German remnants compressed in the eight-square-mile Kahlholz Peninsula southwest of Koenigsberg, captured almost 900 mortars, artillery pieces and machine guns.

Along the entire eastern front Tuesday the Russians disabled or destroyed 190 German tanks and self-propelled guns and shot down ninety-six enemy planes.

Soviets Capture Gdynia, Vital Baltic Port

London, March 28 (AP)—Marshal Stalin announced tonight the capture of Csorna, in northwestern Hungary, 11 miles from the Austrian border.

KASISCHKE

London, March 28 (AP)—Gdynia, Baltic port and last big Polish city in German hands, was captured by the Red Army today along with 9,000 prisoners, and to the south Berlin said Soviet troops had crossed the Austrian barrier guarding the Austrian border.

DAY

A German broadcast also said the Russians had captured Lebus, on the west side of the Oder River, 37 miles from Berlin.

Gdynia, a port of 113,000 developed by the Poles after the last war as a rival of Danzig, fell only 24 hours after troops of the White Russian Army smashed through its final defenses. Marshal Stalin announced the victory.

Other Russian troops were fighting in Danzig, farther south.

Raba Reported Crossed

A German military spokesman indicated Russians pushing up the Danube Valley as part of a huge pincers movement on Czechoslovakia and Vienna had crossed the Raba River in Hungary.

Berlin reported civilians were being evacuated from Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovak city guarding the Moravian gap now menaced by the northern arm of the pincers.

The Raba at some points is a scant 20 miles from the Austrian border.

The spokesman said fighting had broken out at Sarvar, a communications center west of the Raba, and that the focus of the battle had shifted to that place and the large hub of Gyor, 45 miles to the northeast.

Oder Crossing Reported

A German broadcast declared the Soviets had forced a new crossing of the Oder River northwest of Kuestrin, 38 miles from Berlin, and a Moscow dispatch reported the Russian supply system was "working all-out to prepare a spring offensive" on this front closest to the Nazi capital.

Dispatches from Moscow said the Red Air Force was aiding the tremendous Russian drives on a scale seldom if ever before equaled by Soviet planes.

From the Baltic Sea to the Drava River, Soviet planes have intervened continually in the push, raining attacks on targets ranging from front-line batteries to evacuation ships.

Flying Weather Good

They have been aided with good flying weather over most of the vast front and by lack of opposition from a German Luftwaffe crippled by its shortage of reserves.

Tet was taken yesterday by Tolbukhin's troops in the push menacing Vienna.

DAY

A Russian communiqué broadcast by Moscow indicated resistance was crumbling all the way from the Danube on the north to the shores of Lake Balaton on the south.

Peril To Komarom Grows

The war bulletin, which announced the capture of Tet, also reported the fall of Kisber in an outflanking threat to the vital Danube bastion of Komarom (Komarno), 40 miles northwest of Budapest.

Acs, 6 miles southwest of Komarom and 16 northeast of Gyor, fell, too.

Nazis Being Thwarted In All Hungarian Moves

Moscow, March 28 (AP)—The Moscow News, evaluating current developments in the Red Army's Hungarian offensive, declared today "we are now witnessing the failure of all efforts of the part of the German general staff to prevent hostilities from being shifted to districts directly covering Vienna and the main communication lines of German groupings in Italy."

NIGHT

Paying high tribute to Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin, the newspaper said his defeat of eleven enemy Panzer divisions before his present forward surge in Hungary compared with "the Battle of France in 1940 when the Germans operated with no more than this number."

The newspaper last week said the Allies in the west faced five German armored divisions.

Told Story All Over Again

Its political writer, I. Yermashev, gave this perspective of the war against Germany:

"When the Wehrmacht met disaster on the Vistula January 12, Hitler took the 6th SS (Eilte Guard) Tank Army from von Rundstedt and rushed it east. The Germans could have made very good use of it a little later when the American 1st Army swept up to Cologne and reached the Rhine. Now the 6th Tank Army does not exist at all. The Red Army wiped it out in the fighting west of Budapest.

"This is the old story all over again. Hitler has drawn on his strength in the west in order to stabilize his position in the east, but decisive defeats here each time have left him weaker still in both the east and the west."

SOVIETS HONOR SHAPOSHNIKOV

Stalin Leads Salute As Guns Boom In Moscow

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Moscow, March 28 (AP)—While Moscow's guns boomed in salute and thousands of Red Army men massed in Red Square, Premier Stalin led the Soviet Union today in final tribute to Marshal Boris M. Shaposhnikov, one of the creators of Russian military power, who died Monday.

The funeral services, greatest ceremonial event in the capital's wartime history, were climaxed as Stalin walked beside Shaposhnikov's ashes when the urn was carried from Lenin's tomb to a crypt in the high brick wall of the Kremlin.

Shaposhnikov, once a Czarist officer, was chief of the Red Army general staff in the first year of the war against Germany. Retiring on account of ill health in the Fall of 1942, he became head of the military academy. He was 62.

Thousands At Scene

With Stalin in the procession, mourners included President Kalinin, Foreign Commissar Molotov, Marshal Alexei Antonov and many of Shaposhnikov's comrades from early days of the revolution.

Moscow's 4,000,000 residents were informed suddenly at 3 P.M. by radio that the funeral would be a half hour later.

Tens of thousands of civilians hurried to the scene, crowding approaches to the route of the funeral cortege.

Regiments from every branch of Red Army service turned Red Square into a mass of tightly packed uniforms. The Red Fleet was represented, and so was the N.K.V.D., the security police.

Speakers Pay Tribute

Speakers on a platform at the tomb of Lenin paid tribute to Shaposhnikov, who once ranked next to Stalin in the Soviet military hierarchy. Loud-speakers carried their words to the farthest of the crowd, and they were broadcast throughout the Soviet Union.

Stalin himself did not speak.

ing conditions were so bad that he had lost 33 pounds in the last four months, even though he was living on diplomatic rations.

Food is so scarce in Tokyo, Gutxulesco declared, that no restaurants are open and the entire population is under weight.

Poor Air-Raid Shelters

Tokyo's air-raid shelters, he said, are poor excuses for places of safety during bombing attacks. Scores of people are blasted to death in them because they are not deep enough.

Contrary to Japanese expectations, American air raids have done little to disrupt transportation in Japan, he asserted.

Japs Expecting Axis Leaders To Flee There, Envoy Says

GILMORE

DAY

Moscow, March 28 (AP)—A Romanian diplomat en route home from Tokyo asserted today that the Japanese firmly expect Adolf Hitler, Heinrich Himmler and Benito Mussolini to seek refuge in Japan "almost any time" now that Germany's cause seems hopeless.

"The fact is, they've been expecting them for a long time," declared the diplomat, Victor Gutxulesco, a former member of the Romanian embassy staff in Tokyo who has just arrived in Moscow.

He said the Japanese did not appear particularly pleased about the prospect of giving shelter to Nazi or Fascist leaders.

Gutxulesco, who traveled through Manchuria on his way here, said he had found an unmistakable spirit of defeat prevailing everywhere among the Japanese. Although the press and radio are carrying on an intensive campaign to convince the people they will win the war, Gutxulesco said the Japanese with whom he had talked, including some army officers, didn't really believe this.

Raids Hard On Morale

Gutxulesco attributed the spirit of defeat partly to recent American air raids, which he declared had wiped out entire blocks of Tokyo and reduced the standard of living there to little better than a bare existence level.

The Romanian diplomat said liv-

Seyss-Inquart Ordered To Direct Vienna Defense

Hitler Takes Him From Holland to Act as His Agent

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—The Moscow radio said today that Hitler has pushed Arthur Seyss-Inquart, German commissioner in the Netherlands, from Holland to Austria "to be the Fuehrer's plenipotentiary extraordinary to direct the defense of Vienna." Seyss-Inquart was Hitler's agent in the Austrian anschluss of 1938.

JAPANESE COLUMNS NEAR CHINA AIR HUB

Chungking Reports Foe Within 25 Miles of Laohokow—Thrust to Capital Feared

MOOSA

CHUNGKING, China, March 28 (AP)—A fast moving Japanese mechanized column is within twenty-five miles of Laohokow, United States air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

NIGHT

Loss of Laohokow would eliminate one of the principal bases for offensive American air actions against Japanese communications in North China.

The High Command said Chinese forces were operating behind Japanese lines trying to prevent the enemy from seizing the famous south Honan city of Nanyang, 200 miles north-northwest of Hankow. Nanyang's loss would be a serious blow to Free China's defenses. Heavy fighting was reported in progress in the area.

Officials Study Possibilities

In northwestern Honan, where the Japanese are driving westward along the Lo River in the direction of Shensi Province, the Chinese claimed two enemy attacks had been repulsed. Officials in Chungking were watching the new enemy drive along the Lo as it could develop into a thrust for either Sian or the Chinese capital itself.

Most quarters, however, believed the Japanese were more likely to be using it as a diversionary attack with the main drive centered on Laohokow and other American air bases in the area in an effort to protect their north-south inland communications.

NIGHT

Chinese field dispatches said the Japanese suffered 2,500 casualties in their recent campaign around Kanhsien in Kiangsi Province.

American bombers and fighters, ranging over 1,500 miles of Japanese operational fronts in north and central China, attacked Japanese forces along the Han River south of Laohokow and along the Yellow River and the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

New Delhi, March 24 [AP—Delayed]—Allied forces have broken the backbone of Japanese resistance in central Burma, according to military opinion here.

The British now have concentrated a force of men, guns and tanks in Central Burma to insure a decisive victory over 50,000 Japanese combat and service troops in the Mandalay pocket. This trapped enemy force constitutes a large part of the Japanese garrison in Burma.

Optimistic military observations are based on the following points:

1. The Allies enjoy 50-to-1 air superiority in Burma.

2. A large portion of the Japanese garrison is trapped in the Mandalay area and rapidly is becoming exhausted after months of fighting without relief.

3. Outnumbered in guns and armor, the pocketed Japanese are unable to concentrate a force large enough to threaten seriously the British blockade between Mandalay and Rangoon. British tanks in the Mandalay pocket are isolating enemy units and preventing any mass regrouping.

4. Enemy reinforcements and supplies from Rangoon are cut off and there is no indication help is coming to the Japanese from Thailand.

5. Japanese have almost no war machinery in Burma capable of knocking out British tanks now operating in mass formations.

Report Japs Wary of Reds

Chungking, March 28 (AP).—A Chinese press report said today that 300,000 well-equipped Manchurian garrison troops had been moved to northern Manchuria to bolster Japanese defenses against the possibility of a Russian invasion. The report said double-tracking of railroads in Korea and principal lines in Manchuria had been completed by the Japanese.

3 Editors Likely to See Chiang; Met by Ackerman's Son

CHUNGKING, March 28 (AP).—The three-man committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors touring the world in behalf of the free exchange of news arrived in Chungking today.

The committee members—Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Carl Ackerman, dean of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism—plan to spend a week here, then go to New Delhi and Australia.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is expected to receive the three, who have already visited London, Paris, Brussels, Rome, Athens, Cairo, Ankara, Istanbul, Moscow and Calcutta since leaving New York on Jan. 10.

Dean Ackerman's twenty-nine-year-old son, Robert, assistant professor of the Postgraduate School of Journalism at Chungking, greeted the American editors on their arrival at the airfield.

COMPARATIVE FOOD ROLES QUESTIONED

Commons Member Asks As To U.S. Feeding Of Prisoners

NIGHT

London, March 28 (AP)—The United States' role in helping feed hungry Europe drew major attention in the House of Commons tonight as one member raised the question of feeding German prisoners taken by the Americans are getting "seven or eight times" as much food as French civilians.

Another member protested that Britons could not be expected to "wear their belts any tighter" than the Americans.

These issues arose after Clement Atlee, Deputy Prime Minister, asserted that Britain was doing "all within the limits of our power" to alleviate suffering in liberated countries.

"I do not think we have let our friends down," he said in reporting that Britain already had sent or agreed to send 900,000 tons of food to liberated areas, including the Mediterranean.

"In view of that," inquired Earl Winterton, a conservative, "have the strongest representations been made to the United States government, stressing on them the moral responsibility they have for making up these stocks?"

Attlee said he would "deal with that" later in the debate on the problem of supplying the hungry people of Europe.

Labor Leader Arthur Greenwood said that although the world food situation was grim the supply should be mobilized to give aid and nourishment to the "people who have been battered nigh unto death by the Nazi terror."

"If we have to tighten our belts again to fulfill the obligation of honor which we have undertaken we should do it.

"But," he added, "we are entitled to make an appeal to the great food producing countries of the world to come to the aid of the starving peoples of western Europe."

Churchill Praises Lloyd George

London, March 28 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill paid tribute to the late David Lloyd George today as "a champion of the weak and the poor" and as the greatest Welshman since the days of the Tudors.

NIGHT

"It was Lloyd George who launched liberal and radical forces in this country effectively into a broad stream of social betterment and social security," Churchill said as Parliament paused in the midst of wartime problems to honor the memory of the Empire's leader in the first World War.

"There was no man so gifted, so eloquent, so forceful, who knew the life of the people so well."

Died At 82

Lloyd George died Monday night at the age of 82.

"His eye ranged ahead of the obvious and he was always hunting in the field beyond," Churchill said. "He was the champion of the weak and the poor. I am sure that as time passes his name will not only live but shine in the account of the great, laborious and constructive work he did for the social and domestic life of our country."

Churchill said the first World War gave Lloyd George "another part to play on which his fame will stand with equal or even greater firmness."

"Man Of Action"

"He faced undismayed the storms of criticism and controversy and, despite all obstacles, he achieved his main purpose," the Prime Minister said. "As a man of action, resource and creative energy, he stood when at his zenith without rival."

In the House of Lords, Lord Beaverbrook credited Lloyd George with having fathered "more social legislation than any single statesman in history."

Corset Guild Is Worried About Post-War Markets

British Makers Fear Effects of 5 Years of Shortages

LONDON, March 28 (AP).—Milady's post-war figure has Britain's Corset Guild worried.

Most British women have been without corsets for five years because of war shortages, and the Guild says the big post-war job will be to "educate" thousands of girls who have grown up during these foundationless years into wearing them once they become available.

One Guild member suggested a start could be made by changing the term "corset"—reminiscent of cumbersome bone and lacing styles—and attracting young women with the idea of "painted-on" two-way stretches and roll-ons.

BONOMI PLANS ASSEMBLY

Italian Consultative Body to Be Broadly Representative

ROME, March 28 (AP)—The Cabinet of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi today created a Consultative Assembly to act in an advisory capacity until all Italy is liberated and a permanent form of government can be established.

Economic Program For Italy Drafted

Rome, March 28 (AP)—The Allied Commission and the Italian Government have submitted to the combined chiefs of staff a jointly planned program of economic aid to Italy designed to enable the nation to start manufacturing of its own essential products and thus become less dependent on the United Nations.

The Allied Commission said the plan called for supplying Italy with basic commodities needed to rehabilitate transport, electric power, agriculture and, to a certain extent, consumer goods manufacturers.

The cost of the program would be assumed by Italy from credits in excess of $100,000,000 provided by the United States, and additional sums made available through financial arrangements with Britain.

The Italian three-man technical commission is scheduled to travel to Washington to discuss details of the plan. The Allied mission also will make the trip.

Vatican Paper Answers Soviet

Vatican City, March 28 (AP)—Osservatore Romano, the Vatican City newspaper, replying again to attacks on the Vatican in the Soviet press, asserted today that Pope Pius XII repeatedly and clearly expressed approval of just punishment for war criminals.

The newspaper added that the Pope condemned "the totalitarian and violent regimes even before they reached their most tremendous and conclusive experiment, considering them a violation of human rights and an offense against Divine law and the principles of the Gospel."

The publication called upon the Soviet press to produce evidence that the Pontiff had acted to the contrary.

FLEET CONTINUES RYUKYUS SHELLING

Air Attacks Intensified, Nimitz Remains Silent on Landing Reports.

LANDSBERG

GUAM, Thursday, March 29.—(AP) Big American battleships blazed away in their fifth confirmed bombardment of the Ryukyu approaches to Japan Wednesday and sky-dominating carrier planes plastered defenses in their 11th day of fiery action since they tore into the enemy homeland March 18.

The Navy announced the developments today—still silent on continuing enemy broadcasts that American forces have been on some of the Ryukyu islands since Sunday.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, who has reported ship shellings of the Ryukyus on Friday, Saturday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday along with continuous carrier raids, disclosed the carrier planes destroyed 38 enemy planes and damaged 19 or more enemy ships, including three warships, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

This destruction was in addition to that listed in previous reports which had included the wiping out of an eight-ship enemy convoy.

Nimitz said the planes shot down 25 Nipponese planes and burned 13 more on the ground in the three-day period. Submarine pens were among extensive enemy facilities smashed.

fenses by the 16-inch guns of deadly accurate battleships, including some dreadnaughts of the 45,000 ton class.

For the first time his communique mentioned Sunday—the day the Japanese said American forces succeeded in landing in the Kerama islands near Okinawa. But he touched on it only lightly, merely saying the carrier raiders in action "during the period of March 25 to March 27" dealt extensive damage.

During sweeps over 500 miles of the strategic Ryukyus chain which extends to within 80 miles of Japan, the Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers damaged:

Three destroyers or destroyer escorts; a large cargo ship, two terse and general:

Corsairs in Action

"Hellcat and Corsair fighters, Avenger torpedo planes and Helldiver bombers continued their attacks on enemy positions in the Ryukyus and battleships continued to shell shore installations on March 28."

He offered no confirmation of enemy reports that carrier planes had returned to the attack on Kyushu, southern island of Japan, Tuesday.

Nimitz announced raids during the past few days in the Kuriles, north of Japan; against Chichi and Haha Jima in the Bonin islands, north of conquered Iwo; and on bypassed islands in the Marshalls.

His latest account of the continuing air and naval action was medium cargo ships, two small cargo ships, eight to 10 luggers, a whaler and "many small craft." Some of the smaller types were described as "wrecked."

Blast Sub Pens

The submarine pens were blasted at Unten bay on the west coast of Okinawa, the 65-mile-long main island of the chain, where Tokyo radio says an invasion appears imminent.

The attacks extended from the Miyako group to Tanega island. Warehouses, barracks and trucks were smashed at Amami, Tokuno, Okinawa and Kikai islands.

Gun positions, landing craft and airfields were other targets.

The low total of enemy planes shot down and the length and extent of the operations indicated clearly the carrier planes of Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher were commanding the skies over islands guarding the approaches to south Japan—itself under considerable air assault.

Nimitz said "some of our units" suffered damage under enemy air attacks but he did not elaborate.

After a day of contradictory broadcasts, the Tokyo radio last night concluded that an American naval task force again is approaching Japan, bent on clearing the skies for a Yank invasion of Okinawa, the homeland and Formosa.

During the day, the confused Japanese commentators kept the enemy radio busy with these stories:

That heavy fighting is raging between American landing parties and defending garrisons in the Kerama group of the Ryukyus.

That "active fighting on land has not yet started."

That "only a few units" of American assault troops have landed.

That "indications seem to point out that the enemy landed reinforcements" Monday morning.

None of these emissions—obviously searching for information—had any official American confirmation.

Cebu City Falls To Americans, Harbor Intact

Foe's Flank and Rear Are Pierced as Planes Cut His Lines to Ribbons

HUTCHESON

MANILA, March 29 (Thursday) (AP).—The Japanese-wrecked City of Cebu, with its harbor virtually intact, fell yesterday morning to American Division troops who in two days of invasion operations on Cebu Island have already liberated eleven other towns and have put the Nipponese to flight.

The supporting Far Eastern Air Force cut to shreds the enemy lines of communication as Major General William H. Arnold's men fanned out from Monday's landings at Talisay across well prepared defenses where the Nipponese had planned to make a stand, headquarters reported.

General Douglas MacArthur said in his communique today that the Americans captured Cebu City with light loss. The Americans pierced the flank and rear of the elaborate Japanese defense system.

MacArthur reported that Japanese resistance on Luzon had "definitely abated due to his (the enemy's) great losses which cannot be replaced."

Resistance was strong in the north, around the summer capital at Baguio and across the valley in the Caraballo Mountains, but was reported "disconnected and sporadic" east of Manila and in areas to the south.

MacArthur said the Japanese soldier "seems unable to grasp our technique of attack."

In the air war, heavy bombers dropped 180 tons of explosives on Legaspi, big port on the southeastern "tail" of Luzon, and hit Formosa with seventy-two tons. Large fires and explosions resulted from hits on dock and warehouse areas.

Long-range search planes patrolling the blockaded China Sea sank four freighter-transports off Saigon, French Indo-China and probably sent twelve other small cargo ships to the bottom in the same general area.

Seven other small cargo ships were sunk or seriously damaged in the China Sea to the north.

Patrol bombers hit Yulin harbor at Hainan Island and Ishagaki town in the southern Ryukyus.

CEBU CITY FALLS TO YANK TROOPS, BLASTED BY JAPS

Enemy Demolition Crew Wantonly Destroy Large Sections of City.

HARBOR INTACT

Japanese Midget Submarines Attempt Attacks on Invasion Ships.

By JAMES HUTCHESON

MANILA, Thursday, March 29—(AP) Cebu City, blasted by Japanese demolition crews but its valuable harbor virtually intact, fell yesterday morning to veteran Yanks of the American Division, who were fighting scattered battles along mined streets of that second city of the Philippines.

A flanking movement enabled Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold's troops to close in from two sides and capture the major prize 48 hours after a beachhead was established five miles down the coast. American losses were light.

The Japanese put up a stiff fight on the southern outskirts at Pardo, but the 182nd regiment of Boston, Mass., cleared the way.

The streets of Cebu, a city of 150,000 inhabitants, were heavily mined. Numerous defenses had been thrown up, but they were largely unmanned. Fighting inside the city was in the nature of scattered skirmishes.

Capture of Cebu, announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was preceded by an attack by Japanese midget submarines on shipping off the Cebu beachhead.

Associated Press correspondent Richard Bergholz, with the American division said the daylight submarine attack Monday, the day of the invasion, forced all unbeached ships to put to sea, where they remained until the following morning.

Enroute back to shore, troop-carrying destroyers tracked down one tiny sub and scored two hits when it surfaced. The underseas craft was believed destroyed.

Wanton Destruction

MacArthur said Cebu City was badly damaged by enemy demolition crews, who carried out their wanton destruction much in the manner they razed the heart of Manila. The important harbor section, one of the best in the Philippines, was little damaged.

Eleven other towns were liberated by the doughboys, and the enemy forces were being chased northward. American warplanes closely supported the ground operations.

MacArthur reported that Japanese resistance on Luzon had "definitely abated due to his (the enemy's) great losses which cannot be replaced."

Resistance was strong in the north, around the summer capital at Baguio and across the valley in the Caraballo mountains, but was reported "disconnected and sporadic" east of Manila and in areas to the south.

MacArthur said the Japanese soldier "seems unable to grasp our technique of attack."

In the air war, heavy bombers dropped 180 tons of explosives on Legaspi, big port on the southeastern "tail" of Luzon, and hit Formosa with 72 tons. Large fires and explosions resulted from hits on dock and warehouse areas.

Long-range search planes patrolling the blockaded China sea sank four freighter-transports off Saigon French Indo-China and probably sent 12 other small cargo ships to the bottom in the same general area.

Seven other small cargo ships were sunk or seriously damaged in the China sea to the north.

Patrol bombers hit Yulin harbor at Hainan island and Ishagaki town in the southern Ryukyus.

Yanks Near Edge Of Cebu City

Manila, March 28 (AP)—American assault troops, swarming ashore on Cebu Island Monday against elaborate beach defenses, swept almost to the outskirts of Cebu City, headquarters reported today, but that second city of the Philippines already was aflame and exploding from Japanese demolition.

Shortly after Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold's Americal Division hit the beaches the first big fire appeared in the heart of the city. Then came thunderous explosions and sheets of flame as the Japanese demolition crews went to work as they did in Manila.

Midway Along Coast

The landing, made under cover of an efficient air and naval bombardment, was made near Talisay, about 5 miles south of Cebu City. This is about midway along the east coast of the island.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz, with the invading force, wrote that the enemy "had everything ready for a long, tough fight."

He said the enemy had established "elaborate, extensive beach defenses" and that Japanese mortar fire pinned down the first amphibious vehicles to hit the shoreline. However, the Yanks piled out of their vehicles and drove inland afoot against disorganized resistance.

Jap Reports Confused On Ryukyu 'Invasion'

San Francisco, March 28 (AP)—Contradictory Japanese broadcasts left a confused picture today of actions they claimed were taking place in the unconfirmed American invasion of the Kerama group of the Ryukyu Islands.

One report said "savage battles are raging" and another that "active fighting on land has not yet started," while a Domei news agency dispatch to occupied Asia said "only a few units" of American assault troops have landed.

Tokyo radio said both Japanese and Americans had landed reinforcements.

Forces "Repulsed"

One broadcast to the Japanese homeland said United States assault forces were "successfully repulsed" Sunday night on Tokashiki Island in the Keramas, but "on Aka Island indications seem to point out that the enemy landed reinforcements during the morning of the day before yesterday." Zamami, third Kerama Island reported invaded, was not mentioned.

There was no American support for any of the Japanese broadcasts except of continued naval bombardment and carrier raids.

Toyko said American naval units operating in the Ryukyus, which link Japan with Formosa, "have gradually increased in number." Four or five naval groups were reported "cruising about, centering about the Kerama Islands."

"Intent On Okinawa"

"Movements of the enemy ships indicate that they are rendering direct support to the enemy troops that landed on the Kerama Islands," " Tokyo said, but "it appears that the enemy is definitely intent upon effecting landings on the main island of Okinawa," 15 miles east of the Keramas.

An earlier broadcast said:

"With the signs of enemy forces advancing, the strength of our forces has been reinforced and all the forces are at this time working as one unit, burning with the total spirit of special attack."

The Domei news agency said the invasion was "primarily designed to tighten the air encirclement ring against Japan and to secure a major strategic base prior to undertaking full-scale invasion operations against the Japanese homeland."

Heavier Cost Seen

Domei added that American forces would be forced to pay more heavily for invasion of the Ryukyus than for the conquest of Iwo Jima.

English language broadcasts said the United States 5th fleet had extended its bombardments laterally from Okinawa, 15 miles east of the Kerama Islands, to include Kume and Minami Daito. Kume is some 20 miles west of the Kerama group. Minami Daito is about 200 miles east of Okinawa.

"If and when the enemy should invade the main Okinawa Island in the Ryukyu group," Domei quoted observers as saying, "the enemy will certainly be forced to pay vastly more heavily in men and materials in his initial attempt. The main Okinawa Island, though an island like Iwo Jima, has such size and topographical conditions as will enable our defense force to display their might to the fullest extent."

Kyushu Carrier Raid, 3d Blow, Told By Japs

WAITE

Guam, March 28 (AP)—Tokyo radio reported today that American carrier planes had raided Kyushu Island at the southern end of Japan this afternoon in a quick follow-up of two Superfortress raids within twelve hours.

Tokyo said about 90 seaborne planes raided the southernmost shores of Kyushu, last assaulted by carrier aircraft March 19.

Neither report was confirmed by the American command, which announced that battleships and swarms of carrier planes continued their aerial and naval bombardments of the Ryukyu Islands, stepping stones to Kyushu, which they began attacking last Friday.

But Admiral Chester W. Nimitz still left a gap in his communiqués to account for Sunday—the day an imperial Japanese communiqué said American landings were made on tiny islands near Okinawa, 325 miles southwest of Japan.

Bombardments Recorded

Nimitz, whose official reports have recorded bombardments by big, fast battleships and raids by Hellcats, Helldivers and Avengers Friday, Saturday and Monday, said in his communiqué today:

"On March 27 carrier aircraft of the United States Pacific fleet continued to attack enemy forces and defense installations in the Ryukyus and surface units attacked coastal objectives with naval gunfire. He also disclosed that Navy search planes had ventured within 150 miles of Tokyo Monday to attack small ships near Hachijo Island.

Nimitz let Tokyo Radio do the talking—and guessing—about what all kinds of enemy positions.

Exuberant pilots reported destruction of factories, a phosphate plant, a weather station, railroad lines and yards, communication centers, pillboxes and other defensive positions.

Strikes were the heaviest on the northern section of Okinawa, which was battered in the southeast Saturday by the big guns of the 5th Fleet.

is shaping up as the next operation after the conquest of Iwo, where 19C out of more than 200 Japanese were killed Monday after assembling from cave hidouts to make a surprise attack.

Superfort Raids

Tokyo, quoting an imperial communiqué, said between 60 and 70 Marianas-based Superforts attacked the north part of Kyushu Island, including the arsenal city of Kokura, for an hour and a half Tuesday night. The enemy claimed "ten-odd" were downed.

Headquarters of the 21st Bomber Command at Guam previously had announced a raid by more than 200 B-29's around noon, Tuesday on Kyushu, southernmost island of Japan. Returning pilots, comparing notes today, said the big Japanese aircraft assembly plant at Omura was hard hit and planes were set afire on the ground at the Tachiarai airfield. All B-29's returned from the raid, headquarters said.

infantry patrol. He strafed the Nipponese who dived into hiding in a concrete shelter in the bushes.

Assessment of results of the bombardment showed the town of Ninatoga virtually wiped out along with its many military installations and industrial areas. The best of these included a boat yard.

Hundreds Of Rounds Fired

Many underground positions also were hit near Ninatoga, largest town on the southeastern coast. Observation pilots said there appeared to be underground storehouses large enough to accommodate trucks and a row of pillboxes north of the town.

All up and down a 10-mile coastal line from the southern tip similar devastation was caused by hundreds of rounds from the big guns, which were the only batteries fired during the shelling.

The battering with about 1,500 tons of shells reached inland to strike defensive positions a mile or two from the beaches. A factory was partially destroyed and extensive damage was done to a tank park area at the town of Mega.

Bridges, roads and scores of small buildings were shattered by salvos fired at five to ten minute intervals from early morni to mid-

Five Jap Warships Hit In Seas Off Ryukyus

FARON

With Vice Admiral Mitscher's Fast Carrier Task Force, March 25 [AP — Delayed] — Sweeping thousands of square miles of waters around the Rkukyu islands carrier planes sank or damaged scores of Japanese vessels, including five warcraft, in two days of battering attacks on enemy shipping and shore installations.

DAY

The warecraft were all destroyed when a convoy, apparently en route to Okinawa from Japan, was intercepted and wiped out.

The convoy consisted of two destroyers, three destroyer escorts and three large transports.

Small Craft Sunk

In other forays, a medium freighter transport and many "small craft," including luggers and sampans were sunk.

The series of attacks ranged from Miyako, which is 200 miles east of Formosa, almost to Japan and 200 miles east of Daito Jima.

In addition to this bag, three small freighter transports, nine coastal vessels and ten small craft were probably sunk by planes of Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's fast carrier force.

Shore Installations Hit

Flyers struck also at shore installations throughout the Ryukyus, hurling rockets, bombs and bullets

Fleet Pounds Okinawa In Ryukyus

FARON

NIGHT

With a Fast U.S. Battleship Force off Okinawa, March 24 [AP—Delayed]—Steaming slowly in line, United States battleships steadily and methodically pounded the southeast beaches of Okinawa today, igniting fires and blasting Japanese installations of all types.

The big battlewagons moved as though on target drill, putting their 16-inch shells where they would do the most damage on the biggest island in the Ryukyu chain between Japan and Formosa.

Throughout a day of slow steaming close inshore, the Japanese failed to make any attempt to resist the pounding of the main batteries of the most powerful ships of the United States fleet.

Lack Of Opposition Noted

Officers could not explain the lack of enemy opposition. Okinawa has some coastal guns and is within bomber and fighter-plane flight reach from Japan, less than 500 miles to the northeast.

Pilots of the fleet's seaplanes directing the fire of the big guns did not encounter any anti-aircraft fire, even while flying low enough to look into buildings on the ground.

One pilot reported the only sign of activity he saw was a Japanese afternoon.

A communications center also was hit, as were humerous machine-gun and coastal artillery emplacements, whic hobservation pilots reported mostly empty or under construction.

Two forts were destroyed, but both were antiques. The pilots reported that one had been converted into an observation post.

1,500 Tons of Shells Fired

GUAM, Thursday, March 29 (AP)—How United States battleships leisurely paraded off the southeast coast of Okinawa and pounded shore installations was described by an Associated Press correspondent with the fleet.

The big ships fired 1,500 tons of 16-inch shells Monday into gun emplacements and industrial areas, virtually wiping out the town of Ninatoga without drawing counterfire from coastal guns.

Observation planes directing the battleships' fire swept the Okinawa coast without hindrance from either anti-aircraft or intercepting planes, he said.

Mexico City, March 28 (AP)—Members of the 201st Mexican Air Squadron, en route to a Pacific war front after training in the United States, have sent a banner bearing their signatures to be deposited at the feet of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint.

The banner was brought here by Sofia Mercado de Garcia, widow, whose only son, Raul, is a lieutenant of the expeditionary force.

Mrs. Mercado de Garcia said today the ceremony would be held Monday at a solemn mass in the Basilica of Guadalupe to be said by Archbishop Luis Maria Martinez. Relatives and friends of members of the squadron will attend.

Australia to Be Represented at Washington Parley

CANBERRA, Thursday, March 29 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced that Australia would participate in meetings to be held soon in Washington "to determine what steps can and should be taken to cut food consumption down to the level of supplies."

The meetings are to be attended by British Food Production Ministry officials and United States Representatives.

It was learned authoritatively here that Australia was prepared to accept a proposal to tighten food rationing.

Canada Shipping 'All Meat U.S. Asks Her To'

MONTGOMERY

Ottawa, March 28 (AP)—Canada's position on the touchy issue of meat supply is that she is doing all the United States asks of her and more than Britain has asked, and yet is still able to provide more meat for her own city consumers than Americans get because of a more equitable distribution system.

This situation, outlined by J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, is nevertheless subject to quick change in these final days of the war in Europe.

The Combined Food Board, composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Canada, is expected to meet soon, probably in Washington, and may plan increased shipments abroad for underfed liberated nations, necessitating restrictions of domestic meat consumption in Canada.

May Restore Rationing

To meet such needs, and with an eye to promoting Canadian goodwill in the United States, Canada may reimpose meat rationing, abandoned March 1, 1944.

Canadians are prepared for a tightening in nearly all commodities in the coming year, when the end of the war in Europe is expected to bring increased demands on North Americans to supply starving sections of liberated Europe.

May Ship More Beef

Gardiner said Canada would try to increase shipments of beef to Britain this year. They ran 163,000,000 pounds last year, although before the war Britain received virtually no beef from Canada.

In 1944 Canada contracted to send 450,000,000 pounds of bacon and pork products to Britain and actually shipped 715,000,000 pounds. In 1945, Gardiner said, Canada expects to ship about the same total amount of meat to Britain as last year, with pork products running less as beef shipments increase.

Canada Cuts Living Cost

Ottawa, March 28 (AP)—Canada, whose early wartime controls set a pattern for many later adopted in the United States, had a slightly lower cost-of-living index in 1944, but anticipates difficulty in controlling prices in the period following the defeat of Germany, the Government announced today.

Upward pressures on price ceilings are "likely to be much greater after this war than in 1918-19," the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, counterpart of the OPA in the United States, declared in its annual report covering the calendar year 1944.

Alba Reported Resigning

BERNE, Switzerland, March 28 (AP)—The Duke of Alba, Spanish Ambassador to London, has resigned, Spanish circles reported tonight. They said that he had quit after having learned of Don Juan's appeal for the restoration of the monarchy, feeling that he must support the royal house.

Swiss Act To Block Influx From Germany

Bern, Switzerland, March 28 (AP). The Swiss frontier guard was reinforced today to prevent retreating German troops from rushing into this neutral country.

NIGHT

President Ernest Dr Steiger himself announced the security measures, and said that every effort was being made to guard against the Nazis or Fascists trying to make this country a secret headquarters for continuing their activities.

Contributing to a delicate situation is the knowledge that a number of high Nazi functionaries and their foreign collaborators have taken refuge on the island of Mainau in Lake Constance—in German territory, but convenient for a dash into Switzerland at the last moment.

50,000,000 NAZI REFUGEES IMPEDE GERMAN DEFENSES

SHANKE

STOCKHOLM, March 28.—(AP) More than 50,000,000 bombed-out or refugee Germans are milling around behind the German lines, impeding the defenses and intensifying the confusion of defeat inside the Reich, it was reported today by sources intimately acquainted with the country's internal condition.

On the basis of information from neutral and enemy sources, they gave this up-to-the-minute picture of what is happening inside Germany:

Millions of German workers are at loose ends, unemployed because their factories have been bombed or captured. There is such chaos that the authorities have found no way to utilize these people in their last stand and are herding them around like cattle.

Jews are moved from internment camps to make room for war prisoners, then war prisoners are moved to make room for refugees.

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung has referred to a "fluid" labor situation and appealed to unemployed workers to report for war service.

The Germans know they have

lost the war, yet they continue to allow themselves to be driven on by men of desperation instead of revolting. They are living only for today, dependent on the Nazis for food and shelter and with the Gestapo always behind them.

What Industry?

The Allied bombing offensive has been so thorough that there are few worthwhile targets left. When the Germans hear that the Allies intend to strip them of all war potential industry, they merely gaze through their windows, if they still have windows, at twisted debris and ask, "what industry?"

That perhaps is why Allied bombers in the main now are concentrating on three principal targets: communications, oil supplies and the army itself.

Out of desperation, therefore, Hitler and his righthand men, disagreeing about what to do, have been sending emissaries into neutral countries but not always to seek peace contacts.

The Nazi leaders know the Allies are not interested in a compromise and they, on the other hand, refuse to consider capitulation unless Germany's frontiers and its right to self government are guaranteed.

These contact men are offering the Allies inducements which may be closely connected with the suggestion put forth by Christer Jaederlund, a Swedish Berlin correspondent, who said there was one "great fear—whether Hitler intends to exploit as hostages all the war and political prisoners he has in his hands."

Canada Indorses Parley

OTTAWA, March 28 (CP).—By a vote of 202 to 5, the Commons today indorsed Canadian participation in the forthcoming San Francisco world security conference after Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in a fiery, two-hour speech, lashed critics of the government's foreign policy and elaborated on the stand the Dominion would take at the conference.

Mr. King stated:

1. Canada was not attempting to draw away from the British Commonwealth.

2. Canada and other members of the commonwealth were agreed that the commonwealth could not speak as an entity in any world organization.

3. Canada would not seek a permanent seat on the security council of the world peace organization and would not seek leadership among secondary states.

4. Canada had made no proposal as to the use of force by the security organization.

5. Because of his duties as a leader of a country at war, he would be unable to accept any important post at the San Francisco conference was in progress.

Syria and Lebanon Invited

WASHINGTON, March 28 (AP).—The State Department announced today that Syria and Lebanon have been invited to attend the San Francisco conference on the suggestion of France. At the same time the department published messages from the two countries pledging their adherence to the United Nations declaration.

The total of countries invited to San Francisco is now forty-six with a strong possibility that it will reach forty-eight, should Argentina and Poland settle their diplomatic difficulties in time to be invited.

Announcement that France took the initiative in proposing that Syria and Lebanon be invited to San Francisco came as a surprise in view of recent reports from Paris that that government would object to their inclusion. Syria and Lebanon were French mandates after the last war, but recently were given more independent status by France.

GROMYKO CHIEF DELEGA

Russia Names Envoy to Lead San Francisco Parley Group

LONDON, Thursday, March 29 (AP)—Russia's Ambassador to the United States, Andrei A. Gromyko, was named today as the leader of the Soviet delegation to the San Francisco conference, the Tass agency announced in a broadcast from Moscow.

The delegation, appointed by the Peoples' Commissars Council, will include the Minister to Canada, Novikoff; Minister Tsarapkin, Rear Admiral Rodionoff, Professor Golunski and Professor Kryloff, the broadcast said.

Norway Names Parley Group

LONDON, March 28 (AP)—The Norwegian Government-in-exile announced today that Foreign Minister Trygve Lie would lead its delegation to the World Security Conference at San Francisco opening April 25. Other members will be Dr. Carl J. Hambro, president of the former Norwegian Parliament; Wilhelm Thorlief von Munthe de Morgenstierne, Ambassador to the United States; Dr. Arnold Raestad, Prof. J. S. Worm-Mueller and Dr. Arne Ording.

'Death March' Photos Hidden, Freed GI's Say

New York, March 28 (AP)—Tech. Sergt. Carl A. Carlsson, liberated from the Cabanatuan prison camp in the Philippines, said today about 200 secretly taken photographs showing the horrors of the Bataan "Death March" were hidden at Camp O'Donnell.

These pictures, taken by an army camera man before he died of dysentery, are in addition to others buried at Cabanatuan, the 32-year-old Bronx soldier said.

Corporal Dale O. Von Linger, a member of Carlsson's army unit and also freed in a United States Ranger raid January 31, said yesterday at his Urbana (Ill.) home that about 400 pictures of the "Death March" were hidden in a half-gallon mason jar at Cabanatuan. He said he knew the hiding spot.

Gestapo Is Berated For Flight From Posts

New York, March 28 (AP)—The Reich security office, under jurisdiction of Heinrich Himmler, has issued orders berating security police and Gestapo agents for deserting their posts before the German Army troops move out, the American broadcasting station in Europe reported tonight.

The broadcast quoted in orders, which it said fell into Allied hands: "The Gestapo and security police are not to leave their posts ahead of the army. It is an impossible situation that party members are fleeing from town to town, while the oldest Volkssturm men have to hold the main defenses."

Premier Reported Held In Transylvania

New York, March 28 (AP)—The Romanian home radio said today Dr. Alexandru Viada Voevod, 74, former Premier and founder of the Fascist Romanian Front party in 1935, had been arrested yesterday in Transylvania. United States Government monitors heard the broadcast.

The broadcast, describing the former Premier as "the father of the Iron Guard" and the "assassin of Romanian state railway workers in 1933," said Viada Voevod denied any guilt and blamed others for the nation's disaster.

3d Is Leading In Captives

[By the Associated Press]

The American 3d Army barely maintained its lead over the 1st Army today in prisoners captured since D-day. The last announced totals were 311,198 for the 1st Army and 31[illegible],301 for the 3d.

Since D-day, 1,219,700 Germans have been announced as captured on the Western front—the equivalent of more than 121 German divisions, as now constituted.

Totals by other armies: United States 9th, 96,645; United States 7th, 135,596; French 1st, 85,841; Canadian 1st, 143,614; British 2d, 115,495, and French Forces of the Interior and others, 20,010. The 7,000 captured by the 1st Allied Airborne Army are consolidated with the total of the British 2d Army, with which the skytroopers are operating.

MINERS VOTING 7-1 FOR STRIKE

First Returns Indicate Big Victory For Lewis

ON THE LABOR FRONT

A strike at the Packard plant in Detroit ends with night shift returning to work.....Page 7

Carpenters continue backing of Hollywood movie strike...Page 7

Washington, Thursday, March 29 (AP)—Miner votes favoring authority for John L. Lewis to call a soft-coal strike passed the 100,000 mark early today, with only some 14,000 miners opposed.

These unofficial figures, compiled by the Associated Press from reports over many areas not yet covered completely by official returns to the National Labor Relations Board, showed:

For authority to call a strike, 106,927; against, 14,001.

The first 30 of 90 areas set up by the National Labor Relations Board to poll some 400,000 miners on a wartime strike vote reported officially tonight:

51,267 for authorizing a strike.

8,043 against.

This was a ratio of more than 6 to 1.

Thousands of eligibles failed to vote either way.

Official Figures From NLRB

These were official figures from the National Labor Relations Board.

Unofficial figures compiled by the Associated Press from scattered reports from more than the 30 areas officially reported showed 69,812 for and 10,452 against.

Howard Knuckles, leader of a United Mine Workers' local at Beckley, W.Va., predicted the final vote "will prove to the operators and to the Government as well that the miners are still behind their president, John L. Lewis."

The miners' present contract expires Saturday night. A majority for a strike, however, does not necessarily mean that a strike would be sure to follow.

Could Withhold Strike Call

Lewis could withhold the formal strike call pending new efforts to win for his unionists a 10-cent royalty for every ton of coal dug and other wage and working benefits.

And to prevent the shutdown of a vitally important part of the war-production program, there is always the possibility of Government seizure and operation of struck mines.

Such things were talked long in advance, on the theory that the voting miners would, as usual, back up Lewis in his negotiations with the mine operators.

Lewis has withheld a reply to Secretary Ickes, pending the outcome of the strike vote, on Ickes's request for a one-month extension of the present contract.

Retroactive Feature Opposed

Operators said they were willing to carry on the contract for one month, but objected to Ickes's suggestion that any eventual contract changes be made retroactive to April 1.

The operators did say they would be willing to start increases of $3.06 a week April 1. But these were increases already rejected by the mine workers.

"No progress" was the report today on union-operator conferences held even as the miners over the country took a few minutes—on their own time for the most part—to vote. Complete results of the voting bill will not be announced until tomorrow.

Lewis Rejects Wage Offer

It was learned that the operators had upped their wage increase offer to $1 a day, but that Lewis turned this down. Operators have shown no inclination to agree to the royalty proposal.

The miners in Lewis's own local district—he used to dig a lot of coal himself—were among the first to vote. This was at the Springfield (Ill.) Peabody Capital No. 57, where about 250 of the 330 members voted on their way to a 7 A.M. shift.

All through the day, in the rich [illegible] Pennsylvania, West Virginia and other mines in the East and South, and across to smaller workings in the Far West, the scene was much the same.

Miners wearing their traditional cap lamps filed past and dropped their ballots into boxes supervised by the National Labor Relations Board. "Quiet and orderly" was the general report.

The War Department announces the names of 3,159 United States soldiers killed in action in the European area, 7,936 wounded in the European and Pacific areas, and 3,348 held as prisoners of war by Germany. Following are lists for metropolitan New York, New Jersey and Connecticut:

MUNITIONS BULK LARGE IN LEND-LEASE GOODS

WASHINGTON, March 28 (AP)—Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, said today that planes, tanks, guns and other finished munitions constitute 58 per cent of all lend-lease goods sent to the Allies.

These munitions have been the equivalent of about 14 per cent of the American munition production, he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee at a closed session. His statement, advocating continuance of lend-lease for another year, was released to the press.

With outright sales of munitions to the Allies amounting to 2 per cent, he said:

"Thus 84 per cent of all our tremendously increased munitions production has been retained for use by our own armed forces."

Lend-lease shipments of iron and steel amounted last year to 4.6 per cent of our supply; food, 8 per cent; farm machinery, 3.7 per cent; tires and tubes, 5.4 per cent; cotton piece goods, 1.8 per cent; lumber and lumber products, 2.5 per cent; paper, 0.8 per cent, and pulp, 1.1 per cent.

Mr. Crowley approved the House amendments stating that nothing in the act shall be construed to authorize the President to enter into or carry out contracts with foreign Governments for post-war relief, rehabilitation or reconstruction. He said that neither he nor the President had taken the view that lend-lease was intended for such purposes.

Speed Manpower Bill, Roosevelt Asks Senate

Washington, March 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt today urged quick Senate passage of the compromise manpower bill to forestall an exodus of workers from war plants.

In a letter which Chairman Thomas (D., Utah) read to the Senate as it began consideration of the measure, the President said:

"The manpower situation is still serious. In the days ahead of us there will be great temptation for workers to leave war plants.

"The failure to enact this legislation will make our conduct of the war even more difficult."

Penalties Provided

The bill, which carries a threat of fine or jail for workers and employers alike who disregard job directives, just barely squeezed through the House.

The 167-to-160 margin by which it cleared the House was a tip-off to the opposition which was developing.

A compromise between the House work-or-jail bill and the milder measure which passed the Senate, the conference bill provides for a selective labor freeze at the discretion of War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes. Byrnes also would be authorized to establish plant employment ceilings and to regulate or forbid employers from hiring new workers.

8-Vote Margin Seen

Senator Johnson (D., Col.), who engineered the compromise, said he would be "very surprised" if the Senate margin in favor wasn't at least eight votes.

Senator Taft (Ohio), chairman of the Republican steering committe, foresaw "a bitter fight," and Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said, "I think there is a very good chance to defeat the conference report."

Every American not in uniform comes under terms of the manpower legislation.

The bill directs Byrnes to encourage local co-operative efforts of management, labor and agriculture and to use existing hiring channels when they are available.

Survey Is Proposed

Byrnes also would be ordered to survey manpower use and take steps to eliminate any labor hoarding or wastage he might find.

MAR 29 1945

No provision is made for forcing workers to move from one area to another to take new jobs, but the legislation permits them to be offered transportation costs if they volunteer to move.

Persons ordered to change jobs would hold the same re-employment rights to their original jobs as the draft act gives returning service men.

The legislation would expire June 30, 1946, or sooner if the President or Congress should declare the war ended before then.

'Small, Reasonable Profit' Is Asked by Meat Packers

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) The OPA tonight increased pork ration point values to spread small supplies more evenly, shortly after Senate investigators tossed back to OPA the packers' phase of the meat shortage problem.

The boost of one or two points a pound on most pork cuts and pork products will become effective next Sunday. Price Administrator Chester Bowles said an estimated five per cent less pork will be available for rationing in April than in March and the point increases are necessary to aid in getting a better distribution.

Increases also were ordered for lard, shortening, margerine, salad and cooking oil. Point values for all cuts of beef, lamb, veal and butter will remain unchanged.

The Senate Agriculture committee, investigating the civilian meat shortage, a short time earlier checked back to OPA the packers' demands for "a small, reasonable profit."

After hearing "big four" packer Thomas E. Wilson reiterate the testimony of other meat producers that OPA price ceilings are driving the industry into bankruptcy or government control, the Senate Agriculture committee dropped that phase of their inquiry.

Will Seek Agreement

Chairman Thomas (D.-Okla.) told the committee that attorneys for the packers and the OPA will try to work out an agreement. The committee will resume its inquiry into the asserted "price squeeze" next month if no agreement is reached meanwhile, he said.

Complaints of meat wholesalers will be heard when the committee resumes hearings next week.

The day produced these other highlights in the meat shortage situation:

1—Wilson, board chairman of Wilson & Company, testified that what was needed to increase the meat flow to civilian tables was price "encouragement" all the way back to the rancher on the production line. The only way to stop black markets, he said, was to drop meat price controls—"and I don't advocate that."

2—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said any increases of ceiling prices would not increase meat production.

3—Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, said the effect of Lend-Lease on food supplies for United States armed forces and civilians has been "greatly overstated."

4—A special seven-member committee created yesterday by the House to look into food shortages, expected to start its activities tomorrow. Chairman Anderson (D.-N. M.) said he intends to inquire into situations in several cities, with a special lookout for black markets.

Wilson told the Senate Agriculture committee that OPA price controls must be eased or the government will have to take over the entire packing industry.

"We can't buy livestock at controlled prices and sell at controlled prices without losing money," Wilson testified.

In the past, he said, the packers had been able to "use our own abilities" to adjust their difficulties but now are "tied to the rules and regulations of the agencies here."

"We are losing on both pork and beef — substantial amounts," he said.

"Does that mean that every hog and every steak you buy means more loss?" inquired Chairman Thomas (D.-Okla.).

"Absolutely."

Thomas asked if Wilson & Company could continue without borrowing money from the government if the war lasted "three or four years."

"The government would have to come in," Wilson replied. "We are borrowing money now. We couldn't afford to borrow from the government or anybody else and go on."

Last year, Wilson said, the hog situation was "favorable" although his company lost money on beef.

"You made money because the farmer took a licking on hogs," put in Senator Shipstead (R.-Minn.).

Wilson said it was "unfortunate" if farmers lost on hogs.

Thomas asked just what Wilson thought should be done to correct the situation he had described.

"Just put us on a basis where we can make a small, reasonable profit," Wilson replied, adding that he would leave the details up to OPA.

Under questioning from Senator Bushfield (R.-S. D.), Wilson said he was not recommending removal of ceiling prices on live cattle. What was needed, the packer said, was "encouragement" all the way back to the rancher.

Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) remarked that "encouragement" was another name for subsidies.

Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) said that he was interested in "getting production."

"The OPA says there is meat but if you ask housewives they will say there isn't any," the Nebraskan added.

"Right," came a shout from a woman in the audience.

Thomas asked whether OPA's order yesterday raising by 25 cents to $1.50 a hundred pounds the amount the government will pay for pork purchases was not helpful."

"Yes, but it is not enough," Wilson replied. "It will just about take care of half our losses."

OPA, Packers Left To Settle Own 'Gripes'

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Senate investigators dropped their inquiry into the meat packers' difficulties with OPA controls today with the understanding that attorneys for both sides will try to work out an agreement.

Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) announced the understanding to the Senate Agriculture Committee, which is investigating the wheel food situation. He said the committee would resume its study of the alleged "price squeeze" on the packers next month if no agreement is reached with OPA.

The committee recessed until next week, when complaints by wholesalers of meat will be heard.

Black Market In N.Y.

Just before it quit, Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) declared he had received information that 90 per cent of all meat sold in New York city is "black market" and sold at above 40 cents a pound. He asked James F. Brownlee, deputy price administrator, if he did not think that under such circumstances price controls should be lifted.

"I don't know where you got this information but I doubt that 90 per cent of meat sold in New York is on the black market," Brownlee replied.

Brownlee added that he did not believe lifting price controls would cure the black market.

Thomas E. Wilson told Senate investigators today that OPA price regulations are "squeezing" meat packers and must be eased or the Government will have to take over the whole industry.

The board president of Wilson & Co., one of the "Big Four" packers, thus backed up testimony of smaller packers that OPA is driving the industry into bankruptcy.

"We can't buy live stock at controlled prices and sell at controlled prices without losing money." Wilson testified, adding that the "squeeze" is "getting awfully close to our breathing apparatus now."

Called Un-American

"It isn't right," Wilson told the committee. "It isn't fair. It is un-American and it should be changed."

Wilson said elimination of the black market would immediately improve the food-supply situation.

"The bootlegging of whisky is child's play compared to the bootlegging of meat," he said.

Hard To Wipe Out

Asked by Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) whether he believes the black market can be wiped out, Wilson said it would be "very difficult."

In addition to steps against the black market, Wilson said that cattle feeders should be given more assurance that they will be able to operate profitably.

"They have been scared to death during the last year by changes in OPA regulations," he said, adding:

"The present situation probably will get much worse unless corrected, and I think that applies to the whole industry."

Changes Will "Help Some"

He said the increased beef subsidy, effective April 1 and the higher pork ceiling prices for Government sales, announced yesterday, would "help some," but that the relief was only about half enough.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, in a brief statement read to the committee for him, said any increase of ceiling prices would not increase meat production.

The meat shortage, he said, is due to the huge demands of the military and other shipments abroad, as well as the necessity at the same time of meeting domestic needs.

Increase Might Cut Supplies

The Secretary said that actually an increase in ceilings might have the immediate effect on cutting supplies, since farmers might retain their animals for better prices.

War Food Administrator Marvin Jones told a radio audience last night that military, lend-lease and foreign relief calls on America's food larder will grow

CIO, AFL, Chamber Sign Labor, Management Charter

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) A signed agreement to strive for labor peace when the war's end brings fewer jobs and lower production was announced today by leaders of the CIO, AFL and Chamber of Commerce.

The ambitious "new charter for labor and management," as it was titled, lined the business group up for postwar recognition of "the fundamental rights of labor to organize and to engage in collective bargaining," free from laws inhibiting those rights.

By the same token, it would pledge labor to support the free enterprise system and "reasonable profit," avoid encroachment on the rights of management, encourage efficiency in production, and discourage "unnecessary governmental interference" with business.

Flanked by AFL president William Green and CIO president Philip Murray at a crowded news conferenec in the U. S. chamber's headquarters, Eric Johnston, president of the chamber, read the document aloud. A few minutes later all three signed it.

Each expressed confidence that his own organization would approve the peace charter, and Murray observed that it was being submitted especially to the people of the United States for their approval—"we want people to talk and think about it and give us their counsel."

The code proposes, in effect, to substitute voluntary machinery and peaceful settlement of disputes for the wartime controls which now bind unions and employers to sustained production.

Mediation Board Likely

Although the three principals denied foreknowledge of the type of mechanism sought, it appeared that the creation of mediation and arbitration machinery might be attempted by a committee of 15 to 20 persons now being set up.

Conspicuously absent was Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, or any other representative of that industrial group. Johnston said Mosher attended one conference on the charter, did not respond to invitations to two others, and did not give a reason for NAM's nonparticipation. Johnston voiced hope that NAM would join.

Later, in New York, Mosher released the text of a letter he wrote March 9 to Johnston and in which he said in part:

"After one short evening of discussion (I had never seen the proposed statement before that time) I could not commit the NAM to a document of such importance to my country's welfare without consideration by my colleagues on the board of directors. Our board meets March 28. I do hope that as soon thereafter as possible it will be possible for you and me and the labor representatives to meet again."

In a statement released simultaneoulsy with the letter, the NAM president declared that the seven point labor-management program was "good as far as it goes, but is nowhere near specific enough."

"The seven principles that make up the so-called charter are generalities on which there is already wide agreement," Mosher said. "What the people of America want to know is what is going to be done about making them work. This is a job for congress, with labor and management furnishing all the practical help that is within their power." x x x

"Furthermore, we must not forget that labor and management are not the only parties involved. All consumers — farmers, housewives, professional people—the whole public are the ones who pay the price. They must have their interest recognized."

The charter obviously was aimed at laying two disturbing ghosts—labor's fear that management would use an oversupply of workers after the war as a means of "busting" unions, and management's fear that the same oversupply would lead to a violent leftwing sweep in the labor movement.

Predicting "a new era based upon a vastly expanding economy and unlimited opportunities for every American," the charter asserted that management - labor unity, achieved in wartime, must be continued in peace.

The "practical partnership" sought, it was stated, should be based on a code of principles the first of which was stated as follows:

"Increased prosperity for all involves the highest degree of employment at wages assuring a steadily advancing standard of living. Improved production efficiency and technological advancement must, there, be constantly encouraged."

SHERWOOD URGES U.S. KEEP ISLES

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) Robert Sherwood, back from the Pacific, said today "I hope and pray we will hold on to those islands which we have paid such a tremendous price to win."

The author, who made the trip as a special representative of Navy Secretary Forrestal, told a news conference that such an attitude "is not imperialism; it is just common sense."

Sherwood was not prepared to discuss in detail the extent to which he would pursue the policy of retaining control of the islands, but explained his idea was to keep enough to insure unquestioned control of the Pacific.

"It is not necessary," he added, "to have physical ownership of the property."

Sherwood said he was convinced that propaganda aimed at undermining the morale of the Japanese civilian population was worthwhile and could be effective.

The problem of civilian populations is a serious one but it is working itself out, he noted.

The islands now in our control,

CONFIRM GENERALS

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) The Senate confirmed unanimously today the promotions of nine lieutenant generals to the rank of full general.

The action, recommended by Five-Star General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, gives four-star rank to the following:

Joseph T. McNarney, Omar N. Bradley, Carl Spaatz, George C. Kenney, Mark W. Clark, Walter Krueger, Brehon B. Somervell, Jacob L. Devers, and Thomas T. Handy.

ARGENTINA READY TO REESTABLISH AMERICAN UNITY

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP) Diplomats of the Americas worked today on procedure toward recognizing Argentina and re-establishing diplomatic unity in the hemisphere.

After almost a year of isolation, the Argentine government, which the State department called Fascist last fall, prepared to take its place in American councils. It now has declared war on the Axis.

A meeting of Latin American ambassadors with Assistant Secretary of State Nelson Rockefeller is set for Saturday.

This gives the other nations a few days to watch how Buenos Aires carries out its declarations of war, although all concerned have made it a point to say that Argentina has given no evidence of lack of sincerity.

The meeting Saturday is expected to be followed by an announcement in the Pan-American union stating that Argentina is in a position to sign the Mexico City resolutions. These impose obligations to carry out measures required for western hemisphere security.

One of the main difficulties, they said, is the attitude of the United States public, faced with a sharp switch in its government's policy expressions towards Argentina. The stand taken by the State department now is that its policy of non-intervention prevents this government from basing its relations with Argentina on that country's politics.

It is well accepted among diplomats that there was no thought last fall of ever recognizing Argentina so long as her present leaders remain in power.

However, the attitude now is that Argentine compliance with specific security measures against aggression and Nazi infiltration would remove the grounds on which recognition had been refused.

TOKYO SAYS KYUSHU HIT BY NAVY PLANES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28. — (AP) The Blue network tonight intercepted a Tokyo radio broadcast which said American carrier planes attacked Kyushu, southern island of Japan, early Thursday (Tokyo time).

Tokyo previously had reported a carrier strike on Kyushu Wednesday afternoon as a followup of two B-29 strikes there Tuesday.

Neither of the carrier plane strikes nor the second B-29 raid have been confirmed by Allied sources.

Flag Raiser Dies On Iwo

Tallahassee, Fla., March 28 (AP)—Platoon Sergeant Ernest I. Thomas, Jr., the Marine who planted the United States flag on Mount Suribachi during the invasion of Iwo Jima, was killed in action on the island several days later, the Marine Corps notified his mother here today.

Mrs. Thomas, an employé of the Florida State Road Department, said Lieut. Gen. A. A. Vandergrift, commandant of the Marine Corps, advised her that her son died March 3, his birthday.

Sergeant Thomas, 20, took over his platoon after the lieutenant in charge was wounded and led the charge of his unit up the volcanic Mount Suribachi on the third day of the Iwo Jima invasion.

He placed the flag in position atop the mountain, then had his men dig in around it to guard it through the night.

Urges Passage of Compromise Manpower Control Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) Senator Hart (R-Conn.), former admiral, declared today that a "slogging, wearisome period of war" remains to be fought against the Japanese as he urged Senate passage of the manpower control bill.

Hart, who came to the Senate from the Navy's General Board only six weeks ago after more than half a century of naval service, told the Senate that to his mind, "the Japanese have all along been a greater menace to this nation of ours than have the Germans."

In his first speech on the Senate floor, Hart asserted the United States faces the "grave danger" of a major slump in all fields, "most particularly in the production field" as soon as the victory in Europe is assured.

He pointed to a general fall in production in the latter part of 1944 as the result of a "wave of optimism and wishful thinking."

When the war in Europe ends, he said, "what happened last Fall is likely to look quite mild by comparison. The slump may well be far-reaching and not nearly so easy to recover from as was the case last autumn. Moreover, that slump is very likely to extend to our Allies in even greater measure, which is, if possible, an even more menacing situation."

Hart asserted that passage of the conference compromise bill, which barely squeezed through the House yesterday, is important because "it will help maintain production during the transition stage when our principal efforts are shifted from the European to the Pacific theater.

Hits "Chiselers, Loafers"

"It will help bring those comparatively few chiselers and loafers who have contributed nothing of use to the country's war efforts into line with those workers who have patriotically stayed on the job to provide the maximum for our armed forces.

"And it will show our fighting men that we at home realize that the war is not yet over; that we are backing them to the limit in their fight in the Pacific; and that we are as determined as they to get the war over with so that they may come home."

The former admiral predicted that a full, decisive victory over the Japanese will not be a short or easy task.

"They are already rather badly beaten on the sea and in the air, but the Japanese army has not suffered very much. A great deal of war on that front probably still lies ahead of us; and we must realize that the enthusiasm which has often carried our troops along may not entirely endure.

"We all know that a principal hope of the Japanese is that we will simply get tired of it and not finally go on to Tokyo and achieve a really crushing victory.

"Quite likely, Japan will approach the United Nations with peace offers. If so, they will make a lot of promises and the case will be made out so attractive that the incentive to acceptance will be strong in many minds.

"Those proposals must not be accepted unless they amount to unconditional surrender. Otherwise, we will not have rid the world of the menace of Japanese militarism which, even before 1939, constituted the greatest peril to us."

Senator Austin (R-Vt.) pleaded for passage of the manpower measure to back up the army forces, asserting it was better to listen to the military leadership on military leads than to those who "don't know the difference between squads right and squads left."

"We must have in view that after the defeat of Hitler, we will have to concentrate our energies on the war in the Pacific and the filling of a longer pipeline," he said.

Austin said that after declaring war, it was Congress' duty to "wage it successfully" with all the resources of the nation.

PEACE W... G GIVEN SENATE

Fulbright Says It Must Have Plan If It Rejects Roosevelt's

Washington, March 28 (AP)—The Senate was told today it must offer its own plan for world peace if it rejects any future program submitted to it by President Roosevelt.

Freshman Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), a leading advocate of United States membership in a world organization when he was a House member, declared to his new colleagues, "We shall be negative again at our own peril."

"If the Senate cannot consent to the measures presented by the Executive," he declared, "it seems to be imperative that it offer our nation and world an alternative."

Wants Definite Foreign Policy

Fulbright called for a "definite and settled" American foreign policy to replace one which he said is "improvised from day to day in answer to fleeting and superficial emotions."

The Senator also said the proposals of Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco will be "empty shells" if nations do not also agree on freedom of information and on how to handle trade barriers, cartels, armaments and international monetary, aviation and oil matters.

As sacrifices to a lasting peace, Fulbright said Americans must be ready to give up some of their "most cherished" prejudices in addition to their economic concessions. Anti-Russian and anti-British prejudices, he said, should be re-examined in an attempt to put "positive forces of public opinion" behind a plan for world peace.

Self-Interest Only Involved

Urging that the Senate begin soon to consider the basic principles of a long range foreign policy, Fulbright told senators:

"It should be made clear to our people that in entering an international organization, we are doing so, not because of charity or because we love the British, French, Chinese or Russians. If there is reason for doing it, it is for our own national self-interest.

"We have more to lose from chaos, and more to gain from the pursuits of peace, than any other people."

Orderly Change In World Security Setup Urged

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Herbert Evatt, Australian Minister for External Affairs, urged today that the world security organization make provision for its own "orderly change."

There should be periodical reviews of the charter, which the United Nations plan to draw up at their San Francisco meeting, Evatt said.

He and Francis M. Ford, Australia's Deputy Prime Minister, held a news conference. They are both delegates to the San Francisco meeting next month, prior to which they will attend a British Commonwealth conference in London.

Evatt's proposal for charter review to "meet the growing and changing needs of the peoples of the world" is in line with a proposal by Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), a United States delegate, to make the organization more flexible.

Evatt said several points in the Dumbarton Oaks agreement, the forerunner of the proposed security charter, are "obscure and vague." Among these points, he declared, is the exact role of the assembly in bringing to the attention of the organization those situations which might threaten world peace.

5 Quebec Members Vote Against Security Bid

Ottawa, March 28 (AP) — Five Quebec independents cast the only dissenting votes today as Parliament approved the Government's program to accept the invitation to the San Francisco conference and take part in the formation of a world security organization.

The vote was 202 to 5. Objecting French-speaking members rejected a personal appeal from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King either to vote for the resolution or absent themselves in order to make the vote unanimous. Those supporting the resolution included approximately 50 French-speaking members in the Government's ranks.

FORTRESS BLOWS AGAINST JAPAN TO BE DOUBLED

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP) Japan received blunt warning today that Superfortress blows against her empire will be doubled or tripled by summer.

It came from the best possible authority—General H. H. Arnold, chief of army airforces and boss of the 20th (Superfortress) airforce that already has raked the land of the rising sun from top to bottom.

Arnold likened the 20th airforce to a young lad who will reach his full growth by summer.

"If the Japanese are unhappy now," he told a news conference, "they'll soon be twice or three times as unhappy."

While emphasizing that he was not advancing the theory that airpower alone will win the war, Arnold promised on behalf of the air forces that "what we have done to Germany we are going to do to Japan."

Once Germany is defeated, he said, the work of the airforces will be "only half done" and "that's why we will need all airforce men to see that the war is finished."

Asked whether this means that the airforces would not be affected by the Army's V-E day demobilization plan, announced last autumn, he replied: "We are going to use every airplane we can effectively use against Japan even if it requires every plane now used in Europe."

Arnold said B-29 raids against the Japanese since the first three months of operations have been stepped up from an average of one every ten days by 50 planes to one every four days by 300 aircraft.

The air chief declared that the punishment inflicted upon Germany by bombing is an effective answer to the question whether the value of air power was over-estimated originally.

American and British airforces by striking at German industry, supplies and communications, Arnold said, made possible the invasion of Europe and then made it impossible for the Germans to stand on the Rhine against Allied ground armies.

"We had the power to pour it on, and we have poured it on," he said.

U.S. EXPERTS TO AID EUROPE

Ten Will Help Rehabilitate Belgian-French Industry

Washington, March 28 (AP)—The War Department said today that ten United States experts are going overseas to help rehabilitate Belgian-French industry. Others will follow later.

The first group, some of whom already are in Europe, will assist in restoring textile and clothing plants for production of military fabrics, clothing and equippage. Other experts will help in reconditioning and operating shoe, hose, paper and metal industries.

The names of the experts follow:

Walter S. Montgomery, president of Spartan Mills, Spartanburg, S.C.

Joseph Lanier, executive of West Point Manufacturing Company, West Point, Ga.

William D. Timmons, secretary-treasurer of Buckeye Fabric Finish Company, Coshocton,

Sen. Hart in Maiden Speech Warns of Long Pacific War

MAR 29 1945

Ohio.

Joseph Salvatore, president of a Millburn (N.J) firm bearing his name.

Maurice Neinken, president of Champion Pants Company, New York city.

Frank R. Reisenberger, president of Van Raalte Co., Inc., New York city.

Edward A. Gerhardy, president of Hansen Glove Company, Milwaukee, Wis.

A. E. Warren, vice president, Appalachian Mills, Knoxville, Tennessee.

Ames Stevens, textile manufacturer, Lowell, Mass.

Joseph R. Bentert, export manager of Holeproof Hosiery Company, New York city.

The consultants will wear officers' uniforms and insignia, except insignia of rank, and will go on army pay rolls during their assignments. They will remain in Europe from 60 to 90 days.

MAY HAVE DIED ON SHIP

Maryknoll Priest Said to Have Been on Craft We Sank

OSSINING, N. Y., March 28 (AP) —Maryknoll Fathers said today that Father William Cummings, Bataan chaplain whom the society credited with originating the phrase "There are no athiests in foxholes," may have died in the sinking of a prison ship.

The Catholic Foreign Mission Society said Miss Edith Cummings of San Francisco, the priest's sister, had been informed by Maj. Albert Talbot, military chaplain, that Father Cummings was aboard a Japanese prison ship sunk last December by an American submarine. She said Major Talbot added that the priest's name was not listed among the missing, thus leaving a hope that he may be still alive as a prisoner.

Father Cummings left his Manila post to enter the Chaplains Corps. Once, while a field hospital was being bombed, he calmed patients by reciting the Lord's Prayer.

As he ended the prayer, Father Cummings said to an orderly:

"You take over—and put a tourniquet on my arm, will you?"

He had been wounded by a bomb fragment during the attack.

Roosevelt Sends Message for Ship Named for 'Missy'

PASCAGOULA, Miss., March 28 (AP).—The S. S. Marguerite A. Le Hand, carrying the blessing of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, slipped into Singing River today on the first stage of a journey which its builder said was "aimed at Tokyo."

The 18,000-ton cargo vessel named in honor of the late "Missy" Le Hand, longtime confidential secretary to the President, was sponsored by Mrs. Thomas E. Collins, Somerville, Mass., Miss Le Hand's niece. The President's message, telegraphed from the White House and read at the launching ceremony, said:

"Mrs. Roosevelt and I send warm greetings to all who attend the launching of the S. S. Marguerite A. Le Hand in the hope that a craft which bears so honored a name will make many a safe journey and always find a peaceful harbor."

Mrs. A. M. Digiusto, of Somerville, Miss Le Hand's nurse during her fatal illness last year, stood on the launching platform.

"Missy would have loved it," she said. "She would have had more fun than anybody here. I think too, she would have liked to feel that she is still serving the Commander-in-Chief."

EISENHOWER (375)

PARIS, MARCH 28-(AP)-GEN.EISENHOWER SAYS THE GERMAN ARMY AS A MILITARY FORCE ON THE WESTERN FRONT "IS A WHIPPED ARMY," BUT THAT THE EXTENT OF THE ALLIED DRIVE BEYOND THE RHINE IS LIMITED AT PRESENT BY THE PROBLEM OF SUPPLY.

IN A TYPICALLY FRANK DISCUSSION WITH CORRESPONDENTS YESTERDAY UPON HIS RETURN FROM THE FRONT, THE ALLIED SUPREME COMMANDER DECLARED THAT THE TREMENDOUS VICTORY ACHIEVED IN THE RHINELAND DOES NOT BAR THE ENEMY FROM ORGANIZING A FRONT AT SOME POINT "WHERE OUR MAINTENANCE IS STRETCHED TO THE LIMIT."

"I AM NOT WRITING OFF THIS WAR," HE SAID. "NO ONE KNOWS WHAT THE GERMAN WILL DO IN HIS OWN COUNTRY, AND HE IS TRYING HARD."

"MY HONEST OPINION," HE ADDED, "IS THAT THERE WILL BE NO NEGOTIATED UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER. THERE WILL BE AN IMPOSED UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER.

"BETWEEN THE ALLIES IN THE WEST AND RUSSIA WE WILL TAKE OVER GERMANY. WHETHER THE GERMANS KNOW IT OR NOT, WE WILL KNOW IT IS UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER."

EISENHOWER SAID THAT WHILE PONTOON BRIDGES ARE BEING THROWN ACROSS THE RHINE IN 10 HOURS, IT TAKES TIME TO BUILD RAIL BRIDGES, AND LACK OF RAIL COMMUNICATIONS WILL LIMIT THE EASTWARD DRIVE FOR THE PRESENT.

HE TOLD CORRESPONDENTS THAT THE DISTANCE FROM RAIL HEADS THAT THE DISTANCE FROM RAIL HEADS TO WHICH ARMIES CAN BE SUPPLIED BY TRUCKS SETS THE LIMIT OF THE

GEN.EISENHOWER SAID THAT WHILE THE GERMANS ARE WHIPPED, HE SAW NO SIGN OF THEIR CAPITULATION. HE CAUTIONED CORRESPONDENTS AGAINST BEING TOO OPTIMISTIC REGARDING THE END OF THE WAR, AND SAID THERE WAS "DARN TOUGH FIGHTING AHEAD."

THE CROSSING OF THE MAIN, A CONSIDERABLE DISTANCE AWAY, WAS MADE AGAINST BUT LITTLE RESISTANCE.

HOPPING THE TWO MAJOR RIVERS IN THE SAME DAY THE INFANTRY DROVE INTO WIESBADEN WITHOUT A FIGHT AFTER BEATING DOWN STUBBORN RESISTANCE ON THE EAST SHORE OF THE RHINE.

THE GERMANS WERE JOLTED SO HARD BY THE MULTIPLE SURGE ACROSS THE RHINE THEY WERE UNABLE TO OFFER ANY DEFENSE OF THIS NOTED SPA, WHER WEALTHY ROMANS IN ANCIENT TIMES CAME FOR BATHS AND FOR THE CURATIVE EFFECTS OF THE WATERS.

MANY WORLD-RENOWNED HOTELS ARE SCATTERED AROUND THE FOOT OF THE TAUNAS MOUNTAINS IN THE AREA. MOST OF THEM WERE EMPTY. MANY OF THE TOWN'S 12,000 INHABITANTS, LIKEWISE, HAD FLED.

THE FOURTH ARMORED SPEARED 27 MILES NORTH OF HANAU TO A POINT SIX MILES SOUTHEAST OF GIESSEN, ENCOUNTERING ONLY SCATTERED RESISTANCE. ONE COLUMN AFTER A TWO-MILE GAIN THIS MORNING SPED 25 MILES FARTHER NORTH IN ABOUT 10 HOURS.

THE ONLY SIGN OF LIFE SHOWN BY THE GERMANS ONCE THE RHINE CROSSING WAS SECURED BY THE CAPTURE OF WIESBADEN WAS A LONE PLANE WHICH CAME OVER, FIRED A FEW STRAFING BURSTS, AND FOUND TWO P-47S ON ITS TAIL. AN ARTILLERY SPOTTER PLANE WHICH GOT IN THE WAY DIVED EARTHWARD LIKE A FRIGHTENED JAYBIRD.

THIS RHINE CROSSING WAS A BLOODY ONE DURING THE INITIAL STAGES. FROM THE TIME THE TROOPS STARTED ACROSS AT 1 A.M. UNTIL 8 A.M., THE GERMANS LAID IN FIERCE FIRE FROM 88S AND ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS. A NUMBER OF NAVY MEDIUM LANDING CRAFT FERRYING TROOPS ACROSS WERE HIT, AND THERE WERE CASUALTIES ON BOTH SIDES OF THE RHINE.

ANOTHER COLUMN OF THE FOURTH ARMORED GAINED 13 MILES, ENTERING ALTENSTADT 10 MILES NORTH OF HANAU, THEN PUSHING TO THE VICINITY OF NIEDER FLORSTADT, 19 SOUTH OF GIESSEN.

WORMS ON THE RHINE, MARCH 28-(AP)-THE BRONZE FIGURES OF MARTIN LUTHER AND HIS FELLOW REFORMERS, ONE OF PROTESTANTISM'S BEST KNOWN MONUMENTS, HAVE DEFIED THE BOMBINGS, STRAFINGS AND ARTILLERY FIRE OF 1945 MUCH AS THE ORIGINAL LUTHER DEFIED THE KAISER AND REICH OF 1512.

THE ENTIRE SO-CALLED LUTHER MONUMENT ESCAPED DAMAGE, ALTHOUGH EXPLOSIVES DUG CRATERS ONLY A SHORT DISTANCE FROM ITS BASE AND SHATTERED LESS DURABLE STRUCTURES AROUND IT.

THE VENERABLE ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL OF SAINTS PETER AND PAUL, WITH FOUNDATIONS DATING FROM THE YEAR 1000, EMERGED WITH ONLY BROKEN WINDOWS, A SOMEWHAT BURNED ROOF AND MINOR EXTERIOR DAMAGE. THE INTERIOR IS ENTIRELY IN ORDER. THE HISTORIC CRYPT OF THE RELATIVES OF THE ELEVENTH CENTURY EMPEROR KONRAD REMAINS UNTOUCHED.

THE LUTHERAN TRINITY (DRIFALTIGKEIT) CHURCH, BUILT IN 1709, IS WRECKED EXCEPT FOR ITS FOUR WALLS AND PART OF ITS TOWER.

THE STATUE OF LUTHER STANDS AS THE CENTRAL FIGURE OF THE WORLD-FAMED MONUMENT, HAND ON BIBLE, HEAD DEFIANTLY COCKED UPWARD AS THOUGH HE HAD REPEATED IN EFFIGY WHAT HE SAID MORE THAN 400 YEARS AGO TO CHARLES THE FIFTH AND THE ASSEMBLED REICHSTAG: "HERE I STAND, I CANNOT DO OTHERWISE. GOD HELP ME, AMEN."

THE OTHER FIGURES, UNSCATHED AND UNBENT ALTHOUGH FIRES ROUND ABOUT HAD TWISTED MANY OTHER METALS, ARE THOSE OF THE REFORMERS HUSS, SAVONAROLA, WYCLIFFE AND PETERUS WALDUS; ALSO LUTHER'S COLLABORATORS, MELANCHTHON AND REUCHLIN, AND HIS BLUEBLOODED SUPPORTERS, PHILLIP OF HESSE AND FREDERICK OF SAXONY.

THE U.S.NINTH ARMY, MARCH 27-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THIS ARMY'S BRASS HATS HAVE BEEN EXPECTING A COUNTERATTACK ON THE RIGHT FLANK, BUT 79TH DIVISION DOUGHBOYS HOLDING THAT POSITION IN THE FRONT LINES AREN'T WORRIED AT ALL.

"WE'VE BEEN HERE THREE DAYS AND KILLED 20 GERMANS," SAID STAFF SGT.GRADY E.EAVES OF JACKSON, TENN., LEADER OF A SEVEN-MAN OUTPOST ON THE EXTREME FRONT OF THE FLANK POSITION.

"THE FIRST NIGHT WE WIPED OUT A GERMAN PATROL OF FIVE AND LAST NIGHT WE GOT SIX. THE OTHER DAY WE CAPTURED TWO AIRMEN WHO SAID THEY THOUGHT THE AMERICANS STILL WERE TWO AND A HALF MILES ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RHINE."

EAVES' SMALL OUTPOST IS SITUATED IN A TWO-STORY RED BRICK HOUSE. PVT.WALLACE D.CARTER OF OCEAN VIEW, VA., STOOD IN THE DOORWAY, ONE RIFLE SLUNG OVER HIS SHOULDER.

"THERE'S A FEW SNIPERS OVER THERE," HE SAID WITHOUT CONCERN, AS IF HE WERE SAYING "IT MIGHT RAIN TODAY."

HE ADVISED VISITORS TO STAY AWAY FROM THE DOOR AND NOT TRY TO LOOK THROUGH THE RAILROAD UNDERPASS OUTSIDE, WHICH THE GERMANS HAD BEEN FIRING THROUGH WHEN THEY SAW ANYTHING MOVING.

PFC CLARENCE KAHLAR OF SUPERIOR, WIS., LAUGHED WHEN HE WAS ASKED WHERE THEY HAD BEEN SLEEPING. "WE DON'T," HE SAID. "WE HAVE CAUGHT A FEW WINKS ONCE IN A WHILE, BUT THERE ARE NO BEDS HERE AND WE WOULDN'T HAVE MUCH USE FOR THEM ANYHOW."

THEY HADN'T EATEN ANYTHING BUT K RATIONS SINCE THEY CROSSED THE RHINE EXCEPT A RABBIT OR TWO AND SOME POTATOES THEY HAD FOUND, KAHLAR SAID.

"DON'T TELL THEM ABOUT THE RABBITS AND HOW WELL WE ARE LIVING," WARNED PFC ALBERT M.JURMANSKI, 2171 NORTH MAPLEWOOD ST., CHICAGO.

"THEY MIGHT TRY TO GET OUR JOBS," ADDED PFC RAYMOND C.ROSS OF MADISON, IND. ROSS WAS STANDING IN THE HALL BEHIND THE FRONT DOOR WITH AN ANTI-TANK GUN IN HIS HANDS.

GUAM, THURSDAY, MARCH 29-(AP)-THE JAPANESE RADIO REPORTS INCREASING UNITED STATES NAVAL STRENGTH IN THE RYUKYU CHAIN AND PREDICTS AN AMERICAN INVASION OF OKINAWA, KEYSTONE ISLAND ON THE FORMOSA-JAPAN COMMUNICATIONS LINE.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS, SILENT ON INVASION INTENTS, ANNOUNCED CONTINUED BATTLESHIP AND CARRIER PLANE ATTCKS IN THE RYUKYUS.

TOKYO RADIO, REPORTING A RAID BY ABOUT 90 U.S. CARRIER PLANES ON KYUSHU, SOUTHERN JAPANESE HOME ISLAND, ALSO SAID "FOUR OR FIVE" AMERICAN NAVAL GROUPS WERE CRUISING IN THE VICINITY OF OKINWA, HAN 400 MILES FROM THE NIPPONESE MAINLAND.

THE JAPANESE BROADCASTERS HAD CONFUSING REPORTS ON THE PREVIOUSLY ANNOUNCED IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID AMERICANS HAD INVADED THE KERAMA ISLANDS, 15 MILES WEST OF OKINAWA'S SOUTHERNMOST TIP.

ONE REPORT BY DOMEI, JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, SAID "ONLY A FEW UNITS" [illegible] "ACTIVE FIGHTING ON LAND HAS NOT YET STARTED." A THIRD DECLARED "SAVAGE BATTLES ARE RAGING."

HOW UNITED STATES BATTLESHIPS LEISURELY PARADED OFF THE SOUTHEAST COAST OF OKINAWA AND POUNDED SHORE INSTALLATIONS WAS DESCRIBED BY HAMILTON FARON, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WITH THE FLEET.

THE BIG SHIPS FIRED 1500 TONS OF 16-INCH SHELLS MONDAY INTO GUN EMPLACEMENTS AND INDUSTRIAL AREAS, VIRTUALLY WIPING OUT THE TOWN OF NINATOGA WITHOUT DRAWING COUNTERFIRE FROM COASTAL GUNS.

OBSERVATION PLANES DIRECTING THE BATTLESHIPS' FIRE SWEPT THE OKINAWA COAST WITHOUT HINDRANCE FROM EITHER ANTIAIRCRAFT OR INTERCEPTING PLANES, FARON SAID.

U.S. WARSHIPS AND CARRIER PLANES BEGAN HAMMERING OKINAWA, ONLY 400 MILES EAST OF THE CHINA COAST, AND NEIGHBORING ISLANDS LAST FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, THEN RESUMED MONDAY AND TUESDAY, OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUES SAID.

THE TOKYO RADIO REPORT OF NAVAL CARRIER PLANES ATTACKING KYUSHU ISLAND FOLLOWED AN UNCONFIRMED ENEMY ANNOUNCEMENT THAT ABOUT 60 SUPERFORTRESS BOMBERS HIT THE ISLAND AROUND MIDNIGHT TUESDAY. SUCH AN ATTACK WOULD BE THE SECOND VISIT BY THE B-29S OVER KYUSHU IN 12 HOURS.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE REPORTING A SECOND B-29 RAID ON KYUSHU--AT MIDNIGHT TUESDAY, JAPANESE TIME--WAS BROADCAST WHILE PILOTS WERE RELATING THEIR EXPERIENCES OF THE FIRST STRIKE. THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION HERE OF THE LATEST TOKYO REPORT.

MORE THAN 200 SUPERFORTS FROM THE MARIANAS BLASTED SEVERAL KYUSHU TARGETS IN THE TUESDAY NOON (10 P.M., MONDAY, EASTERN WAR TIME) ATTACK.

CPL.JACK A.BRAUTIGAN, (21ST STREET) RACINE, WIS., SAID HE SAW "OTHER BOMBS FALL INTO A RAMP SECTION" OF TACHIARAI AIRDROME AFTER THE FIRST EXPLOSIVES WRECKED A BUILDING AREA THERE. "ELEVEN PLANES, MOST OF THEM SINGLE ENGINE FIGHTERS, WERE BURNING OR DAMAGED ON THE FIELD WHEN WE CAME OVER."

HE SAID HIS B-29 SQUADRON DID NOT ENCOUNTER ANY AIRBORNE INTERCEPTORS OR ANY FLAK. WEATHER WAS GOOD AND VISIBILITY EXCELLENT, FOR THE HIGH ALTITUDE RAID, HE ADDED.

LT.WILFRED N.LIND (4245 SNELLING AVE.), MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., A BOMBER COMMANDER, SAID BOMBS FROM HIS PLANE "FELL RIGHT INTO THE SHOP AREA ON THE FIELD."

OVER THE OMURA TARGET AREA, JAPANESE FIGHTERS APPEARED "BUT DIDN'T SEEM EAGER TO DIE," RELATED SECOND LT.RICHARD L.DONALD-

SON, A PILOT FROM TRACY, MINN.

LT.RALPH E.MILLER, (232 STATE ST.), EATON RAPIDS, MICH., SAID JAPANESE FLAK WAS "LIGHT BUT ACCURATE ENOUGH TO LEAVE US WITH A FEW HOLES."

LT.ELDO PLATTE, DENVER, IOWA, WHOSE CREW HAD FLOWN SEVEN MISSIONS SINCE MARCH 4, SAID "I SAW EIGHT CRATERS IN THE RUNWAY ON TACHIARAI FIELD."

TWO ZEKES (FIGHTERS) LATER ATTACKED ANOTHER FORMATION BUT ONE WAS SHOT DOWN AND THE OTHER DRIVEN OFF, SAID LT.WILLIAM C.CHENEY. (HOME UNAVAILABLE)

HEADQUARTERS OF THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND ANNOUNCED NONE OF THE SUPERFORTS WAS LOST ON THE KYUSHU RAID.

ARMY AIR FORCES, PACIFIC HEADQUARTERS-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE STORY OF COME CLOSER, KONTAGIOUS KATIE AND PUNJAB, THREE SEVENTH ARMY AIR FORCE LIBERATOR BOMBERS EACH WITH 100 MISSIONS TO ITS CREDIT, IS A SAGA OF THE GROUND CREWS WHO KEEP AMERICA'S WAR PLANES FLYING.

COMBINED FLYING TIME OF THE THREE, WHILE HITTING JAPANESE BASES FROM TARAWA TO IWO JIMA, TOTALLED SIX FULL MONTHS OF COMBAT HOURS, COVERING ABOUT 636,000 AIR MILES.

THE TRIO DROPPED A TOTAL OF 690 TONS OF BOMBS ON THE ENEMY DURING 16 MONTHS IN WHICH THE SEVENTH AAF MOVED 5,000 MILES CLOSER TO JAPAN'S FRONT DOOR, AND EACH FLIGHT MEANT WORK FOR THE GROUND CREWS.

"WE WORKED 30 HOURS STRAIGHT ONE TIME IN THE GILBERTS TO READY COME CLOSER FOR ITS NEXT MISSION," SAID MASTER SGT.JAMES D.LANCE, MCMINNVILLE,TENN., THE BOMBER'S GROUND CREW CHIEF, RECALLING THE TIME THE BOMBER CAME HOME WITH A WING BADLY TORN BY A 20 MM SHELL BURST.

KONTAGIOUS KATIE HAS A RECORD OF 91 MISSIONS STARTED AND 91 COMPLETED. IT WASN'T UNTIL HER 92ND MISSION THAT SHE WAS FORCED TO RETURN TO BASE WITHOUT COMPLETING HER ASSIGNMENT.

PUNJAB HAS NEEDED 10 ENGINE CHANGES, SAID MASTER SGT.MELVIN L.HOLTZ, OLIN,IOWA.

"PUNJAB HASN'T GIVEN US MUCH TROUBLE," HOLTZ SAID, WITH MODEST PRIDE IN HIS CREW AND PLANE. "IT'S HAD ENGINES GO HAYWIRE AND BEEN PUNCTURED BY JAP FLAK AND MACHINEGUN FIRE. BUT WE FIX IT AND KEEP IT FLYING. SHE LOOKS WORN AND HER PAINT JOB'S DRAB, BUT DON'T BE DECEIVED--PUNJAB'S A FINE AIRPLANE."

(210) ZAMBOANGA,MINDANAO,MARCH 20-(DELAYED)-(AP)-IT WASN'T A GREAT MARINE VICTORY WHEN THE LEATHERNECKS OCCUPIED THEIR FIRST ISL IN THE PHILIPPINES, BUT IT GAVE A GROUP OF THE BOYS SOMETHING TO TELL THEIR GRANDCHILDREN.

ELEVEN OF THEM HAD BEEN SERVING IN NECESSARY BUT ROUTINE JOBS AS ORDERLIES AND SENTRIES ABOARD THE FLAGSHIP OF REAR ADM.FORREST B.ROYAL, COMMANDER SIXTH AMPHIBIOUS GROUP. WHEN THE ARMY DROVE ASHORE NEAR ZAMBOANGA IN MARCH, THEY BEGAN TO GET RESTLESS.

EVERY MARINE, IT SEEMS, WANTS TO TAKE AN ISLAND.

SO ONE AFTERNOON A LANDING PARTY HIT THE BEACHES OF LITTLE SANTA CRUZ ISLAND, OFF ZAMBOANGA, AND QUICKLY RAISED THE AMERICAN FLAG. THE SAND SPIT IS 100 YARDS WIDE BY 400 LONG.

NAVY CMDR.LELAND R.LAMPMAN, ANGOLA, IND., LED THE PARTY WHICH INCLUDED SGT.NEAL J.MARTIN, SIOUX FALLS, S.D.; CORP.JOSEPH R. TERRELL, AVERY ISLAND, LA.; PFCS JAMES F.LEHNERT, BALTIMORE; SAM HIMBA, CHICAGO; RAYMOND A.HONEYMAN, BUCYRUS, N.D.; JOHN A.YOUNKER, DETROIT; CYRIL WADZITA, NOKOMIS, ILL., AND WILLIAM B.COEFE, COLUMBUS, OHIO.

WHAT THE BOYS PROBABLY WON'T TELL THEIR GRANDCHILDREN IS THAT THE ISLAND WAS UNOCCUPIED AND THAT THEIR MISSION WAS TO ESTABLISH A RECREATION SPOT FOR NAVAL MEN SUPPORTING THE ARMY FIGHT NORTH OF ZAMBOANGA.

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE,PHILIPPINES-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE BIZARRE LUZON CAMPAIGN WITNESSED JUST ABOUT EVERYTHING--INCLUDING FOUR-ENGINED LIBERATORS FLYING IN CLOSE SUPPORT OF INFANTRY.

ADJUSTING THEMSELVES TO THE NEEDS OF THE MOMENT, THE BIG BOMBERS DROPPED 1,000-POUND BOMBS WITHIN 1,000 YARDS OF INFANTRY LINES DAY AFTER DAY WITHOUT ONCE HITTING THE AMERICAN LINES BY MISTAKE.

PILOTS OF THE FAMED "JOLLY ROGERS" GROUP OF THE FIFTH AIR FORCE TOOK THEIR BIG SHIPS DOWN TO 2,000 FEET FOR THE DROPS. A CONCUSSION FROM A 1,000-POUND BOMB CAN BE FELT AT 10,000 FEET.

PILOT LT.DAVID A.SIMONS, TULSA, OKLA., AND ENGINEER CPL. JOSEPH M.PARDON, OF CONRAN, MO., DESCRIBED THE BOMB RUNS AS A 200-MILES-PER-HOUR RIDE OVER THE ROUGHEST ROAD IN THE WORLD. SOMETIMES IT FELT AS THOUGH THE BOMBERS WERE TRYING TO BLOW THEMSELVES UP.

WHEN CLOUDS WERE LOW, THE BOMBERS WENT DOWN IN THEM, RISKING A CRASH. ONE TARGET WAS A MOUNTAIN TOP FULL OF ENEMY ENTRENCHMENTS. CPL.ALAN M.BONNAN, (6607 NORTH 10 ST.), PHILADELPHIA, SAID THE PLANE FLEW SO LOW HE COULD "SEE THE BOMBS BLOW THE TOP OFF THE MOUNTAIN."

"WE REALLY COVERED THOSE MOUNTAIN EMPLACEMENTS," SAID CPL. JOHN M.DARCY, (1183 GLENWOOD AVE.), PITTSBURGH.

"WE ALSO HAD TO SWEAT OUT THE TAKEOFF," ADDED LT.PETER DITO, BARDIER, OF SAN FRANCISCO.

"WE CARRIED 10,400 POUNDS OR 2,400 POUNDS MORE THAN THE GE LOAD."

BUENOS AIRES, MARCH 28-(AP)-ARGENTINA, ACTING TO IMPLEMENT HER DECLARATION OF WAR ON THE AXIS, TODAY APPOINTED AN ARMY COLONEL TO SUPERVISE COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITES OF AXIS NATIONALS.

IT WAS LEARNED THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR HAD BEEN ASKED TO CONFINE HIMSELF TO HIS HOME UNDER POLICE VIGILANCE.

IN DIPLOMATIC ACTIVITY, ARGENTINA WAS LAYING THE GROUNDWORK FOR ADMISSION TO THE RANKS OF THE UNITED NATIONS, AND ULTIMATE RECOGNITIO OF PRESIDENT EDELMIRO FARRELL'S REGIME.

THE TENOR OF YESTERDAY'S COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCING THE GOVERNMENT'S DECISION INDICATED IT HOPED TO DO ITS SHARE TO CONSOLIDATE THE WESTER HEMISPHERE'S DEFENSES AGAINST AGGRESSION AND TO DEFEAT THE AXIS POWER

REACTION ABROAD TO THE DECLARATION OF WAR WAS RECEIVED IN BUENOS AIRES WITH SATISFACTION AND UNDOUBTEDLY WILL SPUR THE GOVERNMENT'S EFFORTS TO WORK OUT ANSWERS TO REMAINING PROBLEMS.

THE DECLARATION, INTENDED FRANKLY TO END ARGENTINA'S DIPLOMATIC ISOLATION, CAME IN A DECREE WHICH SAID THE STEP WAS TAKEN AGAINST JAPAN BECAUSE OF HER ATTACK ON THE UNITED STATES AND AGAINST GERMANY BECAUSE SHE WAS AN ALLY OF JAPAN. THE DECREE SAID THE GOVERNMENT WOU ADHERE TO THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE INVITATION ISSUED BY THE MEXICO CITY CONFERENCE.

ONE OF THE FIRST STEPS TO PUT ARGENTINA'S DIPLOMATIC HOUSE IN ORDEI WILL BE APPOINTMENT OF A NEW FOREIGN MINISTER. THE OFFICE IS HELD TEMPORARILY BY MINISTER OF FIN NCE CESAR AMEGHINO. INFORMED PERSONS SAID THE NEW MINISTER LIKELY WOULD BE OSCAR IBARRA GARCIA, UNDERSECRETARY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

THE PRO-DEMOCRATIC MORNING NEWSPAPER LA NACION, WHICH WITH OTHER LEADING DAILIES HAD BEEN CONSPICUOUSLY SILENT OVER THE TREND TOWARD A DECLARATION OF WAR, SAID TODAY THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION WOULD "BE CONSIDERED BY THE PEOPLE AS AN INTERPRETATION OF THEIR DESIRE FOR LIBERTY IN THE DOMESTIC SPHERE AND RESPECT FOR INTERNATIONAL RULES OF CONDUCT."

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL, MARCH 27-(AP)-JOSE GARI ... DANTAS, COTTON AUTHORITY, IS ENROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES AS BRAZILIAN DELEGATE TO THE INTERNATIONAL COTTON COMMITTEE REUNION IN WASHINGTON EARLY IN APRIL, IT WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

DANTAS IS SUPERINTENDENT OF THE PRODUCTION AND FINANCING COMMISSION AND CHIEF OF THE COTTON CLASSIFICATION SECTION OF THE SAO PAULO COTTON EXCHANGE.

BRAZIL--WHICH IN THE LAST DECADE HAS RISEN TO FOURTH PLACE AMONG THE WORLD'S COTTON GROWERS--IS UNDERSTOOD TO BE INTERESTED IN SOME KIND OF ALLOCATION OF WORLD MARKETS WITH THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA, INDIA AND EGYPT.

BRAZILIAN COTTON MEN VIEWED WITH PARTICULAR ALARM THE RECENT UNITED STATES CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL OF THE COTTON EXPORT SUBSIDY WHICH WOULD ALLOW THE UNITED STATES TO SELL IN THE WORLD MARKET WHERE BRAZIL'S PRICE IS THE LOWEST.

DANTAS, WHO ATTENDED THE MEXICO CITY CONFERENCE RECENTLY AS A MEMBER OF THE BRAZILIAN DELEGATION, WILL BE ASSISTED AT THE WASHINGTON MEETING BY FLAVIO RODRIGUES, PRESIDENT OF THE SAO PAULO COTTON GROWERS UNION. RODRIGUES ALREADY IS IN THE UNITED STATES. DANTAS IS SCHEDULED TO REACH MIAMI ON MARCH 28 ON THE PAN AMERICAN CLIPPER.

WASHINGTON, MARCH 28-(AP)-REPRESENTATIVES OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS MEET TODAY TO PUSH ALONG CONCRETE STEPS TOWARDS REUNITING ARGENTINA WITH THE REST OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE.

AMBASSADORS OF EACH OF THE GOVERNMENTS EXCEPT ARGENTINA ARRANGED TO GATHER AT 11:30 A.M. (EWT) WITH ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE NELSON ROCKEFELLER. PRESUMABLY THEY WILL DECIDE WHEN AND WHERE ARGENTINA WILL BE PERMITTED TO SIGN THE RECENT MEXICO CITY RESOLUTIONS. THESE GUARANTEE CONTINENTAL FORCE TO PUT DOWN AGGRESSORS AND SPECIFY ELABORATE DEFENSE MEASURES FOR THE HEMISPHERE.

WHEN THE SIGNATURE IS ARRANGED, PROBABLY IN MEXICO CITY, THE GOVERNMENTS WILL CONSULT ON RECOGNIZING ARGENTINA. FINAL ACTION IS EXPECTED WITHIN A WEEK.

MEANWHILE DIPLOMATS, KEEPING CLOSE WATCH ON BUENOS AIRES' FOLLOWUP TO THE WAR DECLARATION AGAINST THE AXIS, EXPRESSED SATISFACTION WITH THE DECREES BEING ISSUED THERE.
THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID THAT THE ARGENTINE ACTION "IS WELCOMED HERE."
LATIN AMERICAN DIPLOMATS IN WASHINGTON EXPRESSED CONSIDERABLE CONFIDENCE THAT THE PATH FOR ARGENTINA'S RETURN TO THE FOLD OF AMERICAN NATIONS IS NOW WELL GREASED AND THAT THE REUNION WILL BE MADE QUICKLY WITHOUT A HITCH.
THE STATE DEPARTMENT SPOKE MORE CAUTIOUSLY, BUT OFFICIALS THERE SAID PRIVATELY THEY CONSIDERED ARGENTINA'S ACTION YESTERDAY A DECISIVE STEP FORWARD WHICH SO FAR SHOWS NO EVIDENCE OF A LACK OF SINCERITY.
ARGENTINA ALSO MUST SIGN THE UNITED NATIONS DECLARATION BEFORE SHE CAN BE INVITED TO THE SAN FRANCISCO SECURITY CONFERENCE, AND THAT INVITATION IS CONTINGENT UPON APPROVAL OF BRITAIN, RUSSIA AND CHINA AS CO-SPONSORS OF THE GATHERING.

(370) (ADVANCE TO BE HELD FOR RELEASE, WHICH IS EXPECTED ABOUT 3:30 P.M.EASTERN WAR TIME TODAY, WEDNESDAY MARCH 28)
BY HARRY T.MONTGOMERY

MAR 29 1945

(ADVANCE)-OTTAWA MARCH 28-(AP)-CANADA, WHOSE EARLY WAR-TIME CONTROLS SET A PATTERN FOR MANY LATER ADOPTED IN THE UNITED STATES, HAD A SLIGHTLY LOWER COST OF LIVING INDEX IN 1944 BUT ANTICIPATES DIFFICULTY IN CONTROLLING PRICES IN THE PERIOD FOLLOWING THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY, THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED TODAY.
UPWARD PRESSURES ON PRICE CEILINGS ARE "LIKELY TO BE MUCH GREATER AFTER THIS WAR THAN IN 1918-19," THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD, COUNTERPART OF THE OPA IN THE UNITED STATES, DECLARED IN ITS ANNUAL REPORT COVERING THE CALENDAR YEAR 1944.
STATING THAT RISING COSTS HAVE PRODUCED THE MOST DIFFICULT PROBLEMS OF PRICE CONTROL AND THAT SOME PRODUCERS, "LOOKING TOWARD RECONVERSION, APPEARED TO HAVE "ASSUMED TOO READILY" CONTINUED SUCCESS OF THE STABILIZATION PROGRAM, THE BOARD WARNED:
"THERE IS NO IMMEDIATE PROSPECT OF ANY WIDESPREAD IMPROVEMENT IN CIVILIAN SUPPLY; IN SOME DIRECTIONS THE OUTLOOK IS FOR FURTHER RESTRICTIONS.
"NOR SHOULD ANY SUDDEN IMPROVEMENT BE EXPECTED IN FOOD AND TEXTILE SUPPLIES WITH VICTORY IN EUROPE, SINCE REQUIREMENTS FOR BOTH WAR AND RELIEF PURPOSES WILL REMAIN LARGE AND EUROPEAN PRODUCTION WILL TAKE TIME TO RECOVER."
SUSPENSION OF CANADA'S TWO-POUNDS-PER-PERSON-PER-WEEK MEAT RATIONING ON MARCH 1, 1944, AFTER A NINE-MONTHS ENFORCEMENT DID NOT GREATLY INCREASE MEAT CONSUMPTION, THE BOARD STATED, AND A RECORD PRODUCTION OF LIVESTOCK MADE IT POSSIBLE TO KEEP MEAT RATION-FREE.
HOWEVER, THE REPORT SAID, "THE MACHINERY FOR RATIONING IS BEING RETAINED FOR PROMPT RE-INTRODUCTION IF NECESSARY," PRESUMABLY IF CONDITIONS ABROAD NECESSITATE A CHANGE IN THE PRESENT POLICY OF THE ALLIED WAR COMMAND.

B33 E21 S24

THE REPORT SAID THAT SUPPLIES WOULD CONTINUE TIGHT FOR CANADIAN CONSUMERS IN SUGAR, BUTTER AND CANNED FRUITS, WITH AMOUNTS AVAILABLE RUNNING EVEN LOWER THAN IN 1944, AND IN TEXTILES, METAL CONSUMERS GOODS, AND BUILDING MATERIALS.
"THE VOLUME OF GOODS AND SERVICE AVAILABLE FOR CIVILIANS DURING THE YEAR WAS ON BALANCE SLIGHTLY LARGER THAN IN THE PREVIOUS YEAR," THE REPORT SAID, "BUT THERE WERE SHORTAGES IN MANY SECTIONS OF THE CIVILIAN ECONOMY." XXX
"SHORTAGES WERE INTENSIFIED BY THE CONTINUED GROWTH OF CONSUMER SPENDING, WHICH IN MANY INSTANCES MORE THAN OFFSET THE EFFECT OF INCREASED PRODUCTION."
CANADA'S COST OF LIVING INDEX IN DECEMBER, 1944, WAS 117.6, COMPARED WITH 118.4 IN DECEMBER, 1943. THIS MEANS LIVING COSTS AS CHARTED BY THE GOVERNMENT WERE 17.6 PER CENT ABOVE THOSE OF AUGUST, 1939, THE LAST PRE-WAR MONTH.
THIS COMPARED WITH A RISE OF 74 PER CENT IN 1914-19, THE BOARD NOTED.

ADD MONTGOMERY

OTTAWA - ADD MEAT (TOP ON A) XXX SHIPMENTS INCREASE.

REVIEWING CANADA'S DEALINGS WITH THE UNITED STATES IN MEAT, GARDINER SAID HE DID NOT KNOW WHAT LT.COL.R.W.OLMSTEAD, DIRECTOR OF SUPPLY FOR THE U.S.COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION, WAS REFERRING TO WHEN HE TOLD A SENATE SUB-COMMITTEE MONDAY THAT CANADA HAD REFUSED EXPORT OF MEAT TO THE UNITED STATES.

GARDINER SAID THAT IN 1940, WHEN CANADA WAS IN THE WAR AND THE UNITED STATES WAS NOT, CANADA IMPORTED 30,000,000 POUNDS OF PORK FROM THE UNITED STATES, WHERE THE PRICE WAS LOWER. THIS LED TO A CANADIAN EMBARGO ON SUCH IMPORTS.

IN 1941 THE AMERICAN PRICE WAS HIGHER ON HOGS, AND AN EMBARGO ON EXPORT TO THE UNITED STATES WAS ENFORCED SO THIS MEAT COULD GO TO GREAT BRITAIN.

IN 1942, HE SAID, THERE DEVELOPED IN CANADIAN CITIES A SHORTAGE OF BEEF ALONG WITH HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF BEEF CATTLE TO THE UNITED STATES, AND AS A RESULT CANADA CLOSED THE AMERICAN BOUNDARY TO PROTECT CANADIAN CONSUMERS. CANADA WAS NOT THEN SELLING BEEF TO GREAT BRITAIN, NEEDING IT AT HOME, GARDINER EXPLAINED, SO THAT HEAVY SHIPMENTS OF PORK PRODUCTS COULD GO TO BRITAIN.

AT THIS TIME, GARDINER SAID AMERICAN OFFICIALS IN WASHINGTON TOLD HIM THEY WANTED CANADIAN BEEF TO GO TO BRITAIN AND THAT THEY OBJECTED TO AMERICAN LEND-LEASE BEEF BEING SENT THERE.

FROM MAY 27, 1943, UNTIL MARCH 1, 1944, CANADA HAD MEAT RATIONING IN ORDER TO INCREASE OVERSEAS SHIPMENTS, ABANDONING IT WHEN, WITH HOG PRODUCTION RUNNING THREE OR FOUR TIMES AS HIGH AS BEFORE THE WAR, CANADIAN PROCESSING PLANTS WERE OVERTAXED, SHIPPING WAS SHORT AND MEAT WAS THREATENED WITH SPOILAGE AT HOME.

"ANTICIPATING STILL GREATER DIFFICULTY IN TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATIONS" THE POWERFUL, MONOPOLISTIC NIPPON SEKITAN KAISHA (JAPANESE COAL COMPANY) DELEGATED MORE OF ITS AUTHORITY TO BRANCH MANAGERS, HOPING THEREBY "TO SECURE A SMOOTH DISTRIBUTION MACHINERY FOR ANY EMERGENCY."

WASHINGTON,MARCH 28-(AP)-DIPLOMATS OF THE AMERICAS WORKED TODAY ON PROCEDURE TOWARD RECOGNIZING ARGENTINA AND RE-ESTABLISHING DIPLOMATIC UNITY IN THE HEMISPHERE.

AFTER ALMOST A YEAR OF ISOLATION, THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT, WHICH THE STATE DEPARTMENT CALLED FASCIST LAST FALL, PREPARED TO TAKE ITS PLACE IN AMERICAN COUNCILS. IT NOW HAS DECLARED WAR ON THE AXIS.

A MEETING OF LATIN AMERICAN AMBASSADORS WITH ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE NELSON ROCKEFELLER IS SET FOR SATURDAY.

THIS GIVES THE OTHER NATIONS A FEW DAYS TO WATCH HOW BUENOS AIRES CARRIES OUT ITS DECLARATIONS OF WAR, ALTHOUGH ALL CONCERNED HAVE MADE IT A POINT TO SAY THAT ARGENTINA HAS GIVEN NO EVIDENCE OF LACK OF SINCERITY.

DUP

THE MEETING SATURDAY IS EXPECTED TO BE FOLLOWED BY AN ANNOUNCEMENT IN THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION STATING THAT ARGENTINA IS IN A POSITION TO SIGN THE MEXICO CITY RESOLUTIONS. THESE IMPOSE OBLIGATIONS TO CARRY OUT MEASURES REQUIRED FOR WESTERN HEMISPHERE SECURITY.

THEN MEXICAN FOREIGN MINISTER, EZEQUIEL PADILLA, WILL PROBABLY INVITE THE ARGENTINE REPRESENTATIVE IN MEXICO TO PUT HIS NAME TO THE DOCUMENT. THE VARIOUS NATIONS ARE EXPECTED TO RE-ESTABLISH NORMAL RELATIONS WITH ARGENTINA QUICKLY AFTERWARDS. LATIN DIPLOMATS ESTIMATE THE PROCESS WILL TAKE A WEEK.

ONE OF THE MAIN DIFFICULTIES, THEY SAID, IS THE ATTITUDE OF THE UNITED STATES PUBLIC, FACED WITH A SHARP SWITCH IN ITS GOVERNMENT'S POLICY EXPRESSIONS TOWARDS ARGENTINA. THE STAND TAKEN BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT NOW IS THAT ITS POLICY OF NON-INTERVENTION PREVENTS THIS GOVERNMENT FROM BASING ITS RELATIONS WITH ARGENTINA ON THAT COUNTRY'S POLITICS.

IT IS WELL ACCEPTED AMONG DIPLOMATS THAT THERE WAS NO THOUGHT LAST FALL OF EVER RECOGNIZING ARGENTINA SO LONG AS HER PRESENT LEADERS REMAIN IN POWER.

HOWEVER, THE ATTITUDE NOW IS THAT ARGENTINE COMPLIANCE WITH SPECIFIC SECURITY MEASURES AGAINST AGGRESSION AND NAZI INFILTRATION WOULD REMOVE THE GROUNDS ON WHICH RECOGNITION HAD BEEN REFUSED.

British Forces Enter Muenster; Frankfurt Falls

BEALMEAR

PARIS, Friday, March 30.--(AP) Tanks of the U. S. First army, scattering all resistance on a dazzling 55-mile sweep, roared up within 186 miles west of Berlin yesterday and all but cut the Ruhr basin from the rest of Germany, thereby robbing the enemy of his last great source of war material.

The British Second army raced across the north German plain under a news blackout, was at least 41 miles east of the Rhine by last account and was within 68 miles of a junction with the First army. Between the two armies were thousands of Germans in disordered flight.

NIGHT

MAR 30 1945

Patton Advances 20 Miles

While the northern defenders of Berlin's approaches reeled under these tremendous blows, the U. S. Third army slashed almost half-way across Germany's waist with a 20-mile eastward surge that netted a total of 14,000 prisoners, a record for one day.

All Germany's great western cities, her last reliance in any long-drawn struggle, were toppling into Allied hands.

Already the Third army had Frankfurt, the Reich's ninth largest with a population of 546,000, the U. S. Ninth army had Duisburg, population 431,000 and Europe's biggest river port, almost in the bag, and the U. S. Seventh army captured Mannheim, population 283,000.

The Germans, realizing the enormity of the disasters in the west, wrote off as lost the entire Ruhr, with such manufacturing cities as Essen—greatest munitions maker of all Europe—Hamm, Dortmund, Duesseldorf and Muelheim.

Cut Berlin Highway

The First army cut one of the most important railways from Essen to Berlin as well as a superhighway, leaving only two railways still open out of the Ruhr to the capital.

(Luxembourg radio said the British had entered the Westphalian capital of Muenster, cutting one of these railways. There was no confirmation, but hard-riding British tanks were only 17 miles away when the night blackout was clamped on.)

The U. S. First army reeled off the longest gain ever made in a single day on the Western front, sweeping around the headwaters of the Ruhr river, and completely outflanking the vital production center.

Running roughshod through demoralized German defenses, the hard-hitting columns knifed to a point 10 miles south of Paderborn, 43 miles almost due east of the big city of Hamm, rear door of the Ruhr. They apparently were across the Ruhr-Berlin superhighway.

British Drive on Hannover

This put them but 67 miles southwest of Hannover, and well out in front of the onrushing British Second army, which was driving straight east across the Westphalian plain and last was reported about 68 miles from a junction with the First army.

Simultaneously, the U. S. Third army lunged out 20 miles east across the mid-German plain, herding the disorganized enemy before it and rounding up 14,000 prisoners.

At last reports it was within 198 miles of Berlin, but the German radio said the Third army's Fourth Armored division had driven at least 12 miles farther on and was within less than 100 miles of the border of Czechoslovakia.

The Third army captured Frankfurt on the Main, Germany's ninth largest city with a normal population of 546,000, and 45 miles to the southwest the U. S. Seventh army seized Mannheim, Rhine factory city of 283,000.

While the U. S. First army wheeled abruptly north, and the British Second army—with American infantry riding its tanks—roared up from the west, German broadcasts wrote off the once rich Ruhr greatest of the enemy arsenals.

The Ruhr, said one enemy war correspondent, was 'nothing but one wide field of rubble in which the army and the Volkssturm fight side by side with nothing to lose but their lives."

Yanks Reach Paderborn

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead declared in a dispatch from the field that the point near Paderborn was reached at 5:35 p. m. (European Time) and armor was rolling on with nothing in front to hold it.

German resistance collapsed in front of this powerful sweep by the one British and two American armies and a field dispatch said the situation had become a rout in front of the U. S. First army.

At the current rate of advance, the British and the U. S. First armies might come together in the Westphalian plain in little more than two days, laying open the road to Berlin and cutting off all the big factory cities of the Ruhr.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges First army tank columns spread through Langwiesse, 49 miles southeast of Hamm, eastern exit of the Ruhr, and 68 miles southeast of Haltern, which was overwhelmed by British Second army tanks and American infantry astride them.

Other First army columns reached nearby Hallenberg and Frankenberg—the latter 200 miles southwest of the western limits of Berlin.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army, which had been moving north earlier in the day, suddenly turned east and spurted 20 miles across the Frankfurt plain almost unopposed, entering Lauterbach, 198 miles from Berlin.

This was the deepest officially announced penetration from the west. It placed the Fourth Armored "breakthrough" division 140 miles inside the Reich, 65 miles beyond the Rhine at Mainz, and about 235 miles from the Russians on the east front.

British Rip Nazi Lines

The British breakthrough on the Westphalian plain was scattering before it German troops who were trying to get away in any vehicle available.

Veterans of North Africa, loose in good country once more, were imperilling Muenster, Osnabrueck and Hannover—the latter 142 miles west of Berlin.

The U. S. Ninth army on the British south flank charged ahead six miles through the Ruhr under another security blackout and was reported to be in almost complete possession of Duisburg, Europe's greatest inland river port, after capturing the dock area.

The U. S. Seventh army on the southern end of the front had crossed the river Main on an eight-mile front just south of the Third army front, and was threatening to outflank the Black Forest, most formidable sector of the Siegfried Line, with a push along the Neckar river.

Frankfurt, Germany's Ninth largest city with a normal population of 546,000, was cleared except for a small section in the northern outskirts.

The U. S. First army was driving ahead so rapidly that at one point tanks actually overran an airfield near Langwiesse and shot up eight planes before the startled pilots could get them in the air.

At another point they caught up with a train and turned their guns upon it.

Just north of Muenchausen, 30 SS (Elite) troops tried to throw up a road block and were scattered like feathers, a front dispatch said.

Advance Under News Blackout

The First army was traveling under an involuntary blackout. Spearheads were thrusting forward so swiftly that communications could not keep pace.

Some First Infantry division troops moving up behind the flying columns captured German troops who said they had left Duesseldorf eight days ago to try to stop the drive, but between snarled communications and air attacks they had been able to move only 40 miles in all that time.

"There is not the slightest doubt by anyone watching this great armored march and getting reports of advances from other fronts that this is the day of reckoning for the Nazi military and political machines," AP Front Correspondent Don Whitehead said.

NIGHT

MAR 30 1945

British Second army tanks, with U. S. infantrymen astride them, were eating up the miles on the Westphalian plain, more than 30 miles beyond the Rhine, covering as much as 20 miles in a single day, a front dispatch said.

Lt. Gen. Miles C. Demosey had shaken loose his veterans on the best tank terrain since they "blitzed" the proud Afrika Corps of the late Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in North Africa.

Allies Now Only 200 Miles Or Less From Berlin

LONG

Paris, March 29 (AP)—The United States 1st Army wheeled north today in a 40-mile burst of speed that threatened to cut off the Ruhr. It advanced to the area of Langwiese, only 48 miles southeast of Hamm, eastern exit of the industrial basin, and reached Frankenberg, southeast of Langwiese and 200 miles southwest of Berlin.

All over the front British and American troops raced through wide breaks in German lines. North of the Ruhr they were reported to be menacing Hannover, 142 miles west of Berlin.

The 1st Army's surge placed it within 78 miles of Muenster, also menacedl by the forces north of the Ruhr.

The 3d Army was also advancing along the southeastern flank of the 1st Army, but most of the front was under a news blackout that prevented full disclosure of the places reached by the armor an dtank-riding infantry.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges lifeted the veil on his 1st Army to permit disclosure of his northward swing after a 36-hour silence. To the north, it was known that the British 2d Army had made a 20-mile advance. The United Sttaes Army, fighting along and into the northern fringe of the Ruhr, made another 6-mile advance along Hitler's broad highways, tearing up only an occasional pocket of resistance.

DAY

Haltern, 20 miles northwest of Dortmund and 35 miles west of Hamm, was captured by the 9th.

Duisburg in the Ruhr ran up the white flag.

All of Frankfurt-on-the-Main except the northern outskirts was captured by the 3d Army, whose advance troops opertaing in echelon with the 1st Army moved east within 214 miles of Berlin.

Mannheim's Capture Reported

Hamborn, Wiesbaden, Hanau, Achaffenburg and the northern half of Mannheim fell to General Eisenhower's armies fighting as much as 145 miles inside Germany.

[American 7th Army troops have captured Mannheim, the American broadcasting station in Europe said after noon today. CBS recorded the account.]

The full extent of the advances in Westphalia was hidden by a portentous security blackout, but Correspondent Nordess said Muenster, Osnarbrueck and Hannover all were threatened by the sweep gains outflanking the Ruhr to the north. Several defendable rivers were crossed easily.

The 1st Army was at Amoeneburg, 85 miles beyond the Rhine and 255 from Russian siege lines in the East. The 1st and 3d armies made advances of 20 miles or more overnight, capturing the important Lahn River traffic center of Marburg without opposition.

Mannheim's Defenders Virtually Encircled

The 7th Army, fighting 38 miles east of the Rhine on a solid front with the 3d and 1st Armies, virtually encircled the last defenders of Mannheim by crossing the Neckar River near that city. The 7th also crossed the Main south of Aschaffenburg at points east of Schweinheim and Neidernberg.

The Germans were concerned about operations on the Neckar, which flows behind the easily defended Black Forest to the south. They blew up the bridges east of Mannheim.

Numerous cities were within grasp of the charging Allies. Among these were Kassel, 43 miles from the 1st Army; Essen, 6 miles from the 9th, and Heidelberg, 6 miles from the 7th.

Armies in the north were at these positions before the blackout was imposed: Hamm, eastern exit of the Ruhr, 24 miles away; Mulheim, 5; Gelsenkirchen, 6; Bochum, 11; Oberhausen, 2, and Dortmund, 19.

Nearly 150 Miles Of Rhine In Allied Hands

All the Rhine from Bonn to Mannheim, a winding stretch of nearly 150 miles, was in Allied hands.

The 7th Army, well beyond the River Main, put assault teams on a beeline for Nuernberg, 89 miles away. First and 3d Army troops in the heart of Germany were only 152 miles from Leipzig, threatened on the east by strong Russian armies.

Well over 23,000 Nazis—the equivalent of more than two of the 65 divisions estimated to be fighting in the West—surrendered in a single day.

All western Germany was being overrun. Allied armor was moving as fast as it did through France last fall, and with little opposition.

Bocholt Taken; Emmerich Holds Out

The 9th Army advanced up to 6 miles during the day, but the news blackout prevented identification of its Ruhr conquests.

Spearheads were at least 20 miles beyond the Dorsten-Borken-Bocholt breakout line. Associated Press Correspondent Ned Nordness said several rivers had been crossed. The Ems flows through Muenster; the Weser through Bremen. These are the first main north-south rivers in the path of the assault.

Bocholt, a key railroad center, was captured. Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said at 5.45 P.M. that the 21st Army Group was storming ahead everywhere except in the extreme north, where the Germans were still fighting for Emmerich with reinforcements from Holland.

The American 1st Army alone took about 13,000 prisoners yesterday, including 5,695 wounded that had been left behind in hospitals. The 1st Army also rescued 277 seriously wounded Americans in boxcars west of Wetzlar. The 3d Army captured 5,510 and the British 5,000. The 7th Army took 2,100.

One of the 1st Army's tank columns captured Holzhausen, 88 miles southeast of Muenster and 11 west of conquered Marburg. This force was driving north from central Germany, perhaps toward a junction with the British in the Muenster area in a maneuver that might trap the entire Ruhr and its myriad defense forces.

TODAY

Patton's Tanks Go 19 Miles In Day

At Amoeneburg, Hodges's racing armor was 95 miles southeast of Muenster. Hodges also was 152 miles west of Leipzig and 255 from Russian lines. His troops and those of the 3d Army formed three more linkups west of falling Frankfurt-on-the-Main. The armies, both commanded by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, also joined hands at Kamberg and Idstein, southeast of Limburg.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's fast 4th Armored Division, crashing along the Frankfurt-Leipzig superhighway, advanced 19 miles in a day and reached Gruenberg, 214 miles from Berlin and 14 east of captured Giessen. One of its units advanced 8 miles northeast and was near Beltershain, south of the main Berlin-Frankfurt superhighway.

Frankfurt itself was all but conquered. More than half of that city—a great chemical and electrical-equipment producer as well as banking center—was in 3d Army hands. Near-by Hanau and Aschaffenburg were captured.

Marburg Taken Without Fight

The 1st Army stormed through Marburg on the way to Amoeneburg and captured it without resistance.

In the Ruhr itself the 9th Army was in Sterkrade. The 35th Division reached the outskirts of Gladbeck and other elements of the 9th Army reached Dorsten "in a wide advance," battle dispatches said.

Bradley's 1st and 3d armies were fanning out in several directions, swiftly exploiting their break through the center of the German front some 145 miles inside Germany and 85 or so east of the Rhine. The general directions of attack, however, were east and north.

British Near Duelmen

Airmen reported that the British were around Duelmen, 17 miles from Muenster, but that was many hours before the censors halted dispatches.

The 3d Division of the 7th Army fought through the Lorsch Forest and Viernheim Plain to virtually surround Mannheim's surviving defenders and take Weinheim, on the Neckar River near by, winning domination of a superhighway.

Fuerth, Fahrenback Are Goals

Some 19 miles east of the Rhine, the 106th Cavalry was fighting for Fuerth and Fahrenback.

The 45th Division was fighting through the Dieburgemarks Woods after pushing through Grosklein and Zimmerns, and apparently throwing a left hook through a valley between heavily forested hills in a drive to the Main River, which other 7th Army troops crossed.

Resistance was spotty north of the Neckar River, which meets the Rhine at Mannheim. Waldstadt was cleared in bitter fighting. Weinheim fell with virtually no fight.

Several Bridges

"Several bridges now are operating across the Rhine in the 7th Army area," a statement from Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's field headquarters said.

Flying weather was bad for the third straight day—about the only comfort in the war picture for the Nazis. Rain, fog and low clouds shrouded most of the front.

The 1st and 3d armies, besides their contacts at Idstein and Kamburg, made a linkup at Niederhausen, 14 miles west of Frankfurt.

Gain At Wiesbaden

Third Army troops that occupied Wiesbaden conquered the area 5 miles to the east. In a 6-mile thrust east of Mainz, infantry cleared Floeresheim.

The 3d Army's 6th Armored Division passed through the 90th Division's Main River bridgehead and was within 3 miles of Bad Nauheim. The 6th crossed some paths of the 4th Armored Division, now many miles to the east.

Patton's columns encountered scattered mines, unmanned road blocks and feeble resistance.

120-Mile Hold On Rhine

Junctions of the 1st and 3d Armies gave Bradley's group a deep hold of more than 120 miles on the Rhine. The 3d in turn was linked with the 7th Army farther south.

In the Giessen area, where troops of both armies are nearest Berlin and the Russian lines, 1st and 3d Army units were expected to close the narrowing gap today, sealing some scattered Germans in a 20-mile-square pocket.

Another pocket closed to the west was found virtually empty.

90th Gains 2 Miles

The 90th Division advanced 2 miles and cleared Bruckhokben, 6 miles northeast of Frankfurt. The 87th pushed 9 miles east and northeast on a 9-mile front in the area from 15 to 21 miles north of Weisbaden.

Flyers saw three German columns retreating helter-skelter east and northeast of Giessen yesterday and destroyed or damaged 760 trucks and armored vehicles.

SS Forces Broken Up

The 9th Armored Division of the 1st Army shot one column eastward from Ammenau into thin ranks of the enemy left in the path of Hodges's men. Southeast of Limburg, the 9th Armored drove down a superhighway and broke up elements of an SS division attempting to escape east.

To the north, a 1st Army 1st Division column hitting beyond Herborn, on the Dill River, leapfrogged forward against extremely light opposition.

Fighting In Holland

Fighting erupted in Holland in the Nijmegen area. This extended the active front to 210 airline miles, south to Mannheim. Actually, the undulating course of the battlefields covered probably more than twice that distance.

The Nazis, attempting to stave off disaster in the north, moved their 346th Division into the battle from western Holland. The 2d Parachute Division was also shifted north from the Ruhr against elements of Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's army moving east in echelon with the British.

9th Gets Far East

Ninth Army infantry made one of the farthest eastward advances in the North, Associated Press Correspondent Pugh Moore reported from Montgomery's headquarters. In some cases they were riding British Churchill tanks. The Americans were last revealed to be at Dorsten, but are known to have swept many miles beyond that city, Moore said.

Flyers in the north reported that the Germans were fleeing east and northeast in every kind of conveyance. Some roads were not jammed, however, probably because of shortages of gasoline and vehicles. Planes destroyed 600 conveyances during the day.

7 Armies Across Rhine

General Eisenhower had seven armies fighting east of the Rhine and they were running toward final victory down roads on which few roadblocks or other defenses appeared. He had sent at least 86 combat divisions into the fray, and perhaps 1,500,000 men when other divisions known to be in battle are announced. He had two other armies in reserve, the French 1st and the United States 15th.

The Germans had only a fraction as many men and many of these were second-rate.

BRITISH BOMBERS HIT BENZOL PLANT

CHAMBERLIN

LONDON, March 29—(AP) Driving through heavy storm clouds which kept virtually all other planes grounded, RAF Lancasters today bombarded a benzol plant near Brunswick in a blow aimed at stopping motor fuel supplied to the German army in the path of Field Marshal Montgomery's drive across northwestern Germany.

U. S. Eighth Airforce bombers remained on their fields in England during inclement weather and for the first time in 45 days planes of the U. S. Ninth Airforce were unable to make attacks on enemy targets from their advanced bases on the continent.

Today ended 20 straight days of operations by fighter-bombers of the 9th, during which they flew 25,275 sorties with loss of 11 planes and played a major role in softening up the enemy for the Allied armies' lunge across the Rhine.

Bad weather also shielded Germany last night and RAF Mosquito bombers had to halt their methodical pounding of Berlin which had continued for 37 successive nights.

But March already has been registered as the greatest month in aerial warfare. During the month approximately 165,000 tons of explosives, an all-time record, were unloaded on the Reich from planes based in the west. Many more thousands of tons were rained on Germany by heavy bombers based in Italy.

PLANES TO POUND GERMANY UNTIL RESISTANCE ENDS

JAMESON

LONDON, March 29—(AP) Allied warplanes will keep mauling Germany until all Nazi resistance is crushed, but with the target area shrinking so rapidly it appeared doubtful tonight that the aerial war ever again would reach this month's prodigious scale.

March will go down in the history books as the crowning month for airpower in the war over Europe. Not only have all tonnage records been shattered, but in preparing the way for the ground forces to cross the Rhine airmen have achieved new heights in tactical support by isolating a huge slice of western Germany from the rest of the Reich.

With only two days to go it is estimated that approximately 165,000 tons of bombs were showered on Germany this month. This is exclusive of the explosives dropped on the Reich by the Italy-based U. S. 15th air force.

In one unprecedented week preceding the start of the Rhine offensive more than 40,000 tons were hurled on Germany, mostly in the west where railroads and bridges were mangled and troop concentrations blasted on a scale never before equalled on this or any other front. More than 51,600 American planes alone hammered Germany in seven days.

The immediate task of the air forces now is to help keep the broken German armies on the run and prevent supplies from reaching them.

"Under the persistent pounding by all types of our bombers it would be extremely difficult if not impossible for the Germans at this stage to reform on a scale which would enable them to present a serious obstacle," declared one air force commentator.

Smashing of the enemy's railroads, added to the paralyzing blows on oil and gas plants, also will prevent fuel and troops being moved quickly to areas where the Germans might choose to resist.

The stretch of Germany remaining in Nazi hands now is so narrow that it can be crossed by a fighter plane in less than a hour and by a heavy bomber in less than two hours. Areas that a few weeks ago were beyond reach of tactical aircraft now are well within range.

Shrinkge of the target area means also that fewer targets, remain to be bombed. The American-British bomber commands can carefully select the most troublesome ones for heavy concentrated attacks instead of having to try to knock out several on the same day.

An American air force staff officer pointed out that if the Army grinds up against some tough obstacle in the Bavarian mountains, for example, the air forces will be able to throw 10,000 planes a day against it without having to worry too much about other trouble spots appearing elsewhere.

Berlin Night Raid Series Broken

Zurich, Switzerland, March 29 (AP)—Most leading Nazi officials have left their posts and retired to an Alpine hideout, the newspaper La Suisse reported today in a dispatch from the German frontier.

London, March 29 (AP)—A record series of night raids on Berlin was broken at 36 straight last night as weather grounded the RAF's hard-hitting Mosquito bombers for the first time since February 20.

During this period the Nazi capital was subjected to 45 attacks, including several nocturnal double-headers and four daylight raids by American heavy bombers.

Yesterday's daylight attack by 400 Flying Fortresses boosted the total bomb weight hurled on Berlin since the start of the war to approximately 75,000 tons.

During the period from February 24 to March 26 Allied air forces in the West flew 200,000 sorties, attacking 56 airfields, destroying 1,158 German planes, probably destroying 101 more, and damaging 841, Allied headquarters announced.

Warplanes attacked railyards 724 times in efforts to seal off the offensive front and destroyed or damaged 2,159 locomotives, 41,052 railway cars, 803 barges, 22,925 motor transport vehicles, 2,472 horse-drawn vehicles and 1,884 tanks and armored vehicles.

GERMANS LAUNCH TERROR DRIVE ON COLLABORATORS

KASISCHKE

LONDON, March 29.—(AP) Amid rising reports of chaos inside Germany the Berlin radio boasted tonight that "German freedom fighters' had assassinated Franz Oppenhof, Allied-appointed mayor of Aachen, and declared that another "traitor" mayor had been blown up with his entire family in the village of Muentzenich, near Monschau south of Aachen.

As the Nazis announced the inauguration of their terror campaign against collaborationists, three Japanese diplomats, including Minister Sabura Saguwara, reached Stockholm by plane from Berlin—apparently "fleeing the sinking ship."

Many Officials Flee

Swiss dispatches said many high Nazi officials already had taken refuge on the German island of Mainau on Lake Constance, waiting for the war to end and hoping to sneak into Switzerland at the last minute. The Swiss reinforced their frontier guard to prevent such entries.

There were reports of Germans fighting Germans, of riots and mutinies, of public executions and increasing desertions as Allied armies swept across the Reich and the Nazis tried to combat the rising panic.

Germany's high command military commentator, Lt. Gen. Kurt Dittmar, in a broadcast asked the question "is there any sense in continuing the fight?" and then immediately answered it by saying "our enemy wants to annihilate the entire nation and himself gives the answer—we must fight to the last."

In contrast to direct Allied front reports that Volkssturm units were throwing away their arms and quitting before the avalanche of American and British tanks and men, the Nazi news agency DNB's commentator, Dr. Max Krull, claimed that hastily-recruited civilian army recruits were "throwing themselves in the enemy's path."

The Berlin radio asserted that Oppenhof, whose assassination at his home in Aachen by three Nazi parachutists was announced yesterday by the Allies, had been convicted by the "national court for the maintenance of German honor and immediately sentenced to death."

The victim of the second execution at Muetzenich was identified by the Nazi transocean news agency as a former school teacher named Velten, a "traitor German mayor serving under the Allied military government." It said Velten and his family were killed in an explosion caused by "unknown perpetrators."

There was nothing to indicate whether a Nazi assassination ring actually was operating or whether the enemy was seizing the opportunity to spread fear among civilians behind the fighting line.

Moscow radio reported that crews of several German warships in Baltic ports had mutinied, defying an order to scuttle all ships that could not be sped to safety. They were said to have been overcome by the Gestapo and taken to Kiel and Rostock.

Nazis Battle in Danzig

Underground reports reaching London said the Germans had fought among themselves in Danzig before the Russians smashed into that Baltic port, with regular soldiers turning machineguns on members of the Peoples' army when the latter tried to prevent a Nazi SS detachment fleeing the city.

The Geneva newspaper La Suisse quoted an eyewitness report of the hanging of eight Germans in one south German city "for having simply doubted the efficacy of the defense measures." The paper said that throughout South Germany "everyone realizes the war is lost, but no one dares say so openly."

The newspaper said endless columns of refugees were pouring on foot into Southern Germany, and that the food situation there was critical. It said Allied prisoners who managed to escape now were generally well treated by the German population.

La Suisse said that Hitler and Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering were believed already to have retired to their Alpine fortress, but that Heinrich Himmler still was "near Berlin."

One Nazi radio commentator admitted Germany's only hope was that if "we can protract the war, Allied unity must collapse. This is Germany's chance."

Reiterating that Nazis' no-surrender doctrine, Dr. Werner Naumann, assistant to propaganda minister Goebbels, declared:

"Our existence is a hard one, the bomb terror is severe, food rations have been cut. But it is a thousand times more worth while to bear this life than the slavery which our enemies have in store for our men and the life of shame to which they want to condemn our wives, daughters and mothers."

A German radio correspondent, describing the flight of tens of thousands of refugees from the Rhineland toward the interior, said:

"They had to walk for days because no transport was available. Only after several days did the Nazi party put some carts and trucks at their disposal, and despite all official reports there were many hardships. Roads were bombed and the people often had to throw away their bundles—the last remnants they had saved from bombings."

ASSASSINATION TRYS MADE ON TWO NAZIS

LONDON, March 29—(AP) The Luxembourg radio reported tonight that attempts had been made on the lives of SS Leader Dr. Ernst Kaltenbrunner, No. 2 Nazi under Himmler, and Baldur von Schirach, former Hitler youth chief and Nazi leader in Vienna.

The attacks, the broadcast said, quoting "reliable Swiss sources," were made in anti-Nazi clashes in Munich where Kaltenbrunner reportedly was seriously injured and in Vienna where von Schirach escaped unhurt as two of his companions were killed.

Kaltenbrunner, named commander of German troops on the approaches to Berlin, succeeded assassinated Reinhard Heydrich as Nazi "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia.

Nazis Report Assassination Of Another Co-Operator

London, March 29 (AP)—The German propaganda agency Transocean said today that a German teacher and his entire family were killed by an explosion that blew up his house after he had offered his services to the Allies as mayor of a village near Monschau.

Yesterday disclosure was made of the killing Sunday night of Franz Oppenhof, Allied-appointed mayor of Aachen.

Mood of Victory Grips London As Big Three Messages Increase

Communication Between Allied Capitals Goes Up Sharply—Reds Report Nazi Sailors Mutinied in Baltic.

SINGLETON

London, March 29 (A. P.).—A sharp increase in the flow of Government communications between the capitals of the Big Three Powers—often a sign of important developments in the making—coincided today with the sensational advance of Gen. Eisenhower's forces.

There was nothing concrete to support the atmosphere of victory felt all through London, but reliable reports were that members of Prime Minister Churchill's War Cabinet had been ordered to remain close to their posts and arrangements also have been made to call Parliament back into session if necessary during the eight-day Easter recess.

The British are preparing for their happiest Easter of the war. Easter is their best holiday of the year. War plants will be kept working, but nearly everything else will shut down or operate on skeleton shifts. Stores will close from Good Friday until Tuesday. Women and children were leading an exodus from London today for the seaside and country.

Report Nazi Mutiny.

But despite their belief that this is the eve of victory, there is not much hilarity among the British. For one reason, all of the south of England, including London, is still within range of the Nazi V-weapons. Every one is watching Field Marshal Montgomery's rush on the northern sector closely, therefore, because the German rocket-firing sites are believed to be in Holland.

Meanwhile today the Moscow radio declared in a German-language broadcast that the crew of the German aircraft carrier Graf Zeppelin mutinied against scuttling orders at an unnamed Baltic port. The Gestapo seized both crew and ship and took them to Kiel, Moscow said.

Indicating that mutinies had occurred in other Baltic ports before their capture by the Russians, Moscow went on to say that Grand Admiral Doenitz, chief of the German navy, issued orders to the crews of all German warships in the Baltic ports to scuttle their ships if they could not safely remove them, and authorized sailors who were members of the Heinrich Himmler's SS to take over command and dispose of captains of mutinous ships. The Graf Zeppelin, of 19,250 tons, was built in 1938.

Three Japanese diplomats and a Japanese newspaper man arrived in Stockholm from Berlin by plane today and a diplomatic informant said they obviously were "fleeing a sinking ship."

Most leading Nazi officials have left their posts and retired to an Alpine hide-out, the Zurich newspaper La Suisse reported, in a dispatch from the German frontier.

The Nazi news agency DNB told the Germans in a home broadcast today that Anglo-American tank forces sweeping toward Berlin from the west could be defeated with a weapon similar to the American bazooka. Exhorting the people to "keep your nerve," the enemy station said the German rocket projector, called the "tank-fist," could be produced in an hour and was capable of knocking out a medium tank which required 13,000 man hours for production.

"A better spirit, greater steadfastness, courage and determination proved better than the heaviest Russian tanks and the unending stream of Russian masses," the station told the home front. "What has been achieved in the east can be achieved in the west."

U-BOATS MAY ROVE 6 WEEKS AFTER WAR

London, March 29 (A. P.).—A naval authority said today that German submarines and surface craft might fight on as long as six weeks after the land war ends in Europe. Their supplies could last that long.

RUHR'S PLANTS COLD, GI'S FIND

Col. Van Bibber's Infantrymen Race Through Hamborn

EUNSON

Hamborn, Germany, March 29 (AP)—Shrapnel-scarred smokestacks by the dozens stood like tombstones marking the dead past of the Ruhr Valley when it was entered today by American doughboys who found the furnaces which once produced weapons for the Nazi war machine had been cold for months.

Some smaller plants were operating up to a few hours before the 79th Division came charging into Haborn, Holten, Ruhrfort and other suburbs of Duisburg, but such great concerns as the eight Thyssen steel plants at Hamborn have been shut down since January or February, the townspeople said.

Thyssen Plant Blitzed

Allied bombers left the usual trail of littered streets and gutted and roofless houses and they made no exception of old Frederick Thyssen's mammoth steel plant or any of the lesser Thyssen industries.

The dock area along the Rhine-Herne Canal was not badly damaged. Cranes and other dock equipment appear to be in good condition and probably could be put into operation again.

But as a whole, the Ruhr Valley is a pretty sad-looking place.

Women stand on doorsteps in Duisburg and its suburbs as if they were waiting for their men to come home from work, but they may be waiting for men who won't return from Greece, Africa or Stalingrad or some other place where the Wehrmacht was bled.

Allied Posters Torn Down

Yesterday Hamborn welcomed the Americans, but after dark some of its residents stole out after the 6 P.M. curfew and tore down all General Eisenhower's proclamations that the military government had posted.

Today pretty girls stood on doorsteps amid fallen bricks and broken glass and smiled at the passing Yanks. Small children peeped from behind their mothers' skirts when the jeeps whizzed down Hamborn's streets.

"I can't figure these damn Germans out," said Col. Edwin Van Bibber, of Bel Air, Md., whose 313th Infantry Regiment raced through here yesterday.

Van Bibber said he had been unable to tell since crossing the Rhine when to expect the Germans to fight and when they would disappear from before his advancing forces.

Captures Raid Warden

On the way into town, Van Bibber captured an air-raid warden. Other members of his staff also were out capturing Germans, including Major Raymond Godwin, of Charlotte, N.C.

The dock area of Hamborn was captured by Van Bibber's 2d Battalion, commanded by Lieut. Col. Clarence Gooding, of Tucson, Ariz. Gooding said opposition was very light, coming only when a few die-hard Nazis tried to fight.

Capt. Brian Dumond, of Croswell, Mich., commands Company G, which was posted along the docks today. Among his men are Lieut. Reginald Smaith, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who wears the Silver Star, the Purple Heart and the Croix de Guerre.

Lieut. Frank Cree, of Gardena, Cal., was scouting through a window today and his field glasses picked up four Nazi officers walking down a dike and swinging their canes. He called for a mortar barrage and put them all under cover.

"If we didn't kill them, we scared them to death," he said.

Yanks Again Hold '23 Rhine Fort

By Harold V. Boyle

With American Troops in Germany, March 29 (AP)—One of the most famous Rhineland fortresses to fall to American arms is Ehrenbreitstein, a military stronghold since the Roman days.

And today, over this citadel from which in 1923 the last troops of the first World War Army of Occupation left Germany for the United States, the American flag symbolically flies again.

Among the officers at the fort were some who were there when the Stars and Stripes were hauled down 22 years ago—for what they then thought would be the final time.

"No One Knows Now"

"Nobody knows when we will pull it down from the German flagpoles now," one of them said.

The fortress overlooks Coblenz. It is situated on a steep rock on the east bank 385 feet above the Rhine opposite the mouth of the Moselle River. Roman invaders 2,000 years ago were quick to see the value of the rock as a protective position. They built a camp there. More than a thousand years later it was renovated, in the year 1160, and subsequently the Elector John, Margrave of Baden, repaired and enlarged it.

Blockaded By French

The French Army blockaded Ehrenbreitstein after crossing the Rhine in 1795 and twice in the following year besieged it again. The French blockaded it once more in 1799. It fell the next year and when the French evacuated it in 1801 they blew up its defenses.

Since then huge sums have been expended to reconstruct the battlements, which fell easily to American infantrymen a few days ago. Now the fortress is just a place where military tourists can enjoy one of the most notable views of the Rhineland.

In near-by Ehrenbreitstein town is a house—in recent years converted into a hotel—where Goethe, Germany's foremost literary figure, stayed in 1774. The town lies between the Fortress Ehrenbreitstein and Fortress Asterstein, to the south, which is smaller and less renowned.

Phantom City Uncovered in Ruhr; Designed to Fool Night Bombers

GALLAGHER By The Associated Press.

INSIDE THE RUHR FLAK DEFENSES, Germany, March 29—Uncovered by the advance of the Thirty-fifth Infantry Division is one of Germany's "phantom cities," constructed to fool night bombers into dropping their loads outside of the Ruhr Valley.

It is one of the first real war secrets uncovered by Allied armies driving across the Rhine. Much has been written about such places, but this is the first one taken.

Constructed probably around 1942, the phantom city lies in the heart of a wooded area near Gladbeck.

It is an odd looking series of contraptions and apparently much work and thought went into it. First, there are high posts with boards across their tops. They look like basketball backboards except that instead of hoops they have shaded lights casting beams downward. Apparently from the air at night row after row of these gave the illusion of many houses or a big factory.

Next in the phantom city is a series of "chimneys." These are about 10 feet high, quite large and made of wood. From the air they must look as though they are sticking out of a camouflaged building instead of the ground.

Then there is a series of plain wooden roofs spread along the ground to give the illusion of rows of buildings. Each roof is rigged with a shaded light to outline it at night. There also are smoke pots and places in which quick fires could be built to make it seem that these "buildings" were burning.

Huts and dugouts were built for the men who kept the phantom city in repair. The complete layout is inside the Ruhr anti-aircraft defenses but some distance from the vital targets of Hamborn, Gladbeck and Duisburg.

Judging by the age of the construction work, and the ancient character of bomb craters in the vicinity, it is apparent that the Royal Air Force has not been fooled in recent months and perhaps not for more than a year by the German trick. The RAF made most of the night raids over this sector. The phantom city could not fool daylight raiders.

Hundreds of searchlights have been overrun in the drive through the Ruhr and the number of men engaged in what was once known to Allied fliers as "Happy Valley" must have been enormous. A number of radar installations of various types, most of them permanent ones that could not be moved, also has been taken.

Germans Are Found Jamming Wounded Yanks Into Box Cars

Nazis Are Rushing to Evacuate Seriously Injured G. I.'s From Hospitals in Path of First Army's Advance.

With the First Army, March 29 (A. P.).—Seriously wounded American prisoners were reported today being jammed into boxcars by the Germans and evacuated from hospitals in the path of the First Army's advance.

Officers of the Ninth Armored Division said that the Germans apparently had no hospital trains available to move the casualties, many of whom are in serious condition from lack of proper medical treatment and from malnutrition. The enemy has neither ambulances nor gasoline to evacuate hospitals. At Wetzlar, northeast of Limburg, the Ninth Infantry found 277 American prisoners of war locked in boxcars on a railway siding. They immediately lifted them from the cars and took them to evacuation hospitals for treatment.

Quick-thinking American and British captives being herded from a German prisoner-of-war camp at Limburg saved themselves from a deadly attack by United States planes through a human alphabet maneuver reminiscent of between-halves formations by football cheering sections.

With Ninth Armored Division tanks roaring toward the ancient cathedral city the routed Germans tried to cram some 2,000 of the Allied prisoners into box cars for a rush to the east. American fighter-bombers, seeking out any moving rail stock, swooped in to bomb and strafe the train. The Nazi guards fled. The prisoners broke open the doors, spilled into the fields nearby and, as the American planes dived for the kill, hastily formed lines spelling out the letters PW, for prisoners of war. The pilots veered away, but not before fourteen men had been killed and twenty-seven wounded.

Some of the prisoners at Limburg's Stalag XII escaped before the Germans tried the evacuation move. These also were suffering from malnutrition and improper medical care.

Badly Treated by Germans.

Heppenheim, Germany, March 27 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Eleven hundred emaciated prisoners, including 290 wounded Americans so badly treated by their Nazi captors that they had lost an average of thirty-five pounds in weight, were freed from a German prison camp when the American Seventh Army infantry captured this town today.

Sergt. Robert H. Goodman, who came up through Italy and France, led the patrol which took the hospital.

"We had a tip from a German that there were a lot of Americans in the hospital and didn't know whether to believe him," Goodman said. "So we were going along the road cautiously and I didn't even know I had spotted the right building until some one yelled from the roof where they had been watching for us.

"Hey, are you a G. I.? some one called, and I yelled back: 'You're damned right I am. Who are you?"

They Cheer From Windows.

"The G. I.s yelled and laughed from the windows," Sergt. Russell Montague of St. Louis said. 'We hadn't been in there more than a couple of minutes before we met a fellow from St. Louis who was raised in my same neighborhood."

"I never saw such a sight," Goodman continued. "Those poor devils were so starved and feeble they could hardly stand up. But all but the worst cases got up and came out to greet me and my buddies in the yard. One big paratrooper grabbed me and kissed me.

Goodman has seen his share of liberation joy up through Italy and France.

"But," he grinned, "I hadn't ever been kissed by a paratrooper until today.

Catch Up on the News.

"Every one was talking at once, asking about the war and how things were at home. All the time our little patrol was passing out all the rations and cigarettes we had. As soon as we could we got word back to the battalion to send up a load of K rations, and those poor guys went after them like they were steak and French-fried potatoes."

Pathetically happy at their liberation, the men related how they had been subjected to filthy conditions and fed on a slow-starvation diet that made it virtually impossible for the wounded to recover and caused some to lost as much as 100 pounds in weight.

An American lieutenant who, with a major, did all the surgical work for the American prisoners, said the average daily diet was about 700 calories, in contrast to the 3,500 to 4,000 calory allotment for wounded men in American military hospitals.

He said repeated protests to the German commandant had met with the reply that the Nazis just couldn't get any more food for them. Meanwhile, the Germans ate potatoes and fed the prisoners a thin soup made from the peelings, the lieutenant added.

"It seems almost a miracle that we had only ten deaths in two months," he said, "but we would have had even fewer if there had been sufficient food."

An American private who had been held there for three and one-half months summed up the treatment as he munched almost ravenously on some "K" rations.

"The main part of our food was one loaf of bread a day for ten men," he said. "For breakfast we had ersatz coffee, without sugar or milk, of course. For dinner we had soup made of potato peelings. At night we had more thin soup, sometimes with a small piece of potato in it, but never any meat or vegetables."

The private, who lost thirty of his 165 pounds after he was captured in the Ardennes, said the men were so weak they had to spend most of their time in bed even though their wounds did not keep them there. Each man got a small piece of poor soap once a month. Bedclothing was changed once a month, and there was one clean towel for each two men every two weeks.

Human Alphabet Saves PW's

By Don Whitehead

With the 1st Army, March 29 (AP)—Quick-thinking American and British captives being herded from a German prisoner of war camp at Limburg saved themselves from a deadly attack by United States planes through a human alphabet maneuver reminiscent of between-halves formations by football cheering sections.

With 9th Armored Division tanks roaring toward the ancient cathedral city, the routed Germans tried to cram some 2,000 of the Allied prisoners into box cars for a rush to the east. American fighter bombers, seeking out any moving rail stock, swooped in to bomb and strafe the train.

14 Men Killed

The Nazi guards fled. The prisoners broke open the doors, spilled into the fields nearby and, as the American planes dived for the kill, hastily formed lines spelling out the letters PW, for prisoners of war.

The pilots veered away, but not before fourteen men had been killed and 27 wounded.

When the 9th Division moved up they discovered the Germans were packing even seriously wounded prisoners into boxcars and evacuating them from hospitals in the path of the 1st Army.

Officers said the Germans apparently had no hospital trains available to move the casualties, many of whom are in serious condition from lack of proper medical treatment and malnutrition. The enemy has neither ambulances nor gasoline to evacuate hospitals.

Locked In Boxcars

At Wetzlar, northeast of Limburg, the 9th Infantry found 277 American prisoners of war locked in boxcars on a railway siding. They immediately lifted them from the cars and took them to evacuation hospitals for treatment.

Some of the prisoners at Limburg's Stalag XII escaped before the Germans tried the evacuation move. These also were suffering from malnutrition and improper medical care.

Yank Prisoners Man Guns To Make Their Rescue Sure

By DON WHITEHEAD

With U.S. 1st Army, March 29 (AP)—German guards voluntarily surrendered their arms and captive American airmen manned the machine guns of the transient prisoner-of-war camp at Wetzlar when the American 1st Army approached and freed them.

Those airmen did not intend for any of the enemy to come and take them away when liberation was so near, and the German guards were prepared to help prevent their removal.

Armor Moved Faster

Another group of American soldiers, most of them captured in Belgium during the battle of the bulge last December, were freed at Giessen after the Germans had taken them from a camp at Limburg. But American armor fortunately moved faster than the prisoners were able to walk so they were freed tonight and soon will be on their way home.

Both American and British airmen were kept at the Wetzlar camp. They lived in big barracks just outside the town and received excellent treatment, with plenty of food and clothing. There were hot water, showers and electric lights until the power from Giessen failed as the American forces approached.

Two Established Contact

"It was like something out of Hollywood," said Harold Siegman, Brooklyn, N.Y., Acme news photographer who spent the night in the prison camp with Jack Belden, correspondent for Harpers Magazine.

"Two nights ago an American colonel and a British major left the camp and came out to contact the Americans. We took them back with us to the camp in a jeep and found both Americans and Germans standing guard.

"The Americans were manning machine guns and the Germans were there to talk to any Germans who might come up. Three SS troopers did come to the camp and they were taken prisoner. Those German guards were ready to fight on our side if they had to."

[(AP)—Delayed]—Sergt. Robert H. Goodman came up through Italy and France and has seen his share of liberation rejoicing, "but I hadn't ever been kissed by a paratrooper until today," he said.

The grinning young soldier, whose home is in Kankakee, Ill., led the patrol which took a hospital housing 290 wounded American prisoners of war.

Yank Yells From Roof

"We had a tip from a German that there were a lot of Americans in the hospital and didn't know whether to believe him," Goodman said. "So we were going along the road cautiously and I didn't even know I had spotted the right building until someone yelled from the roof where they had been watching for us.

"'Hey, are you a GI?' someone called, and I yelled back, 'You're damned right I am. Who are you?'

Could Hardly Stand

"Then I went in and I never saw such a sight. Those poor devils were so starved and feeble they could hardly stand up. But all but the worst cases got up and came out to greet me and my buddies in the yard. One big paratrooper grabbed me and kissed me.

"Everyone was talking at once, asking about the war and how things were at home. All the time our little patrol was pasing out all the rations and cigarettes we had. As soon as we could, we got word back to the battalion to send up a load of K rations and those poor guys went after them like they were steak and French fried potatoes."

Rescuer's Reward Is A GI Kiss

2 Privates Hit It Rich, But It's Only K Rations

ON THE WESTERN FRONT (AP).—Two treasure hunting privates first class of the 8th Division spotted a heavy iron safe in a pile of rubble. Licking their lips in anticipation, Mario Chiriaco, of Detroit, Mich., and Private First Class Kaden, of 928 Kilsyth Road, Elizabeth, N. J., attacked it for an hour with hammers, axes and crowbars.

Inside the safe they found twelve neatly stacked packages of K rations.

Huge Rest Center in Brussels

ON THE WESTERN FRONT (AP).—Brussels is soon to become the largest rest center in the European theater with the formation of the Belgian Leave Section commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Frederick Kraschel, of Harlan, Iowa. One of the attractions is a mammoth dance hall, where a bar, directed by Lieutenant Victor Spence, of Detroit, dispenses beer, soft drinks and ce cream wth chocolate sauce.

Surrender by Telephone Attempted by Mannheim

HAWKINS

Civilians Message That Soldiers Had Left Was Premature

MANNHEIM, Germany, March 29 (AP).—This city almost surrendered by telephone.

After the Americans occupied the northeast third of this once great inland port and artillery was blasting away at the main part of the city south of the Neckar River yesterday, the phone rang in a captured power station and a war-weary civilian asked that the shooting please be stopped, because the German soldiers were all gone.

A skeptical American officer told the speaker to get the burgomaster to the telephone. The burgomaster came and declared over the wire that he was surrendering. Later he had to return to the telephone.

The trouble was that the German soldiers had not gone, and their commander refused to listen to the civilians' pleas to halt resistance. The Americans granted a short respite from the shelling yesterday afternoon to await some real sign of surrender. None came and the barrage was resumed at 6:10 p. m. by twenty-six battalions of artillery and continued through the night.

REICH SYNAGOGUES REOPENED FOR G.I.'S

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, March 29 (A. P.).—Jewish troops with the United States First Army across the Rhine are observing the Passover holidays with services in synagogues which long had been closed by the Nazis. The services began yesterday and will continue, local conditions permitting, until April 3. Unleavened bread and sacramental wine have been obtained especially for these troops.

At Ahrweiler, on the Rhine's west bank, Chaplain Samson M. Goldstein of Riverside Drive, New York, celebrated the great Sabbath—the Sabbath preceding Passover—in a synagogue used since November, 1938, as a barn and a liquor store.

"We have not reopened this synagogue for revenge," Chaplain Goldstein said. "It is to give men throughout the world the opportunity to see what we are fighting for. It is a manifestation of the freedom of religion."

Gold Braided Captive No Prize

ON THE WESTERN FRONT (AP).—The 30th Infantry Division boys thought they had nabbed a Nazi general, he was decked out in such highly polished gold and glittering braid. But grilling by Captain Roy Avis, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, unmasked him as a railroad station train caller overrun in a German retreat.

9th Army Frees Its Prisoners

WITH U. S. 9TH ARMY, March 29 (AP).—Volkssturm (Home Army) troops captured by the 9th Army are being released because of the crowded prisoner of war cages and the problem of having to feed starving enemy civilians in many of the larger German cities.

Soldier Baptized in Rhine

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY, March 29 (AP)—Three days before the Ninth Army jumped off in its Ruhr offensive a Protestant chaplain baptized a combat engineer in the Rhine River. Before going into action, Pfc. Howard K. Sitzat of Centralia, Ill., asked his chaplain to baptize him in some "running stream." Chaplain Chester W. Egbert of Mount Pleasant, Mich., had to do some personal reconnaissance under enemy observation, but Private Sligar got his wish.

Gendarmes Aid in Occupation

PARIS, March 29 (AP)—French gendarmes have been thrown into the Saarland as part of the force of occupation. The step was taken, it was announced, out of operational necessity because of the speed at which Allied armies are moving and the extent of the newly conquered territory.

Danes Sabotage Vital Bridge

STOCKHOLM, March 29 (AP).—The Free Danish Press Service said today that Danish patriots had blown up the bridge connecting Copenhagen with Amager Island, thus blockading a "great number" of Danish ships requisitioned by the Germans to be sent to Baltic ports for removal of Nazi civilians and soldiers.

ALLIES HASTEN WITHDRAWAL OF HITLER TO SOUTH

By CHRISTER JAEDERLUND
(Berlin correspondent of the Stockholms Tidningen for 17 years who has recently returned to Stockholm.)

STOCKHOLM, March 29—(AP) The American-British sweep eastward through Germany may hasten a development which many Germans have long expected. This is the withdrawal of Adolf Hitler, his lieutenants and fanatical Nazi followers together with the flower of Nazi-educated German youth into the mountain bastion of southern Germany.

In the next few days there may be a thrilling race to this southern fortress in which the speed of the Allied advances from west and east will be an important factor.

From German sources during my stay in Berlin I received this account of Hitler's reported plan:

The area of the Bavarian Alps and the Tyrol long has been prepared for defense. Months ago Hitler formulated plans for a great final battle. The troops and their comrades already have their orders. Members of all party organizations know their places in the final struggle.

Southern Germans often have told how mysterious columns of trucks rolled day and night through sealed mountain areas. Masses of concrete have been carried in and huge ammunition and supply dumps established.

In many villages last year the people were frightened by the appearance of great numbers of foreign laborers building bunkers. This was interpreted as meaning that Hitler's headquarters soon were to be established near their home town. Actually what they were seeing was the building of a new link in a vast fortification system developed in expectation that the war finally would move into Germany's southern provinces.

Before this final mountain stand Hitler expects to lose many troops. He will throw off that part of Germany which is unwilling to join the last battle.

But Germans say he expects to be joined there by refugees from the former occupied countries who have sought protection in Germany, the Quislings of Europe. They say the Russian General Andrei A. Vlassov, who the Germans said joined them early in the Russian war, and his followers already are inside the mountains.

It is clear that many of these refugees are unhappy over the future and would rather slip away.

But he who enters the game must finish it. In Berlin German authorities ruled that Quisling journalists who quit their work should immediately be sent to the front or to armament factories. Hitler keeps his emigrant Europe together.

The Germans say the whole Nazi party with all their families and followers of the European new order are gathering in the mountains. With the Hitler conception of revenge the Nazis go underground in the hope of finding a new starting point bred out of starvation and want and any political difficulties arising in the reconstruction of Europe.

There is one great question—whether Hitler intends to exploit as hostages the war and political prisoners he has in his hands.

If Hitler is able to establish himself firmly in the mountain fortress there may be a grandiose battle. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels himself has said that the Nazi party would show it could give a good example in death, and not long ago Hitler was reported to have said concerning the last battle:

"The one who is to close the cemetery gates after us all will be myself."

Ingrid Is Near Death During Danish Fight

Stockholm, March 29 (AP)—Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark narrowly escaped death in Copenhagen several days ago when she was caught between an exchange of machine-gun and pistol bullets by Danish Nazis and Patriots, the Free Danish Press Service reported today.

The incident was said to have occurred as the Crown Princess wheeled her youngest child, Princess Benedikte, in a carriage near the royal palace.

Six persons were reported killed.

Fleeing "Sinking Ship"

Stockholm, March 29 (AP)—Three Japanese diplomats, including Minister Sabura Saguwara, and a Japanese newspaper man arrived here from Berlin by plane today and a diplomatic informant said they obviously were "fleeing a sinking ship."

Belgium Government Moves To Meet Crisis

Brussels, March 29 (AP)—Sweeping new measures to meet Belgium's economic crisis, including stabilization of all salaries, even those paid by the Allied armies, have been announced to the Chamber of Deputies by Premier Achille van Acker.

All agricultural products will have fixed prices and drastic measures will be taken to force farmers to deliver goods to the legal market.

The output of coal was declared still insufficient, so a Government bonus will be paid miners, and 14,000 prisoners of war will be used in the mines. Conscripted labor will be used in essential industries and no job changes will be allowed without Government approval.

All shops and firms convicted of black marketing will be closed for six months. Van Acker said the purge of collaborators would be stepped up.

STALEMATE CONTINUES ON ITALIAN FRONT

HEINZERLING

ROME, March 29 — (AP) Troops along the Italian front remained locked in their months-old positions for another day as rain swept U. S. Fifth Army lines and fog settled over the Apennine mountains below Bologna today.

Even the Allied air forces were prevented by the weather from making their usual attacks on enemy targets in Southern Europe.

There were only a few clashes between opposing patrols, interspersed by artillery and mortar fire of varying intensity.

About a company of Germans attacked an Eighth army position near Cotignola, north of Faenza, but a heavy burst of fire knocked them back in less than an hour's fighting.

American gunners started a number of fires in the enemy defense arc before Bologna, which the Germans have been strengthening for six months. British and French destroyers were reported to have shelled German positions in the north near the French-Italian border.

FOE IN ITALY BLOCKED

Rome, March 29 (A. P.).—A German attack on Eighth Army positions near Cotignola, six miles north of the Bologna-Rimini highway stronghold of Faenza, was repulsed yesterday as the rest of the Italian front remained relatively quiet.

Rain restricted visibility on the Fifth Army front to the southwest. There was scattered Nazi artillery fire in the forward areas of this front, with patrol clashes reported in the sector southwest of Bologna. On the Fifth Army's extreme left flank in the coastal sector an Allied combat patrol ran into heavy German defensive fire and was forced to withdraw.

A naval communique reported new shelling of enemy positions on the French-Italian border during the week in which French and British destroyers participated.

G.I. STAR SPARKS BOMBERS TO FINAL

FEDER

FLORENCE, Italy, March 29—(AP) Private Steve Wojnolowicz, only G.I. on the 321st bomb group's "Mitchell Bombers", showed his officer team-mates how it is done tonight as his squad reached the finals in the Mediterranean Theater basketball championships by defeating the 92nd Negro Division's "Buffalo Big Ayes", 42 to 41.

Wojnolowicz, all-star high school player from Detroit, not only led his team with 11 points but was superb on defense. The winners tangle tomorrow with the 21st Aviation Engineer "Bulldozers" Adriatic Zone champions, for the All-Airforce title.

The "Bulldozers" are the only unbeaten team left in the double elimination tourney. If the Bombers win tomorrow, the two quintets will be forced to play again Saturday. The winners will participate in the special three-team tourney that starts April 9 at Cairo.

Wojnolowicz stopped Sonny Woods, one-time star of the New York professional Renaissance, who was all over the court until the Bomber's G.I. ace caught up with him late in the second half. Woods was the game's high scorer with 14 points.

Trailing by one point with one minute to go, the Engineers muffed a chance to tie the game when Jim Usry, former Lincoln University captain, missed a foul after ringing up ten straight free throws.

Holy Thursday Mass Celebrated At Vatican

Vatican City, March 29 (AP)—A Holy Thursday solemn mass was celebrated today in the Sistine chapel in the presence of Pope Pius XII, ten cardinals and the Vatican diplomatic corps.

Enrico Cardinal Sibilia, who officiated at the mass, consecrated the host and placed it in a chalice covered with a white veil. The chalice was taken by the Pontiff after the mass to the Paolina chapel, where, in accordance with ritual, it will remain for adoration until tomorrow.

Pope Receives Rep. Luce

Vatican City, March 29 (AP)—Pope Pius XII told Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) today that he hoped American womanhood would be a great influence for a stable world peace. The Pontiff received the Congresswoman for a 20-minute interview during which he asked her to convey his blessings to United States women. Mrs. Luce has been touring Italian battlefronts.

Fighting Men of Many Nations In Allied Army on Italian Front

Mrs. Luce Says Campaign Is 'Greatest Military Experiment in History'.

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE
Member of Congress from Connecticut
Distributed by The Associated Press

15TH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, Italy, March 30—(AP) Gen. Mark Clark commands, without any doubt, the most international and democratic force of seasoned veterans in the world today.

When the history of this war is written by the biographers and military experts, and by the poets and novelists, too, the Italian campaigns will certainly prove to have a far greater world interest and significance than they seem to have now, for they will be seen to be the greatest military experiment in history of the welding of fighting men of many countries in the great common cause of freedom.

Has Heterogeneous Forces

Clark's two armies, the American Fifth and the British Eighth, include, in addition to United Kingdom, Dominion and white and colored American units, Indians, Poles, Italians, Brazilians and a newly activated Jewish brigade, recruited in their historic homeland to fight against Hitler under the flag of Palestine.

The 120-mile front that these heterogeneous troops hold is as varied in terrain as are the men in nationality. Troops fight up and down some of the steepest mountains in Italy and across some of the widest, flattest and dustiest of plains.

The human as well as the technical and tactical problems presented by this varied terrain offer an immense challenge to both the military and diplomatic skill of a commander. Clark's troops speak five or six different languages and probably some 60 dialects. Their customs are infinitely different and their equipment and supplies are often not interchangeable. Their diverse eating habits alone are a quartermaster's nightmare.

An example of the delicate diplomatic victories achieved by Clark was seen in his application of one aspect of the Yalta decisions to the Italian front. That decision concerned Poland and it was a black and heartbreaking day for Gen. Wladislaw Anders, Polish commander in chief, when the news reached him. That news meant for Anders and his men the hard and bitter knowledge that Yalta had destroyed for many of them the very aim for which they had been fighting for six terrible years: to return to their homes under the Polish flag.

Poles Deported by Reds

It must be remembered that most of Anders' men were Poles who had been deported by Russia when it moved into Poland when the Hitler-Stalin non-aggression pact was in force and that, therefore, they are the very ones partitioned out of their homeland by the Yalta acceptance of the Curzon line.

Gen. Clark talked to Gen. Anders in an interview which must some day make good historical reading, for when Anders returned to his troops, the crisis had been averted. He bore the conviction to them that Poles had not less, but more, to fight for and that in the eves of the civilized world the way Poland's fighting men took this last, most savage blow to their hopes, might provide the most conclusive argument of all for Poland's cause at the San Francisco conference.

belligerent forces a truly offensive spirit against the Germans in the absence of any certainty concerning defeated Italy's position at the peace table was also as much of a diplomatic as a military task for Clark.

To preserve harmonious morale in the headquarters of such an army group and among the men from one end of the line to the other while maintaining complete military flexibility has been no easy job for Clark, and yet today anyone who visits this front is soon aware that he has met that challenge and done that job, for he has forged a striking force which has held and will soon destroy Germany's 25-odd divisions on this side of the Po river.

RUSSIANS WIN THREE VIENNA OUTER GUARDS

Flying Red Columns Cut Across Supply Line Leading To Italy

WHEELER

London, Friday, March 30 (AP)—Red Army columns, plunging within 43 miles of Vienna, reached the Austrian frontier yesterday in a 20-mile dash across western Hungary, uprooted three of the Austrian capital's outer fortresses and slashed across a vital German supply line to Italy.

Outflanking Nazi defenses based on the Bratislava gap and the Neusiedler See (Sea of Vienna), southeast of the Danube city, Russian armored forces captured the border town of Koszeg, 52 miles south of Vienna, and toppled the key Hungarian rail city of Szombathely.

The Free Austrian radio said without confirmation from the Soviet high command that the 3d Ukrainian Army spearheads already had invaded Austria, gateway to Hitler's southern mountain fortress.

Austrian Action Asked

The Austrian broadcast said the Russians had occupied several villages, and called on the Austrian Freedom Front to rise in arms. The reported Russian surge across the frontier was the first time that a liberating army had set foot on Austrian soil since that country was annexed to Hitler's Greater Germany by the Nazi-enforced Anschluss of March, 1938.

The Red Army's breakthrough to the Austrian border in an advance that also won the fortified Hungarian town of Kapuvar, 43 miles southeast of Vienna and 38 miles south of the outflanked Slovak capital of Bratislava, was announced in an order of the day issued by Marshal Stalin.

In a second victory announcement, the Soviet Premier revealed that the 3d White Russian Army had completed liquidation of the coastal pocket in East Prussia southwest of still embattled Koenigsberg. More than 130,000 enemy troops were killed or captured in eighteen days of battle, Stalin said.

18,500 Germans Seized

In another huge one-day bag the 2d White Russian Army captured 18,500 Germans as the Russians battered deeper into the eastern half of Danzig and wiped out a number of coastal pockets along Danzig Bay north of captured Gdynia.

The Germans, preparing to abandon Danzig, admitted that the last German defenders were clinging only to the area of the old fortress and said that the great port's harbor installations had been "completely destroyed."

As Radio Luxembourg said a state of emergency had been proclaimed in Vienna, Moscow and Berlin reports said an avalanche of Russian tanks, mobile guns and motorized infantry from two armies were plunging toward the city through broken enemy lines on both the north and south banks of the Danube.

100 Villages Swept Up

On the river's north bank, Berlin said that the northern wing of the 2d Ukrainian Army had lunged 17 to 25 miles west of the Hron River and had attempted to cross the Nitra River at points 47 to 52 miles east of Bratislava in a powerful offensive as yet unconfirmed by Moscow.

As these forces drove toward the Bratislava gap, the Danube Valley between Bratislava city and the northern shores of Neusiedler See, the 3d Ukrainian Army on the south bank of the Danube advanced across Hungary on a 118-mile front, swept up more than 100 villages and took 1,800 prisoners.

His troops drove to within 140 miles of the Italian border and 55 miles east of the Austrian mountain city of Graz. While spearheads pushed to within 29 miles of Yugoslavia by taking Szombathely, others at the southern end of the front captured Rezi, six miles north of the southwestern tip of Lake Balaton.

This advance carried them to a point 27 miles northeast of Nagykanizsa, guarding the gap between Lake Balaton and the Drava river, and enemy broadcasts said the Russians were preparing to sweep through the gap from the east.

At the long front's northern end, the capture of Kapuvar in a 10-mile advance carried Red army tanks within 10 miles east of the southern tip of Vienna's Neusiedler See. Kapuvar lies in the narrow divide between the Raba and Rabca rivers. While these forces crossed the Raba to seize Kapuvar, 19 miles to the southwest, other Soviet spearheads cracked the Rabca river defense line by sweeping across the water barrier to take Buk, 22 miles southeast of Sopron.

The Neusiedler See already was outflanked on the south by Tolbukhin's swift sweep through Koszeg and Szombathely, and Vienna's key outpost of Sopron at the southwestern edge of the lake was outflanked and cut off from the south.

Drive On Sopron

At Koszeg, Tolbukhin's advancing armored columns were 20 miles south of Sopron and by winning Kapuvar they swept within 20 miles east of the key rail junction which was the refugee Hungarian government seat of the Nazi-sponsored regime of Ferenc Szalazar when the premier fled fallen Budapest.

Waves of Russian tanks, hurdling hastily-erected enemy defenses in pursuit of the retreating Germans, who nowhere showed signs of making a stand, were within 32 miles southeast of the great aircraft manufacturing city of Wiener Neustadt, south of the Austrian capital. Wiener Neustadt has been a frequent target of Italy-based American bombers.

Between Koszeg and Szombathely, the Russians cut an 11-mile stretch of the key railroad linking Vienna, through northern Yugoslavia with Trieste in Italy, thus cutting one major line supplying and reinforcing German divisions battling the Anglo-American armies in that country.

Moscow dispatches said that one Red army aim of the great Austrian offensive was to end further German resistance in Italy, and the Russian advances followed recent conferences between Marshal Tolbukhin and Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean.

Big Ode. Attack Expected

Berlin, meanwhile, said the Austrian offensive was closely tied up with the Red Army's offensive operations in the Tatra Mountains of Czechoslovakia and with Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army drive toward the Moravian gap and across the Sudetan Mountains from Upper German Silesia.

Russians in the south, the enemy said, were aiming at reaching the Vienna basin and the southern passes across the Carpathians in order to invade industrial Moravia and link with Konev.

At the same time, Germans claimed that the Red Army's central Oder River front was ready to erupt in a full attack on Berlin and said elements of the 2nd and 3d White Russian armies were being dispatched from East Prussia and the embattled Danzig area to join Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army before the German capital.

Nazis See Strong Pressure

Enemy broadcasts said a German bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder in a bend in the river, 32 miles northeast of Berlin had been evacuated.

The Red Army, Berlin said, had driven to the river's bank at a point only 29 miles northeast of Berlin and had attempted to cross the river there.

"The Oder sector between Stettin and Frankfurt will be the scene of strong Russian pressure soon," the DNB agency said. "The offensive against Berlin, which earlier had been postponed, is being prepared feverishly. Fighting at Kuestrin is designed to serve this sole aim."

Russian Forces Now Reported In Austria

London, March 29 (AP)—The Red army, breaking through the German's fortified zone of northwestern Hungary in a surge up the Danube Valley, has reached the Austrian border.

Marshal Stalin announced tonight that the border was reached at Koszeg, 42 miles south of Vienna and 20 miles west of Sarvar, captured yesterday.

Kapuvar and Szombathely, strongholds in the extreme western part of Hungary, were captured in the sweep, Stalin announced.

The Stalin tanks and armored cars of Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army, smashing ahead from captured Csorna, hammered at the defenses of Pamhagen, 39 miles southeast of Vienna; St. Johann, on the border to the northeast, and Moson (Wieselburg), near the Danube, 21 miles southeast of Bratislava, Moscow dispatches said.

Russian troops have crossed the Austrian border, the Free Austrian and the Brussels radios said today. The Austrian radio said several border villages in Burgenland province had been seized.

The German communiqué announced a withdrawal north of the Danube to the Nitra River and a 25-mile advance by the Russians from the broken Hron River line.

Appear Close To Nitra

This push in Slovakia, dovetailing with the assault below the great river of southeastern Europe, apparently placed the Russians close to the city of Nitra, 40 miles east of Bratislava, capital of the puppet government of Slovakia.

There was no word of the co-ordinated offensive of Marshal Ivan Konev from Silesia toward Vienna and Prague from the northeast, but the Russians were heavily bombing Maehrisch Ostrau in the Moravian gap in their approach from that direction.

In the north, the German communiqué announced the evacuation of Kahlholz Cape, their last toehold on the East Prussian mainland except north of Koenigsberg, and said they had withdrawn to the Frische nehrung, a narrow sandspit extending from Danzig almost to Koenigsberg.

Nazis In Danzig Giving Up

The Russians reached the center of Danzig, left alone by the fall of the rival Polish port of Gdynia nearby, and the Germans were giving up in large numbers in the city's main streets and squares.

The Germans said the great city's port and harbor installations were destroyed and only the old fortress area was being held. Moscow dispatches said most of the commanders had abandoned their troops, escaping by sea, and a few submarines were still lurking about hoping to rescue more of the officers.

Koenigsberg Fall Awaited

A German plan to evacuate Gdynia was broken up yesterday when the Russians rushed in and captured 9,000 Germans standing at the docks.

The early fall of Koenigsberg, capital of East Prussia, also was probable. The population was reported reduced to the meat of dogs and cats for food.

Pamhagen is 40 miles south of Bratislava and 17 miles west of Csorna. It is just inside the Austrian border, 15 miles east of the stronghold of Sopron at the southern end of Neusiedler Lake.

Fortified Junctions Bombed

Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army was moving along the southern side of the Danube toward Bratislava from Gyor in co-ordination with Tolbukhin.

Soviet bombers and Stormoviks pounded the fortified junctions of Winden, Neusiedl, Parndorf and Bruck, between Lake Neusiedler and the Danube. Bruck is 365 miles southeast of General Eisenhower's front at Aschaffenburg.

It is good tank country and there was a possibility that Tolbukhin would surge straight west into the mountains toward the big border cities of Ogdenburg and Szombathely and the Austrian center of Graz and cut the main communication lines out of Yugoslavia and northeastern Italy.

He was about 65 miles from Graz.

Japs Keep Prisoners In Peril, Briton Says

London, March 29 (AP) — Major Arthur Henderson, financial secretary to the War Office, told Commons today that the Japanese were moving prisoner-of-war camps into close proximity to military installations in an effort to protect the targets from bombing.

Quoting Article 9 of the International Convention, which, he said, lays down a "clear-cut mandate against such treatment of war captives, Henderson declared that "we and our Allies have observed this principle and shall continue to do so."

"I regret to inform the House that the Japanese are not conforming to this principle," he said.

Saying that the protecting power had been notified that the camps should be moved away from military targets, Henderson charged that "these representations were repeated without effect" and that "none of the camps had been moved."

Report B-29s Blast Tokyo

London, Friday, March 30 (AP).—The German radio quoted a Tokyo broadcast today as saying 150 U. S. B-29 Superfortresses bombed Tokyo this morning. There was no immediate confirmation. Berlin said the raiders, striking at 7:30 A. M., Tokyo time, dropped a new type of incendiaries which started numerous fires.

BRITISH TEAM UP WITH U.S. NAVY IN RYUKYUS ATTACK

Battleships, Carriers of Royal Navy Take Part in Powerful Smash.

JAPS STRIKE BACK

Tokyo Reports Transports Moving in for Invasion of Okinawa.

WAITE

GUAM, Friday, March 30—(AP) The United States Pacific fleet, augmented by a powerful British battleship-carrier task force, poured shells and carrier planes for the seventh straight day Thursday at the Ryukyus where Tokyo said American transports are moving in for an invasion of Okinawa, 325 miles southwest of Japan.

Shortly after disclosing that the 35,000-ton battleship HMS King George V.; the 23,000-ton carrier HMS Illustrious and other British warships attacked the southern end of the island chain Monday and Tuesday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today:

Hit Shore Installations

"The U. S. Pacific fleet continued on March 29 to attack shore installations in the Ryukyus with carrier aircraft and with surface gunfire."

He also disclosed that Japanese planes and torpedo boats tried to deal blows to the attacking warships Tuesday night during which four of the planes and "a number" of the boats were destroyed. There was no mention of any damage to the American fleet units.

Tying in with the naval air operations along the south approaches to Japan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today at Manila that his planes bombed a factory, an airdrome and trains on Formosa and sank a 7,000 ton cargo ship and five coastal vessels offshore.

Self-contained task force of the British Pacific fleet, including some of the mightiest warships afloat, teamed up with the U. S. Fleet for the first time in the central Pacific in carrier strikes against Japan's southern Ryukyu islands Monday and Tuesday.

Observers here said the British force was using "revolutionary methods of operation" to carry out the first long-range strike it has ever attempted.

Enemy Airfields Hit

British carrier planes flying from "some of the most powerful ships in the British Navy" blasted enemy airfield installations in the Sakashima group of Japan's Ryukyu islands, which stretch along the southern approach to the mainland.

The attack indicated a marked change from previous methods of supply. Never before has the British fleet used a "floating supply train" on a scale large enough to permit such a long-range operation.

News that the British task force was cooperating with the American Fifth fleet came as Tokyo reported that at least 500 carrier planes had pounded southern Japan for 10 hours yesterday. They concentrated on targets that included the Sasebo and Kure naval bases in what the enemy insisted "must be considered part of a strategic plan to support the Okinawa operation."

Japan has claimed for days that the Americans were preparing to invade Okinawa, largest of the Ryukyus.

Tokyo declared that a fleet of "more than 100 warships, with about 10 battleships as its mainstay," was cruising the waters off Okinawa, screening still another task force including "more than 10 aircraft carriers."

There has been no Allied confirmation of any landings in the Ryukyus, but Admiral Nimitz has reported continual air and sea bombardment of that strategic group.

20 Jap Planes Destroyed

Admiral Nimitz' communique disclosed that 20 Japanese aircraft and one small coastal vessel were destroyed and several damaged. The town of Ohama in the Sakishima group was left aflame.

The task force, including the 35,000-ton battleship HMS King George 5th and the 23,000-ton aircraft carrier HMS Illustrious and other carriers, is commanded by Vice Adm. Sir Bernard Rawlings, with Rear Adm. Sir Philip Vian in command of the carriers—under operational control of the American Fifth Fleet Chief, Adm. R. A. Spruance.

The British never before have attempted such a long-range strike in the Pacific or anywhere else.

When Adm. Sir Bruce Fraser, commander in chief of the British Pacific fleet, said in Australia March 5 that the fleet was "ready and waiting for action," he meant what he said. For waiting, in addition to carriers, battleships, cruisers and destroyers, were full convoys of service and supply ships.

Disregarding discussion on three continents of the question whether British and American ships are technically able to operate side by side, British carriers are fully prepared to operate as a completely self-contained, self-supplied, self-serviced independent task force.

That is what they have done in this first real British fleet offensive against the Japanese empire.

One senior officer of the task force said he was "proud to be connected with the mighty American fleet," adding:

"We have a different job to perform, but we will be guided by American experience in the Pacific."

no confirmation from fleet headquarters of any of these reports.

Citing preliminary reports of damage inflicted on the enemy, Nimitz's communiqué said 38 aircraft were destroyed; 19 ships crippled, including 4 destroyers or destroyer escorts damaged; 5 cargo ships damaged, and many small craft wrecked. Military installations, including submarine pens at Unten Bay on Okinawa, were heavily hit.

The Box Score

The totals make today's incomplete Pacific Fleet box score for the past ten-day carrier and battleship offensive read:

819 aircraft probably destroyed.

57 or more ships sunk or damaged, including carriers and a 45,000-ton battleship.

Nimitz acknowledged that "some fleet units" suffered damage "under enemy air attacks," including "serious damage" to one destroyer, one "larger unit" and another ship, and "minor damage to several others." None of these ships was reported lost.

Earlier Jap Claims

In further unsubstantiated claims, Japanese imperial headquarters boasted of sinking or damaging "30 warships, cruisers, destroyers and transports" between Monday and Wednesday by "surface units" and planes.

Earlier, Japanese press reports said Japanese torpedo boats "sank two cruisers" and "damaged a destroyer."

The fleet's assault on the Ryukyus by air and sea is probably the heaviest in the Pacific and Imperial Japanese headquarters implied in today's communiqué the attack is continuing into the seventh day. Tokyo also reported carrier-plane sion operations in the Okinawa sector," Japanese broadcasters said.

Tokyo radio also said "about 60 United States planes"—medium bombers and fighters—raided Formosa, 365 miles south of Okinawa. The raid lasted three and a half hours, said the announcer, and bombs were dropped on airfields and "vital installations" at Tainan, Takao and Taihoku.

[A Japanese broadcast from Singapore, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said twenty American B-29's attacked Singapore for more than two hours today.]

Air Superiority

The circumstances suggested that American carrier planes dominated the Ryukyu skies.

Today's fleet communiqué also announced rocket and machine-gun attacks by Navy Venturas on Tomari Zaki, in northeastern Paramushiro, and the bombing of Kataoka, on Shimushu, Tuesday. These points are in the Kurile Islands, north of Japan proper.

Army Mustangs and Liberators also hammered Suzaki airdrome and radar installations in Chichi Jima, near Iwo Jima, on Monday. The Mustangs returned to the job the next day, hitting Chichi Jima and Haha Jima.

U.S. Fleet Guns Pound Okinawa 6th Day

Guam, March 29 (AP)—Okinawa underwent its sixth day's bombardment by the United States Fleet's largest guns as hundreds of carrier aircraft knifed into its remaining strongholds, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Radio Tokyo held to its report that Yank troops have landed on the Kerama Islands, asserting that a fleet of "20 to 30 transports" is attempting to supply American invasion forces on the islands, 15 miles west of Okinawa. There was attacks on the naval base of Kure, on Honshu Island, early today.

Besides this heavy fleet pounding, upward of 200 Superfortresses hit Kyushu Tuesday noon, and an unconfirmed Japanese broadcast said other B-29's bombed it again Tuesday night.

Radio Tokyo said that in addition to raids on Kure naval base, "29 carrier planes" raided southern Kyushu and western Shikoku early today. Damage to military facilities was reported "negligible."

"These enemy raids are believed to be a supporting one for inva-

Search Planes Of Navy Sink Japanese Vessels

Guam, Friday, March 30 (AP)—Navy search planes of Fleet Air Wing 1 sank two small Japanese ships and damaged two others in the vicinity of the Bonin Islands, north of conquered Iwo, Wednesday, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported in a communiqué today.

The following day, army Mustangs of the 7th Fighter Command hit a warehouse and defense installations on Haha in the Bonins.

Daily neutralization attacks on Japanese-held islands in the eastern Marshalls were carried out Wednesday by 4th Marine Aircraft Wing Helldiver bombers and navy search planes of Fleet Air Wing 2.

Guam, March 29 — Twenty-five hundred Jewish service men last night attended Passover services in the first observance of Hebraic rites in this part of the western Pacific. Three chaplains conducted the service —Navy Lieut. Philip Lipis, Camden, N. J.; Navy Lieut. Elihu Rickel, Buffalo, N. Y.; and Army Airforce Capt. David I. Cedarbaum, New York city.

Vice Admiral Newton Now Inspector General

Pearl Harbor, March 29 (AP)—Vice Admiral John H. Newton has succeeded Rear Admiral John F. Shafroth as inspector general, Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean areas, United States Pacific Fleet headquarters here announced today.

Newton, of Carbondale, Pa., and San Francisco, was commander, South Pacific area and South Pacific force, before taking his new assignment.

Shafroth, who has been inspector general since March 20, 1944, has been assigned to duty afloat, headquarters said.

Navy Closing Old Bases As War Nears Japan

Honolulu, March 29 (AP)—Emphasizing how the air war is crowding the Japanese homeland, the United States Navy has all but closed its aviation supply and maintenance units at many former bases in the South and Central Pacific.

Capt. J. W. Boundy, advance-base supply officer, left recently to check on removal of an aviation supply depot from the Marshalls to the Marianas, where it will join similar units brought forward as the war moved ahead.

U.S. Units Land On Mactan Isle Off Cebu City

Opon, Main Town, Secured; Cauit, Air Base in Cebu Harbor, Also Is Invaded

MANILA, March 30 (Friday) (AP).—Elements of Major General William H. Arnold's America Division, conquerors of Cebu City on Cebu, invaded Mactan Island, directly across a narrow channel from that second port of the Philippines, on Wednesday, General Douglas MacArthur reported today.

The tiny island of Cauit, to the southwest in Cebu harbor, also was invaded. Cauit is a seaplane base.

MacArthur said Opon, the main city of Mactan, was secured.

On Mactan Island is the biggest cocoanut oil refinery in the Philippines, set ablaze by Japanese demolition crews Monday when the Americans landed on Cebu.

On Cebu itself the infantrymen struck north and south from the demolition-wrecked capital city, capturing Lahug airfield to the north and the town of Naga, fourteen miles south.

MacArthur said enemy resistance "still appeared disorganized."

Only minor actions were reported on Luzon, where in the central sector 1,338 additional dead were counted in mopping-up operations.

Legaspi, major port on southeastern Luzon, was hit with more than 200 tons of bombs.

The communique, silent for days about progress on invaded Mindanao Island, said only that heavy bombers and fighters bombed Jolo and Tawi Tawi in the Sulu Archipelago to the southwest.

Patrol bombers, maintaining a tight blockade of the China Sea, sank one large and nine small freighters in attacks as far north as Formosa.

JAPS ON CEBU FLEE TO HILLS

Manila, March 29 (A. P.).—American infantry pursued the Japanese into the hills north of Cebu city today after that demolition-wrecked second city of the Philippines was captured in a brisk two-day drive from the Cebu Island beachhead on the east coast.

Troops inside the city fought scattered battles along heavily mined streets, but for the most part the enemy was reported to have abandoned well-prepared defenses and fled before the American Division.

The Japs fought stubbornly for a time Tuesday at Pardo, on the southern outskirts, but were finally cleared out. Another column moved around to the west, and the capital city was entered from two sides Wednesday morning. American losses were light.

Cebu, a city of 150,000 population, was badly damaged by Jap demolition crews carrying out their scorched-earth policy as they did in Manila. The important harbor area, however, was taken virtually intact. It is one of the best in the Philippines.

Capture of the city was preceded by an attack by midget submarines on American shipping off the beachhead, about five miles south of the capital. The tiny undersea craft struck during daylight Monday, D Day, forcing all unbeached ships to put to sea, where they remained until the next morning. As the fleet headed toward shore again one of the midget subs was tracked down and probably sunk with direct hits.

Fighting on Luzon Island abated in the central and southern sectors because of the enemy's great losses, which cannot be replaced," Gen. MacArthur said. Jap resistance is becoming "disconnected and sporadic" in those areas, he said, but remains strong in the north around Baguio and across the valley near the Balete Pass.

Bombers ranging the China Sea sank seven freighters, some of them used as transports, and damaged sixteen others. Two 3,000-tonners were sunk and twelve smaller ones damaged off French Indo-China. The others were hit off Foochow, China.

Baruch Arrives In London

London, March 29 (AP)—Bernard M. Baruch, adviser to President Roosevelt, arrived in London today with expectations of an immediate conference with Prime Minister Churchill. It was understood that part of his mission would be devoted to a discussion of the occupation and economic future of Germany.

BARUCH TO CONFER WITH CHURCHILL

LONDON, March 29—(AP) Bernard M. Baruch, personal advisor of President Roosevelt, reached London today reputedly to discuss plans for the occupation of Germany with Prime Minister Churchill, who asserted that the "hour of success" was near.

Members of the British war cabinet were ordered to remain close to their posts over the four-day Easter holiday and it was learned that arrangements had been made to call Parliament back into session immediately if the German collapse should come during Parliament's eight-day recess.

Churchill's optimistic prediction was made in a letter endorsing a Liberal candidate for Commons in a special election to fill a vacancy. In it the Prime Minister said:

"The endurance of the British people and the steadfast devotion of the fighting services have at last brought us near the hour of success. Let us now prepare to make sure, for the sake of our country, our empire and civilization, that we reap the due and just rewards of victory."

Key Allied commissions which will have the job of administering Germany after the war were said to be ready to move into the field soon and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons "high priority" had been given to the task of disarming the Nazis and dismantling their industries.

Just how and when would come the moment of transition from German organized resistance to that of Nazi guerrilla warfare remained uncertain. The London Times expressed the opinion that German provinces might be taken over one by one until the entire country was occupied, and "in that way the end will come."

Among the British people themselves there was mounting anticipation that victory might come soon and suddenly. An atmosphere of victory was noticeable, but there was no hilarity, because V-bombs still are striking in southern England.

There was known to have been a sharp increase in the flow of communications between the capitals of the "Big Three," but otherwise there was nothing concrete to indicate the war was near its end.

Hour Of Victory Near: Churchill

London, March 29 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill asserted today that the "hour of success" was near.

His prediction came in a letter indorsing a Liberal candidate for Commons in a special election to fill a vacancy.

"The endurance of the British people and the steadfast devotion of the fighting services have at last brought us near the hour of success," he wrote.

"Must Keep Unity"

"Let us now prepare to make sure for the sake of our country, our empire and civilization that we reap the due and just rewards of victory.

"That end will best be served by maintaining unity of effort and of purpose."

The letter was addressed to Ronald M. Munro, who is a candidate to represent the Scottish universities in Parliament and has the support of the Churchill Coalition Government.

His statement coincided with reports that members of Churchill's War Cabinet had been ordered to remain close to their posts and with arrangements to call Parliament back into session if necessary during the eight-day Easter recess.

Happiest Easter Of War

A sharp increase was recorded in the flow of Government communications among the Big Three capitals, often a sign of important developments in the making.

The British are preparing for their happiest Easter of the war. Easter is their best holiday of the year.

War plants will be kept working, but nearly everything else will shut down or operate on skeleton shifts. Stores will close from Good Friday until Tuesday.

Women and children are leading the exodus from London for seaside and country today.

Despite their belief that this is the eve of victory, there is not much hilarity among the British. For one reason, southern England and London still are within range of the Nazi V-weapons, even with the Germans being beaten back.

Britons Start Post-War Plans

LONDON, March 29 (AP).—Preparing for a rapid switchover to peace production, more than 1,100 British firms operating in various fields have been permitted to do experimental and developmental work on post-war models in the last eight months, "The Board of Trade Journal" disclosed today. Of 1,300 applications for post-war preparations since last August, only thirteen have been rejected, it said.

Would Aid British Women

London, March 29 (AP)—Rhyes Davies, Laborite member of Commons, wants to know how unmarried British women may "lay claims against men serving in the American forces in this country in respect of their illegitimate children." He said today he would present the question to Home Secretary Herbert Stanley Morrison April 12.

New Coal Plan For Britain Proposed

London, March 29 (AP)—A sweeping reorganization of Britain's coal industry under control of a Government agency empowered to compel national unification of mining operations was proposed today by an advisory committee set up by the Minister of Fuel.

In a report to Parliament, the committee, headed by the Fuel Ministry's director of production, Charles Reid, declared that drastic changes are necessary "if the cost of production is to be reduced so as to enable the coal industry to meet all the needs of the country."

The committee urged a merger of companies into units "of such sizes as would provide the maximum advantages of planned production, stimulating preparation and execution of broad plans made by these units and of conserving the coal resources of the country."

Also recommended were a nationally co-ordinated program of seeking new coal sources, adoption of the 40-hour week, higher wages, closing of uneconomical pits, development of research and modernization of methods.

The report, which will be debated by Parliament, was offered as an alternative to two previous sets of recommendations—one by the miners proposing socialization of the industry and the other suggesting its control by a group of sixteen coal-mine owners.

COMMONS DEBATES FEEDING EUROPE

London, March 29 (A. P.).—Responsibility for feeding hungry Europe was debated in the House of Commons yesterday, with some members intimating that the United States should increase its effort in that direction.

One member raised the question of whether German prisoners taken by the American were getting "seven or eight times" as much food as French civilians. Another protested that Britons could not be expected to "wear their belts any tighter" than the Americans.

The discussion followed an announcement by Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee that Britain already had sent or agreed to send 900,000 tons of food to liberated areas, including the Mediterranean.

"In view of that," inquired Earl Winterton, a Conservative, "have the strongest representations been made to the United States Government, stressing the moral responsibility they have for making up these stocks?"

Attlee said he would deal with that question later in the debate. He added that the British Government had reduced its stocks "to what we believe to be the limits of safety." He said the minimum supplies thus far have been sufficient to avoid disease and unrest in liberated countries.

Franco Break Demanded

Paris, March 29 (AP)—A mass-meeting of representatives of powerful French labor movements and liberal parties ended yesterday with a demand for immediate rupture of diplomatic and economic relations with Generalissimo Franco's Spanish Government by all the United Nations.

The conference assailed decisions by the de Gaulle Government permitting reopening of Spanish consulates inside France, declaring they were "centers of espionage on behalf of international Fascism as well as offices for supplying Nazi-held pockets on the Atlantic Coast."

This presumably referred to reports that Spanish ships were carrying food to German garrisons at Saint Nazaire and the mouth of the Gironde River.

An appeal was made to all Spaniards to unite in order to speed the fall of the Franco regime.

Equality for Czechs, Slovaks

MOSCOW, March 29 (AP).—Czechoslovak political leaders who are in Moscow to shape a new government have agreed upon equal rights for the Czech and Slovak nations, it was learned today. The reported agreement is a development from pre-war statutes, which recognized only the existence of the Czechoslovak people.

U.S. Takes 100-Room Mansion In Moscow

Moscow, March 29 (AP)—The ever-expanding United States Embassy in Moscow is taking a 100-room mansion in the Arbat section of the Soviet capital to house more than 250 Americans connected with it.

Ambassador Averell Harriman and his daughter, Kathleen, will continue to live at Spasso House.

JAPS POUNDED NEAR AIRBASE

Enemy Lunges Forward 20 Miles Toward Laohokow

Chungking, March 29 (AP)—Japanese forces imperiling Laohokow, American airbase 200 miles northwest of Hankow, were pounded from the air at a point only 5 miles from the city, a 14th Air Force communiqué said today, indicating the enemy had lunged forward 20 miles.

Nanyang, a Honan province town northwest of Hankow and one of the main Chinese bastions in Free China's defense between the Yangtze and Yellow Rivers has fallen, the communiqué indicated. This conflicted with other reports which claimed the city was still in Chinese hands, although heavy fighting was raging in that sector.

Meanwhile, both Chinese and American bombers claimed successes against Japanese shipping. The 14th Air Force, in sweeps off Hainan Island during the week ended March 23, sank a 6,500-ton enemy freighter and a 5,000-ton freighter, probably sank another of 2,500 tons, and damaged a 1,500-ton transport, headquarters announced today.

The Chinese claimed that in a sweep over the lower reaches of the Yangtze last week, four of their planes sank one Japanese warship and three other vessels.

Jap Ships Hit Off Hainan

Chungking, March 29 (AP)—United States 14th Air Force bombers, in sweeps off Hainan Island during the week ended March 23, sank a 6,500-ton enemy freighter and a 5,000-ton freighter, probably sank another of 2,500 tons and damaged a 1,500-ton transport, headquarters announced today.

20-Mile Jap Gain Toward U.S. Base Seen

Chungking, March 29 (AP)—The 14th Air Force today pounded a point only five miles from Laohokow American air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, indicating the Japanese had made a 20-mile advance toward it.

The air communique also indicated that Nanyang, a Honan province town north-northwest of Hankow and one of the main Chinese pastions in Free China's defenses between the Yangtze and Yellow rivers, had fallen.

The communiqué said Mitchell bombers caused heavy enemy casualties at a town 5 miles northeast of Laohokow.

The Japanese were estimated to be using more than 80,000 men in a push that may menace either Sian, in Shensi, or Chungking.

Sian is slightly over 200 miles northwest of Laohokow and Chungking is nearly 400 miles southwest of Laohokow.

Free Press Committee Assured of China's Aid

Editors in Chungking on World Tour, Hear of Post-War Plans

CHUNGKING, March 29 (AP).—China does not want to maintain censorship after the war, Minister of Information Wang Shih Chieh told the free press committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors today.

Besides visiting Dr. Wang, the committee composed of Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Carl W. Ackerman, dean of the Columbia University School of Journalism, also called on T. T. Hsiao, director of the official Central News Agency; Dr. Sun Fo, Cabinet minister and son of the late Sun Yat Sen, and General Wu Te-chen, secretary general of the Kuomintang.

Mexican Bus Toll Grows.

Mexico City, March 29 (A. P.).—The toll of fatalities resulting from a collision here Tuesday night between a crowded bus and a Diesel locomotive mounted to twenty today with the deaths of three more bus passengers.

Two Argentine Newspapers Closed

Buenos Aires, March 29 (AP)—Two Argentine newspapers, Noticias Graficas and the Socialist organ Vanguardia, have been closed since Argentina's declaration of war against the Axis.

Noticias Graficas apparently was suspended because of an editorial last night which declared the decision to declare war lagged years behind public opinion, and said: "If the Government reconciles its policy, completing it by calling elections which will confirm its new democratic position, it is certain that it will obtain for the war a spontaneous fervor that no newspaper nor department of press and propaganda is able to invent."

Vanguardia recently had urged the military regimé to withdraw and permit the re-establishment of a freely elected constitutional government.

Duke Propo[unds] Postwar Plan For Islands

Nassau, Bahamas, March 29 (AP). Expansion of tourist attractions and a four-point program for rehabilitation of the out islands of the Bahamas were proposed by the Duke of Windsor in a half-hour lustily cheered speech before the Chamber of Commerce last night.

He said the end of the war and the removal or reduction of RFC garrisons here, and the return of Bahamian soldiers from overseas and Bahamian laborers from the United States may result in an uncertain economy.

Congestion In Nassau

The colony's most serious problem, he said, was congestion in Nassau, where the population has increased from 20,000 to almost 30,000 in the five years of his administration here. After the war, he said, this congestion will increase.

He reduced this plan to four points:

1. Gradual concentration of scattered island populations to a few of the more productive islands, which would result in easier marketing, better transportation, improved health and education.

2. Create an assured market for the principal out islands' crops and prevent waste to the producer and consumer.

3. Improve inter-island transportation. He said he hoped for better vessels and regular plane service.

4. Provision of some comforts and amenities in the out islands that now attract peasants to Nassau.

WEST FRONT DRIVES BY U. S. DIVISIONS

The following summary of action on the Western Front covers only those Associated Press reports in which divisions were specifically mentioned:

1st Infantry—Mopping behind armored advance south of Siegen.

3d Infantry—Fought through the Lorsch Forest and Viernheim Plain around Mannheim; took Weinheim, on the Neckar River near by; won domination of a superhighway; cleared southern part of Mannheim; also cleared Viernheim, northeast of Mannheim, and struck into the hills east of Hemsbach.

4th Armored—Raced east to Lauterbach 199 miles southwest of Berlin.

5th Infantry—Mopped up the east half of Frankfurt.

6th Armored—Passed through the Ninetieth Division's Main River bridgehead; swept to within three miles of Bad Nauheim; crossed some paths of the Fourth Armored Division, now many miles to the east.

9th Armored—Began moving from Weilburg this morning and advanced thirty-four miles, reaching a point about ten miles northeast of Giessen at the elbow of Hodges's wheeling movement.

9th Infantry—Mopped up and consolidated gains behind First Army drive.

35th Infantry—Reached outskirts of Gladbeck in north Ruhr area.

45th Infantry—Fighting through the Dieburgermarks Woods after pushing through Grosklein and Zimmerns; stormed up to Niedernberg, on the west bank of the Main, four miles south of Aschaffenberg.

79th Infantry—Entered Duisburg; reached Rhine Canal inside city; captured dock area.

87th Infantry—Pushed nine miles east and northeast on a nine-mile front in the area from fifteen to twenty-one miles north of Weisbaden.

90th Infantry—Advanced two miles; cleared Bruckhokben, six miles northeast of Frankfurt.

Mechanized 106th Cavalry Group—Drove through Fuerth and Fahrenbach to Hochst, about twelve miles southwest of Niedernberg and seven miles west of Woerth, on the west bank of the Main.

Russians Seek 3 Votes At Security Conference

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP) As the result of a secret agreement by the Big Three at Yalta, Russia and the United States will ask for three votes each in the United Nations assembly to be proposed at the San Francisco security conference next month.

The White House made this bombshell announcement today. It immediately threatened a split in the American delegation to the conference. It seemed likely also to become a focal point of small nation opposition to big power domination of the international organization.

The possibility of a split appeared in a statement by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), a member of the delegation, who said:

"I would deeply disagree with any voting proposal, if made, which would destroy the 'sovereign equality of nations' in the peace league's assembly, as previously proposed at Dumbarton Oaks."

The initial proposal for more than one seat in the assembly came from Premier Stalin at Yalta, the White House announcement disclosed. President Roosevelt agreed to support the plan, provided the United States also should have three assembly seats and Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill assented to this.

No reason for this Russian move was given. Diplomatic officials speculated that it probably was prompted by a desire of Moscow to have a representation approaching that of the British Empire. The Empire would have six seats for the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, India, New Zealand and South Africa.

The controversial development was the second of Russian origin to explode on the pre-conference scene today. The first was a Moscow announcement that the Soviet delegation would be headed by the ambassador to Washington, Andrei A. Gromyko.

All the other powers have announced that their delegations would be headed by their foreign secretaries—among them Secretary Stettinius for the United States and Secretary Eden for Britain.

The appointment of Gromyko instead of Foreign Commissar Molotov was, like the multiple-vote proposition, unexplained. One suggestion much discussed here was that the appointment of a man of ambassadorial rank showed a declining Soviet interest in the conference.

This came up when Gromyko talked briefly with reporters following the Moscow announcement. "That is a false conclusion," he said flatly. He declared his government unqualifiedly supports the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world security organization and also the Yalta agreement on voting procedure in the proposed world security council.

At that time the Yalta agreement on assembly voting had not been announced. This announcement came late in the day.

The world organization would have three main bodies: the security council of 11 nations, the general assembly of all member nations and an economic and social council. Virtually all the real power for action would be vested in the security council on which Russia, the United States, Britain, France and China would be permanent members.

SOVIETS NAME DELEGATE

LONDON, Thursday, March 29.—(AP) Russia's ambassador to the United States, Andrei Gromyko, was named today as the leader of the Soviet delegation to the San Francisco conference, the Tass agency announced in a broadcast from Moscow.

Russian Delegation To World Parley Named

Moscow, March 29 (AP)—Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, will head the Russian delegation to the San Francisco World Security Conference, the Soviet Government announced today.

A. A. Sobolev, K. V. Novikov and S. K. Tsarapkin were designated as special envoys on the delegation.

Two military men, Lieut. Gen. A. F. Vasilev and Rear Admiral K. K. Rodionov, and two professors, S. A. Golunsky and S. B. Krylov, make up the remainder of the eight-man delegation.

Gromyko was the leader of the Soviet delegation at the Dumbarton Oaks conference. Sobolev, a Balkan expert, and Admiral Rodionov also were members of the delegation at the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

Novikov is head of the second European section of the Soviet Foreign Office. His office deals with the affairs of Britain and the British Commonwealth. Tsarapkin is head of the American section of the Foreign Commissariat. Professors Golunsky and Krylov are two of the Soviet Union's outstanding students of world politics and economics.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman is leaving shortly for the San Francisco meeting.

Argentine Envoy Post Foreseen For Braden

Washington, March 29 (AP)—The State Department is preparing to recommend to the White House the appointment of Spruille Braden as Ambassador to Argentina when that Government is recognized.

Braden now is United States Ambassador to Cuba. He served previously as Ambassador to Colombia.

No announcement will be made, of course, until it is formally decided to recognize Argentina—expected in about a week. It could not be ascertained whether presidential approval has been secured, but diplomats said they did not think there would be any hitches.

Acquainted With Leaders

Braden, who has been in the diplomatic service since 1935, is well acquainted with Buenos Aires leaders. He spent two years there as head of the American delegation to settle the Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Meanwhile, further action on Argentina was put off until Saturday when the Pan-American Union is scheduled to meet. An announcement paving the way for the Argentine representative in Mexico City to sign the resolutions of the Inter-American Conference there is expected to come from the meeting.

Recognition by the American republics of the Government of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell in Buenos Aires is expected to follow quickly. Argentina declared war on the Axis Tuesday.

Denounced As Fascist

Former Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt denounced that Government as Fascist last fall. The State Department is now veering away from any discussion of Argentina's internal situation, basing its decisions on the Argentine declaration of war.

Some mixup over the legal relations between the United States and Argentina has developed since steps were initiated to recognize Argentina.

The general impression was that the United States had no relations with the Argentine Government and had not recognized the Government of Farrell. Now it appears that the State Department considers that there never was a break in relations with Argentina because, although former Ambassador Norman Armour was withdrawn, the rest of the United States mission remained in Buenos Aires.

French Act To Get Ships

Paris, March 29 (AP)—With the entrance of Argentina into the war against the Axis, the French Government has moved to take control of French merchant ships tied up at Buenos Aires to carry sorely needed food to France.

Officials here expressed "satisfaction" at the Argentine action but said there was no immediate prospect of a resumption in diplomatic relations.

However, the Government asked London and Washington to grant transportation to Buenos Aires for crews for three merchant ships so they can be brought home loaded with wheat, meats and fats.

The Government said that Argentine authorities unofficially had offered stocks for relief of the hard-pressed French population.

Haitian Delegates To Frisco Named

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, March 29 (AP)—Gerard Lescot, Secretary of Foreign Affairs, will head the Haitian delegation to the San Francisco conference.

Other leading members of the delegation are Yelv Thevaud, Secretary of National Defense; Alfred Nemours, chairman of the Senate; Andre Liautaud, Ambassador to the United States; Pierre Chauvet, Under Secretary of National Economy, and Antoine Bervin, Haitian plenipotentiary to Cuba.

GEN. CLAY TO RUN CIVIL AFFAIRS IN OCCUPIED REICH

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP) Assignment of Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay as civil affairs administrator in occupied Germany led tonight to predictions of less military intervention in affairs of the American home front.

Clay was deputy director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion under James F. Byrnes, in charge of production programs. He has been criticized by members of Byrnes' Civilian Advisory committee for allegedly permitting the Army to shape much of OWMR's policy.

One possible choice as his successor, mentioned in civilian war agency circles, was Colonel Bryan Houston, former rationing director of OPA. At OPA, Houston was known for "liberal" ration policies and for an oft-repeated expression: "Let's give the civilians a break."

However, a spokesman for OWMR discouraged speculation on Houston, declaring that Byrnes has not yet made a decision.

Most War Agency sources acknowledged the hope that a civilian would get the assignment. Houston, a Texan, is in uniform. He was with the Army service forces under Gen. Brehon Somervell, before and after his OPA tour of duty, and handled procurement and surplus disposal matters. He is now in Army public relations, in charge of ASF matters.

Fred Searls, Jr., former WPB official and now General Clay's deputy in OWMR, has been suggested as another possible choice. Clay will leave the country "within a few days," President Roosevelt announced, as deputy to General Dwight D. Eisenhower in charge of civil affairs "when General Eisenhower, as Supreme commander, assumes control under the arrangement agreed upon for the occupation of Germany." His authority presumably will cover only the south German territory which is to be occupied by Americans.

Eisenhower asked for Clay three weeks ago, Mr. Roosevelt said, but the designation was delayed because of an OWMR agreement with the Army that Clay would remain with Byrnes until April 1.

The President said Clay was particularly qualified for the German post by reason of his "splendid service in the civilian as well as in the military branches of the government."

It was learned that members of the OWMR Advisory committee—which is made up of representatives of management, labor, agriculture and the public—were informed of Clay's impending departure a few weeks ago.

Several members of the advisory group have privately told reporters that they felt Byrnes' staff, including Clay, should give greater attention to the needs of the civilian and war-supporting economy.

CIVIL WAR'S LOSSES TOPPED

World War II Casualties 3,000 Above Old Record

Washington, March 29 (AP)—World War II has now taken the lives of more American men in combat than the Civil War, previously the costliest in the nation's history.

The Army announced today that 153,791 soldiers had died in battle up to the beginning of March and the Navy reported its dead at 25,750.

The aggregate for the two services since Pearl Harbor is 189,541, almost 3,000 above the 186,771 listed by the Army and Navy as killed or fatally wounded in the Union and Confederate armies and the Union navy during the Civil War. The number of Confederate navy dead is not available but it is believed not to exceed the Union navy's losses.

Four-Year War

The War Between the States lasted four years, while the figures for World War II dead cover only three years and about three months of fighting. The toll may still be heavier by the time the missing are accounted for.

In the eighteen months of World War I, Army and Navy figures show, 53,559 lost their lives in combat, including 50,510 in the Army.

Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, gave out the figures on the number of soldiers killed in reporting that the Army's over-all casualties had now reached 780,043 on the basis of names compiled here through March 21 and reflecting activities up to the beginning of March. With the Navy's total losses of 92,819, this pushed the total for both to 872,862 since the beginning of the war. Today's report represented an increase of 13,275 over last week's.

Casualty Breakdown

A breakdown on the Army's casualties and corresponding figures for last week:

Killed, 153,791 and 150,310.
Wounded, 473,669 and 464,731.
Missing, 86,355 and 88,209.
Prisoners, 66,228 and 64,430.

Of the wounded, 243,508 have returned to duty.

Similar figures for the Navy:

Killed, 35,750 and 35,342.
Wounded, 42,302 and 41,882.
Missing, 10,500 and 10,417.
Prisoners, 4,267 and 4,266.

Stimson also estimated Japanese casualties in the entire Philippine campaign at more than 300,000. He said that 172,983 of the enemy had been counted killed.

TOKYO RADIO SAYS 30 U.S. SHIPS SUNK

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29. — (AP) Tokyo kept telling the world today that Americans were invading the Ryukyus and also reported on air-raid defense and political affairs in the homeland. The reports were recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Following broadcast of an Imperial headquarters claim that Japanese warships had attacked the American "invasion" force, Tokyo radio reported that "20 or 30" U. S. transports were bringing reinforcements for troops ashore on the Kerama island group. The Imperial communique said the naval battle was fought between Monday and Wednesday.

It claimed Japanese "surface units" and planes sank or damaged 30 American ships.

These reports lacked any U. S. confirmation, beyond Pacific fleet announcements of continued bombing and bombardment of Okinawa island and other Ryukyu targets.

A Tokyo news dispatch said the government had decided to establish a "system of farm villages" for evacuees from "bomb ravaged" cities. Another dispatch said Japan's new totalitarian, "Sure Victory" political party would be formally inaugurated tomorrow. The party is called the "Political Association of Greater Japan."

Tokyo radio reported American carrier-based aircraft Thursday again attacked the Kure naval base area on Honshu and targets on Kyushu island in the homeland.

American medium bombers and fighters, the broadcast said, raided air fields and "vital installations" at Tainan, Takao and Taichu on Formosa Thursday.

The Japanese radio at Singapore reported 20 American B-29s Thursday attacked Singapore for more than two hours.

Japs Insist Americans Are Invading Ryukyus

San Francisco, March 29 (AP)—Tokyo kept telling the world today that Americans were invading the Ryukyus.

Following broadcast of an imperial headquarters claim that Japanese warships had attacked the American "invasion" force, Tokyo radio reported that "twenty or thirty" United States transports were bringing reinforcements for troops ashore on the Kerama Island group. The imperial communiqué said the naval battle was fought between Monday and Wednesday.

It claimed Japanese "surface units" and planes sank or damaged 30 American ships.

These reports lacked any United States confirmation.

Rip Down Stars, Stripes, Jap Film 'Masterpiece'

San Francisco, March 29 (AP)—After announcing the merger of four of Japan's leading motion-picture companies, Radio Tokyo said the Japanese film, "Rip Down the Stars and Stripes," was judged one of the "masterpieces" of 1944 and its makers received a Government award of 5,000 yen—about $1,200 at the prewar rate of exchange.

Australians Register Bougainville Successes

San Francisco, March 29 (AP)—New Australian successes on the northern Solomons island of Bougainville, where the hardy, bare-kneed Aussies have taken over the tough job of wiping out Japanese forces, were reported by the Melbourne radio today.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said that on the Satokan peninsula of northern Bougainville the Australians captured Smith Hill, center of Japanese resistance.

Nazi Ace In Hole Termed Terrible

Portland, Ore., March 29 (AP)—A member of the Dutch underground declared today that the Nazis do have a secret—and deadly effective—weapon.

Jacob van Berkel, here under auspices of the Netherlands Information Bureau, told an interviewer that the European front is now a race between victory for the Allies and Germany's resort to the ultimate weapon—"so powerfully destructive it is almost inconceivable."

"The new weapon, a tiny gadget which could be placed in a rocket bomb, may be launched with complete effectiveness against the Continental United States," van Berkel said.

He declared the Germans are saving it for a last stand, probably in the Bavarian Alps. "They are confident that their secret weapon will wipe out civilization and save them at the very end."

Van Berkel—fictitious name to hide his identity from the enemy—gave no details, except to say that the weapon does not involve poison gas. He said that, while Allied officials know of the weapon, they do not know in what form it might be launched.

The 27-year-old economist, who has made 60 secret trips through Germany in the last four years, said the weapon was discovered by espionage agents.

ZI GENERAL HANGS SELF IN PRISON CAMP

CAMP FORREST, Tenn., March 29—(AP) Lt. Gen. Karl Buelowins, 55-year-old German prisoner of war patient, at the POW hospital here hanged himself in his room two days ago, the camp public relations office announced today.

The announcement said that he used two leather straps from his brief case.

A member of the German Afrika Corps, General Buelowins was captured by an armored corps near Bizerte, Tunisia, in May, 1942 and was later transferred to the Camp Forrest hospital for treatment of a psychiatric condition.

The general was born in Koenigsberg, East Prussia. He is survived by his wife and one son who live in Breslau, Germany.

MAIL RESUMED WITH EX-FOES

U.S. Lifts Ban Against Romania And Bulgaria

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Another door between the United States and Europe was unlocked today. Postal service is restored with Bulgaria and Romania, effective Friday. Cable service is restored with Bulgaria, but not yet with Romania.

The Treasury removed its ban on exchange of business and commercial information with persons in both countries.

Except for Italy, they are the first enemy nations with which business communications have been reopened. Romania and Bulgaria, however, will continue to be classed "enemy territory." Liberated Italy has been freed of that classification.

Money, Trade Still Held Up

Communications with Romania and Bulgaria which are limited to the exchange of facts henceforth will be permitted without Treasury license. Licenses will still be required for any financial or property transactions. Private trade transactions will not be licensed until arrangements for resumption of private trade have been made.

Spending of money in any form, even for living expenses, is still prohibited. It is permitted to transmit powers of attorney to persons in Bulgaria or Romania in order to preserve or manage American property there.

The Postoffice Department said mail to Bulgaria and Romania will be limited to letters weighing not more than one ounce and to non-illustrated postcards. Rates will be the same as before service was suspended.

Eisenhower Expected To Announce VE-Day

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson indicated today that General Eisenhower will give out the first news on the cessation of hostilities in Europe.

In reply to a news-conference query about War Department arrangements for handling the announcement, Stimson said that it will be prepared to "furnish supplemental information to that which emanates from the theater."

He also disclosed that Stephen Early, White House secretary, had made a confidential report on his investigation of Army press relations in Europe to Maj. Gen. A. D. Surles, director of the War Department's bureau of public relations. Surles told newsmen that he doubted that the report would ever be made public.

Navy Reports 2 Landing Craft Lost In Action

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Loss of a tank landing ship and a large support landing craft in the Philippines from enemy action was announced today by the Navy.

The vessel s were the LCS (L) (3)-7 and the LST 577. The support landing craft is a type which normally carries a crew of 50 men, and the LST, a crew of 65 to 75.

No announcement was made of total casualties. The LST 577 was under command of Lieut. Carl H. Stahl, San Diego, Cal., who was listed as missing in action.

The support landing craft was under command of Lieut. Franklin L. Elder, Nacogdoches, Texas. He was reported safe.

The announcement raised to 277 as the total naval vessels of all types lost since the start of the war.

SINGAPORE RIPPED BY 40 SUPERFORTS

Big Bombers Hammer Oil Storage Areas in Great Port.

WASHINGTON, March 29—(AP) India-based Superfortresses struck Singapore again today (March 29, Japanese time), blasting oil supplies in this strategic crossroads of the Japanese empire.

Approximately 40 of the huge B-29's made the attack, headquarters of the 20th Airforce in Washington reported tonight.

Singapore has been a popular target for the large planes. This is the third time this month that it has been hit. Previous attacks were made on March 2 and March 12.

The text of the press release:

"Superfortresses of the 20th air force returned to Singapore today (March 29, Japanese time) to continue their systematic bombing of this strategically important target at the cross roads of the Japanese empire. Oil storage areas were the day's targets.

"Announcement of the mission was made at Washington by the commanding general of the 20th air force, General of the Army, H. H. Arnold who said the attack was mounted by a medium sized force of B-29's from bases of Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey's, 20th bomber command in India.

"Further details will be disclosed when complete operational reports are available."

2 More 4-Star Nominations

Washington, March 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt today nominated Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, commanding general of the Marine Corps, to be a full general.

At the same time he nominated Vice-Admiral Russell R. Waesche, Coast Guard commandant, to be an admiral.

Senate confirmation will place four-star officers at the head of the two services for the first time in history.

Vice Admirals Elevated

In addition, the President nominated three vice admirals to be admirals for temporary service. They are:

Richard S. Edwards, deputy commander in chief of the fleet and deputy chief of naval operations; Henry K. Hewitt, commanding the Mediterranean Fleet, and Thomas C. Kinkaid, head of the naval forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The Chief Executive also nominated five rear admirals to be vice admirals, four commodores to be rear admirals, twenty captains to be commodores and six commodores who have held the rank by reason of their position to be commodores, regardless of where they serve.

General Vandegrift, a native of Charlottesville, Va., is the eighteenth commandant of the Marine Corps. He assumed the post January 1, 1944, succeeding Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb. Vandegrift led the first American land offensive against the Japanese on Guadalcanal and received the Medal of Honor for his "inspiring leadership."

Waesche Maryland Native

Vice Admiral Waesche, a native of Frederick county, Maryland, is serving his third term as commandant of the Coast Guard. Under wartime conditions, he has presided over the greatest expansion of the service in history. Its personnel has multiplied fifteen times, now totaling more than 175,000 officers and men. He has three sons in service.

Admiral Edwards, who makes his permanent residence in New London, Conn., is serving as deputy chief of naval operations to Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, a new post created in October, 1944. He is a native of Philadelphia.

Admiral Kinkaid, of Philadelphia, is commander of naval forces in the Southwest Pacific, an assignment he has held since November 26, 1943. He is a native of Hanover, N.H.

Admiral Hewitt, of Hackensack, N.J., is commander of naval forces in Northwest African waters and commander of the 8th Fleet.

Roosevelt Pleased With Labor Code

Washington, March 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt voiced pleasure today with a labor-employer plan for postwar industrial peace and termed such co-operation essential to full employment when hostilities cease.

Two labor and one business leader worked out a "code of principles" to submit to their respective organizations with the idea of promoting "the maximum degree of industrial peace and prosperity in postwar America."

Mr. Roosevelt was advised of this step in a letter addressed to him jointly by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Eric Johnston, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Co-Operation Held Vital

"I am very pleased," the President wrote in reply, "to learn of your plans to organize a committee of representatives of industry and organized labor to insure the continued close co-operation between labor and management to win the war and the peace.

"The close co-operation between labor and management during the war has made possible our great and unexcelled achievements in war production. That close co-operation must be continued to make possible the full employment of labor and capital under our system of free competitive enterprise when hostilities cease."

Offers His Aid

Green, Johnston and Murray, for their respective organizations, agreed to set up a national committee to attain co-operation.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would be happy to co-operate in every way possible and expressed the desire they would report periodically to him on the progress they make.

"The very act of the drafting of this charter," they told the President, "is proof positive that free Americans, acting on their own initiative, can unite for peace as well as war."

The plan received a chill reception, however, from the National Association of Manufacturers.

The unprecedented declaration received this faint praise by N.A.M., the other major citadel of management:

"Good as far as it goes, but . . . nowhere near specific enough."

Up To Congress, He Says

N.A.M. President Ira Mosher continued in a statement issued in New York last night:

"The seven principles that make up the so-called charter are generalities on which there is already wide agreement.

"What the people of America want to know is what is going to be done about making them work. This is a job for Congress, with labor and management furnishing all the practical help that is within their power."

The charter declares among other things in favor of labor's continued right to organize and bargain collectively free from any legislation. On the other hand, labor would support the private enterprise system and refrain from encroaching on management's prerogatives.

Back From Hyde Park, F. D. R. Sees Stettinius

Washington, March 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt returned to the White House today from a four-day visit to his home at Hyde Park, N.Y., and began a series of important conferences.

On his crowded schedule were:

An engagement with Secretary of State Stettinius, presumably to talk over the forthcoming world-security conference at San Francisco and the general trend of world affairs.

A conference with the British Ambassador, Lord Halifax, and Oliver Lyttleton and Col. J. J. Llewellyn, who are in the United States to study the food supply situation.

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt was conferring upon Jonathan Daniels a formal commission as Presidential secretary in charge of press relations.

Jonathan Daniels Sworn In As F.D.R.'s Secretary

Washington, March 29 (AP)— Jonathan Daniels, who succeeded Stephen T. Early as the man who handles presidential press relations, took the oath of office today as a secretary to President Roosevelt.

Daniels, former newspaper man and author, was sworn in as he stood beside the Chief Executive's desk. He has been a White House administrative assistant.

Mrs. Daniels and members of the White House staff were clustered in the President's office to watch the ceremony.

MINE OWNERS REJECT OFFER

Lewis And UMW Had Accepted Miss Perkin's Proposal

Washington, March 29 (AP)—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, announced tonight after a series of conferences with John L. Lewis and the bituminous coal operators that the latter had rejected her last minute proposal for a new contract.

Lewis and the United Mine Workers had agreed to Miss Perkins's proposal which dropped Lewis's 10-cent a ton royalty demand, his major bargaining point.

First Step Toward Seizure

Miss Perkins said the case would be certified tonight directly to the War Labor Board, the initial step toward possible Government seizure, such as followed the collapse of negotiations in 1943.

The Secretary said the operators, after rejecting her proposed new contract to replace the one expiring Saturday at midnight, had also refused to agree on a plan for extending the current agreement for 30 days.

Miss Perkins revaled she had suggested an extension with provision for retraoctive payment of any wage adjustments later written into a contract. This same proposal had been made earlier in the week by Harold L. Ickes, solid fuel administrator.

The operators declined to submit this retroactive feature to arbitration either by private or Governmental umpires.

Little More To Discuss

Miss Perkins said the conference would resume tomorrow as usual but she acknowledged the parties would have little to discuss at this juncture in the crucial negotiations.

Miss Perkins said Lewis had consented to drop his dramatic royalty demand, from which it was estimated the union would obtain some $60,000,000 a year, when she persuaded him that "that was a subject which should not be considered at a time like this."

She said the question of payment of a union royalty could well be left working out between contracts.

Her Vacation Pap Proposal

She explained her proposal contained a $75 allowance for vacation pay as compared to Lewis's request for $100. At present the miners receive $50 in lieu of actual time off.

The Labor Secretary proposed that the second and third shift differentials be set at 4 and 8 cents as Fred M. Vinson, former economic stabilizer, has suggested. Lewis had asked for 10 and 15 cent differentials. The operators had suggested 4 and 6 cents.

On Lewis's demand to blanket in the union all foremen except one at each mine, Miss Perkins proposed that the demand be rewritten in conformity with the recent National Labor Relations Board decision in the Packard Motor Company case.

It recognized foremen as comprising a proper unit for collective bargaining, a new stand for the agency to take.

Ultimatum Served Tuesday

It was learned that on Tuesday Miss Perkins had served what amounted to an ultimatum to the negotiators that they must reach some understanding by midnight tonight or she would certify the dispute to the War Labor Board—the first step toward possible Government seizure.

The Secretary explained to the conferees, it was understood, that she served the warning so that in case certification were necessary the War Labor Board would have time enough to clear the myriad details before the contract expires Saturday midnight.

Lewis' stand in the negotiations for a new contract was bulwarked only yesterday by the poll of miners, who voted, 8 to 1, to authorize a strike if necessary to obtain the UMW demands.

Extension Not Discussed

President Roosevelt has been notified of the strike-vote result. If all efforts fail and the Government has to take over the mines to prevent an interruption of production of war-needed coal, he would have to issue the order for seizure.

Extension of the present agreement, requested by Solid Fuels Administrator Ickes, "was not discussed" at today's miner-operator negotiations, Miss Perkins said.

"It was my impression that both sides would prefer to reach a new contract (rather than extend the present one)," she said.

Plea to Recognize Italy As War Partner Studied

House Committee Will Begin Hearings on April 11

WASHINGTON, March 29. — The House Foreign Affairs Committee will begin hearings April 11 on a resolution introduced by Representative Vito Marcantonio, American Laborite, of New York, which calls upon President Roosevelt to extend recognition to Italy as a full-fledged ally, it was learned today.

The resolution also requests the President to extend lend-lease aid to Italy, and to "use his good offices to the end that the other United Nations recognize Italy as a full and equal ally."

Mr. Marcantonio said today that he had asked for the hearings in a last minute effort to help Italy obtain full partnership among the United Nations in time to be invited to the San Francisco Conference of United Nations.

He said that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia had signified his willingness to testify in favor of the resolution and would be invited to appear as the first witness.

Stimson Says Victories In West End Nazi Hope

Asserts Piecemeal Collapse Is Surrender Alternative

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP). —Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, said today the situation on the western front "makes clear in no uncertain terms" that the German Army on the Rhine is "beaten."

He told a news conference it was possible that the Nazis may find some other temporary line for the defense of the Reich, but that "the enemy must be absolutely without hope of anything save unconditional surrender or piecemeal collapse."

"If the Allied armies are forced to fight from village to village to the destruction of all Germany the German people must know also that their present leadership and those who tolerate it will bear the responsibility," Mr. Stimson said.

Gen. Tompkins' 2d Son Killed

WASHINGTON, March 29 (AP)— Maj. William F. Tompkins Jr., 25, was killed in action in Germany on March 13. He was the second son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Tompkins of Washington to lose his life in this war. Lieut. George H. Tompkins was killed in France last September. A third son, Second Lieut. Christopher Tompkins of the Marines, is stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

COURT FINDS FOR PACKERS

Declares Part Of OPA Price Ceiling Structure Invalid

Washington, March 29 (AP)—A part of the OPA price ceiling on the beef industry was ruled invalid today by the emergency court of appeals.

The court declared that slaughterers who produced only fresh beef can't break even under their wholesale ceilings, and therefore the regulations should be set aside.

The wholesale price ceilings for "processing packers" were upheld, however. These are firms which produce not only fresh beef, but by-products such as tallow, oil, sausage, etc. The OPA estimated that these companies handle 85 per cent of the nation's beef.

30-Day Lapse

The court ruling as to non-processors (fresh-beef-only firms) has no immediate effect on prices to consumers. The judgment of the court is not effective for 30 days. In the meantime OPA can make adjustments in the ceilings in line with the decision, as a rehearing or—if denied that—appeal to the Supreme Court.

The court declared that, in the case of the nonprocessors as a group, the ceilings, plus subsidies, "do not afford adequate margin for profitable operation; indeed, do not permit this group to break even."

In ruling in favor of established ceilings for processing slaughterers, the court said they are "generally fair and equitable."

Members Of Special Court

The court which ruled on the case is a special one created by the Stabilization Act. It has the sole duty of passing on appeals from OPA regulations.

Members include Chief Judge Albert B. Maris, of Landsdowne, Pa.; Calvert Magruder, of Cambridge, Mass.; Walter C. Lindley, of Danville, Ill., and Bolitha J. Laws, of Chevy Chase, Md.

The emergency court's rulings were handed down in five decisions affecting a number of packing companies, including one of the "Big Four" processor firms—Armour & Co.

While not indicating what allowance should be made for nonprocessing packers, the court said:

"But to the extent that the allowance is inadequate to cover cost there must be a revision upward of the indicated losses suffered by the nonprocessing slaughterers as a group under the existing maximum prices for carcass beef, with cattle prices running at the high levels of the year."

The court said, however, that the price administrator under the act did not have any obligation to see that each individual nonprocessing slaughterer made a profit.

The price administrator, the court added, cannot "ignore the disastrous effect" of the regulation "upon a whole group of producers constituting an important segment of the industry, who, because of the nature of their operations, have a common economic situation that sets them apart from the rest of the industry."

Nonprocessing packers have been receiving a special subsidy of 80 cents per 100 pounds to compensate them for lack of income from by-products. Recently this was cut to 30 cents a hundredweight, effective April 1.

Court Upholds Packers

Two of the cases decided today dealt with protests of processor packers that they suffered losses on sales to the armed forces, and on these the court upheld the packers. It ordered OPA to make adjustments to meet out-of-pocket costs of the packers for specific products sold to the Government.

One case was an additional suit brought by Armour. The other was filed by Cudahy Brothers Company, of Cudahy, Wis. (Not the "Big Four" Cudahy firm, which is Cudahy Packing Company, Chicago.)

The court ruled that ceilings on carcass beef and frozen boneless beef sold to the services by the two firms should be at least high enough to return production costs.

Special Committee Formed

House investigators organized today to learn just how much rationed America can afford to feed hungry people abroad.

A special committee headed by Representative Anderson (D., N.M) will cover the whole field of food, he said, to learn the causes of shortages "so that corrective action may be taken promptly."

"The committee will review the food procurement and stockpiling policies of war agencies," said Anderson. "It will inquire into any possible foreign relief feeding commitments and examine policies that may govern the shipment of food abroad."

Discussed At White House

International commitments of which Representative Anderson spoke were the topic of a White House conference between President Roosevelt and two British Cabinet Ministers, J. J. Llewellin, of Food, and Oliver Lyttelton, of Production. The British Ambassador, the Earl of Halifax, sat in.

They came here at the President's suggestion as part of Roosevelt-Churchill efforts to find "means of dealing with the food shortages in liberated areas," as the White House put it.

Lyttelton said afterward that "the electric victories of the armies are going to make it a very urgent matter" to appraise supply conditions fully.

"I Wish It Were"

Asked whether Allied food supplies are going to stretch far enough to care for liberated countries, Lyttelton replied that armed forces and belligerent populations supporting them must be looked after first.

Asked whether there was any truth in a story from England that the British supply of meats and fats is more ample than the American ration, Llewellin replied:

"As Minister of Food, I wish it were."

As for the possibility of getting more food from Canada for liberated areas, Llewellin said the Dominion already has made available immense supplies. And he said that much more wheat will go over when shipping can be found.

Mrs. Roosevelt told her news conference that "if we would just eat the British ration for one month all over this country we would be much more satisfied with what we have." She added that White House residents "don't eat much meat" these days.

ITALY SEEKS INVITATION TO SECURITY PARLEY

NEW YORK, March 29.—(AP) The joint committee for Italian representation at the United Nations' conference in San Francisco today urged the United States to assume the initiative in obtaining an invitation to the conference for Italy.

Luigi Antonini, chairman of the group, which claims to represent more than 1,800,000 Americans of Italian descent, said a resolution had been sent to President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Edward Stettinius declaring:

"It is inconceivable that a conference dedicated to such an urgent and lofty aim can exclude from its deliberations the industrious, peace-loving Italian people."

The resolution was signed by 25 organizations and individuals, including the labor league for human rights, headed by Matthew Woll, who also is vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Surrender By Phone

New York, March 29—The British radio said today that Mannheim had capitulated to United States troops by telephone.

An American officer heard the telephone ring in a building held by his troops, BBC said in a broadcast to Germany reported by the Office of War Information. When he lifted the receiver, he heard a voice saying:

"This is an official of the Mannheim municipal administration speaking. Please cease fire. There are no longer any German soldiers in Mannheim."

Then the Mayor of Mannheim came to the telephone and corroborated the message, the British broadcast said.

Raises Orders for New Ryan Fighter to $103,000,000

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 29 (AP).—The Ryan Aeronautical Company announced today it had received an additional $45,000,000 contract from the Navy for fighting planes.

The company reported that its total orders for a new fighting plane designed to play an important role in the stepped-up war against Japan exceed $103,000,000. T. Claude Ryan, company president, said the backlog of orders would require an accelerated production rate at least until midsummer of 1946.

The Consolidated-Vultee Aircraft Corporation reported today that production of a four-engine land-based transport plane, designated the RY-3, has been under way for several months.

LONDON, MARCH 29-(AP)-DIPLOMATIC SOURCES IN LONDON EXPRESSED NO SURPRISE TONIGHT AT THE DISCLOSURE IN WASHINGTO[illegible] THAT THE SOVIET UNION AND THE UNITED STATES WOULD ASK THREE VOTES EACH IN THE WORLD SECURITY ORGANIZATION WHEN THE DISCUSSIONS OPEN IN SAN FRANCISCO NEXT MONTH.

NO FORMAL STATEMENT WAS EXPECTED FROM WHITEHALL IMMEDIATELY AND OTHER DIPLOMATIC SOURCES DID NOT COMMENT. THE REACTION HERE WAS CONFINED TO THE OBSERVATION THAT THE FINAL ACTION LAY WITH THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE WHERE THE DIVERGENT VIEWS OF ALL PARTIES ARE TO HAVE A THOROUGH AIRING.

IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT THE UNITED STATES APPARENTLY BARGAINED AT YALTA FOR THREE VOTES, THE SAME AS THE SOVIET UNION.

LONDON MAR 29-(ADD RUSSIAN) XXX SULE AIM.

ENEMY BROADCASTS SAID THAT A GERMAN BRIDGEHEAD ON THE EAST BANK OF THE ODER IN A BEND IN THE RIVER AT ZEHLEN, 32 MILES NORTHEAST OF BERLIN, HAD BEEN EVACUATED.

THE RED ARMY HAD DRIVEN TO THE RIVER'S BANK AT A POINT ONLY 29 MILES NORTHEAST OF BERLIN AND HAD ATTEMPTED TO CROSS THE RIVER THERE.

"THE ODER SECTOR BETWEEN STETTIN AND FRANKFURT WILL BE THE SCENE OF STRONG RUSSIAN PRESSURE SOON," THE DNB AGENCY SAID. "THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST BERLIN, WHICH EARLIER HAD BEEN POSTPONED, IS BEING PREPARED FEVERISHLY. FIGHTING AT KUESTRIN IS DESIGNED TO SERVE THIS SOLE AIM."

ELIMINATION OF THE ENEMY POCKET ON THE EAST PRUSSIAN COAST NOT ONLY RELEASED THOUSANDS OF SOVIET TROOPS FOR THE COMING BATTLE FOR BERLIN, BUT LEFT THE GERMANS ONLY IN CONTROL OF KOENIGSBERG AND THE SAMLAND PENINSULA TO THE WEST OF THE STARVING JUNKER CAPITAL. THE NAZIS SAID VASILEVSKY WAS PREPARING TO STORM KOENIGSBERG WITH FOUR ARMIES.

THE GERMANS ACKNOWLEDGED THE CESSATION OF FIGHTING ALONG THE COAST OF THE FRISCHES HAFF (LAGOON), BUT CLAIMED THAT THE LAST DEFENDERS HAD BEEN EVACUATED BY WATER FROM THEIR POSITIONS ON THE KAHLHOLZ PENINSULA. THE DNB AGENCY ASSERTED THAT 10 WEEKS OF FIGHTING HAD COST THE RUSSIANS 350,000 MEN KILLED OR WOUNDED AND 1,700 TANKS.

STALIN SAID THAT THE GERMANS HAD LOST 80,000 IN KILLED AND 50,000 PRISONERS BETWEEN MARCH 12 AND MARCH 29. IN ADDITION, HE SAID, THE GERMANS LOST 605 TANKS AND MORE THAN 3,500 FIELD GUNS.

A7 PARIS, MAR 29-(AP)- BEALMEAR[illegible] NORTH AFRICA.

UNDER ORDERS TO STRIKE HARD AND DEEP, TANKS AND TROOPS WERE DRIVING ACROSS THE PLAINS AT A PACE MATCHING THE AMERICAN CHARGE TO THE SOUTH.

PIN-POINTING ADVANCED POSITIONS WAS FORBIDDEN BY FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY, WHO WAS EXPLOITING THE CONFUSION SPREADING THROUGH GERMAN RANKS.

IN THE PATH OF THESE STEEL-TIPPED SPEARHEADS WERE MUENSTER, HANNOVER AND OSNABRUECK. AT LAST REPORTS--WHICH BY NO MEANS GAVE THE FULL EXTENT OF THE DRIVE--THE BRITISH WERE 17 MILES FROM MUENSTER AT DUELMEN AND 112 MILES FROM HANNOVER.

THEY WERE HURTLING ACROSS RIVERS SO SWIFTLY THE GERMANS HAD NO TIME TO PUT UP A DEFENSE. HALTERN, 27 MILES EAST OF THE ORIGINAL RHINE CROSSING, WAS CAPTURED.

PRISONERS WERE STREAMING BACK TO THE REAR UNATTENDED AS TANKS, TRUCKS, AND TROOPS SWEPT ON EASTWARD.

STRATEGIC BOCHOLT, WITH A NETWORK OF HIGHWAYS AND RAILWAYS 13 MILES NORTH OF WESEL, ALSO FELL.

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION OF GEN.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY ONCE MORE WAS FANNING OUT DEEP IN GERMANY.

MAR 30 1945

WHILE ONE FORCE ENTERED LAUTERBACH, ANOTHER COLUMN ENTERED ULRICHSTEIN, 10 MILES TO THE SOUTHWEST.

THIS WAS THE KIND OF ATTACK THAT TO DATE HAD PLACED 8,970 SQUARE MILES OF GERMAN TERRITORY UNDER THIRD ARMY RULE.

THE THIRD ARMY HAD LINKED UP WITH THE FIRST ARMY AT THREE PLACES WEST OF FRANKFURT, AND NOW THE FIRST, THIRD AND SEVENTH ARMIES HELD A SOLID FRONT OF MORE THAN 150 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE.

ONE FOURTH ARMORED COLUMN MOVED EIGHT MILES NORTHEASTWARD TO THE VICINITY OF BELTERSHAM, WHICH IS 10 MILES EAST OF THE FALLEN TOWN OF GIESSEN. THIS FORCE LAST WAS SIX MILES FROM A JUNCTION WITH FIRST ARMY TROOPS, WHICH WOULD SEAL OFF FRANKFURT.

THE FIRST CONTACT OF THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES WAS MADE BY PATTON'S CAVALRY ELEMENTS, WHO MET THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION AT IDSTEIN, NINE MILES NORTH OF CAPTURED WIESBADEN, CELEBRATED GERMAN HEALTH RESORT. WIESBADEN IS 16 MILES WEST OF FRANKFURT.

ANOTHER JUNCTION WAS MADE 14 MILES NORTH OF WIESBADEN NEAR KAMBURG, AND THE THIRD WAS MADE BY THE NINTH ARMORED AND AN UNIDENTIFIED THIRD ARMY INFANTRY DIVISION NEAR NIDDERNHAUSEN, 14 MILES WEST OF FRANKFURT.

A9

THE FOURTH INFANTRY DIVISION HAD ALL BUT SUBJUGATED FRANKFURT, WITH THE GERMANS STILL CLINGING TO A SMALL SECTION IN THE CITY'S NORTHERN OUTSKIRTS. GERMAN SHELLS WERE RAINING ON FRANKFURT AND A CAPTURED RAILWAY BRIDGE, OVER WHICH THE AMERICANS ENTERED THE CITY.

THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION DRIVING NORTH OF FRANKFURT WAS LESS THAN THREE MILES SOUTH OF BAD NAUHEIM, WHERE A NUMBER OF U.S. NATIONALS

WERE INTERNED AFTER HITLER DECLARED WAR ON THE UNITED STATES.

PATTON'S SWIFT COLUMNS WERE ENCOUNTERING ONLY FEEBLE RESISTANCE, A FEW MINES AND UNMANNED ROADBLOCKS.

THE RAG-TAG DEFENDERS OF DUISBURG, EUROPE'S GREATEST RIVER PORT WITH A POPULATION OF 431,000, RAN UP THE WHITE FLAG BEFORE THE CHARGE OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S U.S. NINTH ARMY VETERANS.

THE 79TH INFANTRY DIVISION THEN REACHED THE RHINE CANAL RUNNING THROUGH THE CITY AND SWARMED OVER THE ENTIRE DOCK AREA.

SEVEN MILES TO THE NORTHEAST, ANOTHER COMBAT TEAM HIT THE OUTSKIRTS OF STERKRADE, SIX MILES FROM THE GREAT INDUSTRIAL CITY OF ESSEN.

THE 35TH INFANTRY DIVISION STRIKING STRAIGHT EAST ACROSS THE NORTHERN RUHR REACHED GLADBECK, SEVEN MILES NORTH OF ESSEN.

OTHER ELEMENTS SIX MILES TO THE NORTH CAPTURED THE RAIL AND HIGHWAY CENTER OF DORSTEN IN WHAT WAS DESCRIBED AS A BROAD ADVANCE.

A10

LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY HURDLED THE RIVER MAIN AT NUMEROUS POINTS JUST SOUTH OF THE THIRD ARMY CROSSINGS AND PUSHED ALMOST THREE MILES EAST AGAINST LIGHT RESISTANCE, DRIVING UP TO 38 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, OTHER FORCES TO THE SOUTH CROSSED THE NECKAR RIVER, OUTFLANKING THE RHINE INDUSTRIAL CITY OF MANNHEIM, THE NORTHERN HALF OF WHICH IS IN AMERICAN HANDS. THEY CLEARED FEUDENHEIM, ACROSS THE NECKAR FROM MANNHEIM AIRFIELD AND A MILE EAST OF THE CITY.

THE GERMANS OBVIOUSLY WERE ALARMED BY THIS NECKAR RIVER THRUST, FOR THEY BLEW 11 BRIDGES BETWEEN MANNHEIM AND LADENBURG, SIX MILES TO THE EAST.

ELEVEN MILES SOUTHEAST OF MANNHEIM, ALONG THE NECKAR, LIES THE STORIED UNIVERSITY CITY OF HEIDELBERG. ALONG THIS VALLEY THE AMERICANS MIGHT PUSH SOUTHEASTWARD TOWARD STUTTGART, OUTFLANKING THE BLACK FOREST, STRONGEST NATURAL POSITION IN SOUTHERN GERMANY.

CANADIAN FORCES AT THE NORTHWESTERN CORNER OF THE TRANS-RHINE FRONT FOUND OPPOSITION WILTING AS THEY BATTLED INSIDE EMMERICH, GERMAN RIVER PORT AND FERRY POINT.

AGAINST THIS PUSH THREATENING TO SHEAR OFF THE ENEMY V-BOMB NESTS OF NORTHWESTERN HOLLAND, THE ENEMY WAS BRINGING UP TROOPS TO THE NIJMEGEN AREA FROM WESTERN HOLLAND.

THE 21ST ARMY GROUP CAPTURED 5,000 PRISONERS WEDNESDAY.

SOME 1,400 WERE CAPTURED EAST OF THE RHINE YESTERDAY AS THE SEVENTH ARMY THREW AN ARC AROUND MANNHEIM AND WON ITS NORTHERN SUBURBS. ANOTHER 700 STRAGGLERS WERE CAGED WEST OF THE RHINE.

THE THIRD DIVISION FOUGHT THROUGH THE LORSCH FOREST AND VIERNHEIM PLAIN TO VIRTUALLY SURROUND SURVIVING DEFENDERS OF MANNHEIM AND TAKE WEINHEIM, ON THE NECKAR RIVER NEARBY, WINNING DOMINATION OF A SUPER-HIGHWAY.

SOME 19 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE, THE 106TH CAVALRY UNIT WAS FIGHTI FOR FUERTH AND FAHRENBACK.

THE 45TH (THUNDERBIRD) DIVISION--THE TEXAS AND OKLAHOMA NATIONAL GUARD--WAS FIGHTING THROUGH THE DIEBURGERMARKS WOODS AFTER PUSHING THROUGH GROSKLEIN AND ZIMMERNS AND APPARENTLY THROWING A LEFT HOOK THROUGH A VALLEY BETWEEN HEAVILY FORESTED HILLS IN A DRIVE TO THE MAIN RIVER, WHICH OTHER SEVENTH ARMY TROOPS CROSSED.

RESISTANCE WAS SPOTTY NORTH OF THE NECKAR RIVER, WHICH MEETS THE RHINE AT MANNHEIM. WALDSTADT WAS CLEARED IN BITTER FIGHTING. WEINHEIM (18,000), A CENTER FOR LEATHER, RUBBER AND FARM MACHINERY MANUFACTURES, FELL WITH VIRTUALLY NO FIGHT.

"SEVERAL BRIDGES NOW ARE OPERATING ACROSS THE RHINE IN THE SEVENTH ARMY AREA," A STATEMENT FROM LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S FIELD HEADQUARTERS SAID.

AGAINST SPIRITED RESISTANCE FROM THE GERMANS IN BUNKERS OF HITLER'S 1935 MAIN RIVER FORTS, THEY EXPANDED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD SOUTH OF ASCHAFFENBURG TO SEVEN MILES ALONG THE EAST BANK, THREE MILES DEEP AT ONE POINT.

PART OF THE THIRD DIVISION'S 30TH INFANTRY REACHED WORTH, GIVING AT LEAST A 12-MILE LODGEMENT ON THE WEST BANK OF THE MAIN TO UNITS OF THE SEVENTH ARMY.

IN THE SOUTHERN SECTOR, ADVANCES OF TWO TO FIVE MILES WERE MADE OVER WOODED HILLS WITH ARMOR MOVING SWIFTLY EASTWARD.

DARMSTADT, MARCH 29-(AP)-LIBERATED FOREIGN WORKERS IN A FREEDOM SPREE PROVIDED A HEADACHE FOR THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT TODAY BY WIDESPREAD LOOTING AND PILLAGING, CLIMAXED BY THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF DARMSTADT'S ALLIED-APPOINTED BURGOMEISTER.

DEPARTING NAZI BIGWIGS HAD SPREAD THE WORD THEY WERE LEAVING BEHIND ENOUGH UNDERCOVER MEN TO KILL ALL GERMAN OFFICIALS TAKING ORDERS FROM THE CONQUERING AMERICANS, BUT THE BURGOMEISTER'S WOULD-BE ASSASSIN WAS NOT A NAZI AGENT. HE WAS A LIBERATED FOREIGN WORKER WHO SIMPLY DID NOT LIKE GERMANS.

THIS WAS ESTABLISHED BY MILITARY GOVERNMENT DETACHMENTS HEADED BY LT.COL.CLARE R.DAVIS, FORMER AUBURN, ILL., SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT. THEY FOUND THE FOREIGN WORKER HAD NO GRUDGE AGAINST PEOPLE WHO COLLABORATE WITH THE ALLIES, BUT ATTACKED THE BURGOMEISTER BECAUSE HE WAS GERMAN.

SURGEONS SAID THE KNIFE STRUCK A GLANCING BLOW AND THE WOUND WAS NOT SERIOUS. THE ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT OCCURRED BEFORE THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAD TIME TO UNPACK ITS FILES.

THE FIRST 48 HOURS AFTER THE GERMAN ARMY FLED FROM DARMSTADT WAS A FIELD DAY FOR LIBERATED ALIENS WHO BROKE INTO HOUSES, OBTAINED WEAPONS AND BEGAN REQUISITIONING CLOTHING AND SUPPLIES. THEY TOOK SHOES FROM GERMAN WOMEN IN THE STREETS AND PLUNDERED SUPPLY TRAINS WHICH THE RETREATING NAZIS LEFT IN THE RAILWAY YARDS AND ON SIDINGS.

MAJ.WILSON W.WILLIVER, FORMER TACOMA, WASH., INVESTMENT BANKER, DISCOVERED THE WORKERS HAD TAKEN 20,000 BOTTLES OF WINE FOUND IN CELLARS AND HAD BROKEN OPEN RAILWAY CARS, INCLUDING ONE LOADED WITH MORPHINE AND OTHER MEDICAL SUPPLIES.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT BETWEEN 30,000 AND 40,000 OF DARMSTADT'S PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 120,000 STILL ARE LIVING IN THE CITY, IN CELLARS OR PARTLY WRECKED HOUSES ON THE OUTSKIRTS. THESE RESIDENTS LARGELY ARE WOMEN, CHILDREN AND ELDERLY MEN.

THEY LOOK TO THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT FOR MAINTENANCE OF ORDER AND MOST OF THEM, ACCORDING TO AMG OFFICERS, SEEM EAGER TO COLLABORATE. THEY REGARD THE WAR AS LOST AND ALMOST OVER.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, MARCH 29-(AP)-SMASHING THROUGH THE ROUTED GERMANS, THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION SPED 20 MILES ACROSS THE FRANKFURT PLAIN TODAY AND CAPTURED 8,000 PRISONERS, WHILE THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION, SPEARING NORTHWARD ABOVE FRANKFURT, BAGGED ANOTHER 6,000.
THE FOURTH ARMORED'S FARTHERMOST POSITION, WHICH WAS REPORTED HOURS AGO, WAS LAUTERBACH, 198 MILES FROM BERLIN. THE SURGING ARMOR PROBABLY HAS PLUNGED CONSIDERABLY FARTHER INTO THE HEART OF GERMANY.
ONE GERMAN RADIO REPORT SAID OTHER THIRD ARMY FORCES HAD DRIVEN 50 MILES EAST OF FRANKFURT, WHICH WOULD PLACE THEM LESS THAN 100 MILES FROM THE CZECHOSLOVAK BORDER. THERE WAS NO CONFIRMATION OR DENIAL OF THIS REPORT AT THIRD ARMY HEADQUARTERS.
THE SENSATIONAL PACE OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S ARMOR INDICATED UTTER COLLAPSE OF ORGANIZED GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THE FACE OF THE RACING TANKS.
THE BAG OF AN ESTIMATED 14,000 PRISONERS PROBABLY IS A RECORD FOR A SINGLE DAY--AND THEY ALL WERE TAKEN ON GERMAN SOIL WHERE A STUBBORN LAST-STAND DEFENSE HAD BEEN EXPECTED.
THE THIRD ARMY PREVIOUSLY PROCESSED MORE THAN 18,000 PRISONERS THROUGH THE CAGES IN ONE DAY, BUT THESE WERE AN ACCUMULATION OF TWO OR THREE DAYS OF FIGHTING.
THE 14,000 FIGURE WAS ACCOUNTED FOR BY THE FOURTH AND SIXTH ARMORED DIVISIONS AND WAS ONLY A PART OF TODAY'S TOTAL BAG. INFANTRY DIVISIONS AND TANKS RUNNING RIOT FROM GIESSEN SOUTHWARD TO HANAU AND WESTWARD TO THE RHINE ARE CERTAIN TO ADD THOUSANDS MORE.
THE THIRD ARMY TO DATE HAS CAPTURED 8,970 SQUARE MILES OF GERMAN TERRITORY AND IT IS ADDING NEW MILEAGE HOURLY. THE BIGGEST SINGLE DAY WAS MARCH 19 WHEN 950 SQUARE MILES WERE TAKEN.

A69
IN ADDITION TO ENTERING LAUTERBACH, THE FOURTH ARMORED DROVE A SPEARHEAD TO ULRICHSTEIN, 22 MILES EAST OF GIESSEN.
THE SIXTH ARMORED ADVANCED FOUR AND A HALF MILES NORTHWARD TO THE VICINITY OF BADANUHEIM, 15 MILES NORTH OF FRANKFURT, CLEARING THE TOWNS OF VILBEL, NEIDERDORFELDON, MASSENHEIM, NEIDERESCHBACH, DORTELWEIL, RENDEL, KLEINKARBEN, GROSS KARBEN, NIEDERWOLLSTADT AND OBERWALLSTADT, ALL THREE TO NINE MILES NORTH OF FRANKFURT.
PUSHING SIX MILES TO THE NORTHEAST, THE 87TH INFANTRY DIVISION REACHED THE VICINITY OF AUMENAU, 22 MILES SOUTH OF GIESSEN. OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE 87TH DROVE 19 MILES NORTH TO THE AREA OF GONS, SIX MILES SOUTH OF GIESSEN.
THE 87TH ALSO CLEARED MICHELBACH, 19 MILES NORTH OF BINGEN, IN AN ADVANCE WHICH MOVED ACROSS THE LIMBURG-FRANKFURT AUTO HIGHWAY.
THE 76TH INFANTRY GAINED FIVE MILES TO THE EAST AND ENTERED ORLEN, SIX MILES NORTH OF WILSBADEN.

THE TANKS, NOW IN THE FIFTH DAY OF THEIR ATTACK, MET ONLY THE FEEBLEST KIND OF RESISTANCE.

THEY REACHED THE POINT TEN MILES SOUTH OF PADERBORN AT 5:55 P.M. AND AT THE TIME THERE WAS NO SIGN OF ANYTHING HOLDING UP THE RAMPAGING ARMOR.

MAR 30 1945

IT CAN BE ASSUMED THAT BY NIGHTFALL THE TANKS HAD ROLLED EVEN FARTHER.

THE TREMENDOUS ADVANCE DURING THE DAY COMPLETELY OUTFLANKED THE INDUSTRIAL RUHR AND PLACED HODGES' ARMOR WITHIN 93 MILES OF GERMANY'S NORTHERN PLAINS.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, MARCH 29-(AP)-THE ASSASSINATION OF AACHEN'S ALLIED-APPOINTED MAYOR WAS CARRIED OUT BY THREE GERMAN PARACHUTISTS IN UNIFORM, IT WAS DISCLOSED TODAY.

STRIKING GANGSTER-FASHION SUNDAY NIGHT, THEY SHOT AND KILLED THE MAYOR, FRANZ OPPENHOF, 41, AND THEN ESCAPED. OPPENHOF WAS THE FIRST MAYOR TO BE APPOINTED IN A MAJOR OCCUPIED GERMAN CITY BY THE ALLIES. HIS DEATH WAS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY.

MILITARY INVESTIGATORS SAID THEY HAD BEEN UNABLE TO DETERMINE AN EXACT MOTIVE, BUT IT WAS RECALLED THAT HITLER OFTEN HAS THREATENED RETALIATION AGAINST ANY GERMANS COOPERATING WITH THE ALLIES AND THERE WERE SOME WHO BELIEVED THIS MIGHT BE THE FIRST MANIFESTATION OF THAT THREAT.

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY EAST OF HALTERN, MARCH 29-(AP)-THE ROA OF THOUSANDS OF ENGINES SHOOK EVERY ROAD FOR MILES TODAY AS TRUCKS, TANKS, GUNS AND BULLDOZERS RUMBLED THROUGH A WIDE GAP PUNCHED BY BRITISH UNITS EASTWARD INTO THE HEART OF GERMANY.

BEYOND A WIDE ARC FROM HALTERN NORTHWESTWARD THROUGH BORKEN AND BOCHOLT THEY DISAPPEARED INTO A SILENCE IMPOSED BY A SECURITY ORDER TO CLOAK THEIR MOVEMENTS FROM THE BEWILDERED WEHRMACHT.

HALTERN FELL EARLY TODAY TO BRITISH ARMOR WHICH SWEPT FORWARD SIX MILES IN TEN HOURS AND IT ALREADY IS FAR IN THE REAR OF THE DASHING BRITISH SPEARHEADS. BORKEN WAS THE PRIZE OF A 20-MILE NORTHEASTWARD OVERNIGHT PLUNGE. BOCHOLT WAS TOUGHER, BUT NOW IT TOO IS WELL BEHIND THE FARTHEST NORTHWARD ADVANCE.

ALL SEMBLANCE OF ORGANIZED RESISTANCE DISAPPEARED IN THIS SECTOR OF FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S FRONT DAYS AGO, BUT OCCASIONAL SMALL DETACHMENTS ARE TRYING TO PULL OUT OF THE AREA NORTH OF THE BRITISH BRIDGEHEAD AND SHOW FIGHT WHEN THEY COLLIDE WITH THE SWIFT THRUSTS OF ARMOR AND MOTORIZED INFANTRY.

EVERY TOWN ALONG THE ROUTE IS BATTERED AND BROKEN BY ARTILLERY AND MORTAR SHELLS AND AERIAL BOMBING.

NO BATTLE LINE AS SUCH EXISTS ON THIS FRONT. DESPITE OCCASIONAL THUNDER OF ARTILLERY AND THE CRACK OF SNIPERS' RIFLES, THE PICTURE OF WAR HERE IS ONE OF ENDLESS COLUMNS OF EQUIPMENT CARRYING MEN AND WEAPONS FORWARD. DISPATCH RIDERS ON MOTORCYCLES OR OFFICERS OR MILITARY POLICE IN JEEPS WEAVE IN AND OUT OF THE TRAFFIC.

EAST OF HALTERN, I FOUND AN ARMORED UNIT COMMANDER WITH HIS TEMPORARY DESK ON THE ARMOR-PLATED SURFACE OF A SCOUT CAR. THE COMMANDER AND HIS MAPS BOTH WERE WET WITH THE RAIN THAT HAD FALLEN IN A SLOW DRIZZLE THROUGHOUT THE DAY.

AS I TALKED WITH HIM, TRUCKS CARRYING ALL THE PARAPHERNALIA OF HIS HEADQUARTERS WERE ROLLING INTO THE YARD BEFORE THE HOUSE WHICH WAS HIS COMMAND POST FOR THE NIGHT. HE WAS EXUBERANT OVER THE PROGRES OF THE DRIVE WHICH HIS BRITISH TANKMEN SHARED WITH THE AMERICAN 17TH AIRBORNE DIVISION AND INFANTRYMEN, BUT THE NEWS HE HAD TO RELATE ALL DEALT WITH MATTERS CLOAKED BY THE SECURITY BLACKOUT.

UNITS OF THE SIXTH GUARDS ARMORED BRIGADE SPEARHEADED THE DRIVE TO HALTERN AND BEYOND, WHILE BORKEN FELL TO UNITS OF THE SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION, THE "DESERT RATS" OF THE NORTH AFRICAN CAMPAIGN.

THE SUPPLY LINES FEEDING THESE COLUMNS BEGIN FAR BACK ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RHINE AND MOVE OVER ROADS LINED WITH SHELL-SPLINTERED TREES. OCCASIONAL SMALL GROUPS OF PRISONERS WHO HAVE BEEN DISARMED AND ORDERED TO MARCH TO THE REAR UNGUARDED STRIDE ALONG THE HIGHWAY SHOULDERS.

MAR 30 1945

IN THE BLASTED TOWNS, CIVILIANS STAND IN THE DOORWAYS WATCHING THE ALLIED ARMIES ROLL BY. EACH ROAD HAS ITS COMPLEMENT OF GERMAN REFUGEES MOVING ALONG WITH A FEW POSSESSIONS STRAPPED IN THEIR BACKS OR CARRIED ON BICYCLE-WHEELED CARTS OR BABY CARRIAGES.

MOST OF THE TRAFFIC IN THIS SECTOR MOVES THROUGH OR NEAR DEMOLISHED WESEL OR THROUGH OR NEAR XANTEN. IT SEEMS ODDLY SYMBOLIC THAT SO MUCH OF MONTGOMERY'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE "TWILIGHT OF THE GODS" SHOULD THUNDER BY XANTEN, THE LEGENDARY BIRTHPLACE OF SIEGFRIED.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY, MARCH 29-(AP)-POWERFUL ARMORED COLUMNS OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' AMERICAN FIRST ARMY STRUCK NORTHWARD IN SENSATIONAL 55-MILE ADVANCE TODAY, THROWING A GIANT HOOK AROUND GERMAN ARMIES IN THE RUHR AND PROBING WITHIN 53 MILES OF GERMANY'S GREAT NORTHERN PLAIN.

THE INDUSTRIAL RUHR WAS COMPLETELY OUTFLANKED AS HODGES' TANKS, SUDDENLY CHANGING THE DIRECTION OF THEIR ATTACK, SWEPT NORTH FROM MARBURG TO A POINT WITHIN TEN MILES OF PADERBORN.

NOTHING WAS HOLDING THE RAMPAGE AND IT COULD BE ASSUMED THAT BY NIGHTFALL THE TANKS HAD ROLLED EVEN FARTHER. THE DEEPEST ANNOUNCED POINT OF THEIR ADVANCE WAS REACHED AT 5:35 P.M.

IN THAT AREA THE ARMORED SPEARHEAD WAS 43 MILES EAST OF HAMM, ONCE GERMANY'S GREATEST RAILWAY CENTER. TO THE NORTHEAST HANNOVER WAS ONLY ABOUT 68 MILES AWAY AND BERLIN ABOUT 186.

AS A RESULT OF THIS DRIVE THE JAWS OF A GIGANTIC TRAP WERE CLOSING ON THE RUHR FROM TWO SIDES, WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES THERE CAUGHT BETWEEN THE FIRST ARMY ON THE EAST AND THE U.S. NINTH AND BRITISH AND CANADIAN ARMIES ON THE WEST.

THE WHOLE OF NORTHWESTERN GERMANY WAS THREATENED, WITH ENTRY TO THE GREAT NORTHERN PLAIN JUST AHEAD OF THE UNCHECKED AMERICAN TANKS.

THE MIGHTY DRIVE BEGAN IN THE COLD GREY DAWN OF A CLOUDY DAY AND FOR HOUR AFTER HOUR THE TANKS ROLLED NORTHWARD AGAINST THE FEEBLEST SORT OF RESISTANCE. WHAT LITTLE WAS ENCOUNTERED WAS STEAMROLLERED OUT OF THE WAY.

MANY ESCAPE ROUTES PREVIOUSLY AVAILABLE TO NAZI TROOPS CAUGHT IN THE RUHR WERE CLOSED AND ONE OF THE REICH'S MOST IMPORTANT RAILWAYS, THE LINE BETWEEN BERLIN AND ESSEN, WAS CUT.

EARLIER, UNDER THE SHIELD OF A 36-HOUR NEWS BLACKOUT, HODGES' TANKS CROSSED THE LAHN RIVER, TAKING MARBURG WITHOUT OPPOSITION. THE ENEMY WAS UNABLE TO MAKE A STAND ALONG THIS RIVER AND INFANTRY RUSHED IN BEHIND THE TANKS TO CONSOLIDATE THE GAINS.

GERMAN RESISTANCE IN THIS AREA SEEMED CRUSHED AND ELEMENTS OF THE NINTH INFANTRY DIVISION EASILY MOPPED UP WHAT COULD BE LOCATED.

THE FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION, MOVING UP SOUTHWEST OF SIEGEN, CAPTURED PRISONERS WHO SAID THEY HAD LEFT DUESSELDORF EIGHT DAYS BEFORE TO MOVE DOWN AND ATTEMPT TO STEM THE FIRST ARMY TIDE. IT TOOK THEM EIGHT DAYS TO TRAVEL 40 MILES BECAUSE OF CONSTANT AIR ATTACKS AND OTHER TRANSPORT DIFFICULTIES.

SOUTHEAST OF LIMBURG THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION SENT A COLUMN DOWN THE AUTOBAHN (SUPERHIGHWAY), FORCING ANOTHER SPEARHEAD INTO THE ENEMY.

THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES COMPLETED A JUNCTION AT KAMBERG AND IDSTEIN.

JUMPING OFF IN THE GRAY DAWN OF A CHILL AND CLOUDY DAY, THE TANKS DROVE FROM 16 TO 39 MILES AHEAD IN THE FIRST SEVEN HOURS AND WERE REPORTED OFFICIALLY TONIGHT TO HAVE REACHED THE VICINITY OF LANGWIESSE, 40 MILES NORTH OF GIESSEN, IN THE DEEPEST PENETRATION IN THIS NEW DIRECTION.

OTHER COLUMNS REACHED HALLENBERG AND FRANKENBERG IN THE SAME AREA.

THIS WHEELING MOVEMENT TO THE NORTH--IF THE DIRECTION OF THE ATTACK IS MAINTAINED--WILL DRIVE THE POWERFUL FIRST ARMY IN BEHIND THE RUHR AS THE SOUTHERN JAW OF A PINCERS WITH FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY'S FORCES.

"ACTUALLY, THE PEOPLE CERTAINLY HAVE NO CAUSE FOR GREAT HOPES," THE CONSERVATIVE BERN NEWSPAPER BUND SAID. "THAT FAMOUS RAY OF LIGHT APPEARS NOWHERE ON THE HORIZON."

THE NEUE ZURCHER ZEITUNG REVEALED AN INCREASE OF DESERTERS FROM THE GERMAN ARMY, SAYING POLICE MADE SURPRISE SEARCHES FOR THEM AND SHOT THEM IMMEDIATELY UPON CAPTURE.

WORKERS AND SOLDIERS ALIKE IN THE REICH ARE SEEKING TO FLEE FROM THE CONFUSION AND HOPELESSNESS OF FIGHTING ON IN INCREASING DIFFICULTIES. REFUGEES FROM ANY BOMBED TOWN ENTERING ANOTHER MUST ANNOUNCE THEMSELVES IMMEDIATELY. IF THEY DON'T THEY ARE CONSIDERED DESERTERS.

ONLY THOSE SOLDIERS WHO HAVE PERFORMED GREAT DEEDS OF HEROISM ARE CONSIDERED FOR LEAVE. THE OTHERS HAVE BEEN ORDERED TO POSTS WHERE THEY ARE EXPECTED TO FIGHT TO THE END.

THE BUND CORRESPONDENT SAID RECENT BOMBINGS HAVE BEEN THE WORST GERMANY HAS EXPERIENCED AND THAT WHILE THEY HAVE PRODUCED SENTIMENT FOR "PEACE AT ANY PRICE" AMONG SOME OF THE POPULACE, OTHERS HAVE HAD THEIR HATRED OF THE ALLIES AROUSED AND ARE MORE DETERMINED NOT TO GIVE UP.

MOSCOW, MARCH 29-(AP)-THE RUSSIANS DON'T DISCOUNT THE POSSIBILITY THAT ANGLO-AMERICAN FORCES WILL REACH BERLIN FIRST.

THE ARRIVAL OF RUSSIA'S FOURTH WARTIME SPRING HAS BROUGHT A CERTAIN TENSENESS TO MOSCOW'S ATMOSPHERE. EVERYONE KNOWS THE RED ARMY'S OFFENSIVE AGAINST BERLIN AND THE HEART OF GERMANY IS ABOUT TO BEGIN.

THERE IS MUCH SPECULATION WHEN MARSHAL GREGORY K.ZHUKOV'S FIRST WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY, POISED ON THE ODER RIVER 32 MILES FROM THE REICH CAPITAL, IS GOING TO MOVE ON THE CITY. BUT MOST PEOPLE SAY IT SHOULD BE WITHIN THE NEXT TWO WEEKS. IF YOU SAY THREE WEEKS, YOU CAN RECEIVE ALL KINDS OF ODDS.

MAR 30 1945

EVEN SO, SOME SAY THE ALLIES MAY GET THERE BEFORE THEM. THEY TELL YOU THAT THE ALLIES HAVE SO RELATIVELY FEW DIVISIONS FACING THEM IT SHOULD BE A CINCH IF THE AMERICANS AND BRITISH PUT OUT AS MUCH EFFORT AS THE RED ARMY DOES.

THE SUCCESSES OF THE RED ARMY AND THE SOVIET ALLIES IN THE WEST ARE BRINGING HOPES OF A QUICK FINISH OF HOSTILITIES AND A RETURN TO NORMAL LIFE. SO FAR, THOUGH, SOVIET OFFICIALDOM HAS BEEN GUARDED ABOUT ENCOURAGING THE PEOPLE THAT THE WAR IS ABOUT TO END OR THAT SACRIFICES WILL NOT HAVE TO BE MADE.

BUT WITH THE ARRIVAL OF SPRING, PEOPLE ARE APPEARING IN THE STREETS WITH LIGHTER AND BRIGHTER CLOTHES AND THE RUSSIANS NOW ARE RECEIVING MORE AND BETTER FOOD THAN AT ANY TIME SINCE THE BEGINNIN OF THE WAR, WITH PRICES DOWN IN COMMERCIAL AND FARMER MARKETS AND REGULAR LOW PRICES OF OFFICIAL RATIONS BEING MAINTAINED.

THE SAKASHIMA ISLANDS ARE ABOUT 250 MILES EAST OF THENORTHERN TIP OF FORMOSA. THEY ARE SOUTHWEST OF OKINAWA, PRINCIPAL ISLAND IN THE RYUKYUS.

MAR 30 1945

THE TOKYO RADIO HAS REPORTED FOR SEVERAL DAYS THAT UNITED NATIONS INVASION FLEETS HAVE BEEN STEAMING NEAR THE RYUKYUS AND THA YANK ASSAULT FORCES HAVE INVADED AKA AND TOKASHIKI ISLANDS, ABOUT 15 MILES OFF THE WESTERN COAST OF OKINAWA.

A54KX

OKINAWA AND OTHER ISLANDS IN THIS 700-MILE CHAIN STRETCHING BETWEEN FORMOSA AND KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST MAIN ISLAND OF THE JAPANESE HOMELAND, HAVE BEEN POUNDED FOR 11 DAYS BY AMERICAN CARRIER AIRCRAFT. TODAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT BROUGHT OUT THAT THE BRITISH HAD JOINED IN THESE ATTACKS ON AT LEAST TWO DAYS THIS WEEK.

AMERICAN BATTLE FORCES METHODICALLY POUNDING THE RYUKYUS HAVE KEPT THE ENEMY PERPLEXED AS TO THEIR INTENTIONS. MEANWHILE, RADIO TOKYO CLUNG TO ITS UNCONFIRMED STORY THAT THE GROUP HAD BEEN INVADED.

MIGHTY BATTLESHIPS, ETC., PICKING UP PREVIOUS AT SECOND GRAF

MIGHTY BATTLESHIPS HURLED 16-INCH SHELLS INTO THE DEFENSES OF THE NARROW, STRATEGIC ISLANDS AS HUNDREDS OF CARRIER PLANES SWEPT THE 700-MILE CHAIN OF BASES FLUNG ACROSS THE EASTERN APPROACH TO THE EAST CHINA SEA.

APPARENTLY IN SUPPORT OF ITS CLAIM THAT YANKS HAD LANDED SEVERAL DAYS AGO ON THE KERAMA ISLANDS, 15 MILES WEST OF OKINAWA, THE TOKYO RADIO SAID "20 TO 30 TRANSPORTS" WERE ATTEMPTING TO SUPPLY THE INVASION FORCES.

OKINAWA, PRINCIPAL ISLAND IN THE GROUP, AND OTHERS HAVE BEEN THE TARGETS OF THE SUSTAINED BOMBARDMENT, WHICH HAS REACHED THE INTENSITY SO CHARACTERISTIC OF PRE-INVASION ACTION IN THE CENTRAL PACIFIC.

FOR SIX DAYS, INCLUDING WEDNESDAY, THE YANK BATTLEWAGONS HAVE STEAMED UP AND DOWN THE RYUKYUS IN BLAZING DEFIANCE OF THE ENEMY'S MAIN STRENGTH. NEVER BEFORE HAS SUCH AN ASSEMBLAGE OF WARSHIPS--THE GREATEST IN HISTORY--REMAINED SO LONG IN SUCH CLOSE PROXIMITY TO JAPAN'S HOME FLEET BASES.

AIRCRAFT OF VICE ADM.MARC A.MITSCHER'S FAST AND HARD STRIKING CARRIER FORCE HAVE BOMBED AND STRAFED THE JAPANESE THROUGHOUT THE RYUKYUS AND NIPPON ITSELF FOR ELEVEN DAYS.

BESIDES DESTROYING OR DAMAGING MANY MILITARY INSTALLATIONS, THE NAVAL AND AIR OFFENSIVE ALREADY HAS ACCOMPLISHED THE FOLLOWING, ON THE BASIS OF INCOMPLETE REPORTS:

DESTROYED OR PROBABLY DESTROYED 819 JAPANESE PLANES.

SUNK OR DAMAGED AT LEAST 57 ENEMY SHIPS, INCLUDING CARRIERS AND A 45,000-TON BATTLESHIP.

BLASTED SUBMARINE PENS ON THE WEST COAST OF OKINAWA.

"SOME FLEET UNITS" HAVE BEEN DAMAGED IN ENEMY AIR ATTACKS, FLEET ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ HAS REPORTED. HE HAS LISTED AS SERIOUSLY DAMAGED A DESTROYER, ONE "LARGER UNIT" AND ANOTHER SHIP OF UNIDENTIFIED SIZE OR TYPE. NOT A SINGLE AMERICAN VESSEL HAS BEEN REPORTED LOST.

ON THE OTHER HAND, THE JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS CLAIMED THE SINKING OR DAMAGING ON "30 WARSHIPS, CRUISERS, DESTROYERS AND TRANSPORTS" BETWEEN MONDAY AND WEDNESDAY. THIS ENTIRELY UNSUBSTANTIATED REPORT, BROADCAST BY TOKYO, SAID IT HAD BEEN ACCOMPLISHED BY "SURFACE UNITS" AND AIRCRAFT.

MAR 30 1945

A232KX

ADMIRAL NIMITZ WAS KEEPING THE JAPANESE HIGH COMMAND GUESSING NOT ONLY ABOUT HIS INTENTIONS BUT ABOUT WHO IS CARRYING ON THE ATTACK. THROUGHOUT THE 11-DAY-OLD OFFENSIVE HE HAS REFERRED TO THE STRIKING FORCE EITHER AS THE U.S.PACIFIC FLEET, THE FIFTH FLEET OR MERELY "BATTLESHIPS."

GUAM, MARCH 29-(AP)-BRITISH WARSHIPS WHICH JOINED THE AMERICAN NAVAL ASSAULT ON THE RYUKYU ISLANDS SAILED FROM A SECRET U.S. PACIFIC BASE WITH YANK WISHES FOR "GOOD HUNTING."

AN AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICER WHO DESCRIBED THE DEPARTURE SPOKE OF THE BRITISH ELEMENT AS "A POWERFUL TASK FORCE MADE UP OF BATTLESHIPS, CARRIERS, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS."

THE LEAD SHIP OF THE FORMATION WAS A SLEEK, HEAVILY ARMED CRUISER OF THE LATEST TYPE.

BRITISH OFFICERS AND RATINGS LINED THE RAILS OF THE FLAGSHIP, THE DREADNOUGHT KING GEORGE V, AND GAVE THE THUMBS-UP VICTORY SALUTE.

AS THE FLAGSHIP, BEARING THE TASK FORCE COMMANDER, VICE ADM. SIR BERNARD RAWLINGS, PULLED UP PARALLEL WITH U.S.COMMODORE WORRALL R.CARTER'S FAMED SERVICE SQUADRON TEN, WORRALL BLINKERED:

"GOOD HUNTING, GOOD LUCK AND GODSPEED TO YOU, BRITISH BROTHERS."

BY SIGNAL FLAGS RAWLINGS REPLIED:

"THANK YOU VERY MUCH. I HOPE WE MEET AGAIN, COMMODORE, NEARER TOKYO."

AS THE LAST SHIP OF THE FORCE MOVED OUT OF THE BASE, THE LEADING CRUISER DISAPPEARED OVER THE HORIZON.

THE BRITISH TASK FORCE WENT INTO COORDINATED ACTION WITH THE AMERICANS WHILE SOME NAVAL OBEERVERS STILL WERE TALKING ABOUT WHETHER TECHNICAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE FLEETS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES MIGHT BA JOINT OPERATIONS IN THE PACIFIC.

BRITISH OFFICERS HERE SAID THAT WHILE THERE WAS A DIFFERENCE IN CRUISING RANGE AND TECHNIQUE, THERE WAS NO PARTICULAR PROBLEM WHEN THE BRITISH UNITS WERE IN A SELF-SERVICED TASK FORCE.

FOR THE CURRENT OPERATION IT IS NO SECRET THAT MOST OF ITS SHELLS, BOMBS AND OTHER ARMAMENT ARE ITS OWN, FROM ENGLAND, AND ITS FOOD AND MUCH OF ITS OTHER EQUIPMENT FROM AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAN

THE COMPOSITION OF ITS AIR ARM IS UNDISCLOSED, BUT BRITISH CARRIERS ARE KNOWN TO BE USING BOTH ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PLANES. THERE IS REASON TO BELIEVE THAT MOST OF ITS PLANES FOR THIS OPERATION ARE AMERICAN TORPEDO PLANES, HELLCATS AND CORSAIRS. HOWEVER, SOME SEAFIRE AND FIREFLY TYPES ARE ABOARD.

THE SEAFIRE IS THE CARRIER VERSION OF THE FAMED SPITFIRE. IT CARRIES TWO 20 MM. CANNON, FOUR MACHINE GUNS AND HAD A 1470 HORSEPOWER ROLLS ROYCE MERLIN ENGINE. ITS WINGS FOLD AT THE TIPS AS WELL AS AT THE ROOTS. BECAUSE OF THIS IT IS KNOWN AS THE PRAYING MANTIS.

MAR 30 1945

THE FIREFLY IS A HEAVILY ARMED BRITISH NAVAL PLANE--FOUR 20 MM. CANNON AND EQUIPPED TO USE ROCKETS.

A REVOLUTIONARY FLOATING SUPPLY TRAIN WHICH ENABLES THE FORCE TO STRIKE SO FAR FROM ITS BASES APPARENTLY IS SIMILAR IN SOME RESPECTS TO WORRALL'S NOW WIDELY KNOWN SERVICE SQUADRON TEN--A COLLECTION OF ALL TYPES OF SERVICE SHIPS WHICH MAKES IT UNNECESSARY FOR A FLEET TO RETURN TO ITS BASE FOR SERVICING.

MANILA, FRIDAY, MARCH 30 (AP)-AMERICAN LIBERATION OF THE PHILIPPINES, WITH THE ISLANDS' SECOND LARGEST CITY OF CEBU NOW FREED, STILL WAS STUBBORNLY RESISTED BY THE JAPANESE IN NORTHERN LUZON TODAY.

THIS WAS THE ONLY POINT OF "STRONG" RESISTANCE REPORTED BY GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN HIS THURSDAY COMMUNIQUE, WHICH ANNOUNCED THE CAPTURE OF CEBU.

THE CEBU ISLAND PORT CITY OF SOME 150,000 POPULATION WAS ENTERED WEDNESDAY BY TROOPS OF MAJ.GEN.WILLIAM H.ARNOLD'S AMERICAL DIVISION, THE COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED.

BEFORE RETREATING INTO THE HILLS TO THE NORTH, THE JAPANESE DESTROYED MUCH OF THE CITY. THE EXCELLENT PORT AREA "REMAINS VIRTUALLY INTACT," HOWEVER, MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED.

THE AMERICAL DIVISION TROOPS, WHO LANDED ABOUT FIVE MILES SOUTH OF CEBU CITY MONDAY IN THE 28TH PHILIPPINE ISLAND LIBERATION INVASION, ALSO FREED 11 OTHER CEBU TOWNS.

ONLY ONE LARGE ISLAND OF THE ARCHIPELAGO, NEGROS, NOW REMAINS FOR THE AMERICANS TO INVADE.

THE STRONG JAPANESE RESISTANCE ON NORTHERN LUZON WAS AROUND BAGUIO, PHILIPPINE SUMMER CAPITAL, AND THE BALETE PASS GATEWAY TO THE CAGAYAN VALLEY. NO NEW ADVANCE WAS REPORTED BY 33RD DIVISION DOUGHBOYS, FIGHTING WITHIN ARTILLERY RANGE OF BAGUIO CITY LIMITS. THE 25TH AND 32ND DIVISIONS CONTINUED THEIR DOGGED STRUGGLE TO REDUCE JAPANESE DEFENSES IN THE BALETE PASS AREA.

MACARTHUR SAID JAPANESE RESISTANCE IN CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN LUZON WAS "BECOMING DISCONNECTED AND SPORADIC." THE JAPANESE, HE NOTED, WERE UNABLE TO REPLACE THEIR "GREAT LOSSES."

PHILIPPINE-BASED BOMBERS OF THE U.S.FIFTH ARMY AIR FORCE DROPPED 72 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON TAKOYA IN THE LATEST OF THEIR DAILY FORMOSA ATTACKS. THEY SANK SEVEN JAPANESE FREIGHTERS AND DAMAGED 16 OTHERS IN THEIR CONTINUED SOUTH CHINA SEA AIR BLOCKADE.

FOLLOWING BROADCAST OF AN IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS CLAIM THAT JAPANESE WARSHIPS HAD ATTACKED THE AMERICAN "INVASION" FORCE, TOKYO RADIO REPORTED THAT "20 OR 30" U.S. TRANSPORTS WERE BRINGING REINFORCEMENTS FOR TROOPS ASHORE ON THE KERAMA ISLAND GROUP. THE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE SAID THE NAVAL BATTLE WAS FOUGHT BETWEEN MONDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

MAR 30 1945

IT CLAIMED JAPNESE "SURFACE UNITS" AND PLANES SANK OR DAMAGED 30 AMERICAN SHIPS.

THESE REPORTS LACKED ANY U.S. CONFIRMATION, BEYOND PACIFIC FLEET ANNOUNCEMENTS OF CONTINUED BOMBING AND BOMBARDMENT OF OKINAW ISLAND AND OTHER RYUKYU TARGETS.

A TOKYO NEWS DISPATCH SAID THE GOVERNMENT HAD DECIDED TO ESTABLISH A "SYSTEM OF FARM VILLAGES" FOR EVACUEES FROM "BOMB RAVAGED" CITIES." ANOTHER DISPATCH SAID JAPAN'S NEW TOTALITARIAN, "SURE VICTORY" POLITICAL PARTY WOULD BE FORMALLY INAUGURATED TOMORROW. THE PARTY IS CALLED THE "POLITICAL ASSOCIATION OF GREATER JAPAN."

TOKYO RADIO REPORTED AMERICAN CARRIER-BASED AIRCRAFT THURSDAY AGAIN ATTACKED THE KURE NAVAL BASE AREA ON HONSHU AND TARGETS ON KYUSHU ISLAND IN THE HOMELAND.

AMERICAN MEDIUM BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS, THE BROADCAST SAID, RAIDED AIR FIELDS AND "VITAL INSTALLATIONS" AT TAINAN, TAKAO AND TAICHU ON FORMOSA THURSDAY.

THE JAPANESE RADIO AT SINGAPORE REPORTED 20 AMERICAN B-29S THURSDAY ATTACKED SINGAPORE FOR MORE THAN TWO HOURS.

TOKYO SAID THAT AT LEAST 500 AMERICAN CARRIER AIRCRAFT HAMMERED SOUTHERN JAPAN FOR 10 HOURS TODAY, CONCENTRATING ON SUCH TARGETS AS THE SASEBO AND KURE NAVAL BASES.

THIS ATTACK, THE ENEMY BROADCAST ASSERTED, "MUST BE CONSIDERED A PART OF A STRATEGIC PLAN TO SUPPORT THE OKINAWA OPERATION."

DOMEI, JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, REPORTED ABOUT THE SAME TIME THAT "MORE THAN 100 ENEMY WARSHIPS," INCLUDING 10 BATTLESHIPS, WERE CRUISING AROUND OKINAWA. IT SAID THESE VESSELS WERE SCREENING ANOTHER AMERICAN TASK FORCE WHOSE NUCLEUS WAS "MORE THAN 10 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS."

SOUTHERN HONSHU, KYUSHU AND SHIKOKU--ALL NIPPON HOMELAND ISLANDS--WERE SWEPT BY THE CARRIER PLANES, WHICH LAUNCHED THEIR ATTACK BEFORE DAWN, ACCORDING TO THE ENEMY ACCOUNT.

A TOKYO DOMESTIC BROADCAST, ANOTHER OF THE SERIES INTERCEPTED BY FCC, WARNED THE HOMELAND THAT THREE ENEMY PLANES HAD FLOWN OVER THE SOUTH SHORE OF THE INLAND SEA, WHERE MANY COMBAT SHIPS OF THE NIPPONESE FLEET WERE DAMAGED BY CARRIER PLANES ON MARCH 19. SPOTTERS WERE ASKED TO "LOOK CAREFULLY TO SEE THAT THE ENEMY PLANES DO NOT DROP ANY MINES."

Allied Armies Racing Across German Plains

PARIS, Saturday, March 31.—(AP) U. S. tanks thundered unopposed across the formidable Eder river 182 miles southwest of Berlin in a 21-mile sweep yesterday and American breakthrough forces to the north threatened at any hour to trap 40,000 crack German troops in the toppling Ruhr.

Five Allied armies, powered by at least 16 armored divisions beyond the Rhine, drove almost at will through the broken German front, weakened to an almost fatal point by 60,000 captives swept up by Gen. Eisenhower's forces in the last two days.

"There is no organized line of defense between you and Berlin," a high-ranking German officer told his U. S. Third Army captors. "There is no organized system of government left in Germany. When you reach Berlin the whole situation will quickly dissolve."

Sweep Toward Berlin

At least two U. S. First Army tank divisions and three U. S. Third Army armored divisions were on the high road to Berlin, brushing past the scant resistance in gains of 20 and 21 miles respectively.

The U. S. First Army scored one of the biggest tactical victories of another sensational day by capturing the great Eder dam near Hemfurt. It was taken so swiftly it was not even prepared for the demolitions that would have flooded the route to Berlin.

At the same time, the First Army sent its northbound tank columns slashing through Paderborn, almost at the edge of the north German plain, 43 miles east of the eastern limits of the Ruhr.

The U. S. Ninth Army, breaking German resistance in the northern Ruhr after a blazing tank battle, now was possibly 40 miles beyond the Rhine. It had forged across one big but unnamed river in the basin to within 60 miles or so of a junction with the First at Paderborn, which would sever the Ruhr from the rest of Germany.

Another relentless tide of men and armor was rolling over the Westphalian plains north of the Ninth army.

The British Second army, with at least three armored divisions leading the pack, advanced 10 miles overnight, was 40 miles or more beyond the Rhine and was reported unofficially to be striking for the north German ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Wilhelmshaven, all pounded during the day by over 2,300 U. S. bombers and fighters.

British Seize Duelmen

The British seized Duelmen, 15 miles southwest of Muenster, and charged up the Muenster highway against dug-in resistance, but elsewhere their armored spearheads were reported fanning out almost unopposed in an almost solid front under a security blackout.

British and Canadian forces battling westward from the Rhine bridgehead against savagely-resisting parachute troops, cut back into Holland, possibly to seal off the V-bomb coast.

On the south end of the front the U. S. Seventh army captured the old university city of Heidelberg and fought at least three miles beyond along the Neckar river valley, cutting in behind the Black Forest toward the Bavarian Alps, where the last Nazis may be brought to bay.

It was disclosed that Eisenhower had 11 armored divisions in action east of the Rhine.

(The radios of liberated European capitals filled the air with reports of Allied victories that in some cases went beyond official reports, which frequently either were under security censorship or were lagging far behind the fast march of events.

(The Paris radio said the Dortmund-Hannover highway had been severed, which would to all intents cut off the Ruhr, with only winding side roads still open for escape. The Luxembourg radio said "one of the greatest mass surrenders of all times is taking place, with tens of thousands of German soldiers giving up.")

The U. S. First and Third armies, by joining forces in the shoulder-to-shoulder dash toward Berlin, had trapped thousands of other Germans in the Frankfurt pocket.

Resistance Weak

It appeared that the hard-riding tankmen of the First and Third armies were taking the captured high-ranging officer at his word and so far they had found it true. Front dispatches said neither had struck any serious resistance in the drive toward imperiled Berlin.

The U. S. First and Third army in mile-eating strides toward the capital were 16 miles or less from the big locomotive-manufacturing center of Kassel by admittedly belated accounts.

The First army's Seventh Armored division, jumping off from positions north of Frankfurt on the Main, reeled off 20 miles, forged across the Eder and entered Fritzlar, 182 miles southwest of Berlin and 16 miles from Kassel.

Simultaneously, the Sixth Armored division of the Third army roared 21 miles along the same general route to the vicinity of Treysa, 15 miles to the south which the First army's Ninth Armored division already had reached. It was the Ninth which captured the Rhine bridge at Remagen.

The German radio said the Third army's Fourth Armored division, which earlier in the day captured Lauterbach, had pushed on nearly 13 miles to near Fulda within 192 miles of Berlin in a drive that was severing Germany at the waist.

By this account the Third army would be 242 miles from the Russian lines, and Gen. Omar N. Bradley's headquarters earlier had placed them but 245 miles apart.

North-bound forces of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army dashed another 10 miles north during the day through Paderborn, big railway and highway center and air base, where German parachutists took off in the enemy's winter offensive in the Ardennes.

A front dispatch said Paderborn had been reached during the morning and that the massive armored cavalcade was rolling on toward the north German plain with nothing to stop it but the problem of supply.

Paderborn virtually sealed the fate of the German defenders of the outflanked Ruhr, the best Hitler has left in the west, since through it funnels the best roads and railways for escape.

Fifty-seven miles to the northeast lies Hannover, 43 miles to the west is Hamm—the eastern exit of the Ruhr—and 185 miles to the east are the ruins of Berlin.

40,000 NAZIS FACE TRAP IN THE RUHR

Famed Third Armored Division Reaches Paderborn in Hodges Sweep North—British Veer Toward Big Ports.

Long

Paris, March 30 (A. P.).—The American First Army's probing armored columns, rapidly snapping a lock on the industrial Ruhr, occupied Paderborn today and thrust to within sixteen miles of the locomotive building center of Kassel and to within 182 miles west of Berlin.

In one twenty-mile jump the Seventh Armored Division crossed the Eder River and took Fritzlar, sixteen miles southwest of Kassel, and Alt Wildungen on the Wilde River. Tanks of the Ninth Armored Division reached Borken and Treysa on the main Frankfurt-Kassel railroad, and tanks of the American Third Army's Sixth Armored Division also entered the vicinity of Treysa after a twenty-one-mile stab.

Gen Hodges's First Army after pushing into Paderborn, 185 miles west of Berlin, drove on toward a junction with Field Marshal Montgomery's Twenty-first Army Group, racing forward on the open roads of north Germany.

Meet Little Opposition.

Front-line dispatches said that tanks of the Third Armored Division roared into Paderborn at 9:35 A. M. and kept on going in the news blackout that obscured its further movements. The sensational drive was meeting virtually no opposition and was less than sixty-five miles from a junction with Montgomery's forces, whose exact whereabouts likewise were hidden.

Paderborn is on one of the main railways connecting the Ruhr with Berlin and is twenty-five miles south of Bielefeld, the only other major railway link between the industrial treasure chest and the German capital.

On the First Army's right flank, meanwhile, the Fourth Armored Division, which took Lauterbach, was reported by the Germans to have turned east and advanced upon Fulda, thirteen miles distant.

The northern arm of the Allied pincers closing on the Ruhr roared eastward many miles toward Muenster, where the Peace of Westphalia in 1648 closed the Thirty Years' War, and encountered its first semblance of a prepared enemy defense since breaking through east of the Rhine. These defenses were hastily dug holes manned by replacement troops, and were not expected to blunt the power push of three armored divisions, a front-line dispatch asserted. For forty-eight hours the exact points reached by these British forces have been secret.

40,000 Nazis Face Trap.

Meanwhile tonight a front-line dispatch declared that the Sixth Armored Division, Gen. Patton's American Third Army, had stabbed to within twenty-nine miles of Kassel.

The American First and Ninth armies both drove powerfully forward, and apparently these two also were working toward a junction northeast of the Ruhr that would seal off Germany's greatest and last large arsenal and up to 40,000 enemy troops among its ravaged factories. Supreme Headquarters said officially that the drives were going well on every sector.

The armored drive now has carried more than 125 miles in five days. Reports from leading elements were running at least eight and a half hours behind actual advances.

Major-Gen. Maurice Rose's Third Armored Division, which led the drive from the Roer River to the Rhine, was spearheading the new plunge cutting off the Ruhr. Censorship also permitted the naming of Major-Gen. Terry Allen's 104th Infantry Division, following up behind the Third Armored and Major-Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck's Seventh Armored Division.

The First Army shot forward so fast its spearheads lost contact with headquarters. The Germans said one armored column had reached Bad Windungen, twenty miles southwest of the great rail center of Kassel, and about fifteen miles east of Frankenberg. This column was moving in a different direction and apparently slower than the tanks curling around the Ruhr.

The Ninth Army broke loose overnight in a race along the northern rim of the Ruhr, by-passing most of the great industrial cities of the valley.

The British Second Army appeared to be veering northeastward toward the great ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Wilhelmshaven. The whole Twenty-first Army Group front in the north was in high gear from the Muenster plain to the Odenwald. Infantry alone advanced eighteen miles in a day, and tanks still were running [illegible] along clear roads.

Along the length of the front, Allied armies were overrunning everything from German airplanes to hospitals. The First and Seventh armies seized twenty-five or thirty planes on various fields captured yesterday. Of the 37,000 prisoners captured yesterday—the biggest bag on a single day in the west—many were high German officers. Some said dejectedly that it was only a matter of days now until the war in Europe would be over.

In forty-eight hours, more than 60,000 Germans have surrendered. The prized old cities of Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Mannheim and Heidelberg have fallen with little opposition. Hundreds of lesser places have also been taken.

Actual positions of vanguards of the American First, Ninth and Third armies were obscured by the news blackout which also covered the British Second and Canadian First armies. The Canadians, however, cleared the Rhine fortress town of Emmerich save for snipers.

Flyers Hit Big Port Area.

Air forces were handicapped by showers and low clouds again, but attacked strongpoints south of Muenster, and the three north German ports toward which the Westphalian capital were jammed with troops and refugees streaming in the direction of Berlin. They reported also that trains carrying some tanks were trying to get to the Muenster area. The speed and tricky changes of direction of the Allied assault made it likely that the tanks would be cut off by the time they were unloaded.

The First Army's armored drive curling around the east end of the Ruhr—the tanks clanked fifty-five miles over open roads from dawn to dusk yesterday—was the fastest of the war.

First Army infantry was moving in swiftly behind the armored spearheads and cleaning up bypassed pockets of small groups, which either put up only feeble resistance or gave up without a fight.

The German Air Force yesterday made its first appearance over the First Army front since the attack opened. The planes strafed and bombed.

In driving north, Hodges's men have captured two German trains, a plane factory, twelve planes and great quantities of material and other equipment which the Germans were unable to salvage before the tide engulfed them. Huge stores of ammunition are being found in woods along roads.

The British Second and American Ninth armies have charged forward a total of thirty miles since achieving their clean breakthrough north of the Ruhr—advances which put them either at or beyond the provincial capital of Muenster.

All night long, British tanks packed on top with Ninth Army troops, ran along open roads that lead to rendezvous with the onrushing First Army. They met only local resistance.

At Supreme Headquarters, officers said the British drive north of the Ruhr had penetrated forty miles beyond the Rhine. Security barred disclosing of advances in other directions.

"The British Army is speeding down a number of highways into central Germany," A. P. Correspondent Ned Nordness was able to report through the security blackout on Montgomery's front. "Opposition from Bocholt south is negligible to nil."

Nordness said so many spearheads were probing up all the broad highways leading in an easterly and northeasterly direction that the armored advance presented the apparance of a solid front. Bright sunshine bathed the British front, sug-

Some Nazis Without Weapons

The German High command was trying desperately to reform the shattered armies for a new line, and so hard-pressed was the enemy that some troops were thrown into the battle without weapons.

The First army was overrunning vast stores of ammunition and had captured two German trains and a plane factory in its slashing drive 85 miles east of the Rhine.

Infantry moved up swiftly behind the miles-long columns of tanks, taking 11,266 prisoners or the full equivalent of a German division on the First army front Thursday.

The tank columns were moving so fast communications could not keep pace, and the troops were moving off the maps of command headquarters, just as the Americans were doing on the Ninth army front.

Censorship permitted disclosure for the first time that the plunging armored columns are being led by the famed Third Armored division of Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, which broke the Roer river line in the drive to the Rhine.

Following close behind the Third was Maj. Gen. Terry Allen's 104th infantry division, and the Seventh Armored division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Hasbrouck.

This great armored drive had been thundering eastward from the Rhine until it reached Giessen, 33 miles north of Frankfurt, where it abruptly swung north in the great wheeling movement that now has the enemy at the brink of catastrophe.

Around Giessen, the Ninth Armored division took off during the day and in a 13-mile advance entered Schweinsberg, 19 miles northeast of Giessen and 85 miles east of the Rhine.

The German air force made its first appearance over the First army front yesterday since the big drive began. Ten fighters bombed and strafed the American columns.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., had three armored divisions of his Third army hammering eastward.

Yanks Take Lauterbach

The Fourth Armored division, in the van of this push, captured Lauterbach, 198 miles southwest of Berlin, and brought up a supporting column to Herbstein, six miles to the southwest. Then it too swung toward Berlin, driving eight miles northeast to near Grebenau.

Two columns of the Sixth Armored division with their 21-mile gains sealed the Frankfurt on the Main pocket, and were swinging along both sides of the Frankfurt-Berlin highway. The gains were made in four hours and they since had probably gone far beyond.

They overran numerous towns 13 to 14 miles north and northeast of Frankfurt and captured one anti-aircraft regiment which was trying to find its way out of the trap.

These Germans were crammed into the overflowing bag of prisoners, which reached 22,400 Thursday, the largest number yet taken on the Western front in a single day by any one army.

The Eleventh Armored division jumped off north of Hanau, 10 miles east of Frankfurt, battered down fierce resistance in a six-mile push, then thrust two columns forward five and seven miles to the northeast which carried them 20 miles northeast of Hanau to near Gelnhausen.

To the west, the 89th infantry division was squeezing a German pocket about six miles wide and eight miles deep northwest of Mainz, and had struck some heavy fighting.

All signs along the front pointed to a general collapse of German armies and the remaining resistance is coming from scattered units spurred by SS (Elite) troops and Nazi party leaders.

Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's U. S. Ninth army broke loose along the northern rim of the Ruhr valley after beating the Germans in one of their best defensive positions—the streets and factories of the Ruhr itself.

gesting that the Germans would again be placed under aerial attack.

Meanwhile Canadians, on the hard-fought left flank, captured Anholt, and British troops advanced six miles northwest of the town into Holland.

Allies No Longer Fear Lack of Fuel, Supplies

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY, in Germany, March 30 — Allied commanders say they have no fear their drive through Germany will bog down from lack of fuel and supplies as it did at the Siegfried Line after the great push across France and Belgium last fall.

Millions of gallons of gasoline are stored within a short distance of the front and huge stores of food and ammunition are available.

"If we never get another drop of gasoline from America, we still have enough on the European Continent to take us right into Berlin," said one officer. "We will never be short again in this war."

Patton Tells His Men: 'World Acclaims You'

Order a Week Ago Cited 6,484 Square Miles Captured

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3d ARMY, March 30 (AP).—Lieutenant General George S. Patton jr. issued a week ago a general order to the 3d Army, which he commands, and the 19th Tactical Air Command announcing that between Jan. 29 and March 22 the 3d Army captured 6,484 square miles of territory and 3,072 cities, towns and villages, it was disclosed today.

"You captured 140,112 enemy soldiers and killed or wounded an additional 99,000, thereby eliminating practically all of the German 7th and 1st Armies," the general order said. "History records no greater achievement in so limited a time.

"This great campaign was made possible by your disciplined valor and unswerving devotion to duty, coupled with the unparalleled audacity and speed of your advance on the ground, while from the air peerless fighter bombers kept up a relentless round-the-clock attack upon the disorganized enemy.

"The world rings with your praises: better still, General Marshall, General Eisenhower and General Bradley all personally have commended you. The highest honor I ever attained was that of having my name coupled with yours in these great events."

'World Rings with Your Praises' Gen. Patton Tells Third Army

By THOBURN WIANT

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY, March 30 — (AP) Smashing up through Westphalia in relentless pursuit of a disorganized enemy, the U. S. Third army stabbed today within 29 miles of Kassel, great Nazi locomotive manufacturing center.

As the Sixth Armored division plunged 21 miles to the vicinity of Treysa, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton issued a general order to the Third army officers and men and the 19th Tactical Air command declaring they had captured 140,112 enemy soldiers and killed or wounded an additional 99,000, "thereby eliminating practically all of the German Seventh and First armies" between January 19 and March 22.

Praises Fighting Men

"History records no greater achievement in so limited a time," Patton declared. "The world rings with your praises."

At Treysa the Third army would be only 16 miles south of the "elbow" turned by the American First army in its swoop to link up with the U. S. Ninth army and the British in the north. The dash toward Treysa and Kassel was made in only four hours and reports on subsequent developments were lagging.

Another column of the Sixth, punching northeast parallel with the First column along the Frankfurt-Berlin autobahn, gained 15 miles, reaching Alsfeld, 40 miles south of Kassel and 48 miles northeast of Frankfurt.

Kassel (220,000) is capital of the Hesse-Nassau province and was the capital of the Napoleonic kingdom of Westphalia from 1807 to 1813.

Patton, in praising his troops for their sensational achievement said, in addition to the casualties inflicted on the enemy, they had wrested 6,484 square miles of territory from the Germans and captured 3,072 cities, towns and villages.

"General Marshal, General Eisenhower and General Bradley all personally commend you," he said. "The highest honor I have ever attained is that of having my name coupled with yours in these great events.

"This great campaign was made possible only by your disciplined valor and unswerving devotion to duty coupled with the unparalleled audacity and speed of your advance on the ground; while from the air peerless fighter bombers kept up a relentless round-the-clock attack upon a disorganized enemy."

Troops Smash Ahead

In today's swing northeast from Frankfurt, a second column of the Eixth Armored division met no resistance but was strafed several times by Nazi FW-190's.

The two Sixth Armored columns were about 12 miles apart. The Fourth Armored division pushed seven miles northeast to the vicinity of Grebeneau, 40 miles south of Kassel.

In another count of prisoners, headquarters announced that from March 13 to March 25 the Third army took 79,296 captives or an average of 6,606 daily. Sixty per cent of these were Volkssturm, rear echelon and miscellaneous units with only four panzer-type divisions being represented.

The Eleventh Armored division went seven miles north to the vicinity of Gelnhausen, 20 miles northeast of Hanau.

The 90th Infantry, mopping up behind the Fourth Armored, drove nine miles northeast on a 12-mile front in an area 15 to 28 miles northeast of Hanau against light resistance.

Elsewhere Patton's Doughboys scored gains and cleared numerous towns in cleaning up behind the armor. The enemy was reported disintegrating rapidly in all these areas.

During its sweep the Sixth Armored's columns approached Allertshausen and Lumda on opposite sides of the Frankfurt-Berlin Autobahn, clearing Friedberg, Dorheim, Butzbach and Gruneningen of scattered defenders.

The Fourth armored in its advance entered Herbstein, completed the capture of Lauterbach, cleared Nidda, Ulfa, Stornfels and Laubach, all in the Frankfurt and Giessen area.

The Eleventh armored entered Rothenbergen, nine miles north east of Hanau while the 89th infantry plowed into a stubborn pocket northwest of Mainz and entered Hausen, 10 miles northeast of Bingen. Other Doughboys pushing 18 miles northeast from the Mainz area reached a point just south of Bad Nauheim, 14 miles north of Frankfurt.

The Third army was more than twice as far into the Reich as the Russians are, but was finding the problem of digging deeper was much less knotty than the one of handling the huge bag of prisoners. In one field alone 500 Germans, including about 60 officers, were guarded by only eight military policemen.

AMERICAN TROOPS SEIZE HEIDELBERG

WITH THE U. S. 7TH ARMY, March 30—(AP) Heidelberg, ancient German university city was occupied late today after telephone negotiations for a surrender failed.

Seventh army troops overran the famous city 10 miles southeast of the fallen Rhine bastion of Mannheim, but late today the enemy still was hurling artillery shells down from the hills on the south and east.

No Defense Line Before Berlin, Nazi Officer Tells Doughboys

By THOBURN WIANT

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY IN GERMANY, March 29.—(Delayed)—(AP) A high ranking German officer who was captured by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army troops said today that "there is not any organized line of defense between you and Berlin."

"There is not any organized system of government left in Germany," the officer declared. "When you reach Berlin the whole situation will quickly dissolve."

(Censorship did not permit disclosure of the officer's identity and 23 words at the start of the dispatch were censored).

The captured officer, extremely military in bearing, asserted that only hastily organized areas of defense such as the one he set up—and which proved futile—existed before the onrushing Americans.

"Lines of defenses had been planned," he said, "but you advanced so fast they could not be fulfilled."

His remarks to staff officers and newsmen were translated by Lt. Alfred Maul of Milwaukee, Wis. The officer was captured by a company commanded by Lt. Irwin Kimzey of Cornelia, Ga.

The capture of the officer was as strange as the words he spoke.

He ran into the tail end of one American column, tried to escape and bumped right into another.

He tagged along about half an hour with this column until it stopped. The Yanks turned, saw who was following them, and collared him.

The traditional scene of face-scarring duels by Prussian students fell to a unit under Lt. Col. James F. Hatcher, of Washington, D. C., in a two-way thrust from north and east.

In sharp contrast to any other German city of like size—85,000 population — Heidelberg seemed only lightly scarred by war. All the newer parts of the city north of the Neckar river were almost undamaged, and Maj. Howard F. Baker, Grand Island, Neb., said all reports so far on the old town south of the river indicate only light damage in comparison with main bomber targets.

Spared by American artillery before the final attack the town was nicked by intermittently heavy artillery fire being directed along the river this afternoon. Resistance within the city consisted mainly of isolated snipers.

It was revealed that the 12th armored division, veterans of the Gambsheim pocket west of the Rhine, had rolled six miles through the hilly Odenwald Forest northeast of Heidelberg, and was approaching Amorbach, 23 miles south of Aschaffenburg where the Third army first crossed the river Main.

There was fierce fighting around Aschaffenburg, itself, where the 45th division had run into fanatical opposition from teen-age German soldiers.

However, other units of the 45th and the 106th division, with a cavalry group, was pushing on beyond the Main and the Third division made a new crossing of the river after capturing Woerth, 13 miles south of Aschaffenburg.

Eight miles of the east bank of the Rhine south of captured Mannheim had been cleared, and American troops were in the outskirts of Ketsch.

MANNHEIM FALLS, BIG RHINE POST

By LEWIS HAWKINS

MANNHEIM, Germany, March 30.—(AP) This rubble-strewn hulk of a city, once the second greatest German Rhine port, now is entirely in Allied hands.

It fell yesterday to 44th Division Doughboys who crossed the Neckar river in assault boats to occupy one of the largest stretches of ruins in Europe.

Enemy fire from the main part of the city south of the river, and from Friesenheimer island to the north held the Americans in the northeastern third of the city until yesterday morning.

All last night artillery churned the rubble on the south side of the river and shortly after daylight troops of the 71st Regiment crossed and found that the last remnants of the enemy had pulled out just before dawn.

The Nazis retreated southeast toward Heidelberg, 10 miles distant on the Neckar river, and later sharp fighting was reported half way to that town.

The German force of about 2,000 had been comprised of elements of the Nazi 553rd Infantry Regiment and tailends from literally dozens of other units. When they withdrew only a small portion of the German civilian population of 278,000 remained behind, but many thousands of slave laborers greeted the conquering American forces.

Much of the bomb wreckage was so old that grass had grown up through the broken masonry of shattered homes.

The destruction became progressively worse near the heart of the city. Street after street on the south side of the river was blocked by freshly tumbled bricks and steel from the more recent bombings. The production capacity of the city must have been reduced to a fraction long ago.

Ironically there were white-painted slogans on the walls of smashed buildings exhorting Germans to fight on against a foe whose might everyone in the hapless city must have known too well.

One of the signs read: "Victory is the password."

Another said "you can break our walls but you can't break our hearts."

But rising like a black tombstone over the heart of the city was a 160-foot pillar of smoke from a blasted fuel tank.

Army Seizes U-Boats

With the U.S. 9th Army, March 30 (AP)—Three German submarines were captured in the dock area of Duisburg today by troops under the command of Col. Edwin Van Bibber, of Bel Air, Md. The size and condition of the U-boats were not reported.

'Phantom Village' Built To Fool Ruhr Raiders

Inside Germany, March 30 (AP)—A cleverly-designed "phantom village," intended to save German Ruhr industrial areas from Allied night bombers, has been uncovered by the 35th Infantry Division.

Set in the heart of a wooded area near Gladbeck, it was one of the first great war secrets to be taken. It would not fool anyone by day, but was arranged so that bomber crews at night, harassed by searchlights and flak for several miles, would be looking anxiously for a target by the time they reached the phantom.

It is made of rows of high posts with backboards upon which are lights reflected downward, apparently to give an illusion of many houses or a factory. There are "chimneys" about ten feet high which, from the air, must look as though they protruded from a camouflaged building.

A series of plain wooden roofs are spread along the ground to imitate rows of buildings, and there are smoke pots and places in which quick fires could be built to give the effect of burning buildings.

Ancient bomb craters and lack of new construction work at the site made it apparent the RAF had not been fooled in recent months—perhaps more than a year—by the ruse. The "village" likely was made about 1942.

Report Nazis Killing Civilians

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3D ARMY, March 30 (AP).—American correspondents heard a rumor when they entered Frankfurt am Main that German S. S. troops had shot civilians who laid down their arms in defiance of Nazi orders to defend the city. Investigation failed to disclose any direct evidence supporting the rumor, although some civilians insisted it had happened.

Nazis Try To Surrender To GI's Flying Overhead

With the U.S. 9th Army, March 30 (AP)—Three different groups of German soldiers tried to surrender today to a couple of American pilots from the United States 29th Tactical Air Command, but the airmen couldn't find a place to land and accept the offer.

Each group stood facing the Mustang fighters and waving white flags while the pilots circled overhead.

Lieut. Jack D. Harrison, of Harlan, Ky., said the identical procedure took place near Lippstadt, Soest and Unna, all three being railway towns east of the Ruhr.

"We were too low on gasoline to hang around long enough to lead our ground troops to the spot," said Lieut. Donald N. Botsford, of Racine, Wis.

U. S. Checks Record of Captive Who Told of Helping Kill Jews

WITH UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY IN GERMANY, March 30 (AP).—A swaggering, bull-necked Nazi storm trooper, who boasted to German acquaintances that he had helped execute 3,000 Jews, found today that too much talk does not pay.

The Nazi, who identified himself as Heinrich Weissharr, thirty-one years old, and asserted he was a middleweight boxing champion, was captured by American troops, and it was not long before they heard of his boastings.

Questioned closely, he at first denied any connection with Jewish executions, but finally acknowledged he had witnessed the shooting of eighty or more Jews in a single day.

Weisshaar now is being held under close guard, and American authorities are making an exhaustive investigation of his record.

Hitler Suicide Expected, German Prisoners Say

With the Canadians at Emmerich, Germany, March 30 (AP)—A rumor is spreading among German troops on the Allied northern flank that Adolf Hitler has disappeared and they expect he will commit suicide before the final collapse of the Reich.

Prisoners taken by the Canadians from a half-dozen different units scattered along the front said it was current talk in their lines that Hitler no longer was in charge and Heinrich Himmler was trying to cope with the West front debacle.

Fear Grips Nazi Forces In West, Yank Says

By Harold V. Boyle

With the U.S. 1st Army in Germany, March 29 [AP—Delayed]—The greatest mass of German troops left in western Germany was being enveloped tonight by fast charging elements of Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's armor.

Compressed in a vast pocket between the British on the north, the 1st Army swinging up from the south, and the United States 9th Army smashing through the Ruhr from the west, were many of the finest remaining units under the swastika.

"In number of prisoners taken it may well rival the pockets at Mons, Belgium," said one 1st Army officer.

Epic Trapped Recalled

In that battle the Germans lost some 37,000 troops as prisoners. As a result of this epic trap, American forces were able to thrust through unmanned portions of the Siegfried Line last September.

In the envelopment area facing the 1st Army was a depleted Nazi division with an estimated strength of not more than 15,000 troops, but opposing the British were other strong forces of undetermined strength.

Other armored columns rampaged eastward into the bare, defenseless heart of Germany as Hodges sent the northward-thrusting forces from Barburg through Grankenburg and Medebach. Medebach is west of the Eder Dam, bombed by the Royal Air Force in May, 1943, setting off a disastrous flood.

Nazi Army's Plight Pictured

Picturing the remaining German Army in the West as an unwilling host kept at the front only through fear, one officer commented:

"These people don't know yet what to do. They can't trust the man next to them or ahead of them. And they don't know whether the man behind them will shoot them at the first sign of weakness.

"No two men can trust each other. They all know it's a lost cause for them and the Army's heart is no longer in it. They know they are only fighting now to keep a bunch of skunks from being hung."

Besides the divisions now committed, the Germans are believed to have as reserves a few Volkssturm or Home Guard divisions but American commanders dismiss these as "worthless."

Refugees A Traffic Problem

Columns of refugees walking back along the military roads toward their homes in Belgium and France are becoming a serious traffic hazard and the Army is now making every attempt to freeze them in their present locations until the advance has swung farther forward. This is almost impossible because with each new town taken, hundreds of former war prisoners and slave laborers hit for the open road they hope leads to home. Many soldiers toss them gifts of food, chocolate and cigarettes as they trudge past.

In Altenkirchen 700 Allied refugees were grouped yesterday. One walked across the street to wash his face and found a German wine cellar.

Every refugee lined up behind him and they broke open every bottle and barrel in the cellar.

"In about an hour there were 700 roaring drunk refugees," said an officer. "But after what they have been through you couldn't blame them for wanting to taste the joys of liberty."

Prisoners Clutter U.S. Advance

East of Giessen, Germany, March 30 (AP)—For the men of the United States 4th Armored Division, the job of digging deeper into Germany is a much less knotty problem than handling the big bag of prisoners, which totaled about 8,000 today.

In one field alone 500 Germans, including about 60 officers, stood huddled together guarded by only eight military policemen.

Everyone seems to be taking prisoners. Capt. Lucien Trosclair, of Plaquemine, La., said 380 surrendered to Signal Corps men. Lieut. Gorman Owaroff, of the Bronx, N.Y., reported that his quartermaster truck company was credited with 150

Two Capture 150

Lieut. Col. S. Bernard Knestrick, of Washington, Pa., and John Himelick, of Connersville, Ind., walked into a town hall and found 150 Germans who promptly threw down their weapons and surrendered.

Col. Knestrick remained in the Town Hall to appoint a Burgomeister while Himelick, armed with a machine gun, marched the prisoners three miles to the nearest American troops who could help him out.

At one point a group of military policemen were herding 5,000 Germans toward the rear like cattle. In charge of the guards was Staff-Sergt. Thomas Conroy, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Booty Poses Problem.

His aids included Pfcs. Joseph Griffin, Indianapolis; Willie Strunk, Huntsville, Tenn.; Robert Bailey, Craig, Col.; Mike Damico, 5 Center Market Place, New York city; William Young, Bowling Green, Ky., and Privates William Stubes of Coshocton, Ohio, and Steve Miskar, Danbury, Conn.

The great stocks of booty piling up posed another disposal problem which the Fourth Armored was happy to turn over to someone else.

"You see—there's more to fighting than gobbling up ground," said Lieut.-Col. Harry E. Brown of St. Louis.

Sergt. Victor Zekus, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., platoon leader under command of Lieut.-Col. Albin Irzyk, Salem, Mass., had an experience he won't soon forget.

Following a night move into a German town Zekus went to the burgomeister's home next morning to see whether it was suitable for a command post. Pulling aside the drawn curtains Zekus found the burgomeister, his wife and two daughters on the floor, all dead of poison.

"They don't know whether they are coming or going," Lieut. Edward Kirkland, of Coral Gables, Fla., said today.

Lieut. Kirkland, a member of a P-47 Group commanded by Col. Bingham T. Kleine, of Shreveport, La., bailed out at 400 feet on March 18, north of St. Wendel, about 50 miles east of Trier. Volkssturm troops seized him and, he said, "One of them went for a rope." A German soldier argued them out of hanging him. After that Lieut. Kirkland said he spent nearly a week wandering with his captors under American shellfire and strafing. He made one attempt to escape but was caught quickly. One morning he was in a German convoy when an American Thunderbolt blew up the truck just in front of him.

"We dived from the truck into a ditch and headed for some woods," he said. "It turned out to be a hiding place for Germans. Trucks and armored vehicles were dispersed all over the place. Relays of Thunderbolts were working them over."

There were twenty-five vehicles set afire in that area alone, Lieut. Kirkland reported, and a Thunderbolt also got a motor car full of high officers fleeing down the road. The Germans took him to Speyer and across the Rhine. He bribed a guard with his watch to let him go and they hitch-hiked a ride back across the river to Speyer.

Later, Lieut. Kirkland said, he was captured again by two Volkssturmers but they let him go after he gave them some cigarettes. Ten minutes later he was again a prisoner as he had run into the middle of a German division. They took him to Heidelburg. Then started north toward Frankfurt. He said it took four hours to go twenty miles because the vehicles stopped whenever a plane came over.

Met 4th Armored.

"We were supposed to catch a train at the next town, but a half hour before it was due some fighter-bomber knocked it out," he said.

They started walking again. Lieut. Kirkland grabbed a gun from a sleepy guard in a barn when shells began pouring into the area.

"When the shelling let up I heard tanks in the town," he said. "I left the guard there and went running out, shouting: 'Hey, Mac, don't shoot, I'm an American.'"

It was the Fourth Armored Division. Lieut. Kirkland rode forward in a tank the next day toward Hanau and started back a day later, arriving at his base March 26.

Allied Power Bewilders Newsman Captured by German Forces in Libya

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two days ago Godfrey H. P. Anderson, London-born Associated Press Correspondent who was captured in Libya in November, 1941, saw some American soldiers arrive just across the river from his prison camp. He shouted across to them, got in a boat and soon shook hands with new found Allied friends—U. S. Privates Richard Sincavage of Ransom, Pa., and Kenneth Symons, of Wilmott, Ill. Here is Anderson's story of three years and a half in captivity—a period in which he watched the disintegration of the German military machine.

Nazi Rear Area a Maze of Confusion

Downed U. S. Pilot Was Prisoner One Minute and Free the Next.

Paris, March 30 (A. P.).—Utter confusion exists behind the German lines, reports an American fighter pilot who spent six days as a Nazi prisoner after flak downed his Thunderbolt plane.

MAR 31 1945 30. 24 — 24333

By GODFREY H. P. ANDERSON

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY AT LOLLAR, Germany, March 30—(AP) For the first time in three and a half years I am a free man.

Within a half hour of my rescue I was in a jeep rolling back to regimental headquarters—and civilization—as American tanks rumbled forward in unending numbers, following the great American drive.

NIGHT

Even now, 48 hours after I first heard an American voice hailing me across the Lahn river, I can hardly believe I am really free. The bewildering sight of thousands of vehicles pouring toward the front in a profusion I never knew when last I was an active war correspondent in North Africa in 1941 gave me a kind of Rip Van Winkle feeling.

Sees New Wonders

I discover new wonders every minute—every man now seems to cary a tommygun where formerly there was not more than a couple to a unit. New and improved methods of radio communications, supply and ration improvements—all these things beyond the wildest dreams of the soldier of 1940.

Not until I was many miles from the front area did I really feel secure from possible recapture. So many spells of bad luck have dogged me since the day Rommel's Africa Corps roped me in during a lightning panzer counterattack near Tobruk that I almost ceased to believe that my luck would turn.

At first I was held at Bengazi in Libya, and hoped the British might reach me in time to effect a rescue. But the Germans soon handed me over to the Italians who put me aboard a cruiser and took me to Taranto and that hope died.

There followed two years in an Italian prison camp. Every hour of every day through the unceasing monotony of prison life I waited for the hour when Italy would go out of the war and restore my freedom. When Mussolini fell I was at Bologna and hopes of release were at hand. But a German SS force arrived on the heels of the armistice and after a freedom lasting but a few hours I found myself with 50 others half-suffocated in a cattle car traveling north through the Brenner pass.

18 Months in Reich

Another 18 months as a prisoner was spent in Germany, mostly at a camp in Hadamar village near Limburg. This later was transformed into a senior British officers' camp and had nearly 300 officers including Maj. General Victor Fortune, 11 brigadiers, one naval captain and many others, including Australians, New Zealanders and South Africans.

All of us followed the daily progress of the war as only prisoners can, carefully sticking pins in homemade maps each time a new city fell.

D-Day was the most exciting day we had—except when finally liberated. Feverish excitement swept the whole camp at realization that the much vaunted German coastal defenses had failed to keep the invasion army out. Up to that time we had been entirely dependent on the German radio for news and the Nazi press for our information on the progress of the war although friendly guards—many of whom risked the death penalty to listen to the BBC—helped occasionally to keep us in the picture of what really was happening.

Then a Scottish major made a perfect secret radio receiving set out of odds and ends of material and this was operated late at night while a careful watch was kept against possible interruption by the guards.

It was a great night when we first picked up British news on the day Brussels was liberated. From that time on we regularly had British news and though the Germans repeatedly marched us outside the schloss while they raked the camp from top to bottom they never found the carefully concealed set although they knew we had it.

News of the capture of the Remagen bridge sent us wild with joy. The bridgehead was established within about 25 miles of our camp and we listened day and night to the thunder of the guns. The sky was filled with the roar of hundreds of bombers and fighter aircraft passing over to bomb their targets in Germany. Each time the big formations were sighted we poured out into the wired compound and gazed aloft. We often wondered what those flying crews thought when they looked down and saw hundreds of eager upturned faces in a countryside where every German had dived to cover.

Air Activity Increases

As the bridgehead was extended the air activity increased and the target often became unpleasantly close, but we were reassured several times by low-flying planes dipping their wings in salute to us.

The last week at Hadamar cost us all our windows as the railroad yard within a 100 yards of the schloss was repeatedly bombed and strafed, but bad rations and the lack of all heating and often the lack of light could not dampen our spirits now.

All traffic on the single track branch railroad from Limburg to Siegen now was stopped and the people of Hadamar took to spending the day in the woods nearby, only returning to their homes at nightfall.

Every mile of the eastward advance now brought promise of rescue. The German commandant showed increasing anxiety to get us moved away to a safer area. Orders finally came for us to proceed to a camp near Brunswick, but the constant bombing made it impossible for the Germans to rustle up any form of transport.

For three successive nights we stood ready with our kits packed to leave by truck convoy. But the convoy, when it did come, was so late getting under way that it was daylight before we reached Limburg on the journey east.

Even then our liberation nearly came a week earlier since the driver of the truck in which I was riding made a wrong turn and sped us about 10 kilometers toward the Allied lines before the increasing rumble of the guns caused him to discover his mistake.

A road journey behind the German lines is a hair-raising experience these days because of Allied air superiority. Several times Lightnings showed unpleasant curiosity, swooping low as we scuttled along roads and pulled up to hide in villages at frequent intervals.

Waving white sheets and towels we managed to stave off strafing which several times seemed imminent.

Wrecked, burned out, and overturned cars were all along the route—a constant reminder of the peril we ran. Weilburg was still ablaze from a previous night bombing by Mosquitos as we passed through. Wetzlar largely was a heap of rubble where German troops still were digging in the debris.

Giessen in Ruins

Giessen was just an empty shell of what was once a great city with a solitary church standing unscathed in its very center.

At Lollar, a small village on the river Lahn we detrucked to get on a train of cattle cars for Brunswick. Mercifully the train was not there and we were moved into empty buildings forming part of a big foreign workers camp on the outskirts of the village. There we lay on heaps of straw and awaited the train that never came.

For a whole week we stayed there, watching with joy the daily visits of Thunderbolts and Mustangs which strafed railroads all around us so we could not move.

Sometimes their attacks on the railway a few hundred yards from the camp gave us anxious moments but we formed big P. W. signs with white towels and scraps of clothing and later made a sign on the ground with lime. This seemed to have the desired effect and the planes become more careful in their attacks.

Meanwhile the whole camp was being organized by the brigadiers for the liberation we now felt was sure at hand.

The Union Jack was painted on a sheet ready for hoisting at the appropriate moment and plans were made for taking over control of both our guards and the foreign workers when the Americans came.

We now had no secret radio and no reliable news of General Hodges' advance although we guessed he had broken out from the bridgehead because of the increasing demoralization among our guards.

The guards, suddenly became friendly as never before, brought us eggs secured in the black market in exchange for cigarettes—my first egg in more than three years—told us how they were fed up with the war which they knew they had now lost, and only wanted to effect their transfer to the inside of the barbed wire without having to fight first.

Discipline broke down first among the enlisted men. The noncommissioned officers soon followed and the officers found themselves faced with a hopeless situation since they were unable to secure sufficient rations for the dissatisfied troops. That last week the Germans were living on black bread and a scrap of canned meat and second brewings of prisoners' tea leaves, while we feasted off American Red Cross food parcels which reached us shortly before the move from Hadamar.

The last few days we were virtually unguarded as the Germans stood around smoking on duty and chatting freely with everyone. You could have walked out of the camp as easily as falling off a log and brought a guard with you if you were so minded, but with the end nearly in sight it didn't seem worth the risk.

There was no chance of us being moved deeper into Germany. Nazi transport was completely broken down and chaotic. All that day we watched German refugees with handcarts and perambulators pouring along the road past the camp in the path of the advancing army. They trudged through the dust bearing white flags—in constant terror of planes which ever were circling above them.

By evening the whole countryside seemed on the move. Columns of other prisoners and foreign workers passed us on foot escorted by guards who seemed in even worse shape than the men they were guarding. All their smartness was gone.

The odds on our release fell off sharply when a German general suddenly arrived and demanded to see the commandant. We thought we were for the road then but nothing happened and after a brief conference, the general beat it for the fast closing gap to safety.

On Wednesday we heard the battle approaching from the east. The German army began pouring past in full retreat. Everything looked in the poorest shape. Much of the transport was horsedrawn and every vehicle was crammed to capacity and pushed at the utmost possible speed. Many trucks were out of gasoline and were being towed.

We saw no panzers and only a few guns. A flak unit which provided the only garrison in Lollar announced it intended to fight to the last and the commandant made hurried preparations for us to be moved to air raid bunkers under a slag heap at the steel works. But the flak commander changed his mind and all his guns and vehicles went up in beautiful columns of black smoke.

Early in the afternoon we distinctly heard American guns. Then the German infantry emerged from the woods and the first shell screamed over the camp.

Prisoners Cheer

When the Americans came, the liberated prisoners cheered and foreign workers, including more than 100 Russian girls, wept and danced with joy. Only German civilians stood glumly by, with an old man crying, "nicht schiessen, nicht schiessen. Tell them not to shoot. That sound they hear is only a flak ammunition dump being blown up."

With Edward Ward of the BBC, I ran down the river bank and got a leaky boat and rowed across to pick up two American Doughboys, Pvts. Richard Sincavage of Renshaw, Pa., and Kenneth Symons of Wilmette, Ill.

More than a dozen officers and 100 German guards were lined up, disarmed, waiting to be marched off as prisoners.

A brigadier shook hands with the Doughboys and said warmly: "We certainly are glad to see you."

The Doughboys were embarassed, then Sincavage said: "May we look over those German weapons and get a few souvenirs?"

They, the liberators, spent the next few minutes signing autographs for released Britishers.

The whitehaired German interpreter accepted an Oxford Book of English Verse from a British officer with the remark:

"Thank you. Well, now I can go as a prisoner and be a free man at last."

The British brigadier later cracked a bottle of Rhine wine with an American colonel and remarked, shyly:

"This is only a little bit of the loot I got."

The general and the colonel drank toasts from a mug made of tin cans while the British and the foreign workers cheered.

NEWSMAN LIBERATED FROM PRISON CAMP

MONTGOMERY'S HEADQUARTERS, March 30—(AP) Godfrey H. P. Anderson, Associated Press War correspondent who was captured by the Germans in North Africa Nov. 22, 1941, was among those liberated yesterday when Allied forces overran an Officers' prison camp, it was announced today.

Also liberated were 11 British brigadiers and two other war correspondents, Patrick Cross of Reuters and Edward Ward of the BBC.

London-born Anderson, who joined the Associated Press in 1935 and at the outbreak of the war was newsphoto manager in Paris, was attached to a British armored division in Libya when he, Ward and Harold Denny of the New York Times were captured.

Denny's release soon was arranged, since the United States was not then at war, but Anderson and Ward were taken to a prison camp in Italy. Two years later, as the Allies pushed up the Italian boot, they were moved with other prisoners to Germany.

11 Brigadiers, Three Correspondents Freed

Montgomery's Headquarters, March 30 (AP)—The Allies overran an officers' prison camp yesterday and liberated eleven British brigadiers and three war correspondents, including Godfrey Anderson, of the Associated Press, who was captured by the Germans in Africa.

The other two correspondents were Patrick Cross, of Reuters, and Edward Ward, of B.B.C.

Anderson was a correspondent with the British 8th Army in Libya when the Italians captured him, Ward and Harold Denny of the New York Times on November 22, 1941 in the desert regions around Sidi Omar.

Denny Repatriated

Denny was repatriated on the Drottningholm in an exchange in 1942.

Anderson, a British-born newsman, said in a letter received after his capture that a German tank ran across the trench in which he was lying, caving it in but not injuring him.

About 100 officers and two brigadiers were captured at the same time.

In Italian Camp

Although seized by the Germans, he was counted as an Italian prisoner and was held in an Italian prison camp until the surrender of Italy.

"Some of us escaped in the resulting confusion, but most were retaken," he wrote later in telling of the scenes around a camp near Bologna in northern Italy at the time of the Italian armistice.

He was taken to a transit camp at Moesburg, in Bavaria, and presumably transferred later to the camp from which he was released.

Jewish Soldiers Celebrate Passover in Goebbels' Home

By ROBERT EUNSON

MUENCHEN GLADBACH, Germany, March 30—(AP) The scene was Nazi Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' home here—and the ceremony was the traditional Passover festival.

About 300 American soldiers

MAR 31 1945

MAR 31 1945

made the ancient Jewish holiday a doubly important occasion today by joining in the festival in the home of one of Naziland's most rabid Jewish persecutors.

They topped off the festival by cooking potato pancakes in Goebbels' front porch—with a corporal from Brooklyn in charge of this detail.

"It is retribution come home," said 1st Lt. Joseph Shubow of Brighton, Boston, Mass., who gave the Passover service.

"On November 8, 1938, this little monkey Goebbels decreed the burning of all Jewish synagogues in Germany," Shubow continued. " We must destroy these Jewish fortresses,' he said. Now we are eating potato pancakes in his dining room and celebrating our Passover in his home."

Earlier today Shubow conducted services with front line divisions—the 30th, 79th, 35th and 8th armored.

The outfit that picked Goebbels' home for its service was the 38th Signal Construction battalion, just back from putting cable across the Rhine river during the Ninth army's assault crossing. This outfit holds the presidential citation for lining the "Red Ball highway" with telephone wires from St. Lo to Paris.

Among the non-Jewish friends who attended the services today were the 38th commander, Lt. Col. Murlin Moody of Fayetteville, Tenn. and its executive officer, Maj. Herbert E. Lockwood of Chicago.

Shubow delivered his sermon standing in front of a long oaken speakers' table with its set of 14 highbacked leather chairs. At the opposite end of the room was a large oil painting of Hitler and beside it was a cardboard portrait bust of a dirty-faced American doughboy with the 29th Division shoulder patch. The 29th took Muenchen Gladbach less than a month ago.

"Thank God, even as our ancestors were liberated we can see all of Europe being liberated soon from Naziism," said Shubow, former head of the New England section of the American Jewish Congress. He worked for 12 years against Naziism with Dr. Stephen Wise of New York, the organization's national president.

Corporal Talmud set up his camp stove on Goebbels's porch and made potato pancakes for three hours, offering them to any one who walked by.

The menu comprised food the boys' parents sent them from America and included gefuelte fish, salmon and sardines.

The program opened with a Yiddish song sung by Private Sam Abrams, of 1237 Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn. The program was arranged by Captain Max Singer, a doctor, of 826 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, and Captain Milton Steinberg, of Chicago. Cooks and waiters were Corporal Joe Salz, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Corporal Abe Hodes, of 471 Powell Street, Brooklyn; Sergeant Leo Berg, of 105-21 Liberty Avenue, Ozone Park, L. I.; Murray Kay (no rank given), of 1550 West Tenth Street, Brooklyn; Private First Class Al Dome, of 1723 Avenue V, Brooklyn; Sergeant Murray J, Blinder, of 3246 Fish Avenue, the Bronx; Private First Class Hyman Garfinkel, of 50 Grant Avenue, East Rockaway, N. Y., and Corporal Herman Fins, of 1860 Sixty-sixth Street, Brooklyn.

Shubow's assistant, who aided him in every service today, was Leon S. Bloom, of 5 West Eighty-third Street, New York City.

HODGES'S TANKS OUTRUN MAPS

London, March 30 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's tanks are going so fast that detailed sectional maps of Germany have to be dropped to them by plane, the Brussels radio said today.

General Captures Four Germans

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY east of the Rhine, March 30 (AP)—One of the highlights of the United States Ninth Army's advance today came when a brigadier general captured four German soldiers single-handed this afternoon. The general proudly turned them in and could not be touched with a ten-foot pole for the rest of the day.

RUSSIAN FORCES INVADE AUSTRIA, CAPTURE DANZIG

Two Soviet Columns Advance on Road to Vienna, Italy.

GAIN IN SLOVAKIA

40,000 Germans Killed, Captured in Seizure of Great Baltic Port.

LONDON, Saturday, March 31—(AP) Russian troops invaded Austria yesterday as two new Soviet drives flamed along a 235-mile front on the roads to Vienna and Italy and Red army forces on the Baltic coast captured the great naval base of Danzig, hoisting the flag of the "Polish State" over the former free city.

In southern Europe, Red army offensives erupted in southern Slovakia east of the Slovak capital of Bratislava and along the Drava river frontier of Hungary and Yugoslavia where Russian forces drove within 134 miles of Italy for a possible linkup with Anglo-American armies.

Cross Austrian Border

Moscow announced that Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army had entered Austria seven years after that country was annexed to Hitler's greater Reich by crossing the frontier north of fallen Koszeg, 52 miles south of Vienna.

In Danzig, more than 49,000 German troops were killed or captured in the collapse of the great port where the first shots of this world war were fired. The raising of the Polish banner over the port, formerly internationalized by the League of Nations, indicated recognition by the Russians of Polish claims to the European political tinderbox.

It was the first time the Polish flag had flown over the city, the first German prize of the present war, since 1772 and its capture released 50 German-reported Russian divisions for the coming battle of Berlin. Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army, mopping up the last enemy units in the Vistula Delta east of the city, seized 45 Nazi U-boats and 151 other ships in the burning port.

Meanwhile, Marshal Stalin announced that the Second and Third Ukrainian armies had extended their companion offensive south of the Danube to the north bank of the river and to the Yugoslav border in the extreme southwestern area of virtually-conquered Hungary.

On the Danube's north bank, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian army burst across the Hron river and advanced 31 miles to the west to reach or breach Vienna's Nitra river defense line along a 70-mile front, recapturing territory previously won and lost in January.

Reds Take Komarno

At the southern end of this front, the Russians captured the Czecho-Slovak fortress of Komarno at the junction of the Nitra and Danube, 75 miles southeast of Vienna. North of Komarno, the Soviets reached or crossed the Nitra on a 35-mile front extending to Cabaj-Capor, five miles southwest of the outflanked key junction of Nitra. North of Nitra, Malinovsky's forces reached the east bank river of the same name on another 35-mile front extending to Jeskova Nova Ves in the Vrchy Tribecke mountains.

At one point 23 miles north of Komarno, the Russians battered 10 miles beyond the Nitra river to reach the Vah river at Selice, 38 miles east of Bratislava and 64 miles east of Vienna. More than 450 towns and villages were seized in the offensive, Moscow said.

Meanwhile, on the south bank of the Danube, the southern wing of Malinovsky's rampaging army slashed toward the southeastern approaches to the Bratislava gap, the 18-mile gateway to Vienna between the Danube and the Austrian capital's Neusiedler See (lake) defense barrier.

Gaining eight miles over canal and river-laced country, highly fortified by the Germans, these elements thrust to within 44 miles southeast of Vienna and only 30 miles southeast of Bratislava by capturing Tarnokrieti, 14 miles west of captured Gyor. Reaching the Einser canal, the Soviets were 28 miles southeast of the northern tip of Neusielder See and 32 miles from Bruck, guardian city astride the Bratislava gap.

Forty-three miles to the southwest, troops of Marshal Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian army battered into Austria under cover of Red air force planes which flew 3,000 sorties in support of ground troops, and bombed Vienna's southern fortress of Wiener Neustadt. Moscow did not announce the capture of any towns within Austria.

Another 26 miles to the south, Tolbukhin's troops veered southwest-ward and in a 14-mile advance captured the rail junction of Zalaegerszeg and nearby Bogod, 56 miles northeast of the Northern Yugoslav town of Maribor where Marshal Tito crossed the Austrian border in a foray last January.

Drive Toward Italy

While more than 150 towns and villages were seized, west of Lake Balaton the capture of Bogod carried Tolbukhin's advancing spearheads to within 134 miles of Italy for a possible junction with Anglo-American forces 268 airlines miles away.

The capture of Zalaegerszeg outflanked 27 miles on the northwest of the Hungarian oil center of Nagykanizsa, but at the same time, Russian and Bulgarian troops battered toward that important rail junction from the east in a new drive that exploded on a 42-mile front between the southern shores of Lake Balaton and the Drava river.

Retracing 19 miles across territory once won and then lost to German counter-blows, these forces smashed within 11 miles of Nagykanizsa by taking the village of Nemesded. Along the Drava, the Russians won Belavar, 25 miles southeast of Nagykanizsa and 61 miles northeast of Zagreb. They were 131 miles from the Adriatic coast.

On the south shore of Lake Balaton, these forces retook Balatonbereny within eight miles of a juncture with troops which captured Kesthely on the great lake's southwestern tip.

Vienna shuddered under new daylight attacks by heavy bombers of the Italy-based United States 15th Air Force, which also bombed the Austrian city of Graz, 55 miles west of the advancing Soviet spearheads. Reports of panic and hasty Nazi defense preparations in the Austrian capital flooded neutral and Allied Europe.

Nazis Abandon Bastion Of Kuestrin

London, March 30 [Reuter]—Kuestrin has been abandoned, the German DNB news agency said tonight. Kuestrin is 50 miles east of the center of Berlin.

London, March 30 (AP)—Russian troops have thrust over the Austrian border, Moscow dispatches said today, and Marshal Stalin announced a 31-mile advance north of the Danube in a twin thrust upon Vienna.

Danzig, where the first shots of the war were fired, fell to Russian forces and 10,000 prisoners were taken, Stalin announced. The Germans already had announced loss of the former free city on the Baltic.

While Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's tanks penetrated into the hills inside Austria, threatening to lay siege to Vienna, Stalin announced that Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's forces north of the Danube had broken across the Nitra River, capturing Komarno, Ersekujvar (Novy-Zamky), Surany, Komjaty, Verebely (Vrable) and Poerful.

34-Mile Front

The advance was on a 34-mile front from the broken Hron River defenses in Slovakia, and brought the Russians up to or across the Nitra on a 27-mile front to within 49 miles of Bratislava.

Komarno is on the north bank of the Danube, opposite the captured stronghold of Komarom. Ersekujvar is on the west side of the Nitra, and Surany and Komjaty are in a line to the north along the banks of the Nitra.

Verebely is 11 miles southeast of the stronghold of Nitra on the railway from Levice.

Retreat To Suburbs

German remnants in Danzig had withdrawn to suburban points scattered on the Vistula delta at Danzig, a city of 50 bridges.

Graz, a hub on the chief communications remaining open between Austria and the Nazi forces in Slovenia and Croatia in Yugoslavia, was outflanked by spearheads which had driven forward from Szombathely, 102 miles north of Zagreb, capital of puppet Croatia, and 130 miles from the Italian border.

Artillery Moves Up

Under cover of hundreds of Red battleplanes, long-range Soviet artillery moved up in Hungary, preparing to place the Vienna-Italy railroad line under fire.

Sopron, the only border town of any strategic importance remaining in German hands in Hungary, was under attack frontally on the east and bypassed on the south by an unchecked Soviet push which yesterday reached a point only 42 miles from Vienna, city of 1,930,000 and scene of Hitler's Anschluss triumph in 1938.

The German Army's confusion verged on panic, said Soviet front-line reports.

Soviet war reporters found it difficult to keep up with the tanks, so swiftly did they whip ahead.

"On To Vienna" Signs

Tolkubhin's advanced units moved along two good roads leading west and northwest from Szombathely, with "On to Vienna" scrawled on their armor.

A sweep around the southern end of Lake Neusiedler, landing with paralyzing impact against the traffic network south of Vienna, was curling in behind enemy formations holding the 18-mile neck of land between the lake and Bratislava on the Danube.

Red air fleets cruised ahead in great strength, strafing every open stretch of road. Sopron was turned into a burning pocket at the south end of the lake.

The headlong flight into Austria had cost the Germans 18,000 prisoners in two days, the Russians said.

More Pressure On Koenigsberg

The 3d White Russian Army of Marshal Alexander Vasilevsky, which Moscow has credited with a toll of nearly 100,000 Germans in mopping up East Prussia southwest of Koenigsberg, multiplied the pressure on forces still holding the Junkers province capital with hundreds of additional field guns and a fleet of American-made trucks carrying rocket guns.

Radio Luxembourg said a state of emergency had been proclaimed in Vienna.

Largest U.S. 1945 Air Attack Pounds 3 Big North Sea Ports

London, Saturday, March 31 (AP). Strong forces of RAF Mosquitos attacked Berlin again last night after the mightiest American aerial force sent aloft this year—more than 2,300 bombers and fighters—showered 4,000 tons of bombs in daylight attacks on five U-boat yards in Germany's largest North Sea ports of Bremen, Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven.

German radio alarms ogged bombers over most parts of northwestern Germany last night but the only definite target announced by the British Air Ministry was Berlin, which was attacked for the thirty-eighth night in the last 39 nights.

The greatest United States attack of the war on enemy naval installations yesterday strangled chances of the crumbling German Army of getting seaborne supplies and reinforcements. It also dealt a massive blow against the Nazis' spring submarine plan.

U-Boat Yards Are Targets

There was an indication—but no confirmation—that the attack by more than 1,400 Flying Fortresses and Liberators and a screening cloud of 900 fighters of the United States 8th Force was timed to catch large units of the German Navy anchoring at Wilhelmshaven, last attacked by the 8th on February 3, 1944.

The official target listed in the communiqué said only "naval vessels in the inner harbor."

The armada aimed explosives on the U-boat yards and other targets, including warships, and what was believed to be a flotilla of subs sheltering in Wilhelmshaven's inner harbor, near the Government naval dockyard where the Nazi battleship Von Tirpitz was built.

Some groups of Fortresses in today's attacks were jumped by a dozen enemy jet planes, attacking singly or in pairs, or as many as five abreast. Mustang escorts shot down at least six and destroyed five other enemy planes on the ground.

Naval Dockyard Hit

Sub building yards struck included the Blohm and Voss and the Deutsche Werft yards at Hamburg, both working on 250-ton prefabricated plastic U-boats; the Deschimag works at Bremen; a vast new concrete structure near Farge, 16 miles downstream from Bremen, believed to be for the construction of prefabricated U-boats, and the naval dockyard at Wilhelmshaven, an important sub base.

"At Hamburg, where most of the bombing was done through clouds, columns of heavy oil and smoke boiled up," said an 8th Air Force statement. "At Bremen and the other objectives, where the weather permitted visual bombing, generally good results were reported."

Thick weather restricted Continent-based planes but the 9th Air Force's medium and light bombers were able to operate after a 24-hour lull. More than 200 planes pounded a German tank assembly plant at Bad Oyenhuesen, midway between Osnabrueck and Hannover and the Hannmunden ordnance depot northeast of Kassel.

Rail Installations Hit

About 75 other mediums blasted thirteen oil storage tanks at Ebenhausen, 25 miles northeast of Wurzburg.

(The Paris radio quoted Swiss reports as saying that German sailors had revolted in Hamburg and erected barricades in the dock area).

An Eighth Air Force officer stressed the significance of the huge attack with the statement that it was "designed to put the three big ports out of business simultaneously."

It was the largest striking force employed on a single mission since 2,000 American heavies and 900 fighters ripped German rail lines last Christmas Eve.

A force of unescorted U. S. heavy bombers flew from Italy and attacked rail installations at Vienna and Graz in Austria, returning without loss of a plane. The Italy-based force had dropped 31,000 tons of bombs during March, surpassing its previous best month and raising to more than 200,000 tons the record-breaking total of explosives dropped on the Germans by Allied heavy bombers in March.

Believed caught in the web of explosives spread by about 400 Liberators assigned to Wilhelmshaven was a flotilla of two-man submarines and other types of warships which recent reconnaissance had shown to be sheltering in the inner harbor.

Dockyards and naval installations also were hit at Wilhelmshaven, which had been free of attacks by the Eighth Air force since Feb. 3, 1944. It was the first target in Germany attacked by American heavy bombers on Jan. 27, 1943, when 53 Flying Fortresses made the trip.

ports at Bremen, Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven today.

The massive attacks were intended to cut off any seaborne supplies destined for the German armies in the north.

Bomber targets included submarine building yards, naval vessels in port, oil storage depots and harbar installations.

Biggest Ports Attack

"It was the biggest attack ever made on a series of major ports, with the idea being to put them all out of business simultaneously," a staff officer said.

Some good-sized German warships were believed to have been in the target area. Recent reconnoissance showed a large number of two-man submarines in Wilhelmshaven harbor.

United States 15th Air Force heavy bombers, flying from Italy, attacked rail yards at Vienna and Graz.

Berlin Hit Again

Fast RAF Mosquito bombers struck ravaged Berlin last night for the thirty-seventh time in 38 nights.

The Mosquitos, which laid two-ton blockbusters on Berlin, also attacked other undisclosed objectives in northwest Germany. From these raids and yesterday afternoon's heavy bomber attack on a benzol plant near Brunswick, one escorting fighter plane was missing, the Air Ministry said.

EIGHTH'S WAR SCORE BIG

It Has Destroyed 11,082 German Planes, Dropped 628,298 Tons

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—United States Eighth Air Force bombers and fighters have shot down to date 11,082 German planes, or an average of almost two for every one of their own lost, since the Eighth began operations over Europe in August, 1942, it was disclosed tonight. The Eighth's losses total 4,098 bombers and 1,944 fighters.

The combat record shows that Doolittle includes: bomber sorties, 271,206; fighter sorties, 233,978; tonnage of bombs dropped, 628,298; bombers lost, 4,098; fighters lost, 1,944; enemy planes shot down by bombers, 5,917; enemy planes shot down by fighters, 5,165.

The biggest month for the Eighth's bomber gunners, who battled the German Air Force alone a long time before fighters began accompanying them all the way on their long trips, was in October, 1943, when they racked up 784 enemy planes. The most American bombers lost in one month was 1, in April, 1944.

Lauds Canada's R. A. F. Aid

Churchill Cites Training of 125,000 Airmen as Program Ends

LONDON, March 30 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill said today that about 125,000 air crewmen, more than half of them Canadians, had been trained for the Royal Air Force in Canada during the last five years.

"This master plan has done much to speed us along the road to victory," the Prime Minister said in a message to Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King marking the termination of the British Commonwealth air-training plan.

Nazis Planning Last Stand.

Nazi leaders themselves were reported putting the final touches on preparations for a planned withdrawal into the Bavarian Alps, and Swiss advices said some already had fled to the German island of Mainau in Lake Constance.

In a frank discussion of conditions within the Reich, which was passed by Nazi censors, the Berlin correspondent for the Berne newspaper Der Bund, wrote that the German people "certainly have no cause for great hopes" and that "famous ray of light appears nowhere on the horizon."

Lieut.-Gen. Kurt Dittmar, the German High Command's military commentator, struck one of the two notes of terror.

"Is there any sense in continuing the fight?" he asked in a broadcast, and then answered himself at once: "Our enemy wants to annihilate the entire nation and himself gives the answer—we must fight to the last."

Boast of Slaying Aachen Mayor.

At the same time, the Berlin radio drove home the second point in the terror campaign. It boasted that "German Freedom Fighters" had slain Franz Oppenhof, Allied-appointed Mayor of occupied Aachen, and said another "traitor" and his whole family were killed in an explosion at Meutzenich, south of Aachen.

Attacks on the lives of two Nazi leaders were reported by the Luxembourg radio, quoting "reliable Swiss sources." SS Leader Dr. Ernst Kaltenbrunner, No. 2 Nazi under Heinrich Himmler, was reported wounded seriously during anti-Nazi clashes at Vienna. Baldur von Schirach, former Hitler Youth chief and Nazi leader at Vienna, was said to have had a narrow escape from assassination in the Austrian capital. Two of his companions were slain, the report asserted.

1,400 U.S. Planes Raid Nazi North Sea Ports

London, March 30 (AP)—More than 1,400 American heavy bombers and an escort of 900 fighters—the largest concentration sent out by the 8th Air Force this year—attacked Germany's North Sea Eighth Air Force bombers have dropped about 628,298 tons of explosives on Germany and Nazi-occupied countries.

Nazi Chiefs Turn to Terror

Threaten Germans to Keep Them in Line as Chaos and Despair Spreads in Reich.

London, March 30 (A. P.).—Nazi leaders appeared today to be resorting to a campaign of stark terror in an effort to hold the German people in line during the nation's greatest hours of peril.

The campaign seemed to be taking two forms. Nazi propagandists warned the Germans they would be no better than slaves if the Allies are victorious, and at the same time they threatened with dire punishment all who failed to fight to the end or co-operated with Allied authorities in occupied territory.

Despite this last-ditch appeal to fear, reports from many sources indicated mounting chaos and despair within the Reich. Stories relayed through neutral capitals told of disorders and mutinies, attempts on the lives of top Nazis and large-scale desertions from the Army.

Small Nations Seek To Change Russ-U.S. Voting Ratio

London, March 30 (AP)—Statesmen of smaller nations studied today strategy for combating the move by Soviet Russia and the United States for triple voting power in the proposed world security organization assembly. Some were believed counting upon France and China to help block the plan.

Representatives of the little countries, worried over league domination by the Big Three, expressed surprise at the Washington disclosure that Russia and the United States would claim three votes each to balance the British Empire's six.

Major Controversy Expected

Some spokesmen said they regarded the proposal as a trading device to offset attempts by smaller nations to obtain more potent voices in the assembly. Others considered increased power for the big nations a relegation of the smaller nations to rubber-stamp roles.

Representatives of such countries as the Netherlands and Belgium would say for the record only that the report of the plan had just been brought to their attention and was being studied by foreign ministers.

France, China Want Equal Vote

For "guidance," a familiar term in diplomatic quarters to convey a government's private view, a spokesman for one of them said the proposal would be sure to stir a major controversy at the San Francisco conference opening April 25, and that the discussion would overshadow even the issue of veto privilege for a major power in prospective league military action against itself.

Spokesmen contended that neither France nor China would support a proposal which would give them a voice smaller than those of the Big Three. One official said the best solution to remove the snarl over voting would be for Russia, the United States and the British Empire each to be given a single vote.

Some said privately that the three-vote plan might be withdrawn as "a trade" if the smaller nations softened their clamor for greater representation in the league council. This, however, appeared unlikely. The British dominions separately are pressing claims to votes.

Yalta Voting Compact Not Published in Russia

MOSCOW, March 30 (AP).—Dispatches concerning the disclosure in Washington that the United States will seek three votes in the San Francisco World Security Conference to match the allocation of Soviet votes have not yet been printed in the Russian press.

The Ukraine and White Russian Republics, for which Russia asked separate votes in the conference, exercised a direct voice in foreign affairs of the Soviet Union last autumn in concluding an agreement with the present Polish provisional government for a voluntary exchange of nationals.

Stettinius Has Confidence In Success of Peace Talks

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP) Turning aside a barrage of questions, Secretary Stettinius insisted today the hot "multiple vote" issue has not dimmed his confidence in the success of the San Francisco conference.

Reporters fired 48 questions at him, most of them dealing with a secret agreement made at Yalta and disclosed yesterday. Under this the United States will back Russia's demand for three votes in the assembly of the world organization to be set up at San Francisco, and in turn will seek three votes for itself. The British Commonwealth will have six.

Evades Question

The Secretary of State licked his lips and grinned repeatedly as the questions rolled off at a news conference attended by 65 reporters. To most of them, he said he couldn't answer now, come back next week.

The questions centered on why the agreement was kept secret until it was smoked out by press reports, and what is the status of the "sovereign equality" principle stressed in the Dumbarton Oaks preliminary plan for world organization, and the official speeches and explanations of the plan.

Stettinius told reporters that nothing has happened to discourage him on the prospect for a successful world organization. Meanwhile another high official who would not be named assured the press that no other secret agreements on Dumbarton Oaks were reached at the Roosevelt - Churchill - Stalin meeting at Yalta.

Democratic leaders in the Senate took the attitude that the assembly voting procedure was a comparatively minor matter. Senator Barkley of Kentucky, majority chief, told reporters:

"All these matters undoubtedly will be submitted to the San Francisco conference to be worked out there. I don't think any of them ought to be given preliminary importance out of proportion to the objective to be sought. The agreement has no effect in the voting of the security council, which carries the power of the organization."

Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip: "nothing could be more unfortunate than to permit small things to weaken our determination to enter an international organization and to play our part in the building and maintenance of the peace of the world."

During the day, Stettinius conferred with some of the American delegates to San Francisco. One of them, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) said yesterday he would deeply disagree with any voting proposal which would destroy the sovereign equality of nations.

To reporters who approached him after today's conference he had no further comment.

"It's a nice day," he said.

Another delegate, Rep. Bloom (D-NY) said:

"No speak the English."

Bloom was already on record with a demand that the United States have the same number of votes as the British—six.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Senator Revercomb (R-W.Va.) said of the multiple voting agreement:

"No such plan can be accepted. It is degrading."

Voting Plan Hit

He told the Senate that the United States ought not to be expected to accept "an inferior voting place" in the organization. The British Empire moves as an entity, trades for its mutual benefit and acts in unison in war, he said, and it should be given no more voting strength than the United States.

Senator Johnston (D-S.C.) arose to express the hope that Americans would not "pick out small things that will keep us from entering a world organization."

"Regardless of the number of votes we get, I intend to vote for the United States to go into some kind of cooperation with other nations to prevent us from going into another war," he declared.

Senator Wiley (R-Wis) said he "could not see any great danger in the extra vote formula itself. The mechanism is not the thing; the thing that counts is whether the minds of the nations have got to the point where they can see the light."

To Answer Next Week

The questions put to Stettinius and which he said he hoped to answer satisfactorily next week, included:

"Were there any other secret agreements on the Dumbarton Oaks plan at Yalta?"

"How does this policy of secrecy fit into the State department's prophesied new policy of taking the people into their confidence and of building a people's foreign policy?"

"Why does the United States consider it necessary for the U. S. and the USSR to have more than one vote in the assembly?"

"Does the President's commitment bind all the members of the U. S. delegation?"

"Doesn't the secret Yalta agreement nullify the principle of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals which says that the basis of the organization shall be the sovereign equality of all nations?"

"To what length is the United States prepared to go to fulfill the President's commitment to support the Russian proposal at San Francisco?"

"Would one man cast all three U. S. votes or would there be separate representatives for such territories as Alaska and Hawaii?"

"Does the United States consider the White Russian and Ukrainian Socialist republics to have reached the stage where we can exchange ambassadors as we do with Moscow?"

(These republics would have separate votes under the Yalta plan.)

Stettinius emphasized at his news conference that it is impossible to speak about the plan today and said he wished he were at liberty to speak exhaustively.

He also laid special stress on the point in the White House announcement which said the ultimate decision on the extra votes will be made in San Francisco.

Questions were also raised whether other countries would not now demand additional votes in the assembly, such as France, Brazil, the Netherlands and Mexico.

Stettinius merely grinned deprecatingly and said the answer would have to be awaited.

The Russian decision not to send Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov to San Francisco was brought up and Stettinius said we welcome any delegation sent by the Soviet Union.

Moscow has announced that Soviet ambassador to the U. S. Andrei Gromyko will be the Russian chief at the United Nations meeting.

Berlin 5th Column Reported Set

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—The Belgian radio said today that 2,000 men under the command of the Free German Committee of Moscow have been smuggled into Berlin to organize a Fifth Column to create confusion at the moment the Allies launch their decisive attack on the capital. The small army entered the capital in tanks that belonged to the retreating German Army, the broadcast said.

Big 3 Messages Stir Capital

London, March 30 (AP)—An abnormally large volume of trans-Atlantic government communications—with Washington now on the sending end—stirred speculation here today that the Big Three might be discussing steps for dealing with dwindling German resistance.

But the nature and portent of government communications linking Washington, London and Moscow remained a coded and closely guarded secret.

High-placed Allied officials remained close to their telephones or within reach of their offices as Britain began observance of the happiest Easter holiday since 1939, and the attitude of watchful waiting added to the atmosphere of tense expectancy.

Bernard M. Baruch, President Roosevelt's confidant here on a secret White House mission, conferred at length with Ambassador John G. Winant. The general belief here was that Baruch's mission concerned Germany's economic future.

Trading Is Resumed By French And British

London, March 30 (AP)—Trading between British and French individuals has been resumed, it was announced today, with the reopening of banking channels and an end called to the trading with the enemy restrictions imposed when France was occupied.

Trading and banking transactions are subject to normal finance regulations and export and import licensing. The shortage of goods and transport is considered likely to prevent early large-scale trading.

Wants Cutthroat Trade Barred

LEEDS, England, March 30 (AP).—Thomas Rowlandson, president of the Engineering and Shipbuilding Draftsmen's Association, told the group today there must be no return to international cutthroat competition, adding that "such a situation could not fail to produce anything but depression and mass unemployment in Britain."

French to Fight Against a Big 3 'Dictatorship'

San Francisco Delegates Named; Attack There on Voting Plan Is Likely

PARIS, March 30 (AP).—France named its delegation to the San Francisco conference today as opposition arose in governmental circles to the Yalta agreement giving three votes each to the United States and Russia in the proposed world security organization as an offset to the British Empire's six votes.

Officials said that France probably would oppose the granting of extra votes in the assembly to any power and, failing that, would demand additional votes for the French Empire. There was an obvious determination to attempt to maintain the equality of all nations in the assembly and to prevent a "dictatorship" by the Big Three.

"What next? We had thought we knew all about the Yalta decisions," said one official, "but now, obviously, we do not and we do not know what else may be forthcoming."

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault will head the five-man French delegation, which will represent nearly all shades of the nation's political opinion, was said to have learned of the vote proposal through his morning newspaper.

Other Delegates Listed

The other chief delegates will be Rene Pleven, Conservative Minister of Finance; Francois Billoux, Communist Minister of Public Health; Joseph Paul-Boncour, one-time Premier and before the war France's permanent delegate to the League of Nations, and Henry Bonnet, present Ambassador to the United States. Paul-Boncour is now a member of the Independent Socialist party and holds a seat in the Consultative Assembly.

Chosen as alternatives were Jean Monnet, the French special envoy who negotiated the lend-lease agreement with the United States; General Alphonse Juin, chief of staff for national defense; Admiral Georges Thierry D'Argenlieu, vice-president of the Navy's superior council; Jules Basevant, chief legal adviser to the Foreign Minister, and Dr. Paul Emil Nagiar, a veteran of the French foreign service.

About fifty advisers and experts will accompany the delegates.

Two U.S. Soldiers Executed

Paris, March 30 (AP)—Two United States soldiers were executed in Normandy yesterday for rape and murder, the Army announced today. Their names were not disclosed.

'What Next?' French Ask

Paris, March 30 (AP)—Disclosure that the United States, Russia and Britain had a secret agreement on voting in the assembly of the proposed world security organization brought expressions of concern in the French Foreign Office today.

"What next?" asked one official, commenting on the plan for three votes each for Russia and the United States in that organization. "We had thought we knew all about the Yalta decisions, but now, obviously, we do not and we do not know what else may be forthcoming."

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was said to have learned of the vote proposal through this morning's newspapers.

The French delegation, announced today, represents nearly all shades of the nation's political opinion.

Chief members will be Bidault; Rene Pleven, Conservative Finance Minister; Francois Billoux, Communist Minister of Public Health; Henri Bonnet, Ambassador to the United States, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, before the war France's permanent delegate to the League of Nations at Geneva. The latter now is a member of the Independent Socialist party and holds a seat in the consultative assembly, where, as a member of the foreign affairs committee, he has taken a leading role in discussions of the French position at San Francisco.

The assistant delegates will be Gen. Alphonse Juin, chief of staff for national defense; Jean Monnet, chief of the French supply mission in America; Admiral Georges Thierry d'Argenlieu, vice president of the Navy's superior council; Jules Basevant, chief legal adviser to the Foreign Minister, and Dr. Paul Emil Nagiar, a veteran of the French diplomatic service.

The delegates will be accompanied by a staff of about 50 advisers and experts.

Murphy Hurt In Plan[illegible]nding

Paris, March 30 (AP)—[illegible]bert D. Murphy, General Eisen[illegible]wer's political adviser on Germany, was bruised in a crash landing at an airfield near Paris three days ago. Treated at a hospital, Murphy is expected to return to work tomorrow.

AMERICAN PLANES HIT RAIL YARDS AT VIENNA, GRAZ

ROME, March 30. — (AP) Unescorted U. S. heavy bombers of the 15th Air Force leaped the Alps today and bombed rail yards and stations at Vienna and the Austrian mountain town of Graz which are imperiled by the Red army's advance.

The 12th Air Force B-25s resumed their methodical pounding of the vital Brenner Pass from Austria into northern Italy, attacking a rail bridge at San Ambrogio, 12 miles north of Verona. Thunderbolts destroyed 20 rail cars and attacked ammunition dumps and enemy positions in northern Italy.

Gen. Mark W. Clark has predicted a German withdrawal from Italy and an Allied ground offensive sooner or later to link up with other Allied forces in the north, and enemy escape lines leading through the key Brenner Pass have been kept under heavy attack.

The heavy bombers bombed Vienna and Graz by instrument because of heavy cloud layers, but some bombardiers found holes in the clouds and plummeted their explosive charges on the targets visually.

Lightnings and Mustangs swept the target areas ahead of the bombers and had only one encounter with enemy aircraft. One Flying Fortress also was attacked by three German fighters, but it and all the others returned safely.

The day's operations boosted the total bombs dropped by Italy-based craft during March to more than 31,000 tons, surpassing the previous high mark of 30,373 tons dropped in May, 1944.

Allied headquarters told only of slight ground action yesterday, when 900 American, British, South

African and Brazilian fighterbombers hammered enemy communications, supply dumps and air fields in northern Italy.

A Brazilian Thunderbolt squadron destroyed 30 rail cars north of Vicenza in the course of yesterday's air assault. A U. S. Thunderbolt formation led by Lt. Robert K. Morrow of (1717 15th Ave.) South Nashville, Tenn., destroyed two JU-88s on Bergamo airdrome and Capt. Edwin Gilbert of Hampden Highlands, Me., blew up an ammunition dump northeast of Brescia.

Nazi Troops Reported On Move In Italy

Rome, March 30 (AP)—German troops continued to spread harassing artillery fire over the 5th Army front yesterday, and movements behind enemy lines were noticed in the central sector south of Bologna, but there were no major changes in this stalmated battlefront.

The Nazis were extremely alert in their defensive arc below Bologna, but their artillery fire was light.

In the Monte Belmonte area, a twenty-man enemy patrol tried to prod Allied positions but fell back quickly under fire. Fifth Army patrols reported little contact with the Germans.

Dugouts Smashed

Despite poor visibility, tank destroyers on the left coastal flank scored seventeen direct hits on enemy dugouts and knocked out several machine guns. There was little but normal patrolling on the 8th Army front.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force flew about 900 sorties in yesterday's bad weather, most of them against German supply dumps and communications in northern Italy. The Brenner Pass rail line was hit again by fighter-bombers.

15th Has Record Bombing Month

ROME, March 30 (AP)—Including today's operations, the United States Fifteenth Air Force has dropped on Nazi targets during March more than 31,000 tons of bombs, surpassing the previous high mark of 30,373 tons dropped in May, 1944.

Relief Flows to Yugoslavia

ROME, March 30 (AP)—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announced today 24,000 tons of relief supplies already had been shipped into Yugoslavia, including thirteen tons of medical supplies flown into Belgrade following the Germans had stripped.

Diplomats Attend Mass

Rome, March 30 (AP)—Traditional Good Friday mass was celebrated at the Sistine Chapel today in the presence of Pope Pius XII, eight cardinals and the diplomatic corps.

Diplomats present included Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's Vatican representative; Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, German Ambassador to the Holy See, and Ken Harada, Japanese special Minister to the Vatican.

Mediterranean Cage Service Teams In Tie

Florence, Italy, March 30 (AP)—Private Steve Wojnolowicz, for the second straight night, spearheaded the 321st Bomb Group's "Mitchell bombers" to a 45-38 triumph over the 21st Aviation Engineers' Bulldozers in the Mediterranean theater basketball championships.

This left the two teams deadlocked in the tournament, so they must play again tomorrow night in Florence's Madison Square Garden for the title and the right to go to Cairo for a three-team tourney April 9.

Steve, one-time Detroit high schooler and Saratoga (N.Y.) pro Indians performer, paced the 12th Airforce champions with 14 points. Player-Coach-Captain Sam Post, of Denver, Southern Methodist star in the mid-thirties, started on defense against the Bulldozers, Adriatic Zone champions. Sergt Paul Herman, former Tennessee player from Massilon, Ohio, clicked for 14 points, and Lieut. Joe Sokol, ex-New Kensington (Pa.) high schooler, made 11 for the losers.

Greeks Forbid Transactions In Gold

Athens, March 30 (AP)—The rapid rise in the value of gold sovereigns, which has brought about smuggling between Egypt and Greece, drew a Government crackdown today with all transactions in gold prohibited.

Gold sovereigns worth 3,000 drachmas last November now worth 6,500. The Government is studying the Grecian monetary situation.

HOW REDS VIEW PATTON'S PUSH

Soviet Writer Says Russian Heroes Opened Way.

Moscow, March 30 (A. P.).—While paying tribute to the speed and prowess of the Americans on the western front, the Russian military commentator, Ilya Ehrenburg, wrote today in the Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, that Russian heroes had opened the road to the Ruhr and Nuernberg.

Ehrenburg's was the only comment on the western front appearing in the Soviet press. The Russian public followed western front developments through the Supreme Headquarters communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and published in all Moscow daily newspapers under the standard headline: "War Activity in Western Europe." Most newspapers covered the Pacific war with a twelve-line dispatch.

Ehrenburg's comment follows in part:

"The Red Army is going to Vienna. From the west, tanks of the American Third Army are swiftly moving ahead over good German roads. They are already in Bavaria. Hitler cannot go to Munich. All of the Austrian Germans are running from Vienna.

"American correspondents write that Gen. Patton's tanks do not capture the Fritzes. The Americans love to travel fast and now they can fight to their taste. They did a good job breaking down German defenses and excellently crossed the Rhine, and after this went riding. I don't want to minimize their merit. A person is proud of his friends and the people of their allies. Also I do not forget the role of the Englishmen and Canadians who fought on the most difficult sector around the Ruhr. If I make a reminder of our role in the advance of the American tanks from Luxembourg to Citadel Bavaria, it is only because I remember Petuska (scene of a Russian battle in March, 1942).

"Now we take tens of towns in one day. But then the battle of Rzhev lasted for three months. Now the Allies are looking upon the towns of Westphalia, Pfaltz and Nassau. But then German tanks were in Egypt. Then the Germans were very strong, and for this I want to recall the heroes who died, and the many graves, on Russian land. They died not for the ruins of Petuska. They have opened the road for the Red Army to Stettin, Berlin and Vienna. They have opened the road for our Allies to the Ruhr, Kassel and Nuernberg."

JAPANESE MOVE INTO LAOHOKOW

United States 14th Air Force Evacuates Base There

Chungking, March 30 (AP)—Japanese infantry and cavalry are infiltrating into Laohokow, Chinese Army headquarters admitted today, only four days after the United States 14th Air Force evacuated its base there, 200 miles northwest of Hankow.

Forward elements of an enemy force estimated at 40,000 troops suffered heavy losses in first attempts to enter the city, the Chinese said.

Claim 1,000 Japs Killed

Loss of the airfield was announced by United States headquarters. A brief communiqué added that since the base was abandoned March 26 it has been bombed twice by 14th Air Force planes. Loss of the city itself would put the Japanese—who began their current push March 21—in position to invade Shensi province and strike out from there either north toward Sian or south toward Chungking, 400 miles away.

North of Laohokow, the Chinese claimed to have killed more than 1,000 Japanese in fighting around the former Chinese stronghold of Nanyang, and several hundred more in attacks on enemy mechanized forces along the Honan-Shensi highway.

'West Wall' Strengthened

In support of Chinese attempts to stem these drives west of the Peiping-Hankow railway, bombers and fighter-bombers of the 14th Air Force struck at Japanese rolling stock and railway yards and bombed several enemy-held towns including Chungsiang, 120 miles from Hankow. The air force also ranged over Kiangsi province, where counterattacking Chinese were reported within a mile of Kanhsien, former American airbase, and destroyed three enemy planes on the ground at Amoy.

A Chinese Army spokesman said Japanese were busy building up their forces in Shanghai and other ports farther south against the chance of an American landing, while also strengthening their "west wall"—between Manchuria and Indo-China—to meet the expected Chinese counteroffensive. He said enemy attempts to repair portions of the Canton-Hankow railroad were under effective harassing attacks by mobile Chinese units.

Foe's Losses Heavy in Burma

CALCUTTA, March 30 (AP).—Heavy Japanese casualties were reported today as British troops pressed their campaign against enemy troops caught in the ever-tightening Irrawaddy River pocket in central Burma.

The Southwest Asia Command announced the enemy had been forced from a strong point just north of Meiktila, a British-held road junction south of Mandalay. At Taungtha, thirty-eight miles northwest of Meiktila, the British progressed in cleaning out Japanese who had dug themselves into caves on a hillside for a last-ditch stand.

AMERICAN TROOPS DRIVE INLAND ON INVADED NEGROS

Infantry Lands on Last Big Philippine Island in Jap Hands.

YANKS SEIZE AIRFIELD

Smash Toward Capital City of Bacolod, Advance on Cebu Island.

MANILA, Saturday, March 31—(AP)—Negros, last big Philippine island in Japanese hands, was invaded Thursday by veteran 40th U. S. Infantry division Yanks who seized an airfield, speared columns 11 and 14 miles inland and quickly menaced Bacolod, capital city of more than 50,000 population.

The landing on the west coast of the Central Philippines island, which has an area of more than 3,000 square miles, was disclosed today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur who said Nipponese defenses throughout the heart of the archipelago are "rapidly collapsing."

Near Capital City

Brushing aside enemy resistance at the beachhead near Bago, one Doughboy column raced 14 miles northeast, overran the Bacolod airstrip and neared the outskirts of the capital city.

A second Yank column struck south 11 miles, seized Porte Vedra, pushed inland along the Babo river, secured Santa Ancieta and contacted guerrilla forces.

Also reporting fresh successes on invaded Cebu, just east of Negros, where contact also had been made with guerrillas, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said:

"Throughout the entire Visayan area, comprising the central portion of the Philippines, the enemy seems bewildered and his defense is rapidly collapsing.

"Preoccupied to the north in Luzon and fearful of his position to the south in (invaded) Mindanao, he has neglected his center and left it exposed to a series of divergent thrusts which are proving vital."

Doughboys of the 40th made the invasion from little Guimaras island, between American-controlled Panay and Negros. They swept across Guimaras strait under cover of planes and warships. Their first move was to seize Pulupandan and the Bago river bridge.

The 40th division Yank invaders of Negros, one of the last big Philippine islands in Japanese hands, are commanded by Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush. Previously they participated in the January invasion of Luzon island and landed in mid-March on Panay island, just west of Negros.

Advance On Cebu

On Cebu, the American division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold, advanced northeast from captured Cebu City. Along the coast Mandaue and Mana were captured.

After joining the guerrillas, the Yanks "are rapidly securing all areas to the south," headquarters said.

Ground successes were reported on Luzon. South of Corregidor island in Manila bay, elements of the 38th Infantry division landed on Caballo island and secured it.

MacArthur's Far Eastern airforce, which has been striking blows at Formosa in coordination with the naval-air assaults of the Ryukyus, dropped more than 200 tons of explosives on that fortress Thursday. Liberators made the raid after a night attack on a dock area by other planes. The big bombers set fires at Takao and Tainan and on nearby airdromes. Smoke from the fires rose to 3,000 feet. Other raiders destroyed locomotives of four trains and derailed freight cars.

Planes ranged the China sea area south to Camranh bay on French Indo-China. Fighter-bombers in that area tangled with 20 enemy fighters and shot down nine at a loss of one plane, headquarters said.

Jap Tanker Sunk

Patrol planes sank a 10,000 ton tanker and three coastal planes off Pharang and destroyed four enemy planes on the Tourane airdrome.

Off Dutch Celebes, heavy bombers sank a Japanese destroyer, probably sank another and also a medium cargo vessel, four small freighters and two schooners.

Headquarters said the planes "caught enemy shipping under way in the Makassar-Pomelaa area."

Americans on Cebu, invaded March 26, continued to expand their holdings and cleared the shipping lanes to the important Cebu City port by spilling over to Mactan and Cauit islands. They seized Opon, principal city on Mactan, across a narrow strait east of Cebu City, and occupied Cauit, a dot of land in the bay south of the city.

IWO HEROES GET PURPLE HEARTS

PEARL HARBOR, March 30 — (AP) Purple Heart medals for wounds received in action were presented in ceremonies today to about 1,600 United States Marine veterans of Iwo Jima.

Only a small portion of the 1,600 who helped capture the small volcanic island only 750 miles from Tokyo, were able to attend the outdoor presentation. The others were in wards of the nearby Aiea Heights naval hospital.

Twenty-one admirals, generals and commodores pinned the medals on the men.

Addressing the veterans, Vice Admiral John H. Towers, deputy Commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, said:

"We are honoring you who by your courage and sacrifice have given the nation a great victory and the fighting Marines an even greater tradition.

"You have brought the war closer to Japan and penetrated the inner defenses of the enemy empire. You have hastened the end of the war. In so doing you have all suffered in battle.

"It is with pride and humility that I congratulate you on this award by your country, an award bestowed in recognition of your accomplishments and suffering in battle."

Among those receiving the medal was Pfc. Bill Coburn, St. Louis. His platoon rescued 16 Leathernecks who were the only survivors of a company fighting to gain a foothold on Mt. Suribachi.

Another recipient was Pfc. Edward Greaves, of Waterville and Portland, Me., who led a machine gun section for ten days after the platoon leader and section leader became casualties. A sniper finally got Greaves in the leg.

Navy Assault on Ryukyus Enters 8th Straight Day

Fleet Repulses Heavy Attack by Jap Planes, Torpedo Boats.

GUAM, Saturday, March 31—(AP) Heavy warships of the U. S. Pacific fleet and carrier planes continued their heavy bombardment of the Ryukyus Friday, carrying their assault into the eighth straight day.

A Japanese counter-attack on Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's mighty fleet, lying off the Ryukyus within probably 400 miles of Japan itself, was repulsed by ships' guns and carrier planes. Seventeen enemy aircraft were downed and four torpedo boats were destroyed, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced in today's communique.

Landing Reports Unconfirmed

There still was no confirmation of a Japanese Imperial communique reporting American landings on Aka Jima and Tokashiki, tiny islands in the Kerama Rhetto a few miles off the southwestern tip of Okinawa. Neither was there any further word on activities of British naval units operating with the American fleet off the Ryukyus.

Nimitz was silent on whether the attacking Nipponese damaged any of Spruance's ships, or any of Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's carriers, which have been within striking distance of the Japanese homeland two weeks and which have raided southern Honshu or other enemy islands to the south daily for 12 days.

The Japanese plane-torpedo boat attack was made on the Spruance-Mitscher force—Tokyo says it already has landed troops on two tiny islands off strategic Okinawa in the central Ryukyus—the night of March 28-29. Nimitz reported yesterday that the attack had been turned back, but not until today did he announce how many enemy planes or boats were destroyed.

The latest bombardment of shore installations, however, was made only yesterday. Fifteen more Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground in these operations.

Shore Installations Hit

Nimitz did not report which of the Ryukyus were targets for yesterday's shelling, bombing and strafing, but presumably Okinawa was included. The Admiral reported only that shore installations were attacked. These normally would include airfields and their facilities, including fuel, ammunition and supply dumps, and enemy strong points designed to repel an amphibious attack.

Landbased planes, meanwhile, destroyed buildings and sank a power boat in Palaus and strafed Sonsorol island, southwest of Hetpalaus. This was the first reported attack on Sonsorol.

Nimitz yesterday announced that a strong British task force struck the Sakishima group of islands at the southern end of the Ryukyus.

The Japanese Navy, already driven into home hiding by U. S. sea and air power, faced double trouble yesterday with British and American naval forces jointly hammering the Ryukyu islands and beckoning the Nipponese to come out and fight.

The Japanese homeland itself was again hit in Superfortress attack on Nagoya, the 10th raid on the big aircraft factory city by Marianas-based B-29s. A small force of the big bombers bombed industrial targets, Washington announced.

(A Berlin broadcast of a Tokyo radio report said 150 American Superforts raided the Japanese capital early today using a "new kind" of incendiary bomb which started numerous fires. There was no U. S. confirmation of the attack.)

Allied battleships and carrier planes pounding the Ryukyus, as close to Japan as the Bahama islands are to the United States, forced Tokyo radio to say the time for a decisive battle "has finally come upon us."

This first offensive blow by British naval power against Japan's perimeter islands underscored the recent promise by A. V. Alexander, Britain's first lord of the Admiralty, that the British fleet intends to play a "full and worthy part in the speedy overthrow of the Japanese empire."

The Japanese radio said at least four Allied task forces were stabbing at Nippon islands in the waters south of the homeland, and estimated that 2,000 Allied vessels were in the area. None of these assertions was confirmed by Allied sources.

The enemy broadcasts have claimed that Americans have landed on the Kerama islands, in the Ryukyus, and plan an invasion of Okinawa, principal island in the long archipelago stretching southwest of the Japanese mainland.

Tokyo radio said Japanese air and surface units were subjecting the Allied task forces to "furious attack" and had sunk or damaged 35 vessels, including battleships, in five days of battle.

Nimitz yesterday made no mention of damage or less to American ships, but said the U. S. surface forces in the Ryukyus destroyed several Japanese torpedo boats the night of March 27-28 and shot down four enemy planes.

The British task force, commanded by Vice Adm. Sir Bernard Rawlings and operating under the operational control of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, commander of the U. S. Fifth fleet, sailed to the Ryukyus from a secret American Pacific base.

The American announcement said the British force included such powerful, modern warships as the battleship King George V and the Aircraft Carrier Illustrious.

British Warships Join Attack on Okinawa

Heavy Sea and Air Offensive Continues for Seventh Straight Day.

Guam, March 30 (A. P.).—A powerful British task force has joined the American naval assault on the Ryukyu Island approaches to the Japanese homeland, it was learned today as the Navy announced that guns and carrier planes poured heavy shells and bombs for the seventh straight day on strategically important targets around Okinawa, Japan's Ryukyu bastion.

Meanwhile the Tokio radio said that Okinawa is expecting American landing parties at any time now.

The British task force, which included the battleship King George V and the carrier Illustrious, is operating as a unit attached to Admiral Spruance's Fifth United States Fleet. It became the first element of the Royal Navy to strike an offensive blow so close to Japan in this war, and the first to undertake operations anywhere at such an extremely long range.

Until the establishment of headquarters here, the United States Pacific Fleet carried on offensives at extraordinary long range. The British had never been equipped to do this, but they have now overcome that obstacle by fashioning the unit into a self-servicing task force, using British-made shells and bombs and getting much of its food and equipment from Australian and New Zealand sources.

The British set out for the job from a secret American base in the Western Pacific. An American naval officer who witnessed the departure said it included battleships, carriers, cruisers and destroyers. It received a sendoff from Commodore Worrall R. Carter, commander of the famous United States Service Squadron 10, which has been keeping Spruance's ships in ammunition and supplies. Carter blinkered to the British commander, Vice-Admiral Sir Bernard Rawlings: "Good hunting, good luck and Godspeed to you, British brothers."

Rawlings replied, "Thank you very much. I hope we meet again, Commodore, nearer Tokyo."

The British force was assigned to the southern tip of the Ryukyu chain. It bombed and strafed installations, destroyed twenty grounded planes, fired the town of Ohama, sank one small ship and damaged other small vessels on Monday and Tuesday.

After announcing British participation, Admiral Nimitz also disclosed that the Japanese at last had made a concerted attempt to counter-attack the Americans at sea. He said that enemy planes and torpedo boats had attacked the warships on Tuesday night and that "a number" of the boats and four of the aircraft were destroyed. Previously the Japanese had attacked mainly with planes, but had sent an occasional torpedo boat into the fight.

An inkling as to the size of the Allied attacking force came from the Japanese. Tokyo asserted that a fleet of "more than 100 warships, with about ten battleships as its mainstay," was cruising about Okinawa and screening still another task force which included more than ten aircraft carriers.

Planes under Gen. MacArthur's command ranged northward to attack Formosa, south of the Ryukyus. MacArthur said today that they hit a factory and an airdrome, sank a 7,000-ton cargo ship and five coastal vessels and attacked trains.

DECISIVE BATTLE IS NOW AT HAND

MAR 31 1945

JAPANESE CLAIM

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30. —(AP) Jittery Japan, jolted by aerial pounding and stunned by the realization that powerful Allied fleets operate in her home waters, heard today that her "grand chance" for a comeback is at hand.

The opportunity is offered by A m[illegible] "invasion operations against the Ryukyu islands," a Japanese admiral said in a forthright editorial in the prominent Tokyo newspaper Yomuri-Hochi, quoted in a broadcast by Domei, Japanese news agency.

Those operations, said the FCC recorded broadcast to North America, afford Japan her big moment—"a grand chance to smash the (American) fleet and launch a counteroffensive for the recapture of Iwo Jima, Saipan and other bases" lost to the enemy.

Writer of the editorial was identified as Rear Admiral Tanetsugu Sosa.

While Domei thus hinted that the remnants of the Imperial fleet might emerge from hiding and seek a fight, other Tokyo broadcasts boasted, entirely without confirmation:

That "one-fourth to one-third" of Allied naval strength was operating in the Ryukyu islands area, between Japan and Formosa.

That continuing air attacks on these forces had accounted for 35 combat ships, ranging from minesweepers to battleships.

That invasion of Okinawa, largest and most important, militarily, of the Ryukyus, was "but a matter of time."

There were no enemy reports of carrier aircraft raids on Japan, such as Tokyo reported yesterday had hit homeland islands. There was the warning, however, that the "enemy task force continues to cruise about the adjacent waters." It was admitted that this force had been strengthened by "participation of the British fleet."

Admiral Sosa was quoted as saying that the Ryukyus operations were launched by the United States "with full knowledge of the heavy losses" to be incurred so near Japan. He added:

"Japan must push forward to smash the enemy designs and captured bases from the enemy, annihilation of the enemy fleet at this time would mean the turning of the war situation in favor of Japan."

In another move to gird herself for the "decisive battle" which the Yomuri-Hochi is at hand, Japan trotted out the new "Sure-Victory" party, created in response to criticism of Premier Kuniaki Koiso's war policies. The premier dissolved the old Imperial rule assistance society, Nippon's totalitarian organization, and supplanted it with the new setup, known as the Political Association of Greater Japan.

The new party is headed by Gen. Jiro Minami, a member of the ruling Kwantung army clique and of the supreme war council.

2,000 Allied Ships Are Near, Tokyo Paper Warns

San Francisco, March 30 (AP)—At least four Allied task forces are operating in Japanese waters south of Japan—two of them within carrier plane range—Radio Tokyo said today, while a prominent Japanese newspaper warned that "2,000 Allied ships are in the area" and "the time for a decisive battle between Japan and America has finally come upon us."

The reported operation of American carriers three days off Kyushu lacked Allied confirmation.

30 Miles From Kyushu

With customary braggadocia, Radio Tokyo claimed the task forces are "under furious attack" by "our air and surface units" which have "accounted for" five warships during the past two days, to raise Tokyo's unconfirmed five-day bag to 35 ships—from minesweepers to battleships.

Radio Tokyo, in a broadcast heard by the Blue network, said one Allied task force was operating in the vicinity of Tanega Shima, at the north end of the Ryukyu Islands and only some 25 or 30 miles south of the Japanese mainland at Kyushu.

African and Brazilian fighterbombers hammered enemy communications, supply dumps and air fields in northern Italy.

A Brazilian Thunderbolt squadron destroyed 30 rail cars north of Vicenza in the course of yesterday's air assault. A U. S. Thunderbolt formation led by Lt. Robert K. Nazi Troops Reported On Move In Italy

Rome, March 30 (AP)—German troops continued to spread harassing artillery fire over the 5th Army front yesterday, and movements behind enemy lines were noticed in the central sector south of Bologna, but there were no major changes in this stalmated battlefront.

The Nazis were extremely alert in their defensive arc below Bologna, but their artillery fire was light.

In the Monte Belmonte area, a twenty-man enemy patrol tried to prod Allied positions but fell back quickly under fire. Fifth Army patrols reported little contact with the Germans.

Dugouts Smashed

Despite poor visibility, tank destroyers on the left coastal flank scored seventeen direct hits on enemy dugouts and knocked out several machine guns. There was little but normal patrolling on the 8th Army front.

The Mediterranean Allied Air Force flew about 900 sorties in yesterday's bad weather, most of them against German supply dumps and communications in northern Italy. The Brenner Pass rail line was hit again by fighter-bombers.

15th Has Record Bombing Month

ROME, March 30 (AP)—Including today's operations, the United States Fifteenth Air Force has dropped on Nazi targets during March more than 31,000 tons of bombs, surpassing the previous high mark of 30,373 tons dropped in May, 1944.

Relief Flows to Yugoslavia

ROME, March 30 (AP)—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration announced today 24,000 tons of relief supplies already had been shipped into Yugoslavia, including thirteen tons of medical supplies flown into Belgrade for hospitals the Germans had stripped.

Diplomats Attend Mass

Rome, March 30 (AP)—Traditional Good Friday mass was celebrated at the Sistine Chapel today in the presence of Pope Pius XII, eight cardinals and the diplomatic corps.

Diplomats present included Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's Vatican representative; Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, German Ambassador to the Holy See, and Ken Harada, Japanese special Minister to the Vatican.

Mediterranean Cage Service Teams In Tie

Florence, Italy, March 30 (AP)—Private Steve Wojnolowicz, for the second straight night, spearheaded the 321st Bomb Group's "Mitchell bombers" to a 45-38 triumph over the 21st Aviation Engineers' Bulldozers in the Mediterranean theater basketball championships.

This left the two teams deadlocked in the tournament, so they must play again tomorrow night in Florence's Madison Square Garden for the title and the right to go to Cairo for a three-team tourney April 9.

Steve, one-time Detroit high schooler and Saratoga (N.Y.) pro Indians performer, paced the 12th Airforce champions with 14 points.

Player-Coach-Captain Sam Post, of Denver, Southern Methodist star in the mid-thirties, started on defense against the Bulldozers. Adriatic Zone champions. Sergt Paul Herman, former Tennessee player from Massilon, Ohio, clicked for 14 points, and Lieut. Joe Sokol, ex-New Kensington (Pa.) high schooler, made 11 for the losers.

Greeks Forbid Transactions In Gold

Athens, March 30 (AP)—The rapid rise in the value of gold sovereigns, which has brought about smuggling between Egypt and Greece, drew a Government crackdown today with all transactions in gold prohibited.

Gold sovereigns worth 3,000 drachmas last November now worth 6,500. The Government is studying the Grecian monetary situation.

HOW REDS VIEW PATTON'S PUSH

Soviet Writer Says Russian Heroes Opened Way.

Moscow, March 30 (A. P.).—While paying tribute to the speed and prowess of the Americans on the western front, the Russian military commentator, Ilya Ehrenburg, wrote today in the Red Star, the Russian Army newspaper, that Russian heroes had opened the road to the Ruhr and Nuernberg.

Ehrenburg's was the only comment on the western front appearing in the Soviet press. The Russian public followed western front developments through the Supreme Headquarters communique, broadcast by the Moscow radio and published in all Moscow daily newspapers under the standard headline: "War Activity in Western Europe." Most newspapers covered the Pacific war with a twelve-line dispatch.

Ehrenburg's comment follows in part:

"The Red Army is going to Vienna. From the west, tanks of the American Third Army are swiftly moving ahead over good German roads. They are already in Bavaria. Hitler cannot go to Munich. All of the Austrian Germans are running from Vienna.

"American correspondents write that Gen. Patton's tanks do not capture the Fritzes. The Americans love to travel fast and now they can fight to their taste. They did a good job breaking down German defenses and excellently crossed the Rhine, and after this went riding. I don't want to minimize their merit. A person is proud of his friends and the people of their allies. Also I do not forget the role of the Englishmen and Canadians who fought on the most difficult sector around the Ruhr. If I make a reminder of our role in the advance of the American tanks from Luxembourg to Citadel Bavaria, it is only because I remember Petuska (scene of a Russian battle in March, 1942).

"Now we take tens of towns in one day. But then the battle of Rzhev lasted for three months. Now the Allies are looking upon the towns of Westphalia, Pfaltz and Nassau. But then German tanks were in Egypt. Then the Germans were very strong, and for this I want to recall the heroes who died, and the many graves, on Russian land. They died not for the ruins of Petuska. They have opened the road for the Red Army to Stettin, Berlin and Vienna. They have opened the road for our Allies to the Ruhr, Kassel and Nuernberg."

"coming upon us from all sides with his total power" and added:

"The decisive battle between Japan and America will not depend on whether we desire to make battle or not—it is certain that the battle will come."

The broadcasts, intercepted here, failed to say if the carrier forces were attacking Japan today. It reported that yesterday 500 carrier planes worked over targets in Kyushu, Shikoku and southern Honshu, while 130 raided southern Japan the preceding day.

Ryukyu Invasion Fleet

The Domei news agency, more conservative, asserted that as of March 29 the "invasion fleet" operating in the Ryukyu sector is "estimated to comprise a total of about 150 surface craft."

Of the four reported task forces, two carrier forces were within striking distance of southern Japan proper, one was operating off the Kerama islands and south of Okinawa and a fourth was "spotted" off the southwest coast of Okinawa, the Japanese reported.

Radio Tokyo said the large forces indicated the "possibility of the enemy's enlarging the present scope of landing operations, which have so far been launched against only the small islands of the Kerama group."

NEW JAP PARTY STRESSES UNITY

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(AP) The leader of Japan's new war emergency political party, Gen. Jiro Minami, charged today that the Japanese government failed to make "full preparations for all eventualities" in the face of the "foreign enemy."

He attributed the failure to the fears of government leaders that the home front wouldn't stand for drastic measures, which might stir up "international friction."

He said the new party should be prepared "to discard all past encumbrances and cooperate with all persons, regardless of their past, for the attainment of victory."

Although Japanese officialdom has been calling for unity between the people and the army with increasing emphasis since the advance of American forces into the inner spheres of the Empire, Minami's remarks perhaps went farther than those of any other leader to disclose home front apathy or disunity.

His statement, quoted by Domei news agency and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, was made at the inauguration of the new party, the Political Association of Great Japan (Dai Nippon Seijaki). Coincident with its launching, the previously established totalitarian war party, the Imperial Rule Assistance Political society was dissolved.

With great emphasis, Minami called upon the leaders of the new party to bring about "complete unity." He said they must take the lead in translating measures into action, even at the risk of their lives."

He said real unity could be achieved only through "the people's absolute trust and support of the armed forces and the government, and also through trust and respect for the people on the part of the armed forces and the government."

He said also that the armed forces needed to be convinced of the "enthusiasm of the people to fight for their country."

Jap Relief Steamer Told To Change Course

San Francisco, March 30 (AP)—A Japanese Domei news agency dispatch today said the course of the steamer Awa Maru, dispatched to deliver relief supplies to American prisoners of war and internees, had been changed effective April 3.

The wireless report, directed to the United States and recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said circumstances had made it impossible for the Awa Maru to enter Moji, Kyusyu Island port on Japan's Inland Sea. United States Pacific Fleet carrier aircraft have recently raided Kyushu and inland sea targets.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 30 (AP)—The New Zealand Government has appointed Chief Justice Sir Michael Myers as its representative on the United Nations Committee of Jurists, which will prepare a draft of the statute to crate an international court of justice.

PANAMA CANAL PLOT REPORTED

German Named In Purported Bid To Wreck Waterway

Santiago, Chile, March 30 (AP)—The influential newspaper La Nacion declared today an attempt to destroy the Panama Canal had been uncovered with the detention of a German saboteur named von Appen, and linked the purported attempt with destruction of several Chilean ships which the paper laid to sabotage.

The newspaper made the assertion in a story headlined "Shipwrecks of the sailing vessel Lautaro and the steamship Mapocho and others were the work of sabotage."

It also named Ludwig von Bohlem, former air attache of the German Embassy in Chile, as "the master mind of the sabotage organization."

Chilean Skipper Accused

La Nacion said von Bohlem introduced to von Appen a man known by the alias of Avenson, a Chilean merchant-marine captain who asked that:

"He be given a ship because he believed he could get as far as the Panama Canal with his ship loaded with explosives and blow it up to harm that vital route of the United Nations."

The paper did not explain why the plan failed nor what had become of von Bohlem and Avenson.

The paper charged the loss of the naval training ship Lautaro, a former German vessel, and the nitrate ship Mapocho, burned recently with a death toll of about 101, was caused by the same band of saboteurs, of which von Appen was the chief.

More Sabotage Charged

A fire on the nitrate ship Naguiland, after loading at Iquique, center of Japanese activities, also was laid to sabotage by the paper.

"The band of saboteurs had [illegible] all the American countries," the paper said, "and concentrated its activities on maritime sabotage. They used explosives made by a former officer of the German pocket battleship Graf Spee."

Fifty tons of saltpeter about to be transferred from a lighter to the Chilean freighter Camelo virtually were destroyed in another fire caused by an explosion at Tocopilla today. The freighter crew refused to sail after the mishap. Authorities are investigating.

U.S. Seamen Rescued By Cubans

Havana, March 30 (AP)—The Cuban schooner Francisco Nevares brought to port today seven members of the crew of the small American ship Relief, which sank last night 50 miles off Puerto Matanzas while en route to Miami, Fla. No lives were lost.

NAGOYA TARGETS HIT BY SUPERFORTS

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP) Superfortresses struck anew at Nagoya today as B-29 crews returning from yesterday's raid at Singapore reported setting off huge fires among oil storage tanks near the naval base.

The attack of Nagoya, Japan's third largest city and important aircraft production center, was carried out by a small force of Superforts from the Marianas. No details were announced.

A fleet of 40 to 50 B-29s from India hit Bukum island, Singapore, leaving oil "tanks crumbling and ablaze and the sea northwest of the island covered with burning oil."

Fires were still burning an hour after the first bomb struck, the last crews over the target reported. All of the raiding planes got back to their India bases safely. They encountered little enemy air opposition or anti-aircraft fire during the mission.

The text of 20th Air force communique No. 77:

"Japanese oil stores on Bukum island off Singapore were bombed with good results today (March 30 Japanese time) by Superfortresses of the 20th Air force. Crews returning to their bases in India reported they left 'tanks crumbling and ablaze and the sea northwest of the island covered with burning oil.' The last crews over the target reported fires burning an hour after the first bombing.

"All planes returned safely from the mission which was flown by Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey's 20th bomber command. The strike was carried out by visual bombing and enemy air opposition and anti-aircraft fire was meager."

11 JAPANESE SHIPS SUNK BY U.S. SUBS

Toll Includes Aircraft Carrier, Two Destroyers and Two Escort Vessels.

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP) United States submarines have sunk 11 more enemy vessels, including a large aircraft carrier, 2 destroyers and 2 escort vessels, in Pacific waters, the Navy announced today.

Noncombatant vessels included in the latest toll were three medium cargo vessels, a large tanker, a medium cargo transport, and a small cargo vessel.

The announcement raised to 1,083 the total of Japanese vessels sunk by American submarines to date, including 122 combatant ships and 961 noncombatants.

The latest report brought to four the number of enemy aircraft carriers definitely sunk by submarines as well as two others reported probably sunk.

The destroyer toll was raised to 52.

The text of Navy communique No. 589:

Pacific area:

United States submarines have reported the sinking of 11 enemy vessels, including a large aircraft carrier and two destroyers as the result of operations in far eastern waters.

Enemy ships sunk:

1 large carrier, 2 destroyers, 3 medium cargo vessels, 2 escort vessels, 1 large tanker, 1 medium cargo transport and 1 small cargo vessel.

These actions have not been announced in any previous Navy department communique.

POSTWAR NAZI PLAN REVEALED

State Department Sees Germans Starting New Conquest

Washington, March 30 (AP)—While World War II battles still rage the Nazis are taking active steps toward this century's third German bid for world domination, the State Department said today. This country has documentary proof, it added.

The department said it had photographic copies of German documents outlining the plan for economic, technological and political infiltration throughout the world. It reported that another element of the Nazi program calls for a campaign of legal chicanery to keep or regain as much as possible of the prewar German economic empire.

A basic part of the Nazi plan, the department said, is a scheme by Nazi leaders, industrialists and militarists in Germany "for renewal of prewar cartel arrangements."

Other Elements Of Plan

The statement described six other main elements of the program:

1. Court appeals through front men attacking the legality of Allied seizure of German properties at the beginning of the war.

2. Repurchase through "cloaks" with the necessary citizenship, where the legal efforts fail.

3. Efforts to dominate technological developments, reflected in a "phenomenal increase in German patent registrations in foreign countries during the past two years" which the statement said hit a record high in 1944.

4. An outflow of capital from Germany which began several months ago, when the Nazis lifted their ban on export of money.

5. Placement of German technicians and research experts, at low cost, in foreign schools and firms where they will have "excellent opportunity to design and perfect new weapons."

6. Propaganda intended first to soften up the Allies through "a subtle plea for fair treatment of Germans," later giving "rebirth to all Nazi doctrines and furthering German ambitions for world domination."

Describing the Nazi schemes as "well-arranged postwar plans for the perpetuation of Nazi doctrines and domination," the statement said part of them already are in execution and "others are ready to be launched on a widespread scale immediately upon termination of hostilities in Europe."

But it declared that "the peace-loving nations of the world are united and will take such action as is necessary to smash the economic and political foundation of future German aggressions."

NAVAL UNIT FLEW 2,500,000 MILES

Patrol Bombing Squadron 54 Set Record in Pacific and Saved 237 From Japanese

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—A record of 2,500,000 miles of flying in 20,000 hours during a ten-month combat tour was made by Naval Patrol Bombing Squadron 54, now home for leave and reassignment.

During its tour, the squadron flew from more than forty Pacific bases, rescued 237 wounded men, pilots and Philippine guerrillas, and attacked a Japanese task force of battleships, cruisers and destroyers.

The squadron was under the command of Commander Kenneth J. Sanger, 533 13th Street, Belle Harbor, N. Y.

Among the 237 persons the squadron rescued and brought to safety were two Army nurses.

Flying within 150 miles of Formosa to pick up the pilot of a downed Army Mustang, Commander Sanger was alerted to rescue the crew of an Army transport C-47 with the two nurses aboard, which had been forced to a water landing near by. After taking the Mustang pilot aboard, Commander Sanger found the C-47 with its passengers and crew, and with all aboard, he struggled with his PBY Catalina in a rough sea for nearly half an hour before he was able to take off.

The squadron was ordered on the night of Dec. 26 to load three planes with 500-pound bombs and attack the force of two battleships, one heavy cruiser and five destroyers which were shelling Mindoro. Only two of the Catalinas got through to the targets, the others drifting away from the flight in foul weather. Commander Sanger flew five hours before finding the Japanese fleet. Three of his bombs, near misses, shook and jolted the cruiser and the fourth scored a direct hit on her bow.

430,000 Tons Supplies Are Wanted By UNRRA

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration expects to have 480,000 tons of supplies shipped or ready to ship to Europe by the end of June.

This word came today from L. B. Pearson, Canada's Ambassador to the United States, who is chairman of UNRRA's committee of supplies.

The tonnage, two thirds of it in food, is destined for Greece, Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Italy and refugee camps in the Middle East. These are so-called "non-paying countries," which have certified they are unable to pay for initial relief supplies.

INTERNEES ARR... IN SAN FRANCISCO

MAR 31 1945

MAR 31 1945

MAR 31 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30—(AP) A capacious navy transport which churned the width of the Pacific docked here today with some 350 former internees of the Santo Tomas camp at Manila.

With an exuberance matched only by an Army band which thumped away as the ship moved into the pierside, men, women and children who had survived three years of malnutrition, privation and indignity came home again.

Dressed in Army-issued khaki for the most part, the passengers lined the rails, cheering and waving. But evidence of their stay in the internment camp was prominent. Older men, whose lined faces showed an added age, and young men with lean jaws stood among the women and talked of their experience.

Below them on the pier were lined Red Cross personnel with clothing and food.

"It doesn't look like what we've been used to," a boy remarked bitterly. "Do you remember that poor guy who was caught trying to smuggle food into camp. Didn't they work him over, though!"

There was a bitterness evident, but much of it was lost in the arrival of the ship and excitement of an American skyline after shacks and Japanese guards.

"Isn't it wonderful," cried a white-haired woman.

"It sure is," said a young survivor of the Bataan death march. He hitched his belt. "I hope they send me back though. I've got some debts to pay."

A big Negro, Pendleton "Bumblebee" Thompson of San Francisco, who was credited with helping to save many lives at the camp by smuggling food, pointed to the band.

"I told these people there'd be a band out," he exclaimed.

Hours before the big ship docked, relatives and friends gathered at the dock, checking the passenger list anxiously for the loved names they hoped would be there.

Miss Eva Grace Davis, secretary to Mr. Grinnell, said that the two men were arrested by the Japanese on Dec. 23, 1944, and were held until Jan. 5, 1945. Later, she said, the underground reported that they had been exeeuted and buried with fourteen others in a common grave.

Four of the bodies exhumed from this grave after American forces broke into the prison were positively identified as those of Mr. Grinnell, Mr. Duggleby, Cliff Larsen of a Manila firm and E. E. Johnson, maintenance commissioner at the camp.

CONFIRM EXECUTIONS OF MANILA CAPTIVES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30 (AP)—Confirmation of reports that the Japanese had executed two leaders of the Santo Tomas prison camp in Manila came from two of the liberated internees, who arrived here today on a Navy transport.

The victims were Carroll Grinnell, chairman of the camp executive committee and Far East representative of the General Electric Company, and A. G. Duggleby, vice president of the Benguet Consolidated Mining Company in the Philippines.

Miss Eva Grace Davis, secretary to Mr. Grinnell, said that the two men were arrested by the Japanese on Dec. 23, 1944, and were held until Jan. 5, 1945. Later, she said, the underground reported that they had been exeeuted and buried with fourteen others in a common grave.

COAL CONTRACT MAY BE EXTENDED

Miss Perkins May Continue Agreement for Another 30 Days.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(AP) Extension of the expiring contract between soft coal operators and the United Mine Workers, making government seizure of the mines unnecessary, was expected tonight by producers.

The operators previously had rejected requests of Solid Fuels Administrator Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to continue the agreement for another 30 days and make any wage adjustments retroactive to April 1.

They seemed ready, however, to accept the retroactivity feature in any War Labor board extension order.

The board will conduct a hearing tomorrow morning (10:30) at which time it probably will direct that the contract, expiring Saturday at midnight, be extended another 30 days to permit hearings into the deadlocked contract controversy.

Secretary Perkins certified the case to the board for settlement late Thursday night, after a fruitless attempt to get agreement on a contract proposed by her. John L. Lewis, UMW chief, accepted her terms at once, but the operators said it would cost $180,000,000 a year, a prohibitive figure in their opinion.

Lewis, for his part, was agreeable to junking his 10-cent-a-ton royalty demand at Miss Perkins' request. In exchange for that his major wage demand was endorsed intact by the Labor Secretary—and the operators would not sign.

The WLB likely will arrange hearings and try to reach a decision before May 1.

The pattern is similar, but not identical, to that of 1943, when negotiations between the operators and Lewis failed and strikes forced government seizure.

Lewis has U.M.W. authority to call a strike if he considers it necessary but has not indicated that he will do so. However, absenteeism is expected to be high over the Easter week-end. Normally religious holidays cut into the work week. On top of that, Monday will be observed as the anniversary of the eight-hour day and a tribute to John Mitchell, one-time president of the mine workers.

Lewis and the operators met briefly today and recessed until Monday, but the Monday meeting may be called off as need for continuing negotiations recedes.

The United Mine Workers Journal, said editorially today that the operators had attempted to "include war debt in increased tonnage costs" they said would result from the Perkins proposal.

"The retrogressive leadership of the bituminous coal operators staged an old statue of obstinacy play in the final quarter of the wage negotiations," the Journal said.

"There is one thing traditional with American bituminous operators and that is that they never permit themselves to engage in peaceful and productive labor relations."

The Journal reported that Lewis, Miss Perkins, and Charles O'Neill, chairman of the operators negotiating committee, had conferred Wednesday afternoon for several hours, before Miss Perkins offered her new contract proposal.

CANADA PLANT QUERY ASKED

Senate To Check U.S. Financing Of Aluminum Project

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Public hearings into American Government financing of a big aluminum plant in Canada were announced by the Senate Small Business Committee today.

They will begin next Wednesday with W. L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State, and W. L. Batt, deputy War Production Board chairman, invited as the first witnesses.

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.), acting chairman, disclosed that the committee's staff has begun preliminary inquiries, after Senator Cordon (R., Ore.) and Representative De Lacy (D., Wash.) protested that aluminum is being purchased from Canada while producing facilities in the Pacific Northwest are idle or operating below capacity.

New Purchases Announced

Cordon said the Government had financed construction of the so-called Shipshaw plant at Arvida, Quebec, in 1940, and that it cost $68,500,000. Details of the arrangement with the Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd., and the metal purchases from the plant had been "hush-hush" from the start, he said, and added:

"The American people should have a full and comprehensive explanation of why American dollars were poured into Shipshaw."

Announcement of plans for purchase of an additional 250,000,000 pounds of aluminum from the plant was made this week by the Metal Reserves Corporation. Fred M. Vinson, Federal loan administrator, said the purchase was requested by the War Production Board. WPB had indicated that domestic output, due to manpower and fuel shortages, would not meet war needs, Vinson added.

Stock Owned By Alcoa

Cordon asserted that there was ample fuel available in the Pacific Northwest in the form of electric power from Bonneville and Grand Coulee and no manpower shortage for the aluminum plants.

He said he was informed that the contract with the Canadian company called for a price ranging from 13 to 15 cents a pound, depending on the purity of the aluminum ingots, and was also advised that the aluminum could be produced cheaper in the Pacific Northwest.

De Lacy said there might be ample justification for the contract, but he thought it should be investigated. He noted that the Canadian company's stock is owned by the Aluminum Company of America.

Nazi General Hangs Self In PW Camp

Camp Forrest, Tenn., March 30 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Karl Buelowins, 55, who once served with Rommel's Afrika Korps, this week took his own life in the prisoner of war hospital here, the camp public relations office disclosed.

The German general, a patient receiving psychiatric treatment, was found hanging in his room by leather straps from his brief case, according to the announcement.

After his capture near Bizerte, Tunisia, in 1942, Buelowins was transferred to Camp Forrest. He was a native of East Prussia. He was buried in a prisoner of war cemetery in the Tennessee mountains.

UAW Seeks Own Security Plan; Wants GM To Pay 3 Per Cent

Detroit, March 30 (AP)—The national GM council of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) received a proposal today that it ask General Motors to contribute an amount equal to three per cent of each worker's pay to finance a social security plan for UAW-CIO members to be administered by the union.

The suggestion came from Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president and director of its GM department, who made clear he did not propose deductions from workers' pay and that participation in the benefits "would be contingent upon membership in good standing in the UAW-CIO."

Purposes Outlined

Purpose of the fund, Reuther said, would be to provide General Motors workers with "life, sickness, accident and disability benefits." He asserted the present General Motors worker insurance plan, cost of which he said was defrayed in large part by the workers, "is inadequate in terms of cost, benefits, transfer privileges and lack of coverage for dependents."

Reuther recommended that the council authorize negotiations to include the proposal in its working agreement with General Motors.

A General Motors spokesman said that "obviously" the corporation could not comment at this time on the suggestion.

Provisions Included

The Reuther proposal included these provisions:

Two thirds of the fund would cover cost of hospital, surgical and medical care of the employé including 50 doctor calls either at home or in the office. After the first week of illness, the employé would receive compensation equal to 60 per cent of his weekly wage for the period of illness up to 52 week in any one year for any one illness or accident.

One third of the contribution would establish a UAW death benefit fund to pay the beneficiary of any employé a death benefit of $1,500, or in case of accidental death an amount equal to 60 per cent of his weekly wages for a period of 60 weeks.

Reserves accumulated by this fund would be used to build UAW hospitals, rest homes and recreational centers for union members.

Family hospitalization policies, Reuther explained, would be continued through existing nonprofit organizations with the worker paying for them through pay-roll deductions.

Soft-Coal Producers Expect UMW Contract Extension

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Extension of the expiring contract between soft-coal operators and the United Mine Workers, making Government seizure of the mines unnecessary, was expected tonight by producers.

The operators previously had rejected requests of Harold L. Ickes, solid fuels administrator, and Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, to continue the agreement for another 30 days and make any wage adjustments retroactive to April 1.

They seemed ready, however, to accept the retroactivity feature in any War Labor Board extension order.

Pat On Back From Green

The board will conduct a hearing tomorrow morning, at which time it probably will direct that the contract, expiring Saturday at midnight, be extended another 30 days to permit hearings into the deadlocked contract controversy.

John L. Lewis, United Mine workers president, received a pat on the back tonight from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Lewis and Green have discussed return of the miners to the AFL, but the Federation's executive council met and adjourned at Miami without any reunion materializing.

"If a rule of simple justice had been followed in the wage negotiations which have taken place between representatives of the coal operators and the mine workers, practically all of the demands of the miners would have been granted," said Green in a statement.

Miss Perkins's Offer

"The AFL stands with the mine workers in support of the justifiable fight which they are making to secure decent wages and humane conditions of employment for the mine workers of the nation."

Secretary Perkins certified the case to the board for settlement late Thursday night, after a fruitless attempt to get agreement on a contract proposed by her. John L. Lewis, UMW chief, accepted her terms at once, but the operators said it would cost $180,000,000 a year, a prohibitive figure, in their opinion.

Lewis, for his part, was agreeable to junking his 10-cents-a-ton royalty demand at Miss Perkins's request. In exchange for that his major wage demand was indorsed intact by the Labor Secretary—and the operators would not sign.

Anniversary Of 8-Hour Day

The WLB likely will arrange hearings and try to reach a decision before May 1.

The pattern is similar, but not identical, to that of 1943, when negotiations between the operators and Lewis failed and strikes forced Government seizure.

Lewis has UMW authority to call a strike if he considers it necessary, but has not indicated that he will do so. However, absenteeism is expected to be high over the Easter week end. Normally religious holidays cut into the work week. On top of that, Monday will be observed as the anniversary of the eight-hour day and a tribute to John Mitchell, one-time president of the Mine Workers.

Lewis and the operators met briefly today and recessed until Monday, but the Monday meeting may be called off as need for continuing negotiations recedes.

MEAT-PACKING UNIT CREATED

WLB Names Group To Adjudicate Wage Disputes

Washington, March 30 (AP)—The War Labor Board today created a meat-packing commission to adjudicate wage disputes between five major packing companies and their employes.

Industry members dissented from the decision to set up at Chicago a commission with jurisdiction restricted to the wage matters arising in negotiations over inequalities in the plants covered by master agreements between the companies and three unions.

Chairman Appointed

Clark Kerr, of Seattle, Wash., now vice-chairman of the twelfth regional WLB at Seattle and assistant professor of labor economics at the University of Washington, was appointed chairman and public member.

Judge William Kee Knous, of Denver, a justice of the Colorado Supreme Court and public member of the Ninth Regional WLB at Denver, was named associate public member. He will serve on a part-time basis.

Others To Be Named

Each company and each union will have a representative on the commission; they will be named later. Each group of members will have one vote.

Creation of the commission effectuates a portion of a board order of February 20 in the meat-packing case. The WLB then directed the parties to bargain collectively for 60 days in an effort to eliminate wage-rate inequalities, and said it would appoint a commission to settle any issues remaining in dispute after negotiation.

Commission decisions will be subject to stay and review by the WLB.

The unions involved are the United Packinghouse Workers (CIO), the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen of North America (AFL), and a national brotherhood of packinghouse workers (Confederated Unions of America). The companies are Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Wilson & Company, Cudahy Packing Company and John Morrell & Co.

Six Ex-OPA Officials Indicted In Tire Fraud

St. Paul, Minn., March 30 (AP)—Six former OPA officials and employés, three business men and a 17-year-old boy were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of conspiring to defraud the Government by creating a monopoly in scrap tires.

The indictment charged the defendants with scheming to obtain release of used-tire stocks accumulated at numerous OPA tire-inspection stations throughout the State, and then resell them after they had been repaired or recapped.

The OPA officials were accused of corruptly administering OPA regulations relating to tire rationing.

Among others, the indictments named Harold J. Slawik, of St. Paul, former acting district director for OPA.

Carl W. Dokmo, of St. Paul, former district rationing representative.

Cloyce H. Peters, of Minneapolis, operator of the Island Manufacturing Company.

Earl J. Munson, associate of Peters.

Walter E. Reed, of Cleveland, Ohio, operator of a tire-recapping business.

UN-AMERICAN MOVES DEFINED

Brookings Institution Gives Analysis of Opinion.

Washington, March 30 (A. P.)—The Brookings Institution recommended to the Committee on Un-American Activities today that it investigate those who attack "the principle of the form of government as guaranteed by our Constitution."

In a report to Representative Mundt (R.-S. D.), a member of the committee, the institution added that the committee should be mainly concerned with the rights of individuals assured by the Constitution.

Mr. Mundt had requested the research organization to prepare an analysis of replies he recived from prominent Americans asked to define "un-American activities."

Consensus of Replies.

The Brookings report laid down what it considered the consensus of the replies:

"1. It is un-American for any individual or group by force, intimidation, deceit, fraud or bribery to prevent or seek to prevent any person from exercising any right or privilege which cannot constitutionally be denied to him either by the Federal Government or by a State Government.

"2. It is un-American for any individual to advocate, to conspire or to attempt to bring about a change in the form of government in the United States without following the processes prescribed for that purpose by the Constitution.

"3. It is un-American for any person (secretly) to conspire by any methods, constitutional or otherwise, to overthrow or attempt to overthrow a government of law and to substitute therefore a government vested with complete discretionary power.

"4. It is un-American for any person with the primary intent to advance the interests of a foreign nation or association to take action clearly and definitely against the interests of the United States.

"5. In time of war or threatened war, it is un-American for any person to interfere with the successful preparation for or prosecution of war."

HINES REPLIES

Washington, March 30 (A. P.).—Brig.-Gen. Frank T. Hines, Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, said today that the Journal of the American Medical Association, in criticizing care given veterans, was in effect complaining of its own membership.

"The entire special medical advisory group to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, together with its large number of consultants, are fellows or members of the American Medical Association," he declared.

"When the Journal criticizes the medicine being practiced in Veterans Administration hospitals, it is reflecting upon its own membership, which directly contributes by its advice and experience to the clinical practices followed in caring for the veterans in Veterans Administration institutions."

1939, FELL TODAY TO THE RED ARMY.
MARSHAL STALIN ANNOUNCED CAPTURE OF THE 10TH CENTURY PORT A FEW HOURS AFTER THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND HAD BROADCAST A REPORT OF ITS LOSS.

STALIN'S BROADCAST ORDER OF THE DAY SAID "THE NATIONAL BANNER OF THE POLISH STATE" WAS HOISTED OVER THE FORMER FREE CITY OF DANZIG. HE ANNOUNCED 10,000 GERMANS WERE TAKEN PRISONER.

MARSHAL ROKOSSOVSKY CLOSED ON THE NAVAL BASE SO SWIFTLY AND EFFICIENTLY, STALIN DISCLOSED, THAT 45 U-BOATS WERE CAPTURED.
POLISH TANKMEN TOOK PART IN THE EXPLOIT, STALIN SAID.
THE GERMANS SAID, HOWEVER, THAT FIGHTING STILL WAS IN PROGRESS ON THE WESTERPLATTE, A SANDY SPIT FORMING DANZIG

HELD OUT IN A FORTRESS FOR A WEEK IN 1939.
THE GERMANS FLUNG WAVE AFTER WAVE OF BOMBERS AGAINST THE WESTERPLATTE, BUT THE TINY POLISH GARRISON CLUNG TENACIOUSLY TO ITS POSITIONS ON THE PENINSULA. THE GERMANS INTENDED TO BLAST OUT THE POLES WITH SHELLS AND BOMBS, AND HAD NOT SENT INFANTRY AGAINST IT.
THE NAZIS FEARED THEIR NEWLY WON CITY WOULD BE WRECKED IF THAT GALLANT BAND DECIDED TO BLOW UP THE WESTERPLATTE'S BIG AMMUNITION STORES.
ON SEPT. 7, AFTER SEVEN DAYS OF CONSTANT AIR AND NAVAL ATTACK, THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED THAT THE REMNANTS OF THE GARRISON, REALIZING THE HOPELESSNESS OF THEIR POSITION, DECIDED TO SURRENDER.

A CITY OF 238,000, DANZIG HAD BEEN UNDER CLOSE SIEGE SINCE MARCH 23, WHEN THE THIRD WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY OF MARSHAL VASILEVSKY DROVE TO ZOPPOT ON THE BAY OF DANZIG, AND SEPARATED THE CITY FROM ITS RIVAL POLISH PORT OF GDYNIA, SINCE FALLEN TO THE RUSSIANS. THE RUSSIANS ENCIRCLED BOTH GDYNIA AND DANZIG ON MARCH 12, WHEN THEY REACHED THE BAY NORTH OF GDYNIA.

SS TROOPS FOUGHT BITTERLY ON THE MANY SECTIONS OF THE CITY CUT BY THE WATERWAYS OF THE VISTULA ESTUARY. DANZIG IS A CITY OF 50 BRIDGES.

ANCIENT STRONGHOLD OF THE TEUTONIC KNIGHTS AND FAMOUS IN THE MEDIEVAL HANSEATIC LEAGUE, DANZIG IS PREDOMINANTELY GERMANIC IN POPULATION. HITLER DEMANDED THAT ITS STATUS AS A FREE CITY BE CANCELLED AND ITS TERRITORY BE ANNEXED TO THE REICH ALONG WITH A "CORRIDOR" ACROSS THE POLISH CORRIDOR. THIS WAS THE IMMEDIATE CAUSE OF THE CONFLICT WHICH BROKE OUT ON SEPT. 1, 1939.

THE NAZIS, USING METHODS SIMILAR TO THOSE ADOPTED FOR THE CONQUEST OF NORWAY IN 1940, SMUGGLED TROOPS AND SS MEN UNDER CIVILIAN GUISE INTO THE CITY PRIOR TO THE OUTBREAK.

LYNN HEINZERLING, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT IN DANZIG TMAT DAY, TIMED THE FIRST SHOTS OF THE WAR AT 4:48 A.M. ON SEPT. 1. IT WAS NOT UNTIL 5:30 THAT HITLER BROADCAST HIS ORDER OF THE DAY ANNOUNCING THAT HE HAD DECIDED TO MEET "FORCE WITH FORCE"--THE DECISION WHICH SET THE TORCH TO EUROPE.

IN REACHING DANZIG THE RUSSIANS AVENGED THE 202 GALLANT POLES WHO IN SEPTEMBER, 1939, STIRRED THE WORLD WITH THEIR EPIC, SEVEN-DAY STAND ON THE WESTERPLATTE, THE LITTLE PENINSULA IN DANZIG HARBOR WHICH HELD A SMALL POLISH MUNITIONS DUMP.

THE GERMAN TRAINING SHIP SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN OPENED UP FROM HER BERTH NOT FAR FROM THE WESTERPLATTE, SEPT. 1. GERMANS RUSHED TO THE STREETS TO FIND PLACARDS ON THE WALLS ANNOUNCING HITLER'S FATEFUL STEP. ALBERT FORSTER, THE NAZI LEADER IN DANZIG, WAS VERY MUCH IN EVIDENCE, DRIVING AROUND IN HIS WELL-PRESSED UNIFORM IN A LARGE, OPEN CAR. HE GRAVE PROF. CARL J.BURCKHARDT, HIGH COMMISSIONER OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS FOR THE FREE CITY, TWO HOURS TO LEAVE DANZIG.

MANY POLES WERE HAULED FROM THEIR HOUSES AND MARCHED THROUGH THE STREETS TO INTERNMENT CAMPS.

DOWN BY THE RIVER THE WHITE SIDES OF THE SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN WERE BLACK WITH SMOKE AS SHE PUMPED SHELL AFTER SHELL INTO THE WESTER-PLATTE. ONLY MACHINEGUN AND RIFLE FIRE CAME BACK. THE POLES HAD ONE THREE-INCH, 75 85 2-' $3'54963$ -1534 1848,& 5£

PLATTE. ONLY MACHINEGUN AND RIFLE FIRE CAME BACK. THE POLES HAD ONE THREE-INCH GUN, BUT IT WAS DESTROYED AFTER FIRING THE 30TH ROUND.

ALL DAY LONG IN DANZIG THE GERMAN RADIO POURED FORTH HITLER'S ORDER OF THE DAY, HIS SPEECH TO THE REICHSTAG AND THE MUSIC OF WAGNER. FLAGS BEDECKED THE CITY. THERE WAS AN ALMOST GALA AIR ABOUT THE OMINOUS EVENTS THAT DAY.

A U.S.BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, MARCH 30-(AP)-A FLYING FORTRESS WHICH TOOK OFF FROM ENGLAND RECENTLY WITH NINE CREWMEN CRASH-LANDED IN BELGIUM SEVERAL HOURS LATER WITH TEN MEN ABOARD, ONE DEAD.

THE TENTH MAN WAS THE DEAD RADIO-GUNNER FROM ANOTHER BOMBER TOSSED FROM ANOTHER PLANE IN AN AERIAL COLLISION.

THE BOMBERS, AFTER HITTING RAILROAD YARDS AT BITTERFELD IN GERMANY, RAN INTO STORM CLOUDS WHICH CLOSED N RAPIDLY. THE COLLISION CAME WHEN THE PILOTS TIGHTENED THEIR FORMATION TO MAINTAIN VISUAL CONTACT.

A FORTRESS FLYING IN A LOWER ELEMENT VEERED UPWARD AND STRUCK THE BOMBER PILOTED BY LT.ROBERT H.TANNENBERG, 20, RIVERHEAD, N.Y. THE LOWER PLANE'S FUSELAGE SMASHED THE NOSE OF TANNENBERG'S SHIP. TWO OF TANNENBERG'S ENGINES VIRTUALLY WERE WRENCHED OUT OF THE WINGS, AND ALL THE COCKPIT GLASS WAS SHATTERED.

THE OTHER FORTRESS, SLICED IN HALF, PLUNGED THROUGH THE CLOUDS IN TWO PIECES.

TANNENBERG AND HIS COPILOT, LT.JOEL R.JOHNSON, 21, ALLEMAN, TEX., KEPT THEIR PLANE UNDER CONTROL, WEAVED SLOWLY OUT OF THE FORMATION AND HEADED FOR THE NEAREST ALLIED BASE.

WHEN THEY LANDED THEY FOUND THE MUTILATED TORSO OF THE OTHER PLANE'S RADIO OPERATOR HAD BEEN FORCED THROUGH THE SHATTERED GLASS NOSE OF THEIR PLANE.

THE ONLY CASUALTY IN TANNENBERG'S CREW WAS THE NOSE GUNNER, SGT. JOHN W.GANN, 19, 201 ARKANSAS-MISSOURI HIGHWAY, LITTLE ROCK, ARK., WHO WAS STUNNED.

THE OTHER CREW MEMBERS:

"WE MADE THE BOMB RUN OVER BROKEN CLOUDS BUT HAD TO FIGHT FOR IT AND SEVERAL OF OUR LIBERATORS WERE PRETTY WELL SHOT UP BY FLAK," SAID LT. COL. JOHN JENNISON OF 80 WATER ST., ST.AUGUSTINE, FLA., A COMBAT WING AIR COMMANDER.

SGT.GEORGE PASCARZI OF 413 WALNUT ST., YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, A BALL TURRET GUNNER, REPORTED THAT AT HAMBURG: "I SAW ORANGE FLAMES AND ROARING EXPLOSIONS FROM THE TARGET AREA."

"THE BOMBERS REALLY HIT THEIR TARGET. THERE WAS A MASSIVE SHEET OF FLAME RISING UP OVER HAMBURG ITSELF," REPORTED LT.COL.JOHN LANDERS OF JOSHUA, TEX., COMMANDER OF A MUSTANG FIGHTER GROUP.

LT.COL.CONWAY HALL OF NORTH LITTLE ROCK, ARK., A GROUP COMMANDER, SAID THAT AT BREMEN THERE WERE SCATTERED CLOUDS "BUT WE GOT A BREAK IN FINDING OUR SHIPYARDS WIDE OPEN. WE HAD AN EXCELLENT BOMB RUN."

AT AN EIGHTH AIR FORCE FIGHTER STATION IN ENGLAND, MARCH 30-(AP)-LT.JOHN GUY OF JASPER, ALA., GAVE A VIVID DESCRIPTION TODAY OF HOW GERMAN JET PLANES DRILLED INTO FLYING FORTRESSES ATTACKING GERMAN NORTH SEA PORTS AND HOW HE AND HIS MUSTANG OUTFIT DISPERSED THEM.

"WE WERE SOUTH OF BREMEN AT 18,000 FEET WHEN I SAW TWO ME-262S OFF TO THE RIGHT, HEADED THE OTHER WAY," HE RELATED. "SUDDENLY THESE BABIES DID A 180-DEGREE TURN AND RAN UP BEHIND THE BOMBERS, EACH FIRING AT A DIFFERENT PLANE.

"ONE JERRY SET A FORT ENGINE AFIRE AND BROKE OFF THE ATTACK BUT LT.HUNT (ROBERT HUNT, JR., OF WOODBINE, IOWA) SCORED STRIKES ON HIM BEFORE HR EACHED CLOUD COVER. THE OTHER JET DID THE SAME THING TO A SECOND FORT BEFORE WE COULD JUMP HIM. HE WENT DOWN TO 16,000 FEET BEFORE STRAIGHTENING OUT AND HE FOUND THREE OF US ON HIS TAIL.

"A PILOT FROM ANOTHER GROUP SET FIRE TO THE JET'S LEFT TURBO, THEN OVERSHOT AND I CLOSED IN WITH MORE SHOTS THAT STARTED THE JET FLAMING. THE PILOT BAILED OUT AND HIS SHIP SPUN STRAIGHT INTO THE GROUND."

JETS WERE ALSO SHOT DOWN TODAY BY CAPT.ROBERT SARGENT OF 11 EAST JUDSON AVE., YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO; LT.PATRICK MOORE, OF GRIFFIN, IND.; LT.KENNETH SCOTT OF SYLVANIA, GA.; LT.CARROL BENNETT OF BURNS, ORE., AND LT.JAMES HURLEY OF IDALOU, TEX.

LT. PAUL OSTRANDER OF 4129-51ST ST., N. E., SEATTLE, WASH., DESTROYED A JET ON THE GROUND.

THE 355TH MUSTANG GROUP SHOT UP FOUR GERMAN PLANES, TWO OF THEM HEINKEL 111 BOMBERS, PARKED ON AN AIRDROME ON THE DANISH PENINSULA.

TWO FIGHTERS WERE DESTROYED BY MAJ.HENRY KIRBY, JR., OF LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

[illegible] AND NASTY NAZI DEFENSE PREPARATIONS IN THE AUSTRIAN CAPITAL FLOODED NEUTRAL AND ALLIED EUROPE. Add Lon Russian (Vienna) on Europe

TOLBUKHIN'S AUSTRIAN ONSLAUGHT REPRESENTED A GIGANTIC LEFT HOOK CURLING PAST THE PREPARED DEFENSES OF THE BRATISLAVA GAP AND LANDING WITH PARALYZING IMPACT AGAINST THE TRAFFIC NETWORK AND DEFENSE FORTRESSES DUE SOUTH OF THE AUSTRIAN CAPITAL.

THE ONLY REMAINING MAJOR HUNGARIAN STRONGPOINT IN ENEMY HANDS WAS SOPRON ON THE SOUTHWESTERN SHORE OF NEUSIEDLER SEE. THE CITY WAS THREATENED BY FRONTAL ATTACK AND ASSAULTS FROM THE SOUTH.

THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND SAID THAT TOLBUKHIN'S FAST-DRIVING SPEARHEADS HAD THRUST BEYOND THE AUSTRIAN BORDER TOWN OF KOSZEG AND WERE PLUNGING INTO THE LOWER HILLS TOWARD WIENER NEUSTADT, AIRCRAFT-MANUFACTURING CITY 22 MILES SOUTH OF VIENNA. THEY WERE STRIKING WEST TO CUT ANOTHER MAIN RAILROAD ARTERY LINKING VIENNA WITH ITALY. ONE VITAL SUPPLY LINE TO THE ITALIAN FRONT ALREADY HAD BEEN CUT.

MALINOVSKY'S TROOPS ON THE DANUBE'S NORTH BANK WON AN IMPORTANT VICTORY BY TOPPLING KOMARNO. KOMAROM, SOUTHERN HALF OF THE CITY ON THE DANUBE'S SOUTH BANK IN HUNGARY, WAS CAPTURED THREE DAYS AGO. SEIZING THE CITY, THE RUSSIANS HURDLED THE COMBINED VAH AND NITRA RIVERS AND WERE IN POSITION TO SWEEP WEST TOWARD BRATISLAVA ALONG THE GREAT DANUBE ISLAND BETWEEN THE DANUBE AND ITS PARALLEL ARM, THE LITTLE DANUBE.

MEANWHILE, DANZIG, THE CITY WHICH ADOLF HITLER MADE A PRETEXT FOR ATTACKING POLAND ON SEPT. 1, 1939, FELL AFTER FOUR DAYS OF STREET FIGHTING. TERRIFIC ARTILLERY AND AERIAL BOMBARDMENTS APPARENTLY SMASHED GERMAN HOPES OF MAKING ANOTHER BUDAPEST OUT OF THE FORMER FREE CITY. ITS MEDIEVAL GABLED HOUSES AND COBBLED STREETS WERE BLASTED FOR DAYS BY RUSSIAN SHELLS AND BOMBS AND, DESTROYING THE GREAT HARBOR FACILITIES THEMSELVES, THE GERMANS LIMITED THEIR OWN ABILITY TO MAKE A SEA EVACUATION.

MOSCOW ANNOUNCED THAT RED NAVAL AND AIR UNITS, SCOURGING GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO ESCAPE, HAD SUNK 37 NAZI TRANSPORTS TOTALING MORE THAN 200,000 TONS IN THE LAST 10 DAYS. IN ADDITION, THE GERMANS LOST A DOZEN ESCAPE VESSELS AND SEVERAL AUXILIARIES.

THE CAPTURE OF DANZIG, FOLLOWED BY TWO DAYS THE RUSSIAN OCCUPATION OF GDYNIA -- MODEL PORT DEVELOPED BY THE POLES AFTER THE TREATY OF VERSAILLES HAD SET UP THE POLISH CORRIDOR AND CREATED THE FREE CITY OF DANZIG, WHICH WITH ITS SURROUNDING TERRITORY HAD A PRE-WAR POPU-LATION OF 400,000 PERSONS.

THE GERMANS CLAIMED THAT SOME GERMAN UNITS STILL WERE HOLDING OUT IN THE WESTERPLATTE, A SANDY SPIT FORMING DANZIG HARBOR WHERE A HEROIC POLISH GARRISON MADE A STAND FOR 18 DAYS AT THE START OF THE WAR AGAINST AIR, LAND AND NAVAL ATTACKS UNTIL THEIR AMMUNITION WAS EXHAUSTED.

IN CAPTURING DANZIG, THE RUSSIANS AVENGED THE 202 GALLANT POLES WHO STIRRED THE WORLD WITH THEIR EPIC STAND AND NOW THE POLISH FLAG FLIES OVER THE CITY FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE 1772.

MOSCOW ANNOUNCED IN ADDITION THAT SOVIET TROOPS HAD SEIZED THE BORDER TOWN OF KOSZEG, 52 MILES SOUTHEAST OF VIENNA'S CITY LIMITS, AND TAKEN SZOMBATHELY, HUNGARIAN RAIL CENTER, IN A DRIVE OUTFLANKING NAZI DEFENSES IN THE VITAL BRATISLAVA CAP AREA.

MEANWHILE, IT APPEARED THAT THE LAST GERMAN DEFENDERS WERE PREPARING TO ABANDON THE BALTIC PORT OF DANZIG IN THE FACE OF A POWERHOUSE PUSH OF MARSHAL KONSTANTIN K.ROKOSSOVSKY'S SECOND WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY, WHICH YESTERDAY CAPTURED 18,500 GERMAN TROOPS IN SEIZING THE EASTERN HALF OF DANZIG AND WIPING OUT A NUMBER OF COASTAL POCKETS NORTH OF CAPTURED GDYNIA.

THE GERMANS SAID THE LAST DITCH DEFENDERS OF THE FORMER FREE CITY WERE CLINGING ONLY TO THE AREA OF THE OLD FORTRESS, BUT DECLARED THE PORT'S HARBOR INSTALLATIONS HAD BEEN "COMPLETE

Y DESTROYED."

ENEMY BROADCASTS, HOWEVER, FOCUSSED ON THE SWIFT TWIN DRIVE OF THE TWO GREAT RUSSIAN ARMIES SMASHING TOWARD VIENNA, AND BERLIN SAID AN AVALANCHE OF RUSSIAN TANKS, MOBILE GUNS AND MOTORIZED INFANTRY HAD BROKEN THROUGH DEFENSE LINES ON BOTH THE NORTH AND SOUTH BANKS OF THE DANUBE.

RADIO LUXEMBOURG SAID A STATE OF EMERGENCY HAD BEEN PROCLAIMED IN THE GREATER REICH'S SECOND CITY, CAPITAL OF AUSTRIA, WITH A PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 1,930,000.

MAR 31 1945

THE NORTHERN WING OF MARSHAL RODION MALINOVSKY'S SECOND UKRAINIAN ARMY, BY ENEMY REPORT, HAD PUSHED 17 TO 25 MILES WEST OF THE HRON RIVER AND HAD ATTEMPTED TO CROSS THE NITRA RIVER WITHIN 47 MILES OF BRATISLAVA.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, TOLBUKHIN'S TROOPS ON THE SOUTH BANK OF THE DANUBE ADVANCED ON A 118-MILE FRONT, SWEPT UP MORE THAN 100 VILLAGES AND TOOK 1,800 PRISONERS, AS WELL AS SLASHING ACROSS A VITAL GERMAN SUPPLY LINE TO ITALY. HIS TROOPS DROVE TO WITHIN 140 MILES OF THE ITALIAN BORDER AND 55 MILES EAST OF THE AUSTRIAN MOUNTAIN CITY OF GRAZ, WHILE AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE FRONT SPEARHEADS PUSHED TO WITHIN 29 MILES OF YUGOSLAVIA WITH THE CAPTURE OF SZOMBATHELY.

CAPTURE OF KAPUVAR, AT THE NORTHERN END OF THE FRONT, CARRIED THE SOVIET TANKS TO WITHIN 10 MILES EAST OF THE SOUTHERN TIP OF VIENNA'S NEUSIEDLER SEE. THE CITY LIES IN THE NARROW DIVIDE BETWEEN THE RABA AND RABCA RIVERS.

PREMIER MARSHAL STALIN YESTERDAY ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT MARSHAL ALEXANDER M.VASILEVSKY'S THIRD WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY HAD COMPLETED THE LIQUIDATION OF THE COASTAL POCKET IN EAST PRUSSIA SOUTHWEST OF BELEAGUERED KOENIGSBERG, KILLING AND CAPTURING 130,000 NAZI TROOPS IN THE 18-DAY CAMPAIGN.

TWO TEAMS OF ABOUT 500 FORTRESSES EACH BLASTED BREMEN AND HAMBURG TODAY. AT BREMEN, PREVIOUSLY HIT TWICE THIS YEAR, BOMBS WERE CONCENTRATED ON THE VAST DESCHIMAG SHIPBUILDING YARDS, WHICH HAVE BEEN PRODUCING 740-TON AND 1,200-TON U-BOATS. A HIGHWAY BRIDGE NEAR THE CITY ALSO WAS ATTACKED. Add London Aerial (Chamberlain) xx the Ger.

AT HAMBURG, HIT FOR THE FIFTH TIME THIS YEAR, THE MAIN OBJECTIVE WAS THE BLOHM-VOSS YARDS, PRODUCERS OF NEW 250-TON PREFABRICATED SUBMARINES WITH REVOLUTIONARY "BREATHER TUBES" WHICH PERMIT THE VESSEL TO RECHARGE ITS BATTERIES UNDERWATER. AN OIL STORAGE DEPOT ALSO WAS ON THE HAMBURG LIST.

EARLY REPORTS INDICATED THE NAZI AIR FORCE PUT UP SOME OPPOSITION, AND AT LEAST THREE JET FIGHTERS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN SHOT DOWN.

WITH GERMANY'S RAIL SYSTEM SHATTERED AND HER ARMIES MAULED BY GEN. EISENHOWER'S COLUMNS PLUNGING ALONG THE ROADS TO BERLIN, THE NORTHERN PORTS HAVE BECOME INCREASINGLY IMPORTANT AS DISTRIBUTION BASES FOR ANY SEABORNE REINFORCEMENTS AND EQUIPMENT THE ENEMY COULD SHIFT FROM NORWAY OR HOLLAND.

HAMBURG AND BREMEN ARE GERMANY'S TWO LARGEST PORTS AND WILHELMSHAVEN IS ONE OF HER LARGEST NAVAL BASES. THE ILL-FATED SUPERBATTLESHIP TIRPITZ WAS BUILT IN THE NAVAL DOCKYARD THERE.

THE NAZI TRANSOCEAN PROPAGANDA AGENCY SAID THE "EXECUTION" AT MUETZENICH DID AWAY WITH A FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER NAMED VELTEN ACCUSED OF BEING A "TRAITOR GERMAN MAYOR SERVING UNDER THE ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT."

IN OCCUPIED DARMSTADT, AN ALLIED-APPOINTED MAYOR--NOT IDENTIFIED--WAS ATTACKED BY AN ASSASSIN BEFORE THE AMG HAD TIME TO UNPACK ITS FILES. ALTHOUGH FLEEING NAZI LEADERS HAD WARNED THEY WERE LEAVING BEHIND ENOUGH AGENTS TO KILL EVERYONE COOPERATING WITH THE ALLIES, THE ASSASSIN WAS DISCLOSED TO BE A LIBERATED FOREIGN WORKER WITH A DISLIKE FOR ANY GERMAN. THE MAYOR WAS KNIFED, BUT NOT SERIOUSLY.

CHRISTER JAEDERLUND, SWEDISH CORRESPONDENT RECENTLY RETURNED TO STOCKHOLM FROM BERLIN, WROTE THAT IT GENERALLY IS EXPECTED THAT HITLER, HIS TOP LIEUTENANTS AND FANATICAL NAZI FOLLOWERS WILL HOLE UP IN THE MOUNTAIN BASTION OF SOUTHERN GERMANY WHEN THE FINAL COLLAPSE COMES.

"IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS," JAEDERLUND WROTE, "THERE MAY BE A THRILLING RACE TO THIS SOUTHERN FORTRESS IN WHICH THE SPEED OF THE ALLIED ADVANCES FROM THE WEST AND EAST WILL BE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR."

A FIELD DISPATCH SAID THAT WHEN THE AMERICANS STRUCK OUT IN PURSUIT TODAY THEY WERE HAMPERED MORE BY WRECKED BRIDGES THAN BY THE ENEMY, AND SO FAST DID THE GERMANS RUN THAT ONLY 10 CAPTIVES WERE TAKEN.

TROOPS MOPPING UP IN THE RUHR'S GREAT PORT OF DUISBURG CAPTURED THREE GERMAN SUBMARINES IN THE DOCKS.

UP TO THURSDAY, THE NINTH ARMY HAD CAPTURED 10,000 PRISONERS BEYOND THE RHINE, NOT INCLUDING THE ARM-BAND VOLKSSTURM TROOPS, WHO WERE CAPTURED IN SUCH NUMBERS THAT THEY WERE BEING RELEASED TO RETURN HOME.

BRITISH SECOND ARMY TANKS SWEPT ALONG THE WESPHALIAN PLAIN AGAINST CONFUSED GERMAN TRAFFIC GOING TWO WAYS.

EASTBOUND WERE THE BEATEN GERMAN TROOPS WHO HAD TRIED TO STOP

LT.GEN.MILES C.DEMPSEY'S ADVANCE. WESTBOUND WERE TRAINS LADEN WITH TANKS, APPARENTLY BENT ON MAKING AN ELEVENTH-HOUR ATTEMPT TO SEAL THE BREACHED LINES.

IT STILL WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO CHART THE ADVANCE, BUT A FIELD DISPATCH SAID GAINS OF 10 MILES WERE MADE ALONG MOST OF THE FRONT, WITH TANKS AND MEN SPEEDING DOWN SO MANY HIGHWAYS TOWARD CENTRAL GERMANY THAT SPEARHEADS TOOK ON THE APPEARANCE OF A SOLID FRONT.

BOCHOLT, 13 MILES NORTH OF WESEL NEAR THE CENTER OF THE FRONT, WAS CAPTURED AND RESISTANCE FROM THERE SOUTHEASTWARD WAS REPORTED NEGLIGIBLE.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY TOOK 1,000 PRISONERS THURSDAY, GIVING IT MORE THAN 14,000 SINCE IT CROSSED THE RHINE MARCH 23.

LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S U.S.SEVENTH ARMY, HELD UP BY FIERCE DEFENSIVE FIGHTING ON THE NORTHERN END OF ITS TRANS-RHINE FRONT, SWUNG SOUTHEASTWARD LATE THURSDAY HEADING TOWARD THE BAVARIAN ALPS WHERE THE NAZIS ARE EXPECTED TO MAKE THEIR FINAL STAND.

DRIVING 14 MILES SOUTHEAST OF FALLEN MANNHEIM ALONG THE NECKAR RIVER VALLEY, AMERICAN INFANTRYMEN REACHED ZIEGELHAUSEN, THREE MILES EAST OF FALLEN HEIDELBERG.

BEYOND THE RIVER MAIN ON THE NORTHERN SECTOR OF THE FRONT, THE GERMANS WERE FIGHTING SAVAGELY FROM BUNKER POSITIONS AND WERE CALLING DOWN THE FIRST CO-ORDINATED ARTILLERY FIRE THAT THE SEVENTH ARMY HAS MET SINCE IT CROSSED THE RHINE.

A14

HERE THE SEVENTH ARMY HELD AN EIGHT-MILE STRETCH OF THE EAST BANK AND WERE AS MUCH AS THREE MILES BEYOND THE RIVER. THE POSITIONS STRETCH FOR EIGHT MILES SOUTH OF ASCHAFFENBURG, WHERE THE THIRD ARMY FIRST CROSSED THE RIVER BY SEIZING A BRIDGE.

BETWEEN THESE TWO FRONTS, TANKS AND INFANTRY WERE GAINING UP TO THREE MILES THROUGH THE ODENWALD FOREST AND THE HILLS, CLOSING UP TO THE WEST BANK OF THE RIVER.

AT THE EXTREME NORTHERN END OF THE FRONT, CANADIAN-BRITISH FORCES SWUNG BACK INTO HOLLAND AFTER CAPTURING THE GERMAN RIVER PORT OF EMMERICH AND UNCONFIRMED REPORTS SAID THE ONCE-FIRM ENEMY LINES ON THIS SECTOR WERE BEGINNING TO SAG.

BRITISH TROOPS MADE A SIX-MILE ADVANCE NORTHWEST OF EMMERICH WHILE THE CANADIANS CAPTURED ANHOLT, NEAR THE DUTCH BORDER NINE MILES EAST OF EMMERICH.

PARIS--FIRST ADD FIRST LEAD WESTERN FRONT XXX W[illegible]EN. GEN.EISENHOWER HAS SAID THE LOSS OF THE RUHR WOULD LEAVE GERMANY INCAPABLE OF CONTINUING ORGANIZED RESISTANCE LONG. THE GREATEST MASS OF GERMAN TROOPS LEFT IN WESTERN EUROPE WAS BEING SWIFTLY ENCIRCLED IN THE TRAP FASHIONED BY THE FIRST ARMY AND THE 21ST ARMY GROUP ON THE NORTH.

THIRD ARMY TANKS CAPTURED LAUTERBACH AND ENTERED HERBSTEIN, BOTH 30 MILES EAST OF GIESSEN AND WITHIN 237 MILES OF RUSSIAN LINES, 135 OF LEIPZIG AND LESS THAN 100 OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

FIRST ARMY INFANTRY WAS MOVING IN SWIFTLY BEHIND THE ARMORED SPEARHEADS AND CLEANING UP BYPASSED POCKETS OF SMALL GROUPS, WHICH EITHER PUT UP ONLY FEEBLE RESISTANCE OR GAVE UP WITHOUT A FIGHT.

AROUND GIESSEN--ELBOW OF THE GREAT WHEELING MOVEMENT WHICH TURNED THE FIRST ARMY'S ATTACK FROM THE EAST TO THE NORTH--THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION ADVANCED FROM NINE TO 13 MILES TO SCHWEINSBERG, 85 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE. ANOTHER ARMORED COLUMN CLEARED KIRCHBAIN AND BURGEING AND REACHED SCHWAVENDORG, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF MARBURG.

THE GERMAN AIR FORCE YESTERDAY MADE ITS FIRST APPEARANCE OVER THE FIRST ARMY FRONT SINCE THE ATTACK OPENED. THE PLANES STRAFED AND BOMBED.

IN DRIVING NORTH, HODGES' MEN HAVE CAPTURED TWO GERMAN TRAINS, A PLANE FACTORY, 12 PLANES AND GREAT QUANTITIES OF MATERIEL AND OTHER EQUIPMENT WHICH THE GERMANS WERE UNABLE TO SALVAGE BEFORE THE TIDE ENGULFED THEM. HUGE STORES OF AMMUNITION ARE BEING FOUND IN WOODS ALONG ROADS.

SIX MILES SOUTHWEST OF SIEGEN, INFANTRY CLEANED OUT THE TOWNS OF STRUTHUTTEN AND NEUNKIRCHEN. TO THE SOUTHEAST, THE 9TH AND 99TH DIVISIONS ADVANCES 10 TO 20 MILES TO CLEAR THE AREA BETWEEN THE LAHN RIVER BETWEEN GIESSEN AND MARBURG. THE SECOND DIVISION MOVED OUT ALONG THE SOLMS RIVER 15 MILES TO TAKE OBERNDORF AND KROFFELBACH.

FIRST ARMY INFANTRYMEN ARE MOVING UP SO SWIFTLY BEHIND THE ARMORED COLUMN DRIVING NORTH TOWARD A JUNCTION WITH THE BRITISH THAT A DEEP PORTION OF GERMANY'S INDUSTRIAL POWER IS MELTING AWAY. IN 1942, THE RUHR PRODUCED 75 PER CENT OF ALL GERMAN MILITARY EQUIPMENT.

THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN ARMIES IN WESTPHALIA HAVE CHARGED FORWARD A TOTAL OF 30 MILES SINCE ACHIEVING THEIR CLEAN BREAKTHROUGH NORTH OF THE RUHR--ADVANCES WHICH PUT THEM EITHER AT OR BEYOND THE PROVINCIAL CAPITAL OF MUENSTER.

EVEN YESTERDAY BEFORE FIELD MARSHAL MONTGOMERY IMPOSED HIS STRICT SECURITY BLACKOUT, HIS ASSAULT TROOPS WERE DECLARED TO BE THREATENING HANNOVER, 142 MILES WEST OF BERLIN, AND THE MAJOR TRAFFIC CENTER OF OSNABRUECK.

ALL NIGHT LONG, BRITISH TANKS PACKED ON TOP WITH NINTH ARMY TROOPS RAN ALONG OPEN ROADS THAT LEAD TO RENDEZVOUS WITH THE ONRUSHING FIRST ARMY. THEY MET ONLY LOCAL RESISTANCE.

SOME NINTH ARMY DIVIIONS WERE INVADING THE WESTERN END OF THE RUHR. DUISBURG, THE GREAT RHINE PORT [illegible]HERE THE VOLKSSTURM QUIT AND HUNG OUT WHITE FLAGS YESTERDAY, PROBABL[illegible] WAS IN THE STAGE OF NEGOTIATING FOR FINAL SURRENDER.

THE WHOLE WESTERN FRONT WAS BROKEN; THE HEART OF THE REICH WAS EXPOSED.

THERE WAS NO DISPOSITION AMONG HIGH OFFICERS AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS TO SAY THE WAR WOULD BE WON IN A WEEK--IN TWO WEEKS OR IN TWO MONTHS.

BUT THE STORY THAT WAS UNFOLDING ONE DRAMATIC DAY AFTER ANOTHER WAS A PLAY BY PLAY ACCOUNT OF THE FINAL STAGES OF ORGANIZED RESISTANCE BY GERMANY.

THE ACTUAL SITUATION INSIDE THE SEVERED AND BOMB-WRACKED RUHR COULD NOT BE ACCURATELY ASSAYED, BUT IT MUST BE CHAOTIC. IN SOME PLACES SUCH AS DUISBURG THE AMERICANS MET VIRTUALLY NO OPPOSITION. AT OTHERS SUCH AS THE LAST SIX MILES TO ESSEN (660,000) AND IN THE RHINE BASTION OF EMMERICH--FINALLY UNDER CONTROL OF THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY--THERE STILL WAS HARD FIGHTING.

THE U.S. FIRST ARMY'S PADERBORN PUSH OF 55 MILES FROM DAWN TO DUSK YESTERDAY CLIMAXED FOUR DAYS IN WHICH HODGES' TANK CREWS HAVE RACED 121 MILES WITHOUT REST, HARDLY STOPPING FOR FOOD. AT LAST REPORTS, THE ROADS AHEAD WERE STILL CLEAR AND ONLY CIVILIANS WERE TO BE SEEN.

"THE BRITISH ARMY IS SPEEDING DOWN A NUMBER OF HIGHWAYS INTO CENTRAL GERMANY," AP CORRESPONDENT NED NORDNESS WAS ABLE TO REPORT THROUGH THE SECURITY BLACKOUT ON MONTGOMERY'S FRONT. "OPPOSITION FROM BOCHOLT SOUTH IS NEGLIGIBLE TO NIL."

CANADIANS CAPTURED ANHOLT AND BRITISH TROOPS ADVANCED SIX MILES NORTHWEST OF THE TOWN INTO HOLLAND.

BRIGHT SUNSHINE BATHED THE BRITISH FRONT, SUGGESTING THAT THE GERMANS WOULD AGAIN BE PLACED UNDER AERIAL ATTACK.

NORDNESS SAID SO MANY SPEARHEADS WERE PROBING UP ALL THE BROAD HIGHWAYS LEADING IN AN EASTERLY AND NORTHEASTERLY DIRECTION THAT THE ARMORED ADVANCE PRESENTED THE APPEARANCE OF A SOLID FRONT.

DURING THE NIGHT, ARMORED SPEARHEADS OF THE U.S. NINTH ARMY BROKE OUT INTO THE CLEAR AND "TOOK OFF ON THE HIGH ROAD ACROSS NORTHERN GERMANY," AP CORRESPONDENT ROBERT EUNSON REPORTED. THE CENSORS PREVENTED NAMING OF TOWNS TAKEN OR POSITIONS REACHED. THE NINTH ARMY MARKERS RAN OFF A HUGE BRIEFING MAP IN LT.GEN. WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S HEADQUARTERS, AS ELEMENTS OF THIS ARMY TRUNDLED EASTWARD ALL NIGHT AGAINST VIRTUALLY NO OPPOSITION.

THE EIGHTH ARMORED DIVISION WAS COMMITTED TO BATTLE BY THE NINTH ARMY.

THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY, AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE ACTIVE 225-MILE FRONT, HAS FORCES SKIRTING SOUTHEAST OF CAPTURED MANNHEIM WITHIN THREE MILES OF THE FAMOUS OLD UNIVERSITY CITY OF HEIDELBERG. OTHER COLUMNS WELL EAST OF THE MAIN RIVER WERE HEADED ON A STRAIGHT LINE TOWARD NUERNBERG, 80-ODD MILES AWAY.

TANK COLUMNS OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY WERE PRESSING GENERALLY EASTWARD TOWARD LEIPZIG AND THE RUSSIAN LINES AND BEGINNING TO REACH MORE RUGGED TERRAIN.

TWO COLUMNS OF THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION ADVANCED 21 MILES EACH, REACHING AREAS NORTH AND EAST OF GIESSEN. ONE COLUMN ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE FRANKFURT-BERLIN SUPERHIGHWAY REACHED ALLERTSHAUSEN, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF GIESSEN. THE OTHER, SOUTH OF THE ROAD, PUSHED TO LUMDA, 11 EAST OF GIESSEN.

THE DIVISION ENCOUNTERED ONLY SCATTERED OPPOSITION. ON THE WAY IT CAPTURED FRIEDBERG, DORHEIM, BUTZBACH AND GRUNENINGEN. A GERMAN FLAK REGIMENT TRYING TO ESCAPE FROM A POCKET NORTHWEST OF FRANKFURT SURRENDERED EN MASSE TO THE SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION.

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION CAPTURED LAUTERBACH, NEAREST REPORTED APPROACH TO THE RUSSIANS, AND NIDDA, ULFA, LAUBACH AND STORNFELS, ALL SOUTHEAST OF GIESSEN.

THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION, NEWLY COMMITTED TO THE BATTLE EAST OF THE RHINE, ADVANCED NINE MILES NORTHEAST OF HANAU AGAINST HEAVY OPPOSITION AND ENTERED ROTHENBERGEN.

THE 89TH DIVISION WAS REDUCING A STUBBORN POCKET, SIX BY EIGHT MILES IN SIZE NORTHWEST OF MAINZ. HAUSEN WAS ENTERED.

"ALL SIGNS CONTINUE TO POINT TO A GENERAL COLLAPSE OF THE WEHR-MACHT REMNANTS FACING PATTON," AP CORRESPONDENT THOBURN WIANT REPORTED FROM THE THIRD ARMY FRONT. "REMAINING RESISTANCE IS COMING FROM SCATTERED FANATICAL UNITS, SPURRED BY SS AND NAZI PARTY LEADERS.

"MANY PRISONERS, INCLUDING SOME OF THE HIGH RANKING OFFICERS, ARE SAYING IT IS ONLY A MATTER OF DAYS BEFORE GERMANY IS FINISHED."

A JUNCTION BETWEEN THE FIRST ARMY ARMOR, DRIVING NORTH, AND FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L. MONTGOMERY'S FORCES THRUSTING EAST ON THE WESTPHALIAN PLAINS WAS IMMINENT--AND MAY, IN FACT, ALREADY HAVE TAKEN PLACE. CLOSING OF A GAP OF 65 MILES, WHICH BY LAST DELAYED REPORT SEPARATED THE TWO FORCES, WOULD ENTIRELY ISOLATE THE RUHR.

THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, CUTTING ACROSS THE WAIST OF GERMANY, ADVANCED ANOTHER 20 MILES EAST, SEIZING 14,000 PRISONERS, A RECORD FOR ONE DAY BY ANY WESTERN FRONT ARMY. THE THIRD, WHICH REACHED POINTS 31 MILES BEYOND GIESSEN AND LESS THAN 200 FROM BERLIN, NOW IS APPROXIMATELY TWICE AS DEEP INSIDE THE REICH AS THE RUSSIANS.

THE SURPRISE NORTHWARD DRIVE BY U.S. FIRST ARMY TANKS, WHICH LAST NIGHT STILL WERE RACING AHEAD UNCHECKED AFTER REACHING A POINT 10 MILES SOUTH OF PADERBORN AND 67 SOUTHWEST OF HANNOVER, WAS ONLY ONE OF MANY DEVELOPMENTS DURING THE DAY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, NOW BROKEN WIDE OPEN.

BIG WESTERN CITIES FELL IN STEADY SUCCESSION. THE THIRD ARMY MOPPED UP FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN. THE U.S. SEVENTH CAPTURED MANNHEIM. THE U.S. NINTH HAD ALL BUT CAPTURED DUISBURG, THE RUHR'S RHINE RIVER PORT.

THE GERMANS THEMSELVES WROTE OFF THE ENTIRE RUHR AS LOST--ALONG WITH SUCH CITIES AS ESSEN, HAMM, DORTMUND, DUESSELDORF AND MUELHEIM--ALTHOUGH THEIR CAPTURE BY THE ALLIES WAS NOT YET AN ACCOMPLISHED FACT. THE RUHR WAS HITLER'S LAST GREAT SOURCE OF WAR MATERIAL.

THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, DRIVING EAST ABOVE THE RUHR UNDER A NEWS BLACKOUT, WAS 41 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AND WITHIN 65 MILES OF A JUNCTION WITH THE FIRST ARMY BY LAST ACCOUNT. THOUSANDS OF GERMANS WERE IN DISORDERED FLIGHT BETWEEN THE TWO ARMIES.

MAR 31 1945

THE FIRST ARMY DASH LEFT OPEN ONLY TWO RAILWAYS OUT OF THE RUHR. THE LUXEMBOURG RADIO SAID HARD-RIDING BRITISH TANKS HAD ENTERED MUENSTER, CUTTING ONE OF THESE. BY LAST OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT, THE BRITISH WERE ONLY 17 MILES FROM MUENSTER. THE FIRST ARMY CUT ACROSS THE RUHR-BERLIN SUPERHIGHWAY.

ANOTHER LUXEMBOURG BROADCAST SAID THAT NORTH OF EMMERICH, GERMAN CITY ON THE RHINE NEAR THE DUTCH BORDER, NAZI RESISTANCE WAS BEGINNING TO WEAKEN. THAT HAS BEEN ONE OF THE FEW PLACES ON THE WESTERN FRONT WHERE THE ALLIES HAVE BEEN MEETING A DETERMINED AND ORGANIZED RESISTANCE IN THE PAST FEW DAYS.

AT THE EXTREME SOUTHERN END OF THE WESTERN FRONT, THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY, ACCORDING TO AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT BROADCAST BY THE BRUSSELS RADIO, OCCUPIED THE GERMAN CITY OF BADEN, ABOUT 10 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AND 16 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KARLSRUHE.

FIVE DAYS BEFORE THE AMERICANS ARRIVED ORDERS HAD BEEN GIVEN FOR CIVILIANS TO EVACUATE. INSTEAD, THOUSANDS OF RESIDENTS TOOK TO THE BASEMENTS.

WORD GOT AROUND THAT GERMAN ARMY OFFICERS HAD QUIT THE CITY, WHEREUPON VOLKSSTURMERS, WORKERS AND OTHERS BEGAN SURRENDERING THEIR ARMS UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE BURGOMEISTER WHO HOPED TO DECLARE FRANKFURT AN OPEN CITY.

BUT NAZI MUNICIPAL OFFICIALS, WHO HAD LEFT IN A BODY, RETURNED TWO DAYS BEFORE THE ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICAN TROOPS. THE SS TROOPS BEGAN CORRALLING CIVILIANS AND ORDERING THEM TO FIGHT. THEY FIRED ON AT LEAST ONE GROUP WHO REFUSED, KILLING AND WOUNDING A NUMBER OF THE CIVILIANS.

A LATER SEARCH OF THE CITY'S RUINS FAILED TO UNCOVER ANY CIVILIAN DEAD, HOWEVER. THE ONLY DEAD WERE GERMANS IN UNIFORM.

30. 24 — 24347

WHOSE GALLANT 51ST HIGHLAND DIVISION TRIED TO STEM THE GERMAN TIDE AT SOMME IN 1940, IS ON HIS WAY BACK TO ENGLAND AFTER FIVE YEARS OF CAPTIVITY.

MAR 31 1945

THERE WAS NO ONE IN ALL LIMBURG AS EXCITED AS THIS BRITISH OFFICER AS HE STOOD ON A HOSPITAL BALCONY IN HIS WORN BATTLEDRESS WITH FADED RED TABS AND WATCHED AMERICAN TANKS ROLLING DOWN THE GERMAN SUPERHIGHWAY.

FORTUNE WAS TAKEN PRISONER WITH TWO BRIGADES OF HIS DIVISION AT ST. VALERY EN CAUX AFTER FALLING BACK FROM THE LINE AT SOMME BEFORE THE LAST ORDER HE GAVE THE SWEEP OF THE THEN-MIGHTY WEHRMACHT. THE LAST WRITTEN ORDER HE GAVE FOR ONE OF HIS BRIGADES AND ANOTHER ATTACHED TO HIS COMMAND TO WAS FOR ONE OF HIS BRIGADES AND ANOTHER ATTACHED TO HIS COMMAND TO FALL BACK TO HAVRE AND FORM A LINE TO WHICH OTHER BRIGADES COULD RETREAT.

"WE COULDN'T DO IT," HE SAID. "ROMMEL SAW TO THAT."

AFTER THE ALLIED INVASION LAST JUNE FORTUNE AND OTHER BRITISH OFFICERS FROM VARIOUS PRISON CAMPS WERE BROUGHT TO LIMBURG. THE OTHER OFFICERS WERE EVACUATED BY THE GERMANS AS THE AMERICANS DREW NEAR

BUT FORTUNE WAS LEFT BEHIND IN THE HOSPITAL WHERE HE WAS RECUPERATING FROM A SLIGHT INJURY SUFFERED WHILE PLAYING BADMINTON.

FORTUNE, IN AN INTERVIEW YESTERDAY, SAID THE GROUP OF EVACUATED ALLIED OFFICERS INCLUDED BRIGADIERSNIGEL SOMERSET, ROGER TABNER, ROBIN STAVELEY, ROBERT TALNEY, LEONARD PADDINGTON, GEORGE CLIFTON, AND KEITH STEWART, NEW ZEALANDERS, AND FRED COOPER OF SOUTH AFRICA.

MAR 31 1945

FORTUNE CHUCKLED AS HE DESCRIBED THE ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICANS.

" THE FUN REALLY STARTED SUNDAY," WHEN MEDIUM BOMBERS CAME OVER. EVERYBODY WAS IN THE CELLAR MOST OF THE DAY - NUNS, PRIESTS, WOUNDED GERMANS AND OURSELVES ALL HUDDLED TOGETHER.

EVERYONE GOT EXCITED WHEN A PARACHUTE ALARM WAS GIVEN BUT NO PARATROOPERS WERE DROPPED."

FORTUNE ON MONDAY AFTERNOON, HE SAID, A GERMAN HOSPITAL COMMANDANT RUSHEDINTO HIS ROOM AND EXCITEDLY TOLD "I" TO LOOK OUT THE WINDOW.

MAR 31 1945

" WHEN I LOOKED OUT THE WINDOW I SAW THE MOST WONDERFUL SIGHT I HAVE EVER SEEN, "FORTUNE SAID."COMING DOWN THE AUTOBAHN WERE American TANKS AND TRUCKS. IT WAS PERFECTLY WONDERFUL."

" WHEN THE TANKS WENT BY THE DOCTOR AND I WENT OUT ON THE BALCONY WAVING A LARGE TABLECLOTH. YOU KNOW I THINK THEY WERE A LITTLE SUSPICIOUS OF ME. I YELLED TO TANKMEN TO BE CAREFUL THAT A BRIDGE WAS MINED AND HE SHOUTED BACK THAT THE GERMANS HAD ALREADY BLOWN THE BRIDGE AND HE HAD FOUR TANKS ACROSS.

" THE GERMANS IN THE HOSPITAL COULDN'T UNDERSTAND WHY THE BRIDGE HAD BEEN BLOWN AND SAID IT WOULD ONLY MAKE THE AMERICANS MAD AND THEY WOULD SHOOT UP THE TOWN. "

FORTUNE SAID THE GERMANS AT THE HOSPITAL ACTUALLY WERE DELIGHTED WITH THE ARRIVAL OF THE AMERICANS AND WOULD HAVE CHEERED THEIR APPROACH HAD THEY DARED.

STILL ACCOMPANIED BY HIS BATMAN WHO HAD STAYED WITH HIM THROUGHOUT HIS IMPRISONMENT FORTUNE WAS TAKEN TO U.S. FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS AND THEN SENT TO 21ST ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS FROM

WITH THE U.S.NINTH ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 30-(AP)-THE U.S. NINTH ARMY SPURTED AHEAD TODAY IN AN ARMORED GALLOP NORTH OF THE RUHR THAT DROVE FAR BEYOND THE RHINE AS THE FRONT DISINTEGRATED FROM A BATTLE TO AN OBSTACLE RACE.

THE GERMANS BLEW BRIDGES OVER A WATER BARRIER CREATING A FORMIDABLE OBSTACLE, BUT THEY OFFERED VIRTUALLY NO RESISTANCE.

(THIS MAY HAVE BEEN THE LIPPE RIVER, WHICH ON THIS SECTOR OF THE FRONT MEANDERS 30 TO 40 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE.)

WHEN THE TANKERS THIS MORNING ROLLED THEIR TANKS THROUGH THE DUST OF THE WESTERN FRONT THEYWOTHGHOTOTOTL

WHEN THE TANKERS THIS MORNING ROLLED THEIR TANKS THROUGH THE DUST OF THE WESTERN FRONT THEY SAW NOTHING SHORT OF TOTAL VICTORY TO STOP THEM THIS TIME.

"THE ONLY RESISTANCE WE HAVE HAD HAS BEEN LIGHT, SMALL ARMS FIRE," SAID LT.COL.EUGENE TRAHAN, LAFAYETTE, LA.

THE GERMANS JUST BARELY MANAGED TO BLOW THE BRIDGES IN THE FACE OF THE ADVANCING ARMOR AFTER THE AMERICAN TANKS BURST THROUGH SCATTERED RESISTANCE.

THIS SPURT PUT THE NINTH ARMY IN THE VANGUARD OF THE 21ST ARMY GROUP ALONG THE NORTHERN PLAINS TO BERLIN.

ENGINEERS HURRIEDLY REPLACED THE BRIDGES AND ARMOR STARTED PASSING INTO A KEY ROAD JUNCTION JUST BEYOND.

(CENSORSHIP PREVENTED GALLAGHER FROM MENTIONING NAMES, BUT ALONG THIS ROUTE AND ON THE EAST BANKS OF THE LIPPE IS THE ROAD JUNCTION OF LUENEN, 41 MILES EAST OF THE RHINE AT WESEL AND SEVEN MILES NORTH OF

THE RUHR CITY OF DORTMUND. Beyond the river is Otten, 1½ miles
(ANOTHER ROAD JUNCTION A MILE AND A HALF ~~MILES~~ NORTHWEST OF LUENEN.)
PEOPLE ALONG THE ROADSIDES SEEMED UTTERLY BEWILDERED AT WHAT THEY SAW PASSING UNCHALLENGED THROUGH THEIR TOWNS. THE TANK-POWERED COMBAT TEAM DROVE FORWARD LIKE A HUGE ARMED CONVOY.
ONE OF THE HIGHLIGHTS OF THE AFTERNOON CAME WHEN A BRIGADIER GENERAL CAPTURED FOUR GERMAN SOLDIERS SINGLE-HANDED.

A58
HE PROUDLY TURNED THEM IN AND COULDN'T BE TOUCHED WITH A TEN-FOOT POLE FOR THE REST OF THE DAY.
STANDING ON STREET CORNERS AND SIDEWALKS, GERMAN CIVILIANS OFFERED NO RESISTANCE WHATSOEVER, AND SOME EVEN SEEMED GLAD TO SEE THE AMERICANS ARRIVE. FOR THE MOST PART, HOWEVER, THEY MET THE YANKS WITH COLD STARES.
THE CITIES HAVE BEEN BATTERED BY ALLIED BOMBINGS, BUT THE SMALLER PLACES HAVE BEEN UNMARKED.

WITH BRITISH AMERICAN FORCES EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 30-(AP)-BRITISH ARMOR CARRYING U.S.AIRBORNE INFANTRY CHURNED DEEPER INTO GERMANY TONIGHT ALONG HIGHWAYS AND SIDE ROADS FAR BEYOND THE RHINE.
PROGRESS IS CLOAKED IN SECRECY, BUT IT CAN BE SAID THAT THE SPEARHEADS ARE HOLDING TO A SWIFT PACE, CHECKED ONLY NOW AND AGAIN BY NUISANCE POCKETS.
BEHIND THEM CAME SOLID LINES OF FIELD MARSHAL SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S ARMIES, INFANTRY, TANKS AND ARTILLERY TO DEAL WITH THE POCKETS LEFT BY THE NUMEROUS SPEARHEADS.
IT WAS LEARNED ON THIS FRONT TODAY THAT HITLER HAD ORDERED A "SCORCHED EARTH" IN THE PATH OF THE ADVANCING ARMIES, BUT THERE WAS NOTHING SCORCHED SAVE THE VILLAGES WHICH ALLIED AIRMEN HAD LEVELED TO DUST AND RUBBLE.
GERMAN FARMERS OF THIS RICH AGRICULTURAL PLAIN, UNWILLING TO MAKE SUCH A SACRIFICE, HAD A GREATER ATTACHMENT TO THEIR POSSESSIONS THAN TO HITLER.
THE STORY OF HITLER'S ULTIMATUM WAS TOLD BY FRENCH, BELGIAN AND RUSSIAN PRISONERS OF WAR, WHO HAD BEEN FARMED OUT AS SLAVE LABOR IN THIS REGION.
THEY GREETED THE FORWARD TROOPS DELIRIOUSLY, AND TEARS STREAMED DOWN MANY CHEEKS.
FRENCH AND BELGIANS HAVE HAD THE STATUS OF PRISONERS OF WAR SINCE 1940. THEY WORE THEIR OLD UNIFORMS WHICH THEY INFORMED THEIR LIBERATORS THEY HAD BEEN SAVING FOR THIS DAY.
THE SWIFT PACE OF WAR AND THE ENORMOUS ALLIED STRENGTH HAS LEFT THE GERMAN CIVILIANS BEWILDERED AND OVERAWED. THEY GAPED AT THE ALLIED POWER ROARING DOWN THEIR HIGHWAYS.
THEY DO NOT HAVE THE APPEARANCE OF A PEOPLE TO WHOM EVERYTHING IS LOST. PERHAPS THAT WILL COME WHEN THE ALLIES ENTER THE METROPOLITAN CENTERS WHERE FOOD IS SCARCE AND CITIES ARE IN RUINS.
BUT ON THE FARMLANDS, WHERE HOMES HAVE ESCAPED, FARMERS, THEIR WIVES AND DAUGHTERS ARE TILLING THE FIELDS EVEN AS THEIR SOLDIERS HIDING IN THE DITCHES SEPARATING THEIR LAND FROM THE HIGHWAYS DIE UNDER THE GUNS OF BRITISH AND AMERICAN FORCES.

BY A. I. GOLDBERG
WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 30-(AP)-GERMAN WOMEN, YOUNG BOYS AND GIRLS WERE REPORTED TAKING PART TODAY FROM BEHIND PILLBOXES IN BITTER RESISTANCE EAST OF THE MAIN RIVER WHERE THE VETERAM 45TH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS MOVING SLOWLY AROUND ASCHAFFENBURG.
THE FIGHTING WAS DESCRIBED BY THE SEASONED DOUGHBOYS AS THE MOST VICIOUS SINCE ANZIO, ALTHOUGH TROOPS OF LT. GEN. ALEXANDER M. PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY CLEARED HEIDELBERG, IT WAS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY.
WITHIN 36 HOURS THE GERMANS PUT IN UPWARDS OF 5,000 TROOPS BETWEEN ASCHAFFENBURG AND SCHWEINHEIM. HEAVY ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE WAS POURED ON THE ADVANCING YANKS FROM BEHIND A DOUBLE LINE OF PILLBOXES. THE ARTILLERY FIRE WAS THE STRONGEST SINCE THE 45TH BROKE THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND FEW PRISONERS WERE BEING TAKEN AMONG THE FANATICAL ENEMY TROOPS.
A 16-YEAR-OLD GIRL AND A 12-YEAR-OLD BOY WERE REPORTED AMONG THOSE OPPOSING THE AMERICAN ADVANCE BUT OFFICERS OF THE 45TH SAID THEY WERE NOT TREATING CIVILIANS TAKEN IN THE FIGHTING AS PRISONERS OF WAR UNLESS AN AMERICAN SOLDIER OR A GERMAN TROOPER-PRISONER SPECIFICALLY SINGLED OUT AN INDIVIDUAL AS A PARTICIPANT IN THE FIGHTING.
LESS RESISTANCE WAS ENCOUNTERED BY THE 180TH REGIMENT WHICH CLEARED HAUSEN, EICHELSBACH AND RUECK IN ADVANCES UP TO MORE THAN THREE MILES. IN THE SOUTHERN SECTOR OF THE RHINE CROSSING, THE 12TH ARMORED DIVISION ROLLED THROUGH NARROW VALLEYS PAST AMORBACH BUT THE FLOODED MUDBACH RIVER AND BLOWN BRIDGES SLOWED THE ADVANCE.
HEIDELBERG WAS FLANKED FROM THE EAST BY A CROSSING OF THE NECKAR RIVER AT ZIEGELHAUSEN. HUGE PLEASURE BOATS FOUND ALONG THE RIVER'S BANKS EXPEDITED THE AMERICAN CROSSING.
THE SPEED OF THE ARMORED DASH THROUGH ODENWALD YESTERDAY TRAPPED A LOADED ENEMY AMMUNITION TRAIN IN A RAILROAD TUNNEL.
THE SEVENTH ARMY ROUNDED UP ABOUT 1,800 MORE PRISONERS IN 24 HOURS UP TO LAST MIDNIGHT, INCLUDING ONE GENERAL WHO DIDN'T MAKE IT BACK ACROSS THE RHINE. HE WAS BRIG. GEN. GAEDE, COMMANDER OF THE GERMAN 719TH INFANTRY DIVISION, WHO WAS FOUND COWERING IN A PILLBOX ON THE WEST BANK.

BY DON WHITEHEAD
WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, MARCH 30-(AP)-ROLLING AT THE RATE OF MORE THAN 25 MILES A DAY, THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY'S ARMOR SWUNG ALMOST WITHOUT HINDRANCE TONIGHT TOWARD A JUNCTURE EAST OF THE RUHR WITH THE U.S.NINTH ARMY.
HIS DEFENSES CRUMBLED FROM THE LAHN TO SIEG RIVERS, WILY FIELD MARSHAL KESSELRING WAS REPORTED STRIVING DESPERATELY TO REFORM HIS SHATTERED REMNANTS INTO SOME SEMBLANCE OF AN ARMY AND PUT THEM ON THE LINE TO CHECK THE TIDE OF DEFEAT SWEEPING IN ON WHAT REMAINS OF THE WEHRMACHT.
LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' SPEARHEADS REACHED PADERBORN, 185 MILES FROM BERLIN, DURING THE DAY, CHALKING UP GAINS OF MORE THAN 125 MILES IN FIVE DAYS. REPORTS FROM THE ADVANCE ELEMENTS, HOWEVER, WERE AT LEAST 8 1/2 HOURS BEHIND ACTUAL ADVANCES.
THE GAP BETWEEN VANGUARDS OF THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES HAD BEEN NARROWED TO 65 MILES.
EXPERT OPINION WAS THAT KESSELRING HAD NEITHER THE MEANS NOR THE TIME IN WHICH TO MAKE ANY FORMIDABLE STAND AND THAT HE CAN ONLY RECONSTITUTE HIS BROKEN DIVISIONS AND MERGE COMMANDS OF MISCELLANEOUS UNITS WHILE TRYING TO BRING UP WHATEVER RESERVES ARE LEFT IN CENTRAL GERMANY, NORWAY AND DENMARK.
SOME TROOPS BEING BROUGHT TO THE FRONT, IT WAS REPORTED, ARE BEING TOLD TO FIND ARMS ON THE BATTLEFIELD, BUT THEY HAVE NEITHER THE TRAINING NOR THE WEAPONS WITH WHICH TO HALT THE GREATEST TANK FORCE EVER ASSEMBLED ON THE WESTERN FRONT.
THIS MIGHTY TIDE OF ARMOR, IT WAS REVEALED TODAY, IS LED BY MAJ.GEN. MAURICE ROSE'S THIRD ARMORED DIVISION WHICH ALSO PACED THE DRIVE FROM THE ROER RIVER TO THE RHINE. FOLLOWING THE THIRD ROLLED MAJ.GEN. TERRY ALLEN'S 104TH INFANTRY AND MAJ.GEN.ROBERT HASBROUCK'S SEVENTH ARMORED.
THE PACE-SETTING TASK FORCE IN THE FOREFRONT OF THE DRIVE IS COMMANDED BY LT.COL.PRENTICE YEOMANS OF SYRACUSE, N.Y., WITH ALMOST PARALLEL COLUMNS UNDER COMMAND OF LT.COL.WALTER RICHARDSON, BEAUMONT, TEX., AND LT.COL.JOHN WELBORN OF SOUTHERN PINES, N.C.

HASBROUCK'S MEN, CONTINUING TO ATTACK AT DAWN TODAY, THRUST FROM KIRCHHAIN FOR 20 MILES TO FRANKENAU, 5 1/2 MILES SOUTH OF THE EDER RIVER. SOME OF HIS RECONNAISSANCE UNITS DURING THE AFTERNOON WERE WITHIN ONE KILOMETER OF THE EDERSEE DAM, FORMING A GREAT RESERVOIR ON THE EDER RIVER.

THIS ADVANCE REPRESENTED A DRIVE OF 96 MILES FOR THE SEVENTH ARMORED SINCE THE JUMP-OFF FOR THE GREAT ATTACK MARCH 25.

ON THE RIGHT FLANK OF THE SEVENTH, MAJ.GEN.JOHN W.LEONARD'S NINTH ARMORED DIVISION WHEELED AROUND THE "ELBOW" OF THE FIRST ARMY'S TURN TO THE NORTH TO REACH FRITZLAR ON THE EDER AND ALT WILDUNGEN ON THE WILDE RIVER, A GAIN FOR THE DAY OF 20 MILES AND A TOTAL ADVANCE OF 100 MILES IN FIVE DAYS.

TANKS OF THE NINTH ARMORED, WHICH ESTABLISHED THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD BY CAPTURING THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, ALSO REACHED BARKEN AND TREYSA AND THE MAIN FRANKFURT-KASSEL RAILROAD.

AT THE BEND OF THE ELBOW, THE FIRST INFANTRY ADVANCED TO A POINT TWO MILES SOUTH OF SIEGEN TO CLEAN OUT COMPARATIVELY LIGHT OPPOSITION.

OBSERVERS, NOTING THE CONTINUED ABSENCE OF ANY APPRECIABLE OPPOSITION, SAID THAT KESSELRING, WHOSE TROOPS MADE SUCH A STUBBORN DEFENSE OF ITALY, WAS A PAST MASTER AT THE ART OF TAKING WHATEVER TROOPS WERE AVAILABLE AND PUTTING UP A STOUT DEFENSE. THESE OBSERVERS SAID THE GERMAN LEADER MIGHT BE ABLE TO CONSTITUTE SOME SORT OF LINE IN FRONT OF THE ALLIED DRIVE--BUT HE SIMPLY DOES NOT HAVE ENOUGH RESERVES AVAILABLE TO THROW UP A DEFENSE STRONG ENOUGH TO STOP THE POWER UNLEASHED BY THE ALLIES.

PARAY ISLAND, INVADED MARCH 18, WAS QUICKLY SUBDUED. FOUR DAYS LATER HEADQUARTERS REPORTED ALL ORGANIZED RESISTANCE HAD BEEN CRUSHED.

THE AERIAL HAMMERING OF NEGROS HAS BEEN CONCENTRATED ON ITS NUMEROUS AIRFIELDS, AS WELL AS ON DEFENSE INSTALLATIONS AND SHIPPING. THE ALMOST DAILY BOMBINGS THIS MONTH HAVE BEEN INTENSIFIED BY ACTIVITIES OF THE SPEEDY LITTLE PATROL BOATS AND OF NIGHT PATROL PLANES.

GUERRILLAS ON NEGROS ARE UNDER COMMAND OF LT.COL.SALVADOR ABCEDE, AN INFANTRY OFFICER. HEADQUARTERS REPORTED LAST DEC. 16 THAT HIS FORCES WERE CONDUCTING A "GENERAL OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT AGAINST ENEMY OCCUPIED AREAS" AND HAD CLEARED THE SOUTHERN HALF OF THE ISLAND WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE DUMAGUETTE AREA.

THE JAPANESE IN THE DAMAGUETTE SECTOR, AT THE SOUTHEASTERN END OF THE ISLAND, HAD BEEN DRIVEN INTO A POCKET, THE REPORT SAID, AND WERE UNDER CLOSE SIEGE.

ALONG THE NEGROS EASTERN COAST THE IRREGULARS HOLD SIBULAN, SAN CARLOS, BAIS, ISABELLA AND LUZURIGA AS WELL AS SEVERAL AIRFIELDS.

MANILA,MARCH 30-(AP)-INVASION-SEASONED DOUGHBOYS--YANKS HAVE LANED ON 13 PHILIPPINE ISLANDS THIS MONTH ALONE--SWEPT ASHORE ON MACTAN AND CAUIT ISLANDS OFF CONQUERED CEBU CITY WEDNESDAY TO CLEAR THE SHIPPING LANES INTO THAT SECOND PORT OF THE ARCHIPELAGO.

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED IN HIS COMMUNIQUE TODAY THAT MAJ.GEN.WILLIAM H.ARNOLD'S AMERICAL DIVISION SWEPT ACROSS THE HALF-MILE STRAIT FROM CEBU CITY TO SECURE OPON, THE MAIN CITY OF MACTAN.

THE BIGGEST COCONUT OIL REFINERY IN THE PHILIPPINES IS ON MACTAN, AND ISLAND ABOUT NINE MILES BY FOUR. THE BIG PLANT WAS SET AFIRE BY JAPANESE DEMOLITION CREWS MONDAY MORNING WHEN THE YANKS LANDED ON CEBU.

CAUIT, A MERE DOT IN CEBU BAY, IS A FORMER SEAPLANE BASE.

MACARTHUR REPORTED THAT ENEMY RESISTANCE ON CEBU ITSELF REMAINED DISORGANIZED. DOUGHBOYS, STRING NORTH AND SOUTH FROM WRECKED AND BURNED CEBU CITY, SEIZED THE NAGA AND LAHUG AIRFIELDS. LAHUG HAS A 5,000 FOOT CONCRETE RUNWAY AND PARKING FACILITIES FOR 200 PLANES.

ONLY SPORADIC RESISTANCE WAS REPORTED ON THE VARIOUS LUZON ISLAND FRONTS. MOPPING UP IN THE CENTRAL SECTOR YIELDED 1,338 ADDITIONAL ENEMY DEAD. MACARTHUR RECENTLY ESTIMATED JAPANESE LOSSES IN THE PHILIPPINES AT MORE THAN 297,000.

ON SOUTHERN LUZON, 150 NIPPONESE SLIPPED INTO THE TOWN OF TALISAY ON LAKE TAAL, WELL BEHIND AMERICAN LINES, AND BURNED IT. ELEMENTS OF THE 11TH AIRBORNE DIVISION REACHED THE OUTSKIRTS OF LIPA, ROAD JUNCTION TOWN IN BATANGAS PROVINCE SOUTHEAST OF LAKE TAAL, BUT THE HEAT OF ENEMY-SET FIRES HALTED THEM. TWO CONCRETE AIRSTRIPS WERE CAPTURED NEAR LIPA.

HEAVY BOMBERS UNLOADED MORE THAN 200 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES ON THE BIG PORT OF LEGASPI ON SOUTHEASTERN LUZON AND BOMBED FACTORIES, AIRDROMES AND RAIL FACILITIES ON FORMOSA.

BOMBERS PATROLLING THE CHINA SEA BLOCKADE SANK A 7,000-TON CARGO SHIP AND FIVE SMALL COASTAL VESSELS OFF FORMOSA AND SENT FOUR SMALL FREIGHTERS TO THE BOTTOM OFF HAINAN.

BRITISH FLEET (2TIH RYUKYUS) (140)

GUAM, MARCH 29-(AP)-TWO OF THE BIG BRITISH FIGHTING SHIPS OPERATING WITH THE AMERICAN NAVAL FORCE ATTACKING THE RYUKYU ISLANDS HAVE DISTINGUISHED RECORDS IN THE WAR AGAINST THE AXIS.

THE 35,000-TON BATTLESHIP KING GEORGE V, FLAGSHIP OF THE BRITISH TASK FORCE, HELPED TO SINK THE "UNSINKABLE" GERMAN BATTLESHIP BISMARCK IN THE ATLANTIC MAY 27, 1941. SHE IS OF THE SAME CLASS AS THE BRITISH BATTLESHIP PRINCE OF WALES, WHICH WAS SUNK OFF MALAYA DECEMBER 10, 1941.

THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER ILLUSTRIOUS, ANOTHER UNIT OF THE BRITISH TASK FORCE, PARTICIPATED IN THE ALLIED VICTORY OVER THE ITALIAN FLEET IN THE BATTLE OF TARANTO IN NOVEMBER, 1940.

THE ILLUSTRIOUS WAS DAMAGED HEAVILY BY NAZI AIRCRAFT SHORTLY THEREAFTER. LATER SHE JOINED THE EAST INDIES FLEET AND TOOK PART IN TWO AIR STRIKES AGAINST JAPANESE POSITIONS AT PALEMBANG, SUMATRA.

VICE ADM. SIR BERNARD RAWLINGS, COMMANDER OF THE BRITISH TASK FORCE, WAS A NAVAL ETTACHE IN TOKYO FROM 1936 UNTIL THE MUNICH CRISIS IN 1938 AND IS RATED AS AN AUTHORITY ON JAPAN.

WITH BRITISH FLEET (350)

BY MORRIE LANDSBERG

GUAM, MARCH 29-(AP)-BRITISH WARSHIPS WHICH JOINED THE AMERICAN NAVAL ASSAULT ON THE RYUKYU ISLANDS SAILED FROM A SECRET U.S. PACIFIC BASE WITH YANK WISHES FOR "GOOD HUNTING."

AN AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICER WHO DESCRIBED THE DEPARTURE SPOKE OF THE BRITISH ELEMENT AS "A POWERFUL TASK FORCE MADE UP OF BATTLESHIPS, CARRIERS, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS."

THE LEAD SHIP OF THE FORMATION WAS A SLEEK, HEAVILY ARMED CRUISER OF THE LATEST TYPE.

BRITISH OFFICERS AND RATINGS LINED THE RAILS OF THE FLAGSHIP, THE DREADNOUGHT KING GEORGE V, AND GAVE THE THUMBS-UP VICTORY SALUTE.

AS THE FLAGSHIP, BEARING THE TASK FORCE COMMANDER, VICE ADM. SIR BERNARD RAWLINGS, PULLED UP PARALLEL WITH U.S.COMMODORE WORRALL R.CARTER'S FAMED SERVICE SQUADRON TEN, WORRALL BLINKERED:

"GOOD HUNTING, GOOD LUCK AND GODSPEED TO YOU, BRITISH BROTHERS."

BY SIGNAL FLAGS RAWLINGS REPLIED:

"THANK YOU VERY MUCH. I HOPE WE MEET AGAIN, COMMODORE, NEARER TOKYO."

AS THE LAST SHIP OF THE FORCE MOVED OUT OF THE BASE, THE LEADING CRUISER DISAPPEARED OVER THE HORIZON.

THE BRITISH TASK FORCE WENT INTO COORDINATED ACTION WITH THE AMERICANS WHILE SOME NAVAL OBEERVERS STILL WERE TALKING ABOUT WHETHER TECHNICAL DIFFERENCES BETWEEN THE FLEETS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES MIGHT BA JOINT OPERATIONS IN THE PACIFIC.

BRITISH OFFICERS HERE SAID THAT WHILE THERE WAS A DIFFERENCE IN CRUISING RANGE AND TECHNIQUE, THERE WAS NO PARTICULAR PROBLEM WHEN THE BRITISH UNITS WERE IN A SELF-SERVICED TASK FORCE.

FOR THE CURRENT OPERATION IT IS NO SECRET THAT MOST OF ITS SHELLS, BOMBS AND OTHER ARMAMENT ARE ITS OWN, FROM ENGLAND, AND ITS FOOD AND MUCH OF ITS OTHER EQUIPMENT FROM AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

THE COMPOSITION OF ITS AIR ARM IS UNDISCLOSED, BUT BRITISH CARRIERS ARE KNOWN TO BE USING BOTH ENGLISH AND AMERICAN PLANES. THERE IS REASON TO BELIEVE THAT MOST OF ITS PLANES FOR THIS OPERATION ARE AMERICAN TORPEDO PLANES, HELLCATS AND CORSAIRS. HOWEVER, SOME SEAFIRE AND FIREFLY TYPES ARE ABOARD.

THE SEAFIRE IS THE CARRIER VERSION OF THE FAMED SPITFIRE. IT CARRIES TWO 20 MM. CANNON, FOUR MACHINE GUNS AND HAD A 1470 HORSEPOWER ROLLS ROYCE MERLIN ENGINE. ITS WINGS FOLD AT THE TIPS AS WELL AS AT THE ROOTS. BECAUSE OF THIS IT IS KNOWN AS THE PRAYING MANTIS.

THE FIREFLY IS A HEAVILY ARMED BRITISH NAVAL PLANE--FOUR 20 MM. CANNON AND EQUIPPED TO USE ROCKETS.

A REVOLUTIONARY FLOATING SUPPLY TRAIN WHICH ENABLES THE FORCE TO STRIKE SO FAR FROM ITS BASES APPARENTLY IS SIMILAR IN SOME RESPECTS TO WORRALL'S NOW WIDELY KNOWN SERVICE SQUADRON TEN--A COLLECTION OF ALL TYPES OF SERVICE SHIPS WHICH MAKES IT UNNECESSARY FOR A FLEET TO RETURN TO ITS BASE FOR SERVICING.

SOME OBSERVERS THOUGHT THE BRITISH LACKED THIS FEATURE AND HENCE COULDN'T SHARE IN THE PACIFIC OPERATIONS.

THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE, OPERATING IN CHINA UNDER MANY HANDICAPS, HAS LOST ANOTHER ONE OF ITS ADVANCED BASES.

THE LATEST LOSS WAS LAOHOKOW, ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY (FRIDAY) BY THE CHINESE FOUR DAYS AFTER THE AMERICANS HAD WITHDRAWN FROM THIS FIELD IN THE HUPEH PROVINCE OF SOUTHEASTERN CHINA.

FOR MONTHS THE JAPANESE HAVE BEEN FORCING THE AMERICAN FLIERS OUT OF THEIR FORWARD FIELDS, FIRST IN KIANGSI PROVINCE AND NOW IN HUPEH.

ONE OF THE FIRST OF THE ADVANCED BASES TO FALL TO THE ENEMY WHEN THE JAPANESE BEGAN THEIR MOP-UP OF CHINA'S INTERIOR WAS AT HENGYANG

LAST JUNE.
IN SEPTEMBER THE AMERICANS WERE FORCED FROM BASES AT LINGLING AND TANCHUK AND IN NOVEMBER LOST THEIR IMPORTANT FIELDS AT KWEILIN, LIUCHOW AND ISHAN.
BASES AT SUICHWAN AND KANCHOW (KANSHIEN) HAD TO BE EVACUATED IN FEBRUARY AND QUITE POSSIBLY OTHERS ALSO HAVE BEEN GIVEN UP.
THE CITY OF SUICHWAN, HALFWAY BETWEEN HONG KONG AND HANKOW, WAS RECAPTURED BY CHINESE FORCES MARCH 13 BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION THAT THE AMERICAN AIR BASE THERE HAS BEEN REESTABLISHED.

Eisenhower Calls For Nazi Surrender; Tank Thrusts Pocket Enemy In Ruhr

EISENHOWER ASKS GERMANS TO QUIT

Calls on Army to Surrender and Avoid Unnecessary Bloodshed.

PARIS, March 31—(AP) General Eisenhower tonight called on German units to surrender and avoid unnecessary bloodshed and declared that Allied troops were "driving ever more deeply into the very heart of Germany."

"Soldiers of the Wehrmacht!" said the order as broadcast to Germany, "to save yourselves further useless sacrifice and loss of life this is what you must do."

Gives Nazis Instructions

From that point on the order gave various instructions for surrendering in accordance with the rules of war.

"The German government," Eisenhower declared, "has ceased to exercise effective control over wide areas. The German High command has lost effective control over many units, large and small, of the German forces."

NIGHT

This broacast was followed by a message warning captive workers in Germany to take shelter away from such danger points as railroads and factories and to stay off the roads, "particularly the main highroads."

"Stay in those refuges until the Allied armies arrive and finish mopping up the German units," the order said.

The text of the general's instructions to the German forces to surrender:

"The following order, dated March 31, 1945, is issued at the order of the Supreme commander, Allied Expeditionary forces:

"The Allied armies have crossed the Rhine and are driving ever more deeply into the very heart of Germany.

"The German government has ceased to exercise effective control over wide areas. The German High command has lost effective control over many units, large and small, of the German forces.

"In these circumstances, in order to avoid further unnecessary bloodshed and sacrifice of human life, the Supreme commander of the Allied expeditionary forces has issued a series of instructions.

"Here are instructions to members of the Wehrmacht:

"Soldiers of the German Wehrmacht! To save yourselves further useless sacrifice, and loss of life, this is what you must do:

"1. Units in contact which no longer receive orders from the German commands are to cease hostilities. The units are to be assembled. Until further orders, the present commanding officer of each unit is responsible for the discipline of his men.

"2. Surrender of troop units takes place by sending an emissary to the nearest Allied command post, under the protection of a white flag. The surrender must take place in an orderly manner and with observance of military discipline.

"3. Units out of contact remain under the command of their officers until further orders. The units are to be assembled and commanding officers remain responsible for the discipline and supply of the troops under their command until further orders.

"4. Scattered units and individual Wehrmacht personnel report to the nearest Allied troop unit while observing the customary signs of surrender; i. e., unarmed and without helmet or web equipment. Collecting points are along the main highways and thoroughfares.

Nazis Fighti g To Reach Berlin 170 Miles Away

Kennedy

PARIS, Sunday, April 1.—(AP) The Allies clamped a steel deathlock around the Ruhr basin last night but the Germans fought savagely in an effort to break out northeastward toward Berlin, now only 170 miles away, and there was no sign that they were ready to accede to Gen. Eisenhower's new demand for surrender.

NIGHT

"This is the final great battle of the west," wrote Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle from Paderborn, six-way road hub in which the battle of annihilation centered.

Nazis Battle Fiercely

The battered Nazi cohorts, fighting fiercely, gave every indication they intended to battle to the last.

There were indications that remnants of the German armies, forming as best they were able, were massing along the river Weser for a final stand and possibly a desperate, last-ditch counteroffensive, inspired by Hitler.

High Allied officers were confident that such a suicidal offensive would shatter against the ring of Allied steel but admitted it might result in a bloody finish to the war.

American combat officers gave no evidence of the obvious jubilation of Supreme Allied command officers and freely predicted that the Germans might try another offensive before admitting defeat. Very few officers who have been battling the Germans expect the war to be over before two or three months.

It is obvious that the German army is beaten as a military force but the hitch is that it doesn't know it or, blinded by fanaticism, will not admit it.

The Allies are devouring ground in gulps larger than anything the Russians have accomplished in Germany and prisoners are falling to Allied armies by the thousands.

These factors lessen the slim German chance of stabilizing the front at the Weser river, which is in imminent danger of being turned from the south but the Nazis, by the grace of logistics, have a certain lease on life due to the limit of Allied supply lines.

Allied Supreme headquarters made no break in its security blackout but broadcast an invitation by Gen. Eisenhower to all isolated German forces to surrender. He disclosed that the new U. S. 15th army and the French First army both had joined the struggle, raising to nine the number of Allied armies battling east of the Rhine.

Armored Divisions Join

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said that the U. S. Ninth and Third armored divisions had made contact at Warburg, 24 miles southeast of Paderborn, to close one side of the trap, while Wes Gallagher wrote that the Second armored division of the U. S. Ninth army had thrust eastward 30 miles and established tactical radio contact with the U. S. First army near Paderborn.

Exact nature of the contact was not disclosed, but Gallagher said that for all practical purposes the cutoff was complete.

The huge pocket thus created enclosed the remnants of three German armies, estimated here to number possibly 40,000 men, but said by Boyle on the scene to include "scores of thousands."

The Ruhr industrial basin, without which Hitler's army leaders have told him they can no longer wage war, was isolated or in ruins.

As if only now aware of their plight, the Germans flung everything they had into the flaming battle of Paderborn, some 100 miles northeast of Cologne.

Nazis Attacks Futile

Repeatedly they attacked with small infantry forces, led by tanks. Dug-in infantry with Bazookas strove to hold off the rampaging Americans, but the front dispatches said each effort cost the Germans casualties, and Boyle wrote:

"The German armies in the west are committing suicide—suicide by tortured inches."

On the left, the British Second army with American parachutist aid, was racing under a blackout on what was described as the last lap of its push to Muenster, while other British-Canadian forces thrust into Holland.

The U. S. Third army, having made contact with the First at Warburg, also was hammering on either in or beyond Kassel, Fulda river stronghold and provincial capital of Hesse-Nassau, and battled near Lautenhausen, both 170 miles southwest of Berlin.

The new U. S. 15th army took its place in the battle lines at an undisclosed sector of the front, putting five American armies in action.

The French First army crossed the Rhine on a 10-mile front from the German Palatinate, possibly in the area of Karlsruhe, and was fighting east against hot resistance.

Another juncture was effected at the southern hinge of the Western Front between armored elements of th U. S. Seventh army and the French First army which crossed the Rhine on a 10-mile front, possibly in the area of Karlsruhe, and was fighting eastward against stiff resistance.

The crossing of the French was made in the vicinity of Speyer.

Seventh army armored and infantry forces which stormed down the highway toward Karlsruhe, passed Ketsch and reached Hockenheim in a 4-mile dash in which the French were contacted.

The U.S. Seventh army struck a soft spot in German lines and surged 15 miles eastward, crossing the Tauber river at two points 15 miles west of Kuerzburg and was 130 miles west of the Nazi shrine city of Munich and only 67 miles from the Nazi party's old rallying grounds at Nuernberg.

Block Nazi Retreat

This concerted assault by the Americans and the French threatened to block the Nazi leaders from their presumed intention of making a final stand in the mountain fastnesses of Bavaria.

The British Second army, racing more than 50 miles beyond the Rhine with three armored divisions in the van, was under a news blackout but was believed either fighting in Muenster or mid-way between Muenster and the Ruhr's easternmost city of Hamm.

At the extreme northwestern end of the trans-Rhine front, the Canadian First army was 10 miles beyond the river and driving into Holland with gathering speed, liberating a half dozen Dutch towns during the afternoon as it closed on Arnhem.

In the face of this mounting threat, the Germans were clearing out of all north Holland west of Arnhem and heading back for the Reich, Dutch civilians told their liberators.

For the Allies, it was the brightest Easter of the war, for the Germans the gloomiest.

American Tank Units Within 175 Miles Of Berlin

With U.S. 3d Army, March 31 (AP)—The 4th Armored Division has reached the vicinity of Lautenhausen, 170 miles from Berlin.

DAY

Paris, March 31 (AP)—Twelve Allied armored divisions speared into Germany 175 miles from Berlin and 130 from Munich today, and all but encircled the Ruhr.

The Ninth United States 15th Army is now holding a front-line position, it was disclosed. The 15th is commanded by Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow. Details of its sector and role were not announced.

Twenty-five thousand Germans had laid down their guns in yesterda fighting.

More th 3,000 Allied tanks were in the push east of the Rhine.

The French 1st Army lunged across the Rhine somewhere between Mannheim and Karlsruhe this morning.

The United States 7th Army burst through the Odenwald to within 15 miles of Wuerzburg and 130 of Munich.

Northward, the American 3d Army rushed down the last 10 miles to Kassel and perhaps had already reached that city, 165 miles from Berlin.

The 1st and 9th American armies sped toward a linkup around the Ruhr beyond Paderborn, with the gap apparently less than 50 miles and narrowing hourly. As many as 40,000 Germans in the Ruhr might be trapped by their juncture.

Gains Of 11 And 16 Miles Achieved

The British 2d Army driving into the heart of Westphalia made overnight gains up to 11 miles against little opposition except ruins and roadblocks.

Security silence concealed the extent of Allied gains, but front-line dispatches disclosed that the 6th Armored Division of the 3d Army had got within 10 miles of Kassel, after speeding 45 miles since Friday, and that troops of the 21st Army Group had gone at least 16 miles today.

Thirty miles southeast, the United States 4th Armored Division drove to a point 4 miles southeast of Hersfeld and also was within 175 miles of Berlin.

[The Brussels radio today broadcast an unconfirmed report that a spearhead of the United States 3d Army had reached a point ten miles southwest Amberg, 125 miles east of Aschaffenburg and 5 miles from the old Czech frontier. There was no indication of such a long advance in direct field or headquarters accounts. The radio also said it was official that the Ruhr had been completely encircled by the 21st Army Group from the north and the United States 1st Army from the south.]

British 50 Miles Past Rhine

On the 9th Army's flank the British 2d Army, paced by three armired divisions, was 50 miles beyond the Rhine.

Being so far past the Rhine, the British might be in or near Muenster, or midway between Muenster and Hamm.

The German radio said British troops had crossed the Dortmund-Ems canal, a 170-mile waterway that connects Dortmund and the industrial Ruhr with the River Ems, and had established a bridgehead on the east bank.

Presumably such a crossing would be in the area where the British are driving from Dulmen toward Muenster. The RAF mined the canal last August and on November 21 made bomb hits on its bank that drained it for a distance of 16 miles.

French Cross Rhine On 10-Mile Front

The French 1st Army crossed the Rhine on a 10-mile front, a French military communiqué announced. The operation is progressing, it added. It did not disclose the location of the crossing.

[A Brussels broadcast yesterday, apparently premature or transmitted to confuse the enemy, said the French 1st Army had occupied Baden, 10 miles east of the Rhine and 16 southwest of Karlsruhe.]

The United States 9th Army's breakthrough along the northern rim of the Ruhr Valley progressed overnight, but front-line correspondents were not permitted to say how close the 9th had now come to Paderborn. This breakthrough, it was disclosed, is paced by the 2d Armored Division—veterans of Africa, Sicily and Italy.

This outfit, brought overseas by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, is now commanded by Brig. Gen. Isaac White.

1st Army Goes As Much As 21 Miles

American 1st Army tanks last night swept through Paderborn, 42 miles northwest of Kassel and 185 west of Berlin, but Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges slowed his columns today to consolidate his tremendous gains, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported. The tired, dust-grimed tankmen were badly in need of rest after six days of battle.

The 1st Army had crossed the Eder River in gains as great as 21 miles, and had entered Fritzlar, 15 miles from Kassel, on the Fulda River.

Today the 3d Army closed up in this same sector, with the 6th Armored sending one column within 10 miles of Kassel, and another to Cappel, 15 south of Kassel.

Down the line, men of the 4th Armored drove 23 miles northeast from Lauterbach to a point 4 miles southeast of Herzfels, and another part of the same division reached the vicinity of Herzfels after a 14-mile push.

7th Has Hard Fight Near Aschaffenburg

The United States 7th Army in the south got well beyond captured Heidelberg, and fought a terrific battle with fanatical Germans in prepared positions across the River Main in an arc around Aschaffenburg. There were reports that even German women, girls and boys were fighting there.

On the northern flank, British and Canadian troops were beating back into Holland northwest of Emmerich, perhaps driving for a cut-off of the Dutch rocket bomb coast.

Allied advances spearheaded by at least eleven armored divisions were taking thousands of prisoners. The 3d Army took 10,000 more yesterday, the British 2d Army 1,500 and the United States 1st 11,200.

Allied planes repeatedly attacked German communications.

"No Real Defense Line"

A high-ranking German officer, seized by 3d Army troops, asserted: "There is not any organized line of defense between you and Berlin. There is not any organized system of government left in Germany. When you reach Berlin the whole situation will quickly dissolve."

Unofficially the British 2d Army's goal was said to be the North German ports of Hamburg, Bremen and Wilhelmshaven, all of which were hammered yesterday by more than 2,300 heavy bombers in the greatest United States attack of the war on enemy naval installations.

Nazi Planes Attack Again

That attack dealt a death blow to the German Army's chances of obtaining supplies and reinfocements by sea and struck devastatingly at any hopes the Nazis had of a spring U-boat campaign.

Some German planes struck at United States 1st and 3d Army columns yesterday, but not in great number. On the 21st Army Group's front in the north, there was no aerial opposition, and tactical air force planes hit grounded German ships that had no fuel.

Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson announced that his 9th Army bridgehead force north of Duisburg included the 75th Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Ray Porter. It came into line with the 30th and 35th Infantry and 2d and 8th Armored divisions.

Infantry Catches Up

Infantrymen of the 1st Army closed up behind the tank spearheads, which had gone more than 120 miles in six days with virtually no rest. This push had broken the back of Nazi resistance on the 1st Army front and outflanked the Ruhr on the east. The Nazis did not halt the drive, Correspondent Whitehead explained. It was simply necessary to stop and give the infantry a chance to catch up with the armor and seal off all escape routes for the battered Germans in the Ruhr.

Reports reaching neutral countries said that the crumbling Reich's seat of government already has been moved to Berchtesgaden and that Hitler, Himmler and all other Nazi bigwigs are already there.

General Eisenhower himself has said this might be the Nazi plan, but that it would gain Nazi war criminals nothing but a little more time.

That is becoming clear. The Russians are hammering away through Austria, less than 165 miles east of Berchtesgaden, and the United States 7th Army is less than 210 miles away on the northwest.

While the greater Reich crashes about the ears of the German people, Hitler is hastening the hour of their final reckoning by his shifting of troops.

Reinforcing Flank

At an hour when the Russians first undermined the Nazis's Oder River defenses only 30-odd miles from Berlin, Hitler was reinforcing his southeastern flank and slamming in counterattacks on the Hungarian plain.

At an hour when Allied armies are rampaging unchecked into the heart of Germany, the best organized and most fanatical defense comes on the southern section of the front—far from the lines which should be protecting Berlin, the big ports and the great industrial cities.

On the unprotected north front little more than 200 miles separates the Allies of the west and the Russians. On the southern end of the front the distance is 400 miles.

A. I. Goldberg, Associated Press correspondent, said the United States 7th Army beyond the River Main and closest to the Bavarian mountains had struck "fanatical" resistance by Germans fighting from prepared positions.

And that was almost the only place on the entire Western front where the Germans had tanks in reserve and were backing the line with co-ordinated artillery fire.

There has been no other reasonable explanation why, when Eastern and Western front commanders are starved thin for troops and stripped naked of reserves, some twenty divisions fight on in strategically worthless northern Italy.

Compared To Ruhr And Ports

What is there to save in the south comparable to the loss of the Ruhr with its war factories, the ports of the north, and Berlin itself—heart and normal administrative center of the Reich?

There is Munich, where brawling Nazi Brownshirts first came to the attention of the police, where Hitler once tried a revolt and was jailed—in brief, a Nazi shrine city.

There is more—Berchtesgaden, Hitler's strongly fortified mountain home, and the Austrian border mountains with hideaways where Hitler and his war criminals may steal a few more weeks of life.

But with them the game is up.

Cannot Produce Materials

However well they may have stocked and stored the mountain hideouts, they could not produce there the materials for a continued or indefinite defense.

However difficult the mountain roads and passes for military operations, the Allied mobile might and air power would open the way in for a cleanout which Eisenhower promised would come.

Eisenhower himself has said what he would like to see done with the Nazi gang once it is caught.

But that was placed "off the record" by censorship—at his request.

EFFORT TO GUARD HIDEAWAY IS SIGN

Strenuous Defenses Noted In South Germany

SHAEF, Paris, March 31 (AP)—The amazing German troop dispositions on all fronts add hourly to the belief that Hitler and his Nazi gang have picked a last mountain hideaway and have begun the battle to protect it.

How else explain the tenacity of the southern defense on both the Eastern and Western fronts and the use of twenty divisions in Italy—all on roads that lead to the Bavarian Mountains and Berchtesgaden?

Reported Already Moved

Sabotage Tips In Reich

With the United States 9th Army, March 31 (AP)—Pamphlets teaching the art of sabotage are being distributed by the Germans in the path of the advancing Allies.

Directed particularly to members of the Hitler Youth movement, the pamphlet declares that "the American Army wants to destroy your country and your home."

Methods of sabotage listed include putting sand or sugar in automobile gasoline tanks, tying piano wire across a highway, throwing wires across telephone lines, placing heavy obstacles on railroad tracks and strewing nails in roads.

"Take anything from the enemy you can," the pamphlet ordered. "His front lines depend on what rear areas can send him. So the more you can take away from him the more you will be doing for your country."

to go with him," said the captured general.

Family Safe In Allied Area

With his own family safe in Allied-held territory, the general talked volubly, presenting himself as a man who didn't think much of Hitler, although he still wore the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross at the throat of his tunic just below his jiggling Adam's apple.

"The common German soldier who is dying now in a lost cause has more loyalty to the fatherland than Hitler," he asserted.

Boehlsen expressed belief that the Nazi hierarchy, in an effort to prolong the party's life as long as possible, would take to mountain hideouts ringed by extra select SS Elite Guard forces, but "the Wehrmacht (the regular army) will have no part in this fight, and the German people will not have a hand in it."

He said that in his opinion "there is no qualified organized government which can stop the war or take over power before the destruction of Germany. The SS has complete control of all functions throughout the country.

"As Heinrich Himmler is in command of the Eastern front, he has taken most of the SS troops there for his own prestige. The Wehrmacht concurred in his throwing strength to the Eastern front."

Boehlsen said he did not think it was possible to switch German troops from Italy to the Western front because communications had been bombed out. Instead, he said it was more likely that Germans in Italy would try to move into Yugoslavia to fight the Russians.

Astonished By U.S. Tanks

A tank man himself, he expressed astonishment at the size and speed of the American armored columns and began asking questions about how it was done.

"Do you have full armored armies?" he asked. "And is all your infantry motorized? That is all I

Rundstedt Warns Hitler.

With the United States Ninth Army March (Delayed) (A. P.).—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring became German Commander in chief in the west after Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt told Hitler further resistance was hopeless and that peace should be made at any price, according to information now available here.

This account added that Hitler decided to place von Rundstedt under arrest immediately after the commander said the German armies no longer were capable of putting up an organized defense. Teh appointment of Kesselring came as a compromise between Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, who wanted Field Marshal Walther von Model, as commander, and the army command, which had refused to consider von Model. Kesselring arrived at his new command with a complete SS (Elite Guard staff, but it was not known whether they were there to help him or to watch him.

U.S. 1st, 3d Armies Take 87,000 In Week

General Bradley's Headquarters March 31 (AP)—More than 87,000 German prisoners have fallen to the American 1st and 3d armies in the past week, this headquarters reported today. They are pouring back faster than interrogators can question them.

American losses have been relatively light, spokesmen said. The greatest number killed in one day was 141. On another day the two armies lost 51 dead.

Figures on the number of American prisoners liberated from German camps were not complete, but the 1st Army alone freed 4,361 in six days.

Captive Nazi General Thinks Hitler Plans Suicide Charge

With the U.S. 4th Armored Division, March 30 (AP) [Delayed by Censor]—German Maj. Gen. Hans Boehlsen, who was captured by the 4th Armored Division yesterday, predicted today that Adolf Hitler would try to lead a final suicide charge in which he would die in order to be remembered by the people.

"The Führer wants to become a martyr and I believe this is the way he will try it if he can get enough martyr-minded SS troops have seen.

When he inquired whether the Americans had perhaps adopted the methods of the German tank expert, Heinz Guderian, he was assured that Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., had his own type of armored razzle-dazzle, which was no secret: Just light out down the road, keep going until you hit something, and then go around it.

ONLY RUINED ROADS HOLD UP 9TH ARMY

British Advance Also Impeded at Some Points by Damage Done by Allied Airmen

WITH THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION on the West-

APR 1 1945

phalian Plain, March 31—The Germans' great Ruhr Basin lies behind this Ninth Army armored force, cut off from the rest of Germany by a thirty-mile dash in the last thirty-six hours by the old "hell on wheels" Second Armored Division.

By-passing all of the large cities and driving due east, the Second Armored Division was within practical radio contact of the First Army's advanced armored elements coming up from the south.

For all practical purposes the Ruhr, which German Army leaders told Hitler was necessary to continue the fight, has been cut off from the rest of Germany. Its population of 4,000,000 is hemmed in by a ring of steel.

The speed of the entire Ninth Army's advance is measured at present only by road blocks and blown bridges.

Strange Sights Seen

This division's attack through the rich Westphalian plain and through rich farming towns presents a strange sight.

Here is what you can see:

German headquarters in one town deserted and silent with a half-eaten meal on a table showing the haste of the departure of the top Germans.

Thousands of Slav laborers streaming along the roads, walking in all directions, presumably toward home. They did not rise up to help the Allies nor did they loot or attack their German masters. They just picked up their belongings and started going.

Along the highways for miles move columns of American armor twenty and thirty miles long.

Here and there columns halt while a road block is removed. At other places, particularly at night, German forces blunder in and are chewed to pieces in a thunder of gunfire.

The Germans managed to blow bridges across water barriers but in two hours, in one case, one task force had a bridge over and a reconnaissance force under Captain Walter Neilson, of Tucson, Ariz., former 240-pound New York Giants pro football player, took off in a cloud of dust.

Early this morning a castle of a prince and princess was overrun. The building had been used as a hospital.

The prince was extremely cautious in discussing the Nazis, the German army or politics, but said, "I don't see how any one in Germany is going to make peace. The Nazis don't want to, and they remove any one in the German army who does. I think the German army will just fall apart bit by bit."

The farming area through which the column is going is rich agricultural country untouched by war.

"It is so peaceful and green looking with neat small villages it is making some of the boys homesick," said Major John Smothers, of Princeton, Ind., at a command post in a farmhouse which is almost surrounded by Yugoslav prisoners released by the advance.

Some captured German soldiers lived right in this area and when they reached a prisoner cage found wives and relatives waiting for them.

"We have a new procedure," said Lieutenant Robert Philipps, of Denver, Col., "we let the wives and mothers kiss them good by."

Asked if his men were tired, Colonel Paul E. Disney, Beverly, Mass., said: "Not yet and even if they were, they are willing to keep going on as long as necessary on this ride. They feel the chips are down and if they carry out the mission successsfully the war might well end a couple of months ahead of schedule."

In contrast to the high German morale is the expression of the German soldiers. They fight with rare exception and only as long as the officers make them.

BRITISH RACING FOR MUENSTER

Armored Spearheads On Last Lap To Cathedral City

With the British 2d Army in a Town on the Road to Muenster, March 31 (AP)—Armored spearheads, forming in the streets of this battered town which must be nameless under a security silence, began this afternoon the last lap of their race to the great cathedral city of Muenster.

Elsewhere driving spearheads of Marshal Montgomery's forces pushed as far as 40 miles into the heart of Germany from the east bank of the Rhine.

Tough Going For Canadians

At the northwestern end of a 25-mile Rhine bridgehead, the Canadians still were struggling against the toughest opposition of the entire front as they slugged beyond Emmerich toward the strategic heights of Hoch Elten.

Here on the east flank the Germans also were still putting up a fight, and the screech and explosion of shells punctuated shouted orders as the British tanks and armored cars lined up on the streets and byways near flaming buildings amid acrid smoke that brought tears to eyes of the British tankmen and American parachute troops.

Between these two tough flanks, things had opened up, and Montgomery's forward elements dashed upward of 25 miles northward and northeastward. At one place units were across the Dutch border and had taken one Dutch town.

Enemy "Completely Demoralized"

The prisoner bag is soaring. An officer of the 6th Guards Armored Brigade said enemy troops taken in this drive toward Muenster were "completely demoralized," and were deprived of all news by their commanders.

Prisoners said the German troops were avidly reading and passing along Allied leaflets which fell into their hands, and some said that a thorough information campaign informing the German people of developments and the strength of the Allied forces would be more effective than continued bombing.

SS Staving Off Surrenders

"I was confident of German victory until the first of this week when I learned that six Allied columns of armor already were driving into Germany east of the Rhine," said one prisoner. "Then I headed for the sound of the nearest gunfire and surrendered."

Other prisoners said demoralization of the civilian population was so complete that SS detachments were in every major city to try to prevent a wholesale outbreak of surrenders.

3D 170 MILES FROM BERLIN

Big Transport Planes Bring Gasoline To Patton Tanks

With U.S. 3d Army, March 31 (AP). Two spearheads of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's United States rampaging 3d Army, supplied by big gasoline carrying planes, landed on fields east of the Rhine, rolled through points within 170 miles of Berlin today, and still were pounding onward, hours-old accounts said tonight.

These advances were scored by the 4th and 6th armored divisions. The 4th Armored was in the vicinity of Lautenhausen, 19 miles southwest of Eisenach.

Five Miles From Kassel

When last heard from, the 6th Armored was 5 miles south of Kassel, and undoubtedly already is in or beyond that town 170 miles southwest of the Reich capital. Advices on the progress of the 6th Armored were even older than those on the 4th Armored.

Big C-47 transport planes, alighting on overrun fields east of the Rhine, were feeding gasoline to the 3d Army's swift-striking tanks.

The 4th Armored Division, which certainly is much farther than the latest positions received at headquarters, was 110 miles from the Czechoslovak border and 160 miles inside Germany at Lautenhausen.

In Mass Flight

Pilots of the 19th Tactical Air Force, flying the Kassel-Eisenach-Hersfeld triangle during the day saw German railroad and vehicular traffic in a mass flight eastward. Pilots who smeared column after column said the headlong German retreat looked like "a man who has straddled a horse and galloped off in all directions."

Pilots strafing a 30-car train near Erfurt saw one car explode and then the entire train disappeared in a blinding flash. Two American attacking planes were destroyed by the explosions and many returned to their bases damaged.

Capturing twenty towns today, the 11th Armored Division made a 12-mile sweep to Birstein, 20 miles southwest of Fulda. Scarcity of German opposition was shown by the fact that only 200 prisoners were taken in this advance. Among the prisoners captured by this division yesterday was a 61-year-old naval officer caught in a sniping command post.

Drives To Giesel Area

Another column of the 11th Armored drove to the vicinity of Giesel, 6 miles southwest of Fulda.

The 90th Infantry cleaning up behind the 4th Armored and progressed 10 miles northeastward to an area 12 miles southwest of Fulda.

Armored spearheads were going at such a swift pace and in so many directions that covering the front has become virtually impossible.

Seventh Army Sweeps On

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY, in Germany, March 31 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Roderick Allen's Twelfth Armored Division in a twelve-mile advance drove into Waldbrunn, six miles southwest of the Main River city of Wuerzburg tonight.

This action highlighted a series of successes all along the United States Seventh Army front. Other gains of up to eight miles were scored.

Armored and infantry forces, storming down the highway toward Karlsruhe, passed Ketsch and reached Hockenheim after a gain of four miles. These forces made contact with elements of the French First Army, which crossed the Rhine last night in the vicinity of Speyer.

On the northern hinge of the line grim fighting continued in Aschaffenburg, with the air force in a close support attack leaving much of the town ablaze.

Both the Forty-fifth and Third Infantry Divisions were punching out new gains east of the Main with some Third Division elements across the seven-mile Main River loop on the outskirts of Reistenhausen, sixteen miles southeast of Aschaffenburg.

Southward one column passed Hardheim late this afternoon and pushed on eight miles.

The Sixty-third Infantry Division, whic htook Heidelberg yesterday, pushed south below Schwetzingen and Ketsch, but the troops fighting around Schwetzingen were meeting stiff resistance in the Hardt woods coupled with hostile civilian activity.

Troops Shoot Civilians

"We had to shoot several civilians after we caught them fighting and leading German anti-tank guns up to point out our tank positions, and we lost several tanks as a result of it," a two-star general said.

A security curtain still prevented identifying his unit or naming him, but his tanks were rolling alongside the Sixty-third Division's infantry and one armored spearhead reached a point just north of Walldorf, at the southern edge of the Hardt woods.

The Forty-fifth Division continued mopping up around Aschaffenburg against continued stubborn opposition, but the Third Division extended its Main River bridgehead south of Grossheubach, giving the Seventh Army a fifteen-mile-long area across the Main five miles deep near Rossbach.

The French First Army, meanwhile, was across the Rhine on a nine-mile front at undisclosed points. The American Seventh Army, winning territory on a wide front, overran a German ordnance shop with thirty-four tanks and two hospitals with a total of 1,900 German wounded.

U.S. And German Crack Units Meet

With the U.S. 8th Armored Division, March 31 (AP)—This crack American armored division is locked in what may be one of the last real battles of the war with the tough 116th German Panzer Division, whose commander refuses to surrender although the outfit is virtually surrounded and cut off by two American armies.

The hard core of enemy resistance—among the few encountered in the Allies' triumphant sweep across the Rhine—is being manned by a division which Hitler's generals usually consider the cream of the German Army. It is an outfit which the high command always has tried to keep from being encircled.

The area held by the enemy southeast of Borsten has been almost engulfed by two American armies and at least fifteen divisions.

Belt Of Anti-Aircraft Guns

But, backed by a belt of at least 1,500 88-mm. anti-aircraft guns, with muzzles depressed for use as field artillery, the fanatical Nazis have stood off two American infantry divisions and hasn't give nmuch over a mile a day to Brig. Gen. John M. Devine's tanks.

But the Highland Falls (N. Y.) commander expects to crack the resistance within the next few days and burst out to join the 2d Armored Division in the race to Berlin.

"We've captured 100 guns and knocked out or passed through 200 more," said Lieut. Col. Emmett White, of Pittsford, Vt., sitting in his captured German trailer, parked beside a country road. "There are about four guns to a battery usually, but sometimes the Germans have as few as two."

Area 10 Miles By 15

This means this area 10 miles long and 15 miles wide through which the 8th Armored is slugging is girded with 350 batteries of artillery, the equivalent of 100 battalions of high-velocity firepower.

A German tanker captured last night told the Americans that 100 of his comrades in a woods wanted to surrender and when he went after them their captain killed the first two men that started out.

The belt of anti-aircraft guns centers around Reckinghausen and begins at the junction of the Rhine River with the Herne and Lippe canals.

Germans Abandon Airfields Near Front

General Montgomery's Headquarters, March 31 (AP)—From Frankfurt on the Main to Paderborn there were no German warplanes in operation today.

Three days ago the Germans had fields roughly on a line between Rheine and Frankfurt, but they have been chased away.

The magnificent airdromes at Rheine, Osnabrueck and other places near by have been abandoned. The tactical air force yesterday hit the Gutserloh and Rhede fields, destroying 37 planes and damaging 19 — all on the ground.

No personnel was seen at the fields. Lack of gasoline presumably prevented the Germans from flying the planes away, as the craft did not burn when hit by bombs.

In the northern sector the Luftwaffe appears to be withdrawing toward Emden, more than 100 miles from the active front. Jet-propelled planes, which require longer runways, probably will be compelled to use bases as far back as Schleswig-Holstein.

.narmed Germans Sent To Front

By Harold V. Boyle

Marburg, Germany, March 31 (AP). The Nazi command, in frantic attempts to stabilize its chaotic Western front, has been throwing in piecemeal every type of soldier available, regardless of whether he has combat training or even weapons.

Germans are running desperately short of small arms. Many men destroyed their weapons before surrendering, prisoners said, and hundreds were sent into action unarmed with crisp orders to "look for guns on the battlefield."

Rear Echelons Taken

Questioning of more than 1,000 prisoners has given no evidence to substantiate a first belief that German troops were turning their arms over to civilians to provide weapons for subversive activities and an "underground" arm.

German rear echelon troops form a substantial portion of prisoners of war now being taken—men in signal battalions, ordnance companies, supply outfits and headquarters personnel. Few of them have guns because there were none to distribute.

Short Of Machine Pistols

The most critical item is the machine pistol—a weapon upon which the Wehrmacht placed great faith in personal combat. Shortages of this compact and deadly weapon are being reflected in a drop of morale in the enemy infantry. Recently machine gun and mortar teams have not been issued sidearms and if their machine gun or mortar is knocked out, or fails to function, they are helpless.

Stragglers turned around and sent back to the front as replacements to fight under these conditions often find it more sensible to desert at the first chance and join American prisoner of war chow lines.

Ninety per cent of the prisoners who declared they disposed of weapons before being captured said they broke them or tossed them away when the fighting got too rough.

Nazi Units Get Priority

Nazi army units are given priority in the issuance of small arms on the basis of their fighting reputation—with parachute troops first and Panzer divisions a close second. Infantry units are at the bottom of the list. In all branches noncommissioned officers are getting rifles instead of machine pistols as provided by the normal table of equipment.

The survey showed that German units with the best morale held on to their arms the longest. Ninety-two per cent of the prisoners from a Volksgrenadier division had discarded their weapons prior to capture, as compared with 25 per cent among prisoners from an Elite parachute troop division.

Marshal Montgomery and General Bradley have trapped them.

Fierce fighting is flaming in the outskirts of Paderborn, 100 miles northeast of Cologne, as the Nazis, belatedly roused to their peril, battled to keep open the roads leading to the northeast.

Road Hub Becomes Focus

Paderborn, an ancient cathedral town of 38,000 population, has become the focal point of the entire Western front because of its importance as a road hub.

With American armor and infantry driving in from the south to the outskirts of Paderborn, the bottled-up Germans are fighting to maintain this escape route to the north German plains.

They are fighting with everything they have—dug-in infantry with bazookas, self-propelled guns, tanks, mortars and artillery.

Every German unit in the area has been pitched into the battle, for the German leaders now realize that loss of Paderborn will cost them many thousands of remaining troops as the Allied pincers close in.

Unable To Cross Swamp

Paderborn is vital because heavy German armored vehicles are unable to break out across the swampy ground northwest of the town and must be channeled through its roads.

All-day clashes around the town have been of a fury unequaled since the United States 1st Army opened its attack March 25.

The Germans, after seven days of continuous pressure, have been compelled to turn their backs to the Rhineland and fight to break out toward Berlin for the showdown battle. Their only alternative now is mass surrender—and thus far they have shown no mood for that.

Underrated American Speed

Slow to believe they could be victims of a blitz technique, the stunned Germans had underrated the speed of American tanks, which on the 1st Army front have circled distances up to 200 miles in six days in a vast right-hook that caught the enemy on the chin.

The chaotic German units tonight were trying to break out piecemeal from the steel deathlock of the Allies that was fatally constricting the entire Nazi forces garrisoning the Ruhr.

This is a battlefield of Allied choice. It finds trapped Nazi troops critically short of gasoline, transport and small arms. It is a battle in which each outfit is forced to fight for its own life.

Like Battle Of France

It is again—like the battle of France in its final stages—a sort of Indian warfare on a major scale. German Volksgrenadier and Panzer Grenadier outfits are stabbing along every road in the Paderborn area, searching for some exit from the maze in which their own sluggishness and Hitler's determination to hold the Ruhr has trapped them.

They are suffering rebuffs heavily at every turn. Enemy "feeler" columns of 100 to 150 infantrymen supported by from four to a dozen tanks are being wiped out or cut to pieces.

The German armies in the west are committing suicide—suicide by tortured inches.

There is no way out through the American lines. In the last three days this correspondent has traveled along the entire 1st Army battlefront from the Rhine to Paderborn and can testify that there is no loophole on the southern pincer to smash through.

Behind the greatest tank force ever massed under the leadership of a British or American Army commander in this war, Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges has grouped some of the finest veteran infantry divisions in the European theater.

The Enemy's Only Hope

The most the enemy can now hope to accomplish is to break into elastic defenses for a few miles with small armored raiding parties which will be promptly pinched off.

Numerous small-scale scraps are taking place all along the perimeter of the pocket—which has shaped up exactly like the battles of Mons and the Falaise Gap last summer—but the chief breakout blows by the Nazis against 1st Army troops are being concentrated in the Paderborn vicinity.

"They are trying with everything they can put together to push through to Paderborn to the north German plains to try to salvage what they have left of their armies," said Capt. Dan Magnussen, of Green Bay, Wis.

Eisenhower Decorates Aide

PARIS, March 31 (AP).—General Dwight D. Eisenhower awarded the Legion of Merit's highest degree of command today to Lieutenant General Sir Frederick E. Morgan, deputy chief of staff, for exceptionally meritorious conduct in preparing the groundwork for the western front invasion.

Reds 11 Miles Inside Austria In Smashing Tank Offensive

London, Sunday, April 1 (AP)—Russian tanks knifing up to 11 miles inside Austria smashed through outflanked and tottering Nazi defenses south of Vienna yesterday within 33 miles of the Austrian capital and 12 miles from its southern bastion of Wiener Neustadt, Moscow disclosed last night.

Simultaneously Red Army spearheads rolled 22 miles across southwestern Hungary, stabbing to the Austrian border at a new point only 39 miles east of the key city of Graz and 117 miles from Italy.

In a day of powerful Red Army gains all along a 300-mile front stretching from German Silesia across Slovakia and Hungary to the Yugoslav frontier, other Soviet troops cracked Bratislava's Vah River defense line 27 miles east of the Slovak capital.

Reds Near Main Railroad

On the northern roads to Vienna and Prague, Red troops in Upper Silesia captured the German strongholds of Ratibor and Bieskau in a drive toward the Moravian gap gateway to Hitler's inner Czechoslovak fortress. These troops made the first Allied invasion of Moravia, striking into that territory by capturing Zauditz, 7 miles southwest of Ratibor.

Moscow's nightly war bulletin announced that Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian Army had swept into Austria on a curving 35-mile front, driving 11 miles inside the frontier to capture Kirschlag, 45 miles south of Vienna.

To the north, Russians captured Wiesmath, 12 miles south of Wiener Neustadt, great aircraft manufacturing city 22 miles south of the Austrian capital and 155 miles east of the Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat at Berschtesgaden. They were 11 miles from the main railroad linking Vienna with Italy.

Kuestrin Front Cleaned Out

Sopron, the last big Hungarian fortress guarding Vienna's southeastern approaches, also was threatened from the south and southwest.

The swift slash through enemy defenses below the Neusiedler See carried the Russians within 33 miles south of Vienna when they captured Kophaza.

While these troops in southern Europe threatened the German Reich's second greatest city, the 1st White Russian Army of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov on the front before Berlin cleaned out the last enemy troops in the Kuestrin area, 38 miles east of the German capital.

They killed or captured 6,170 enemy troops in the old citadel area of Kuestrin in the narrow neck of land between the Oder and Warthe rivers, Moscow said.

Hungarian Leader Seized

A 12-mile Russian advance toward Bratislava was carved out by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukranian Army in an offensive north of the Danube River.

In southwestern Hungary, Moscow said, Marshal Tolbukhin's troops had captured nearly 9,000 enemy troops, including the commander of the 3d Hungarian Army Corps.

Tolbukhin's forces were only 34 miles from the vital trunk railroad linking Vienna with the Italian port of Trieste at a point where the line crosses from Austria into Yugoslavia south of Graz.

Simultaneously, Marshal Stalin's order of the day announcing the victory said Bulgarian troops south of Lake Balaton had captured the Hungarian town of Csurgo, 14 miles southeast of the oil center of Nagykanizsa, in an 8-mile advance along the Drava River frontier of Yugoslavia.

While Austria held the spotlight of Russian successes in southern Europe, Marshal Stalin announced that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army had increased pressure on the Moravian gap leading across Czechoslovakia's mountains to Vienna and Prague.

Mine Fields Encountered

Konev's troops, driving down the 25-mile-wide valley between the Oder River and the Sudeten Mountains captured Ratibor, last big German industrial city in the extreme southeastern Reich, after more than a week of heavy tank battles.

Enemy broadcasts also said that Konev's intention was to link up with Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian Army which, 106 miles to the south, was battering the Vah River defenses on the roads to Vienna and the Slovak capital of Bratislava in an offensive north of the Danube.

On both the north and south banks of the Danube, Moscow dispatches said, the Russians were running into stiffened enemy resistance and acre after acre of mine fields, crisscrossed by artillery and mortar fire, as they attempted to break into the Bratislava gap, the 18-mile gateway to Vienna between Bratislava city and Vienna's Neusiedler See.

Austrians Asked To Revolt

As the combined 2d and 3d Ukrainian armies swept toward Austria, the Moscow radio summoned Austrians to revolt and "help the Red Army which is entering your country as a liberator." Moscow appealed to Austrians to sabotage industries and communications.

On the Berlin front, Germans finally admitted the fall of Kuestrin, Oder River fortress 38 miles east of the German capital, and collapse of Nazi resistance in the city's ancient citadel. Moscow had announced its capture March 12.

The German Transocean agency added that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army had now merged his bridgeheads on the Oder's west bank north and south of Kuestrin "into one large bridgehead" which will be a major springboard in the impending battle for the Nazi capital.

Ratibor, a city of 52,000, lies six miles from the Czechoslovak border and 16 miles northwest of Moravska-Ostrava, historic guardian of the Moravian gap and Czechoslovakia's third largest city. But Konev's intention apparently was to envelop this great industrial prize from the rear.

Twelve miles west of Ratibor, Konev's forces also captured the highway and rail junction of Bieskau, four miles from the Czechoslovak frontier and three miles west of Katscher, into which the German communique said Russian forces had penetrated.

Soviets Capture Ratibor, Nazi Strongpoint

London, March 31 (AP)—Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's troops have smashed to the Hungarian-Austrian border 38 miles east of Graz, capturing Szentgotthard, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

London, March 31 (AP)—The Red Army has captured Ratibor, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

The strategic city, only a few miles from the Czechoslovak border, is 150 miles northeast of Vienna and 16 from Moravska Ostrava, which controls the northern approach to the Moravian Gap.

The new offensive drive posed another threat to Vienna.

Other Red Army troops moving into Austria 52 miles from Vienna rammed into reinforced German lines, and farther to the northeast stepped up an assault toward the Bratislava Gate, which already had carried to within 44 miles of the Austrian capital.

Also Take Biskau

Biskau also was captured. Like Ratibor, this place was described as "a large communications center and enemy strongpoint on the left bank of the Oder."

"Early Reply" Sought

Russia, whose move to obtain three votes at the San Francisco meeting also posed a touchy question, had urged an "early reply" by the United States and Britain on the matter of Polish representation.

On the southern end of the Eastern front, other Soviet battle groups smashed to within 134 miles of the Italian border.

Germans were fighting desperperately to protect Vienna, Moscow dispatches said. The Russian offensive toward Bratislava ran into acres of minefields and heavy artillery and mortar fire.

The surge into Austria overran some trenches and antitank barriers, but German fire was heavy and was supported by waves of infantry moved southeastward from Vienna barracks.

Freed For Berlin Drive

The fall of Danzig in the north freed perhaps 50 Russian divisions for the coming battle of Berlin. The German communiqué finally announced the loss of Kuestrin, fortress city on the Oder's east bank, 38 miles from Berlin. It also said the 1st Ukrainian Army had battled into the encircled Oder fortress of Glogau, 55 miles northwest of Breslau.

Nazis Battling To Escape Ruhr Trap Near Paderborn

With American Forces Outside Paderborn, Germany, March 31 (AP). A battle of annihilation on the Western front is under way, with German troops, estimated to number scores of thousands, making a panicky attempt to break out of a vast pocket between the Ruhr and Sieg rivers where the forces of Marshal Montgomery and General Bradley have trapped them.

APR 1 1945

30.24.24361

Moscow announced last night that Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army had invaded Austria at a point north of captured Koszeg.

Simultaneously, the Russian High Command disclosed new successes along the frontier of virtually conquered Hungary and Yugoslavia where Soviet forces drove within 134 miles of Italy for a possible link-up with British-American armies fighting on that front.

The flag of the Polish State was raised over Danzig after a grueling siege that cost the Germans more than 49,000 killed or captured in the former free port. Raising of the Polish banner over the port indicated recognition by the Russians of Polish claims to this European political caldron.

Armies Drive Ahead.

The combined forces of two great Soviet armies were driving westward through Hungary along the north and south banks of the Danube River in a direct assault on Vienna, which yesterday reverberated to attacks by heavy bombers of the Italy-based United States Fifteenth Air Force. The Americans also bombed Graz, in Austria, fifty-five miles west of the advancing Russians.

On the Danube's north bank Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army sprang forward from the Hron River in a thirty-one-mile advance that breached Vienna's Nitra River defense line along a seventy-mile front.

Seizing more than 450 towns, Malinovsky's troops at one point north of captured Komarno battered ten miles past the Nitra River.

Meanwhile, on the south bank of the Danube more of Malinovsky's troops slashed toward the southeastern approaches to the vital Bratislava Gap, the eighteen-mile gateway to Vienna between the Danube and the Austrian capital's Neusiedler See defense barrier. These elements thrust to within forty-four miles of Vienna and thirty miles southeast of Bratislava by capturing Tarnokreti, fourteen miles west of captured Gyor.

Farther to the southwest, Tolbukhin's forces drove into Austria under cover of Red Air Force planes which flew 3,000 sorties in support of the ground troops.

Danzig Decreed Polish By Warsaw Government

London, March 31 (AP)—The Soviet-sponsored Warsaw Government has decreed the incorporation of Danzig into the territory of Poland, the Lublin radio announced tonight.

Premier Stalin's announcement of Danzig's liberation said the Polish flag had been hoisted over the former Free City.

The Warsaw Government's decree established the province of Danzig and incorporated the entire territory of the former Free City zone and the northern part of the old Polish Corridor. Districts ordered attached to the new province listed Gdynia, Kartuszy, Maritime (Morski) Starogard, Koscierzyna and Tczew.

5,000 PLANES ATTACK REICH

Targets Are From Austrian Alps To Baltic Coast

London, March 31 (AP)—Five thousand Allied planes attacked priority targets from the Austrian Alps to the Baltic coast in shrinking Germany today, rounding out a record month in which it is estimated 165,000 tons of bombs were hurled on the Reich.

The German radio reported Allied bombers were over Germany again tonight.

In today's operation 1,300 of the 8th Air Force's Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 850 Mustangs and Thunderbolts, raided war plants and railways in Halle, Brunswick and Brandenburg and what was believed to be Germany's only remaining big synthetic oil plant at Zeitz, 25 miles southwest of Leipzig.

Flak Barrage Is Terrific

Six bombers and three fighters were lost by the 8th Air Force, American fighters shot down six German planes, including three jet-propelled aircraft.

Brandenberg, about 25 miles west of Berlin, has been serving as a key rail junction for most of the military and freight traffic the Germans no longer are able to route through the capital. Halle is 20 miles northwest of Leipzig. The German air force made feeble and scattered attacks on Liberators over Brunswick and put up a terrific flak barrage in defense of the Zeitz oil plant. Elsewhere, only moderate anti-aircraft fire was encountered.

U-Boat Yards Bombed

While the American bombers ranged over central and southeastern Germany approximately 750 fighter-escorted British Lancasters and Halifaxes attacked the Blohm-Voss submarine yards at Hamburg. Eleven British heavy bombers were missing from the operation in which a score of enemy jet-propelled planes engaged the attacking sky fleet. The attack was the second in eighteen hours on the concrete U-boat pens which were bombed Friday afternoon by 500 American heavy bombers.

Heavy bombers of the 15th Air Force, escorted by Mustangs and Lightnings, attacked Austrian targets at Linz and Villach and objectives in the Italian city of Theviso, 20 miles northwest of Venice. Fighters escorting the Austria-bound formations plunged through a heavy cloud cover and strafed rail targets in the Vienna area toward which Russians now are driving. At least 15 locomotives were reported destroyed.

Nazis Deserting Airfields

Thousands of fighters and fighter-bombers of the Allied Tactical Air Forces in France raked rail and road traffic ahead of General Eisenhower's troops advancing on the Western front. The heaviest blow was aimed at the Wuerzburg railyards on the Frankfurt-Nuernberg main line.

Front line reports said Nazis were abandoning airfields full of gasless planes in central and western Germany in the face of the Allies' ceaseless air bombardment. Commenting on these reports an 8th Air Force staff officer said "that should be a natural result" of the Allied air campaign.

London, March 31 (AP)—More than 1,300 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 850 fighters, attacked railway and industrial targets today in Brunswick and Brandenburg, freight yards at Halle, and a synthetic oil plant at Zeitz.

Brandenburg, 25 miles southwest of Berlin, is now serving as the key rail junction for the bulk of military freight the Germans are no longer able to route through the capital.

U-Boat Yards Pounded

Meanwhile, a force of approximately 750 RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes made a concentrated attack on the huge Blohn-Voss submarine building yards at Hamburg, which was attacked yesterday through heavy clouds by American bombers.

The Zeitz refinery, 25 miles south of Leipzig, was one of the few major plants operating at anywhere near maximum production recently. Halle, 20 miles northwest of Leipzig, is an important rail junction linking central and southern Germany

Berlin Bombed Again

Last night RAF Mosquitos gave Berlin its 43rd bombing in the last 39 nights, and ranged wide over Germany, hunting down trains and motor convoys as far as the Czechoslovak and Austrian frontiers.

The largest fleet of Fortresses and Liberators dispatched this year by the 8th Air Force yesterday showered 4,000 tons of bombs on U-boat yards in the ports of Bremen, Hamburg and Wilhelmshaven with reported "good results."

Fourteen hundred of the big planes escorted by 900 fighters, shot down six of a fleet of 40 Nazi jet planes attempting to break up the attacks. Late reports said nine American bombers and three fighters were lost.

At least 46 German planes were destroyed on the ground. The biggest haul was made by a United States 9th Air Force Thunderbolt group which destroyed 37 and damaged another 19 on two airfields east of Duesseldorf. Eighth Air Force fighters accounted for five more and the RAF destroyed four.

FOUR U. S. PILOTS SCORE

Three Over Reich Bag 'Jet' Each, Other Gets Three Me. 109's

A UNITED STATES EIGHTH AIR FORCE STATION, England, March 31 (AP)—Mustangs of the United States Second Air Division, scouting over Brunswick, dispersed seven jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262's today as they headed toward one of the Eighth's bomber formations. Lieut. Marvin H. Castleberry of Baldwyn, Miss., shot down one of the jets.

In another sector, Capt. Harrison S. Tordoff of Mechanicville, N. Y., and Lieut. Wayne L. Coleman of Tupman, Calif., bagged a jet plane each.

A fourth Eighth Air Force fighter pilot, Maj. William M. Long of Wichita, Kan., shot down all three of the other German planes that were bagged during the bombing mission after he became separated from his fighter formation over Germany. Near Hanover he saw a Messerschmitt 109 going down to land and hit the German in time to send him into a ground-looping crash. Then he encountered five Me 109's south of Osnabrueck, set one afire so that the pilot bailed out, and blew up a second in mid-air. The other three fled.

Flyers' New Rockets Can Pierce Thick Armor

London, March 31 (AP)—New 5-inch, high-velocity rockets which can pierce thick armor of the Nazis' biggest tanks as well as heavy reinforced concrete now are being fired by United States 9th Air Force Thunderbolts, it was revealed today.

Bigger and more deadly than the rockets previously launched by American planes, the new projectiles are 6-feet long and weigh about 140 pounds. They are aimed with the conventional gunsights from launchers under the wings. They can be fired singly or in salvoes and are more accurate than bombs.

The 9th Air Force said the Thunderbolts can carry the rockets as well as a full load of ammunition and bombs.

1,300 Bombers Rip Rail Yards, Oil Plant

London, March 31 (AP)—Three German news broadcasting agencies—two DNB stations serving Europe and the home front and the Transocean service providing news to points outside Germany—were silenced suddenly and without explanation in the middle of a sentence at 6.48 P.M. today (1.48 E.W.T.). The last word from the DNB home station was the admonition to the Reich to "keep ahead."

NAZIS TRY TO STEM DEMORALIZATION

People Urged To Track Down Allied Agents In Reich

London, March 31 (AP)—Amid reports of mounting confusion and hunger in the Reich, Nazi officials appealed to the people today to aid in tracking down Allied agents who are infiltrating into Germany "spreading unrest and demoralizing German troops."

Reports reaching Stockholm said German civilians were giving shelter not only to deserting soldiers but to the Allied secret agents. Persons seeing men between the ages of 16 and 60 wandering around with no apparent purpose were ordered to report them immediately to the nearest police station.

Hitler Report Unsubstantiated

There was nothing here to substantiate an unattributed dispatch in the Stockholm Tidningen which said that the German high command had advised Hitler that continuation of the war was impossible and suggested that the Nazi Government resign preparatory to opening negotiations for an armistice.

The report is believed to have originated from Radio Atlantic, a clandestine anti-Nazi, German-language station whose exact status never has been announced.

J. W. Gallagher, Associated Press correspondent, in a delayed report from the 9th Army front said Field Marshal von Rundstedt had been removed as German commander in chief in the West after he told Hitler further resistance was hopeless and peace should be made at any price.

Postwar Guerrillas Hinted

Hinting at guerrilla action after the war the German home radio asserted:

"Formal termination of the war will not be the end of it. We shall reconquer tomorrow what we have had to give up today under pressure."

The propaganda broadcast declared "Eisenhower is trying to initiate us into the rotten civilization of the west and carry away our workers as slaves."

Critical Food Shortage

Reliable reports reaching Stockholm said the Germans for the first time were openly discussing the critical food shortage and the need for further stretching of rations "in order to prevent hunger." Potatoes and bread were reported to be the German diet now.

Bread grain was reported being scraped together everywhere and cattle slaughtered because there was nothing to feed them. The food shortage is so serious that a milk dealer who held back eight gallons of cream was caught and sentenced to three years' imprisonment and fined 10,000 marks.

Dr. Robert Ley, chief of the Nazi Labor Front, called for a "few thousand determined men with fanaticism in their hearts" to help halt the plunging Allied tanks.

German Gardens 'In Flower Pots'

London, March 31 (AP)—Germans were instructed today to grow their own food even if they must do so in flower pots.

"From now on everyone must provide for himself," a Ministry of Food spokesman was quoted by the news agency DNB. "We are in a position where every square yard of soil must be tilled, every waste lot must be used to grow food—even every flower pot."

Talks Doomed, Nazis Say

London, March 31 (AP)—German propagandists began trumpeting today that "the San Francisco conference threatens to collapse even before it begins."

A Transocean broadcast—beamed overseas and not directed for home consumption—quoted a German Foreign Office spokesman as saying "so many complicated problems have emerged in the Allied camp that excuses now are being made for postponement of the conference."

Nazi Stations Blacked Out

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—All three of the German news broadcasting channels were blacked out for fifteen minutes tonight without explanation, possibly indicating a move from Berlin to new locations farther from the onrushing Allied armies. Upon returning to the air, the announcers reported that an Allied bombing fleet which had been over southwest Germany had departed. The stations were the D. N. B. home and European channels and Transocean's foreign service.

'Important' Nazi-Japanese Talk

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—The German Ambassador to Japan conferred yesterday with the Japanese Foreign Minister on "important matters," the Tokyo radio said today without giving any details.

15 Americans In Convoy Die To Save 19 Refugees

London, March 31 (AP)—Fifteen Americans of the crew of the Liberty ship Henry Bacon gave their lives recently to save nineteen Norwegian refugees who were among the 500 rescued from the German-held island of Soroy by an Allied convoy, the Admiralty announced today.

The fifteen, none named in the announcement, were the captain, seven other officers and seven seamen.

During a fierce battle with German submarines and planes, ships of the convoy destroyed one enemy submarine and twelve planes and severely damaged seven torpedo planes.

Placed On Freighters

After rescuing the Norwegians the Admiralty report said, the refugees were dispersed among the freighters returning from delivering war supplies to Russia.

A storm in which wind reached 80 knots, kicking up 65-foot waves, hit the convoy and all but one of the Henry Bacon's lifeboats were destroyed. She became separated from the remainder of the convoy. As the storm lifted seventeen enemy torpedo planes attacked.

The Admiralty report said the captain put the nineteen Norwegians—nine women, seven children and three men—in the one lifeboat with five crewmen to act as oarsmen. The others in the crew took up battle stations against the attacking Germans.

Five Torpedo Planes Downed

The Germans struck the lone ship in waves, but gunners of the Henry Bacon shot down five of the torpedo planes before their vessel was fatally hit. All but the fifteen were rescued from the icy waters by other ships of the convoy, which raced to the scene in response to an S.O.S. from the Henry Bacon.

The Admiralty report described the air attacks on the convoy as the "most powerful" launched against a Russian convoy in two years.

In the attack the Allied convoy also suffered some losses, including the H.M. Corvette Bluebell, which was sunk; two other ships damaged and two aircraft lost.

British Expenses Rise

Ordinary Budget for Year Totals More Than 6 Billion Pounds

LONDON, March 31 (AP).—Ordinary expenses for the British government for the year ending today totaled more than $24,231,- 363,000, the Treasury reported tonight.

It was the first time in Great Britain's history that expenses have run more than £6,000,000,000 ($24,000,000,000).

Expenditures increased more than a billion dollars over last year and made the deficit for the twelve months ending today more than $11,279,111,000.

TARIFF CUT SEEN AS BOON

Britons Feel Congress Would Aid Europe's Economic Recovery

LONDON, March 31 (AP) — John S. Dodd, president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, said today that favorable action by Congress on President Roosevelt's recent request for powers to slash tariffs would prove a boon to Great Britain.

In a letter to The Times of London Mr. Dodd said the President's proposals should help British exporters to increase trade with the United States, enable the nation to pay for greater purchases in America and provide employment for many British war veterans.

Declaring that there was a widespread feeling that "the high tariff policy of the United States was a real stumbling block to international economic collaboration," Mr. Dodd added that Congressional acceptance of the President's recommendation would provide a greater scope for economic negotiation.

In his message to Congress the President proposed cuts in levies on imports in return for concessions from other countries and contended this course would help "build an economically healthy world."

Volunteers To Handle British Crops Sought

London, March 31 (AP)—The British food situation "is more serious than has yet been generally recognized," a Ministry spokesman said today, and Agriculture Minister R. S. Hudson has chosen Easter time to appeal for volunteers to help in raising and harvesting the 1945 crops.

Hudson is asking for 200,000 adults—more than twice the number responding last year—and 100,000 children over 12 years old to go to volunteer camps organized to help farmers.

Nazis Claim Sinkings

London, March 31 (AP)—The German radio asserted today that 270,000 tons of Allied shipping were sunk by Nazi naval forces during March.

British War Artist Killed

LONDON, March 31 (AP)—Capt. Albert Richards, 25 years old, the youngest official British war artist, has been killed by a mine in France, it was announced today. Capt. Richards jumped with parachute forces on D-day.

BRITAIN BALKS AT SOVIET PLAN

Bars Request That Warsaw Poles Sit At San Francisco

London, March 31 (AP)—Russia has asked that the Warsaw Polish Provisional Government be seated at the San Francisco world security conference and has been promptly told by Britain that this was "out of the question," it was announced tonight.

Britain sent a memorandum to Russia saying she did not agree with the Soviet suggestion, and expressed hope the Moscow committee set up at the Yalta Conference would agree on the names of Poles "from inside and outside" the country who would be asked to meet in Moscow to discuss the formation of a broadly-based united Polish provisional government.

British Refusal Explains

Diplomatic quarters said it was felt here the British acquiescence would constitute in effect recognition of the Warsaw regime and diminish hope of forming a coalition government with representatives from Poles both at home and abroad—as agreed at Yalta.

With scant chance of such a government being formed before the conference opens April 25, the Polish exile government in London—just as insistent as the Warraw group in claiming Polish authority—also has sought an invitation.

A possibility of accord rested in the application by the Big Three of pressure on both London and the Warsaw groups to accept as their representative at San Francisco some such man as peasant-born Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former Polish Premier.

Backed By Poles

Mikolajczyk is willing to participate in the reconstruction of Poland if the country's independence is guaranteed, and he has some backing among other Poles, as illustrated by the recent withdrawal of four members from the Polish Socialist party's executive committee.

The Socialist party is one of the mainstays of the Government of Premier Tomasz Arciszewski, which succeeded that of Mikolajczyk's.

In the London movement, aimed at reaching an understanding with the Warsaw Poles through the offices of the Big Three, are these former ministers in the governments of the late Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski and his successor, Mikolajczyk.

JAN STANCZYK, Labor.

LUDWIG GROSFELD, Finance.

KARL POPIEL, Reconstruction.

FATHER ZYGMUNT KACZYNSKI, Education.

MARIAN SEYDA, Peace Conference Affairs.

TADEUSZ ROMER, former Minister of Foreign Affairs under Mikolajckyk.

Bernard M. Baruch, here on a secret mission for President Roosevelt, and United States Ambassador John G. Winant conferred today with Prime Minister Churchill. The nature of their conference was not announced, but it appeared likely the Polish question was discussed.

Government Lines Busy

For the third successive day there aws an abnormal flow of Government communications. Today, as was the case yesterday, the flow was from Washington to London. On Thursday the chief traffic was from Moscow to Washington.

Tonight the Moscow radio quoted the Belgrade Tanyug news agency as saying the Yugoslavian Council of Ministers, under Marshal Tito's chairmanship, had decided to recognize the Soviet-supported Warsaw group as the provisional Government of Poland and to establish diplomatic relations.

British Call Red Proposal 'Out Of Question'

London, March 31 (AP)—Moscow demanded today that the Warsaw regime be represented at the San Francisco security conference, and met an "out of the question" response from Britain.

The United States, which with Britain has promised to recognize the Warsaw regime after it is reorganized on a broader basis, was yet to be heard from tonight.

The British Foreign Office said through a spokesman that the proposal was "out of the question."

Authoritative sources had expressed the British attitude earlier in the day.

Wider Representation

These London sources declared that the British position was that Poland could obtain representation only by complying with the Crimean conference agreement that the Polish Provisional Government be expanded to include wider representation.

Prospect of such action before the April 25 conference opening date appeared slim.

The Russian demand, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said failure of the United States and Britain to recognize the Warsaw group was no excuse for withholding an invitation and that an "early reply" was expected to the Soviet request.

Conference With Churchill

Bernard M. Baruch, special representative of President Roosevelt, and United States Ambassador John G. Winant conferred today with Prime Minister Churchill.

Although the nature of their discussions remained unannounced, it appeared inevitable the question would be raised concerning Russia's demand on Polish representation.

Another subject probably on the agenda was the control and economic future of Germany.

For the third successive day, there was an abnormal flow of Government communications between Washington and London, most of them from Washington.

Tass Statement

A statement by the Russian news agency Tass said that if reorganization of the Polish Government was not effected or completed in the near future, "representatives of the provisional Government in Warsaw should be invited to the San Francisco conference." Both the Warsaw regime and the Polish Government in exile here have bid for seats at San Francisco.

The Moscow broadcast made no reference to the London Polish group, declaring that the Soviet Government "also informed the governments of Great Britain and China that it fully supported the statement of the Provisional Polish Government and expected Poland would be given a chance to take part in the San Francisco conference."

"Insult To Poland"

"Holding of the conference in San Francisco without participation of Poland would be unfair and an absolutely unjustified insult to the Polish people," the Moscow radio declared, saying it was quoting authoritative sources.

Bluntly maintaining the failure to invite the Warsaw Poles "could not be explained" by the absence of diplomatic relations between that group and Washington and London, the Moscow broadcast declared:

"The Soviet Government similarly has no diplomatic relations with such countries as India or Haiti, Liberia or Paraguay. However, it met desires of Great Britain and the United States and agreed to their participation in the San Francisco conference.

"The Soviet Government suggested that Allied governments should discuss this question and pass a corresponding decision," the announcement said. "At present the Soviet Government informs the Government of the United States that it expects an early reply to this proposal concerning an invitation to Poland."

There have been many outward signs in the past few days that feverish negotiations are under way between the three powers.

Wires Kept Busy

So heavy is the load of official messages between the three capitals—Washington, London and Moscow — that communication wires usually allotted for the transmission of news have been taken over in full or in part.

"Representatives of the provisional government in Warsaw should be invited to San Francisco," the Moscow broadcaast said, "as this Government exercises powers throughout the territory of Poland and enjoys the support of the Polish people."

U.S. Rejects Russian Request For Frisco Seating Of Poles

Washington, March 31 (AP)—The United States has rejected a Russian request that the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw Government of Poland be invited to the San Francisco conference at this time.

The American position is based on the hope that it will be possible to have Poland represented at the meeting by a reorganized government which the Big Three, in the Yalta meeting, agreed to create. Information on the American position came from a State Department official this afternoon following a Tass news agency announcement from Moscow that the Russian Government wanted Warsaw represented at San Francisco, and also following reports from London that the British had declined to accept the Russian request.

U.S. Stand Explained

The State Department official refused to be quoted directly, but gave this description of the situation in response to inquiries:

It is the hope of the United States Government that the formation of the new provisional Polish Government of National Unity, in conformity with the decisions of the Crimea conference, will be completed in time to send a delegation to the San Francisco conference.

In view of the current consultations respecting the formation of this new government, reorganized on a broader democratic basis with the inclusion of democratic leaders from Poland itself and from Poles abroad, in accordance with the Crimean agreement, the United States Government does not agree to the extension of an invitation to the present provisional Government now functioning at Warsaw.

Soviet Informed

The anonymous State Department official would make no further explanation of the situation, but it was learned that the Soviet Government had presented to the United States and Britain a statement of its support of the Warsaw Government's demands for an invitation and that the United States had informed Russia of its attitude in a communication following the lines of today's comment by the official.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), a conference delegate who has interested himself in Polish affairs, declined to comment on the Russian demand on the Polish question. Vandenberg indicated it was a question which could be settled only by President Roosevelt and the State Department.

Senator Burton (R., Ohio), an exponent of all-out international co-operation for peace, said he did not see how the American Government could sponsor an invitation to a Polish regime it does not recognize.

Provision For Others

"I don't see how we could accept the representatives of one Government without some provision being made for attendance by the representatives of the other Government which we recognize," he said.

Russia's move to gain three votes in the General Assembly of the proposed world league may have to stand on its own feet without preliminary American help.

Despite a Yalta agreement by President Roosevelt to support the Russian proposal, there are indications the American delegates may balk at taking any active part before the question actually is submitted to the San Francisco United Nations conference.

U.S. Proposal Contingent

Then their backing may consist of casting the delegation's vote for the Russian request. If it is defeated by a conference in which the State Department has said all nations will have one vote, a consistent American proposal for three seats in the permanent assembly will never be offered.

An almost certain controversy between large and small nations over voting strength in the proposed international organization is likely to find several of the American delegation lined up with the little fellows.

Senator Vandenberg already has marked his course in that direction and probably will lead the drive within the delegation for equal rights for all in the Assembly. Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N.J.) may be expected to join with his Republican colleague, and Commander Harold E. Stassen leans that way.

Connally Position

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee represents a mixed congressional and Administration viewpoint. But since he will have the responsibility of getting through the Senate any treaty that may come out of San Francisco, he will not relish small-nation dissatisfaction that might be reflected i. minority pressure on senators.

Chairman Bloom (D., N.Y.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee has asserted that American voting power in the Assembly should be second to none. Bloom indicated the American delegation will be asked to sponsor a proposal of this kind if the Crimean voting agreement is pressed at San Francisco.

Text Of Tass Statement On Polish Vote Demand

Moscow, March 31 (AP)—The text of the Tass statement proposing inclusion of the Warsaw Polish Provisional Government in the World Security Conference:

In connection with the opening April 25 in San Francisco of the conference for establishing an international organization for upholding peace and security, the Provisional Polish Government, as the press already pointed out, on March 22, turned to the Governments of the Soviet Union, the United States, Great Britain and China with a statement which pointed out that to hold the conference in San Francisco without participation by Poland would be unjust and, in no way justified, an affront to the Polish people.

In this statement the Provisional Polish Government also expressed hope that representatives of the Polish people in the person of the Provisional Government will participate in the conference and that democratic Poland will occupy a place in the family of the United Nations.

Power In Polish Territory

According to authoritative information, the Soviet Government previous to the above-mentioned statement of the Provisional Polish Government informed the Governments of the United States and Britain that if in the nearest future there will not be realized or completed the reorganization of the Provisional Polish Government it follows that representatives of the Provisional Government in Warsaw should be invited to the San Francisco conference as the existing power on all territory of Poland and one which enjoys the support of the Polish people.

In this statement the Soviet Government pointed out the absence of Polish representatives at this broad international conference would be impossible to explain by such excuse as the absence of diplomatic relations between the Governments of the United States of America and Britain on one hand and the Provisional Government of Poland on the other because the Soviet Government also had no diplomatic relations with such countries as India, Haiti, Liberia or Paraguay, but it (the Soviet Government) went halfway to meeting United States and above-mentioned pating in the San ence.

Proposed

ernment proposed e given question ed Governments rresponding decion.

At the present time, the Soviet Government has informed the Government of the U.S.A. that it expects an early answer to the proposal made about inviting Poland to the conference.

The Soviet Government also informed the Governments of Britain and China that it fully supports the statement of the Polish Provisional Government and trusts that Poland will be given the possibility of participating in the San Francisco conference.

Senators Are Concerned

WASHINGTON, March 31 (AP).—Senators closely concerned with foreign affairs indicated deep regret that the Moscow government had posed such an obstacle to full co-operation in the meeting to set up a world peace agency.

Today's developments also brought this one immediate question to the tip of many tongues: "What effect will this have on the move to accept Argentine into the United Nations?"

It has been expected that the present government of Argentina soon will be recognized by the American republics and that Russia along with the other leading United Nations will be asked to agree to Argentina's becoming a United Nation and being represented in some form at San Francisco.

Moscow all along has been the most outspoken of the United Nations on the pro-Axis charges made against the Argentine government, and it has been expected here that the Soviets would probably want to veto any suggestion that Argentina be included in the California meetings.

Connally Backs Decision

Capitol Hill was surprised at the Russian demand, as most legislators thought the Yalta agreement precluded an invitation to any Polish faction until a new Polish government is formed.

Senator Claude Pepper, Democrat, of Florida, wondered if the Soviet demand was "a negotiatory maneuver or a serious difference of opinion between the three governments." It is one of the many conflicting points that will have to be reconciled if we are to achieve future peace," he said.

Senator Harold H. Burton, Republican, of Ohio, said he did not see how the United States could join in inviting to the San Francisco conference a government which it does not recognize, and Senator Pat McCarran, Democrat, of Nevada, wondered if the Russians "are looking for an excuse for not coming to San Francisco at all."

Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a delegate to San Francisco, said: "I agree with the State Department's attitude with respect to the request of Russia for representation of the Lublin government.'"

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, of Michigan, also a delegate to the San Francisco conference, declined to comment, saying the question was one for settlement by the President and the State Department.

Dominions Confer On Frisco

London, March 31 (AP)—Australia's Deputy Prime Minister, Francis M. Forde, and Dr. H. V. Evatt, Minister of External Affairs, arrived here by plane today from Washington for the conference of Dominion representatives, opening Wednesday, preparatory to the San Francisco security meeting.

BRUSSELS, March 31 (AP)—Justice Samuel Rosenman, special adviser to President Roosevelt, conferred yesterday with Premier Achille van Acker on American exports to Belgium and other questions. The American Ambassador, Charles Sawyer, was present.

U.S. PLANES AID RED DRIVE

Forces From Italy Strike At Austrian Railways

Rome, March 31 (AP)—Fortresses and Liberators of the 15th Air Force attacked Linz in northern Austria and Villach in southern Austria today, boosting their month's bomb tonnage to more than 32,000 tons—a record for the Mediterranean Strategic Air Force.

While the heavies bombed by instruments because of heavy cloud cover, their escorting Mustangs and Lightnings swooped down to strafing level to attack rail targets in the area of Vienna, aiding the Red Army advance near the Austrian capital. Early reports credited the fighters with destruction of at least fifteen locomotives.

Strike Brenner Pass Line

At the same time Mitchells of the tactical air force also struck into Austria, attacking the Brenner Pass railway line at Steinach, 15 miles south of Innsbruck. Other Liberator formations bombed Treviso, 20 miles northwest of Venice, and Thunderbolts hit railway yards east of Verona and near Pavia.

There was no enemy opposition in the air, but there was flak over all targets.

Patrol skirmishes again provided most of the action in the land fighting. On the Senio River east of Bologna there were small-scale clashes at such close quarters that the Germans and troops of the 8th Army were lobbing hand grenades at each other over the high dike that parallels the stream.

Eighth and 5th Army artillery was called on to fire at movement behind the German lines at several points. But there was no indication anywhere that the enemy is withdrawing troops to bolster his collapsing Western front defenses.

NAZIS HOLD IN ITALY

Rome, March 31 (A. P.).—German forces clung stubbornly to their defense arc below Bologna yesterday in the face of numerous Fifth Army patrol stabs, Allied headquarters announced today.

On the Eighth Army front, most of the activity was along the Senior River, where there were a number of grenade duels. One one occasion Eighth Army guns opened up on enemy movements near the Bagnacavallo-Lugo Railway. There were a number of stiff patrol clashes in the mountains south of Highway 9.

The Germans laid down some harassing artillery fire against forward areas along the Fifth Army sector.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS ARE RECEIVED BY POPE

ROME, March 31 (AP)—Thousands of United Nations fighting men were received today by Pope Pius XII in a general audience as the great bell of St. Peter's and those of 400 other churches in Rome rang out, heralding the city's most joyous Easter in years and the first since the Germans were driven out.

Great numbers of the Allied soldiers will attend St. Peter's tomorrow for the Easter mass, which will be celebrated by a Cardinal. The Pontiff, as he has done for the past three years, will celebrate mass privately.

Unseasonably warm spring sunshine bathed the city as the bells began pealing early in the day and continued until noon in the traditional Holy Saturday custom. When the bells began ringing after the conclusion of the Holy Saturday mass, the Pope donned a pair of white cloth slippers that he will wear throughout the next week in accordance with an ancient rite connected with the old liturgical ceremony.

Also following tradition, priests and monks visited thousands of Rome's dwellings, blessing the people's living quarters.

For the first time in many years, the Good Friday procession was revived last night. The procession of the Stations of the Cross followed an itinerary marked out in the thirteenth century by St. Leonard, from Constantine's Basilica, where the Holy Cross relics are enshrined, to St. Bonaventure's Church on the Palatine Hill. A huge crowd followed the procession.

Rome's Easter Bells Ring

Rome, March 31 (AP)—The multitoned bells of Rome's more than 400 churches, led by the big bell of St. Peter's, rang joyously today as the Eternal City began observance of the Easter holiday under an unseasonably warm spring sun.

The bells began ringing early in the morning and continued to noon in the traditional Holy Saturday custom. As St. Peter's rang forth, Pope Pius XII donned a pair of white cloth slippers which he will wear throughout next week in rites connected with an old liturgical ceremony.

CLARK COMMENDS POLES

Praises Troops in Italy and Anders, Their Leader

ROME, March 31 (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark, the Allies' commander in Italy, paid tribute today to men of the Polish Corps on the Italian front in a visit to Gen. Wladyslaw Anders at a Polish decoration ceremony.

"From Sangro to Cassino, to Ancona, Pescara and the plains beyond, you men have fought with bravery, intelligence and enthusiasm to destroy the enemy," General Clark said. "The success of your efforts to date is ample evidence of good soldiering and more conclusive evidence of the highest type of leadership. Thus you have been fortunate in being commanded by that fine officer, General Anders."

A number of Polish soldiers received decorations from General Anders, Commander in Chief of the Polish land, sea and air forces.

Allied Order Called Comical

Vatican City, March 31 (AP)—Osservatore Romano, the Vatican newspaper, said today an Allied order to troops not to fraternize with German civilians was, while understandable for some reasons, "comical" if applied generally.

"It is the same as saying: Getting along together is forbidden or making a fuss is forbidden," the paper said.

It declared that twenty centuries of Christianity must prevail over six years of hatred and, noting dispatches saying Allied soldiers continually were fined for fraternizing, added:

"This instinct and a little nostalgia for love will burst out despite everything, in the last analysis."

In an Easter editorial the newspaper expressed fears that small nations would not enjoy the same rights as big powers in the coming new world, saying that the "old, unchanged man is merely dressed up in new clothes."

The paper called for a return to the principles of Christ.

Fascist Slated For Trial

Rome, March 31 (AP)—Nicola Sansanelli, former secretary-general of the Fascist party, will be tried soon by a high court of justice on the charge of collaborating in the establishment of the dictatorship. He led Fascist strong-arm squads in the party's early days.

Tittmann Honored in Rome

ROME, March 31 (AP).—Harold H. Tittman, assistant to Myron C. Taylor, presidential envoy to the Vatican, was a guest of honor today as decorations were presented to eighty members of a Fighter plane group with wihch Mr. Tittman flew in France in 1918.

Berlin Garrisons 'In Revolt'

Stockholm, March 31 (AP)—Reports which appear reliable indicate that the iron discipline which has held Hitler's Nazi Reich together for more than two years of defeat and smashing Allied air raids is beginning to crumble as Allied armies plunge deeper into Germany.

These reports declare that in various garrison towns around Berlin, soldiers have refused to obey orders to go to the front. Officers were beaten but no shooting was reported. Later, new officers led the troops away.

Nazi officials have been obliged to warn the Germans that those who "forget their duty" or show cowardice will be shot. Courts are taking action against "workbench deserters" and workers who, either bombed out or forced to evacuate by the Allied advance, refuse to report to labor offices for new war assignments within the prescribed 48 hours.

Russia Claims German Labor For Reparations

Moscow, March 31 (AP)—A Pravda writer, saying the Russian people were aroused over the problems of rebuilding wrecked areas in the Soviet Union, declared today that the German reparations-in-kind called for by the Yalta declaration included the employment of German manpower.

"The Germans must rebuild what they wrecked," wrote Boris Izakov. "President Roosevelt called this a healthy idea. This simple, rational idea now has received almost world acknowledgment."

[President Roosevelt told a press conference March 2, after his return from Yalta, that while the use of German labor for reconstruction in Russia did not come under general reparations, it might not be a bad idea to use some German ex-soldiers to clean up some of the mess he saw in the Crimea.]

Stockholm, March 31 (AP)—The newspaper Morgontidningen printed a Bern dispatch today saying that Berchtesgaden now serves as "the German Reich's seat of Government." Without citing its authority, the dispatch said Hitler, Heinrich Himmler and all other leading Nazis were at the mountain hideout.

German High Command Seeks Hitler Ouster: Stockholm

Stockholm, March 31 (AP)—In a dispatch unattributed as to source but which was believed to have originated from the "Radio Atlantic," the Stockholms Tidningen said today that German high command had advised Hitler that continuation of the war was impossible and had suggested that his government resign preparatory to negotiations for an armistice.

There was no support elsewhere for this report. "Radio Atlantic" is a clandestine anti-Nazi, German language station whose exact status has never been announced.

The newspaper account said Hitler and his war council were told that German armies in the West were dissolving and the troops were out of control; that the Volkssturm had failed and its members were surrendering in great numbers.

It added that fuel supplies were exhausted and food for troops was insufficient, with the result that some German forces had lived on emergency rations for the past week.

The newspaper said the high command was also supposed to have advised that the situation in the East could be expected to deteriorate rapidly as soon as the Russians launched another offensive.

"With the presentation of these facts it was necessary to state the Nazi leadership has lost the war and must draw the consequences," the story continued.

The account said that the generals were prepared to begin armistice negotiations immediately on condition that the Hitler Government resign in a body and placed itself at the disposition of the generals.

Benes Leaves Moscow

MOSCOW, March 31 (AP)—President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia and members of his Government left Moscow by special train tonight. M. Benes announced recently that the Government would be set up shortly in liberated Kosice.

2600 Freed Yanks Have Left Odessa

Moscow, March 31 (A. P.).—The United States Military Mission said today that 2,600 American former prisoners of war had been moved out of the repatriation port of Odessa thus far. Several hundred are still to be transferred to Odessa from various sectors of Poland. The prisoners, captured by the Germans, were released as the Russian Army overran prison camps in its sweep westward.

Soviet Marshals To Get High Honor

Moscow, March 31 (AP)—The Supreme Soviet declared today that Marshals Gregory K. Zhukov, Konstantin K. Rokossovsky and Ivan S. Konev will get the highly coveted jeweled "Order of Victory" for their part in the Russian offensive.

Zhukov's 1st White Russian forces are aligned along the Oder River, east of Berlin, after a drive through western Poland. Rokossovsky has sliced up eastern Pomerania and southern East Prussia with his 2d White Russian Army and Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army has been carving out big gains in Silesia.

Easter Brighter In Palestine

Jerusalem, March 31 (AP)—American and other Allied soldiers will be among the thousands who will pay Easter homage tomorrow morning at the Holy Sepulchre, with at least part of the world for the first time in years on the threshold of peace.

Many Allied soldiers walked in the historic Via Dolorosa procession yesterday and joined in Good Friday services where they heard the hope expressed with confidence that this would be the last wartime Easter.

Congressman Present

United States Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) who is on a tour checking Government bureau operations for the House Appropriations Committee, was among them. He reported seeing at least one group of 200 American soldiers who came from the Persian Gulf, Egypt and Italy for Easter rites in the Holy City.

The soldiers will attend high mass at the Holy Sepulchre and kneel before Christ's tomb in a special chapel in the middle of the high rotunda inclosed by shining yellow and white marble.

Those who throng from historic Paffa Gate or through the Arab market will find nothing new in the customary Easter walk, but those who approach the sepulchre from the direction of Gethsemane, from the south, and through the Via Dolorosa will find a change at the Sixth Station.

Exhibition Of Models

The Sixth Station is the one where, according to Christian tradition, a Jewish woman wiped the blood-covered forehead of Jesus while he was being thrust toward Golgotha. In the time of the Crusaders a chapel was built here and for the last few months it has housed a Rockefeller Museum exhibition of drawings, plans and models giving a picture of Jerusalem in the time of Christ.

The exhibition includes a reproduction of the Crown of Thorns that Jesus wore, made of Palestine thistles. There is a model of Christ's grave covered with a massive stone.

This year, more than ever, an aura of peace is over Jerusalem, which in the course of the last 4,000 years has been destroyed seventeen times and conquered 36 times. This time the Holy City has been spared destruction.

Important News Due: Cairo Paper

Cairo, March 31 (AP)—The Cairo newspaper Akbar el Yom said today that radio stations throughout the world would have an "announcement of the greatest importance" at 9 A.M. Sunday.

[Radio chains in the United States said they had heard nothing of such an expected announcement.]

ALLIED FORCES SEIZE KYAUKSE

CALCUTTA, March 31 — (AP) Japanese resistance is crumbling in the entire central Burma pocket and, with the major escape routes sealed, there appeared every prospect today that between 20,000 and 30,000 enemy troops might be liquidated as soon as the Allied command is ready to draw tight its cordons of British, Indian and Chinese troops.

Kyaukse, key point on the main Burmese railway line 24 miles south of Mandalay, is now in British hands. Japanese commanders evidently are seeking to recoup. Kyaukse was occupied after a bitter two-week battle, clearing the enemy from the railway line for a 70-mile stretch from Mandalay south to Thazi with the exception of one block.

West of the railway a British Armored column driving northwest from Pyinzi, almost due south of Mandalay, licked up with elements punching southeast from Myotha to trap still another Japanese di- within the bend of the Ir-vision rawaddy river.

Farther south the enemy ceased attacks on the Meiktila airstrips and there were signs that the main body was withdrawing northeastward in the direction of the railway. Another withdrawal southeast from Kyaukse was being covered by strong rear guards but it appeared unlikely either force would be able to escape the Allied noose in any strength.

In smaller actions southwest of Mandalay Fourteenth Army units cleared the Japanese from hill positions dominating the Myingyan-Meiktila road at Taungtha, and entered Nahlaing, another road and rail point 20 miles northwest of Meiktila. Other troops captured Natogyi, 12 miles east of Myingyan on the road to the main north-south railway.

Medium bombers and fighter bombers gave support to the Central Burma actions and also attacked targets in the Arakan district.

British Units Merge In Central Burma

Calcutta, March 31 (AP)—British 14th Army troops driving south in central Burma have captured Kyaukse and established contact with forces heading north from the Meiktila area, trapping Japanese forces hemmed in between that area and Allied positions along the Irrawaddy River to the west.

The Japanese were compressed into an ever-narrowing pocket. Strong enemy rearguard units battled savagely southeast of Kyaukse to cover the main body's withdrawal from the city, which is 24 miles south of Mandalay on the main trunk road and railway, the South east Asia command communique announced.

Positions Overrun

The linkup of the two British forces was established at a point 10 miles northeast of Meiktila. The town of Mahlaing, 20 miles north west of Meiktila, was entered early yesterday. Several more enemy gun positions in the Meiktila area were overrun.

Enemy positions in the hills overlooking the road from Myingyang to Meiktila at Taungtha, 12 miles southeast of Myingyang, have been cleared. The advance here forged the western jaw of the trap. The British captured Natogyi, 18 miles east of Myingyang on the road to the main north-south highway.

Allied aircraft ranged over many parts of Burma yesterday, attacking Japanese storage areas and rail installations.

Gandhi In Bombay For Fund Meeting

Bombay, March 31 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi arrived here today to attend meetings with trustees of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund. Traveling third class as usual, the Nationalist leader alighted from his train at a grade-crossing outside Bombay in order to avoid demonstrations.

Although his visit was concerned primarily with the fund—established in the name of his late wife for the benefit of Indian women—Gandhi was expected to receive a few leaders of the Congress party, including Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan, the "frontier Gandhi."

NEGROS ISLAND CAPITAL FALLS

Yank Speed Keeps Japs From Exploding Demolitions

Manila, Sunday, April 1 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Division Infantry, moving so fast Japanese were unable to explode prepared demolition charges, captured Bacolod, capital city of Negros Island, Friday while Gen. Douglas MacArthur's land-based planes destroyed fourteen ships, including three destroyers, as they pursued their aerial blockade of the Chinese coast.

The Yanks seized Bacolod, population 50,000, on the second day of their invasion of Negros, last large enemy-held island in the Philippines. With capture of the capital city, only three Philippines cities of comparable size—Baguio and Legaspi on Luzon and Davao on Mindanao—remain in Japanese hands. Two of those, Baguio and Davao, were heavily bombed, and 1st Corps troops pushed 3 miles nearer Baguio along the Naguilian-Baguio road.

Two Rivers Crossed

Bacolod represented a 14-mile advance by the Yanks, who landed that distance south of the Negros capital city and pushed both north and south along the coast.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, announcing the capture today, said Brush's division crossed two rivers, the Magsungay and Lupit—saving all bridges in so doing—as they made a sweeping envelopment to seize Bacolod.

The city was prepared by the Japanese for destrutcion, he said, "but speed of the attack saved it before demolition charges could be exploded."

Three enemy fighter planes were captured intact.

Small Jap Group Reduced

Fast mechanized units now are ranging 6 miles to the north toward Talisay airfield, representing a gain of 20 miles from the beachhead at the mouth of Bago River.

A small enemy group inland near Murcia was being reduced, MacArthur said in his only mention of fighting in the Bacolod sector.

Supporting the ground operation, aerial units destroyed many enemy trucks and vehicles and large quantities of fuel and supplies, MacArthur added.

On Cebu, the American Division was engaged in cleaning out Japanese pockets north of Lahog airfield.

Large Fires On Legaspi

An enemy attempt to infiltrate Yank positions at Pardo was repulsed.

MacArthur announced 1,262 additional enemy dead were counted in the Zambales range on the west central Luzon coast. This increased to slightly more than 300,000 the number of Japanese reported killed by MacArthur's forces since beginning of the Philippines campaign last October.

The aerial attack on Legaspi, with more than 320 tons of bombs, wrecked enemy defenses and caused large fires and explosions.

Other air patrols, sweeping the Cagayan valley in the north, destroyed motor vehicles and damaged road installations.

Yanks Battle Hard For Small Isle

Manila, March 31 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th Division of the 8th Army landed Thursday against light opposition on Negros, last remaining major Philippine Island under Japanese control, seized an airstrip and menaced the insular capital, Bacolod.

Other Yanks had to fight hard, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today, to take tiny Caballo Island, which is within rifle range of famed Corregidor and Manila Bay.

With the invasion of Negros, MacArthur asserted the enemy in the Visayan Island group "seems bewildered and his defense is rapidly collapsing." Negros is a part of the Visayas. Masbate and Bohol are the only remaining large islands of the group that have not been invaded by United States forces.

Crossed Strait

Brush's doughboys crossed Guimaras Strait eastward from Guimaras Island, between American-controlled Panay and Negros, and went ashore near the mouth of the Bago River. One column pushed northward along the coast to take the airstrip and approach the capital city of 50,000, while another column turned southward, capturing two places and making contact with guerrillas.

The landing parties were supported by nevel gunfire and 13th Air Force planes.

Negros, more than 120 miles long and 50 miles at its widest part, is one of the biggest sugar producers in the Philippines.

Japs Dug In On Cebu

On Cebu Island the American division overcame moderate resistance at Guadalupe, and also joined up with guerrillas. Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz reported the Japanese were well dug in on the hills behind Cebu City and said the cleanup there would take time.

The taking of tiny Caballo Island entailed the use of navy guns, Howitzers of the 163d Field Artillery on Corregidor, 5th Air Force planes and elements of the 38th Division.

An estimated 500 Japanese were on the island. About 220 were killed in the landing assault and in encounters immediately afterward.

Caves Collapse

Nipponese who survived these assaults withdrew into caves and tunnels of a hill which the Americans promptly charged. After a lively machine-gun fight the Yanks managed to collapse the caves and bury the enemy.

In northern Luzon, the 25th Division made a flanking movement on Balete Pass but met stiff enemy resistance. In southern Luzon, 1st Cavalry units captured the historic Spanish town of Lipa, which the Japanese had burned, then continued their advance into Batangas province.

Yank flyers worked on Nipponese positions all the way from Mindanao to Macassar Straits, where they sank or damaged nine enemy ships, including two destroyers, Wednesday. Mitchell bombers pounded railroads along the French Indo China coast.

Jap Ships Blasted In Makassar Straits

Manila, March 31 (A. P.).—Thirteenth Airforce Liberators, led by Col. Clifford H. Rees of Cynthia, Ky., sank or damaged nine Japanese ships Wednesday in Makassar Straits near Dutch Celebes. The successful raid, including the sinking of an enemy destroyer, was disclosed today by headquarters.

No Tougher Fight Ahead

PEARL HARBOR, March 31 (AP).—Iwo Jima not only was the toughest fight the marines have had in their 168 years of existence, but they will probably have no tougher combat in the next 500 years, Lieutenant General Holland M. Smith said in awarding Purple Hearts to Iwo wounded. Twenty-one generals, admirals and commodores required almost two hours to pin the medals on the chests of men at the Aiea Naval Hospital yesterday.

Smith told Private First Class Donnie J. Adams, of Waldron, Ark., that the famous picture taken by Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal showing the American flag being raised on Mount Suribachi on Iwo would probably be cast into a monument, after Adams related that he participated in the Suribachi action with the 28th Regiment of the 5th Division.

Allied Fleet Steps Up Assault on the Ryukyus

Tokyo Reports Huge Invasion 'Armada' Moving in for Landings on Okinawa—Aircraft, Guns of Allied Navy Pound Shore Installations.

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

GUAM, Sunday, April 1 — (AP) The thundering Allied fleet and air attacks on the Ryukyu island bridge to Japan apparently neared a peak of fury today as Tokyo declared an invasion "Armada" was moving on the key island, Okinawa.

Aircraft and guns of the combined American and British Pacific fleets, operating under the U. S. Fifth fleet command of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, struck all along the Ryukyu chain.

As the attack went through its 19th consecutive day yesterday, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz issued two communiqués indicating the assault was being intensified. There was reason to believe its intensity had reached a degree hitherto unmatched in the Pacific war.

But Nimitz still made no mention of a landing.

U. S. warships and planes centered their shelling and bombing on Okinawa "at close range."

"Seawalls were breached by gunfire," the announcement added, "and defense, gun positions, airfields and bridges were heavily hit."

Okinawa was shrouded by thick layers of smoke, Associated Press Correspondent Hamilton Faron reported.

Faron, aboard Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's carrier force flagship, said there was no sign of activity among the island's nearly half million population and thousands of defending troops.

The dispatch added that it was presumed that Japanese soldiers and civilians, acting on orders from Tokyo, were saving their strength to resist landing forces. They were believed hiding in caves and in the rugged valleys of northern Okinawa.

While the American ships and carrier aircraft hammered the northern Ryukyus the British fleet attacked the southern Sakishima group.

American B-29 Superfortresses joined in the general attack by flying from Marianas bases in large force yesterday to hit Kyushu airfields. A smaller force raided Nagoya, Japan's great aircraft production center on Honshu.

Invasion jittery Tokyo, in addition to reporting that "a powerful transport armada" was moving up on Okinawa behind the American warships, announced a "drastic shuffle" of home island army commanders.

Nimitz' communiques reported new destruction of enemy ships and aircraft—seen here as an indication the Japanese were desperately trying to send reinforcements to the Ryukyus.

U.S. Transports Near Okinawa: Japs

Guam, March 31 (AP)—Japanese broadcasts today reported American transports were moving into the Okinawa area in the Ryukyu Islands as American mine sweepers went into action "preparing for landing operations" behind heavy naval bombardments.

Admiral Chester Nimitz announced, meanwhile, that the combined United States and British Pacific fleets were continuing their terrific pounding of Japan's Ryukyu chain.

Carrier aircraft and warship guns of Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's United States 5th Fleet carried their blazing attack into the ninth consecutive day.

Centered On Okinawa

They were centering their rain of bombs and shells on the Ryukyus' principal island of Okinawa, 325 miles south of Japan's mainland.

Nimitz still made no mention of the Japanese reports of attempted American landings on the Ryukyus.

Domei said "about fifteen battleships and other heavy warships" have joined American naval forces already in the Okinawa area.

"A powerful transport armada is following close behind the enemy task force," Domei said. "Apparently having learned a lesson in the Iwo Island operations, the enemy is proceeding cautiously."

Minesweepers Active

"Okinawa Island is being heavily pounded by warships and planes. Enemy minesweepers are active, preparing for landing operations, but no landings have been attempted yet."

Imperial headquarters, noted for exaggerated claims of American naval losses, asserted 30 United States warships have been sunk and 20 damaged. The unconfirmed communiqué listed as sunk two carriers, a battleship, four cruisers, six destroyers, one transport and 16 unidentified craft.

Japanese headquarters said Allied carrier-plane attacks were broken off last night after eight days of raiding southern Japan and the 700-mile-long Ryukyu archipelago.

Torpedo-Boat Attack

Tokyo radio reported that a fleet of torpedo boats made a dawn attack today against Admiral Spruance's fleet, which has been roaming through the Ryukyus almost unchallenged.

Such an attack, which Tokyo said was supported by the "air force special attack (suicide) corps," would be the third of its kind this week against Spruance's fleet, which includes Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier force.

Nimitz's earlier communiqué reported that four Jap motor torpedo boats and seventeen planes were destroyed in a similar attack on the American warships Wednesday night and Thursday. The previous day, the admiral said, a similar onslaught was repelled. He made no mention of any damage to American ships in either raid.

Okinawa Attacks Continuing

Aboard Vice Admiral Mitscher's United States 5th Fleet Carrier Force Flagship, March 27 [AP—Delayed]—Great clouds of smoke blackened out Okinawa today while ships and aircraft of this powerful American naval force continued their 'round-the-clock pounding of the Ryukyu Islands approach to southern Japan.

Bombers in the prolonged assault on Okinawa, the largest island of the chain, darted through rifts in the smoke to drop their deadly "eggs." Some were forced to use instruments to fly out of the thick smoke.

Little Opposition

The Yank flyers continued to find little opposition and no signs of activity among the island's population of nearly half a million. Likewise, there was no evidence of activity among the thousands of Japanese troops believed on the island.

It seemed likely that Japanese soldiers and civilians had gone underground or were hiding in the rugged northern valleys. They were apparently conserving their strength on orders from Tokyo, which has reported an invasion is imminent.

Vessels Sunk

Meantime, ships and planes, pounding the entire island chain, sank more than a score of enemy vessels. Most were small. The best bag was the heavy damaging of three destroyers and a freighter-transport caught heading south from Japan.

Warships also turned their big guns on Minami Daito Jima, eastern outpost of the Ryukus, in a bombardment that continued throughout last night.

756 Jap Planes And 34 Ships, Bag For 13 Days

Guam, March 31 (AP)—Some 756 Japanese aircraft have been destroyed and 34 ships sent to the bottom by American-Pacific Fleet warship guns and carrier planes in the last thirteen days of attacks on the Ryukyus and southwestern Japan.

In the period, which covers the nine days of sustained blows against the Ryukyus, fourteen other enemy ships were probably sunk and 43 damaged. Some 217 aircraft were damaged in addition to the 756 shot out of the air or definitely destroyed on the ground.

Pacific Fleet communiqués, from which the above figures were compiled, reported loss of fifteen American carrier planes. One destroyer and another "smaller unit" were listed as seriously damaged. One "larger unit" received minor damage.

FREDERICK C. PAINTON, CORRESPONDENT, DIES

GUAM, Sunday, April 1 (AP)—Frederick C. Painton, Readers Digest correspondent in the Pacific and author of fiction for The Saturday Evening Post and other magazines, died early yesterday of a heart attack at the age of 49.

Mr. Painton was buried in a military cemetery overlooking the village and beach of Agat. The press corps at Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's advanced headquarters attended the simple services. Marines fired a salute and sounded Taps.

Mr. Painton had come into the Pacific after serving The Digest as correspondent in North Africa, Italy and France.

He became ill in the Philippines after working and living with B-29 crews. His home was in Westport, Conn. He began his newspaper career in Elmira, N. Y., with Alan J. Gould, now assistant general manager and executive news editor of The Associated Press.

Services Slated For Yanks In Guam

Guam, March 31 (AP)—Under woven palm fronds, corrugated iron roofs, tenting canvas and open skies, American service men will join the devout people of Guam in the observance of Easter Sunday.

In more than 100 chapels special services will be held for Army, Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

Special services will be held for Iwo casualties in fleet hospital wards.

Bishop Miguel Angel de Olano, vicar apostolic of Guam, who returned last week after more than three years of Japanese-decreed exile, will offer the first important public mass.

B-29'S STRIKE 2 JAP ISLANDS

Kyushu And Honshu Pounded By 150 Huge Bombers

Guam, Sunday, April 1 (AP)—Superfortresses, in twin blows against prime industrial targets and military objectives in the Japanese homeland, bombed Kyushu and Honshu Islands Saturday.

A large force, estimated at about 150 of the sky mammoths, rained bombs on Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's main island chain. A smaller force returned to the attack on Honshu Island, again hitting Nagoya, the great industrial city and a center of Nippon's aircraft production.

Plane Plants Are Goa.

Radio Tokyo, noting the superfort blows against southern Japan's "airfield and airfield installations," guessed that the attacks were in support of "landing attempts" at Okinawa, in the strategic Ryukyu chain which extends southwest ward from Kyushu to Formosa.

The Saturday daylight mission to Kyushu was a precision bombing raid against such targets as the Tachiarai machine shops and the Oita airfield on the east coast. It was the second B-29 strike there in four days.

An American communiqué said the latest Kyushu strike against important air installations and that B-29 crewmen reported "good" results. Flak fire was intense and fighter opposition from weak to moderate. None of the Superfortresses was lost in combat. Gunners of the Yank planes shot down two Japanese aircraft, probably destroyed three, and damaged eight.

Raiders Return Safely

The Nagoya raid was staged around 1 A.M. Saturday. That great industrial city twice recently has undergone mass incendiary raids aimed primarily against aircraft plants.

The 20th Air Force announced in Washington that all of the Nagoya raiders returned safely to their Marianas bases after striking at plane production targets, including the Mitsubushi aircraft engine plant. This raid also was by precision instruments.

Good results were obtained in the raid, the 20th Air Force said. Japanese fighter opposition ranged from weak to moderate, while anti-aircraft fire in some areas was intense. The B-39's shot down two enemy planes, probably destroyed three, and damaged eight.

Pictures Show Wide Ruin

Superfortress headquarters here reported reconnaissance photographs of the March 28 attack against the Tachiarai and Oita airfields and the Omura aircraft factory showed American flyers left widespread ruin in target areas. Eight or nine hangars at Tachiarai were destroyed or damaged. Numerous buildings in the machine-shop area were hit. Forty-one grounded planes were wrecked and five damaged.

At Oita, four hangars and a like number of other buildings were damaged, while three reveted structures were destroyed. The airfield there received 84 bomb hits. Ten planes were damaged.

Damage at Omura covered two assembly buildings, three machine shops and several other structures.

B-29's Attack Honshu And Kyushu

By Morrie Landsberg

21st Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam, March 31 (AP)—A large force of Superforts attacked Kyushu, westernmost of the Japanese main islands today in the second daylight precision bombing mission in four days while other B-29's hit Honshu.

A small force of B-29's flying from bases in the Marianas returned to blast the industrial target of Nagoya, Japanese aircraft center on Honshu which already has been subjected to the incendiary raids of the big bombers.

[The 20th Air Force headquarters in Washington reported today that the Nagoya raiders bombed through an overcast and returned to their bases without loss. Results were unobserved.]

Concentrate On Airfields

Radio Tokyo said the multiplying Superfort blows at southern Japan "were concentrated mainly on airfields and airfield facilities" in support of "landing attempts on Okinawa" in the Ryukyu chain.

Military and industrial targets picked out by the larger formation including the Tachiarai machine shops and the Oita airfield on the eastern coast.

Results were yet to be observed in the Nagoya strike, but reconnaissance photographs of the March 28 mission against Tachiarai and Oita airfields and the Omura aircraft factory showed widespread damage to installations.

Eight Hangars Hit

At Tachiarai eight of nine hangars were damaged or destroyed in addition to numerous buildings in the shop area. Forty-one enemy aircraft were destroyed on the ground and five more were damaged.

Four of the Oita hangars and four general type buildings were damaged and three reveted buildings were wiped out. Ten aircraft were damaged. Eighty-four bomb hits were visible on the flying field.

Two assembly buildings and three machine shops and several miscellaneous buildings were damaged at Omura.

Seeks Separate Vote.

Melbourne, Australia, March 31 (A. P.).—Australia is seeking a separate vote at the San Francisco conference, the Melbourne Sun's political correspondent asserted today.

The Sun's correspondent said it is Prime Minister John Curtin's view it would be incongruous for smaller nations—which never have taken part in this war—to have a vote in the San Francisco conference unless Australia had a separate vote.

Children Choose Australia

Canberra, March 31 (AP)—A survey has shown that at least a third of the British evacuee children wish to remain in Australia after the war—200 out of 570 between 5 and 15 who left home at the height of the Blitz.

7 SABOTEURS SEIZED

Santiago, March 31 (A. P.).—La Nacion said today that seven members of a Nazi sabotage ring which the newspaper linked with an abortive attempt to blow up the Panama Canal had been arrested and were being held incommunicado. Yesterday the newspaper reported that a German saboteur named Von Appen had been arrested in the purported plot to blow up the canal with an explosive-loaded ship. The publication said the saboteur organization had branches in all American countries, and named Ludwig Von Bohlen, former air attache of the German embassy in Chile, as the master mind. The paper gave no explanation of how the reported plot was foiled.

TOKYO REPORTS RESHUFFLING OF 71 JAP GENERALS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31—(AP) While American Superforts bombed Japan and U. S. and British warships pounded the Ryukyu islands south of the enemy homeland, Tokyo radio today reported a "drastic reshuffle" of Nipponese generals.

A broadcast heard by the FCC said 19 lieutenant generals and 52 major generals were given new assignments in the "resolute" move to "transfer the homeland into a battlefield."

The Tokyo radio insisted that continuing Allied fleet attacks in the Ryukyus presaged an imminent American invasion attempt at Okinawa, principal island midway in the chain stretching 700 miles southwestward from Japan to Formosa.

In another broadcast following Superfort attacks on Honshu and Kyushu islands of Japan, Tokyo said the Nipponese government announced it would start tomorrow paying all passenger and freight fares for evacuees fleeing bombed cities.

Gen. (Piro) Minami, member of the Japanese supreme war council and president of Nippon's new totalitarian party, the Political Association of Great Japan, said his organization would not be a "yes" organ of the government.

The new political party yesterday was installed as successor of the Imperial Rule Assistance Political society. Organization of the new group as a "sure victory" party followed sharp criticism of Premier Kuniaki Koiso's war policies.

Jap Generals Subjected To 'Drastic Reshuffle'

San Francisco, March 31 (AP)—Japan today announced a "drastic reshuffle" of generals in "the resolute determination of the Army to transfer the homeland into a battlefield."

The shuffle, announced by Domei agency in a dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, involved commands of 71 home islands regimental districts and recruiting bureaus.

This move, the dispatch said, was made at a moment when "enemy America is probing our Ryukyu Islands and war clouds are hanging heavily over our mainland."

New assignments went to 19 lieutenant generals and 52 major generals.

Japs Shake Up East Asia Ministry

San Francisco, March 31 (AP)—A thoroughgoing shakeup of Japan's Greater East Asia Ministry was announced today by the Japanese Domei news agency.

The Ministry handles the civil administration of Japan's shrinking occupied areas and the China mainland, which has virtually been severed from the Japanese homeland by Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's recent 5th Fleet activities.

One third of the Ministry's personnel has been dropped, said the Domei broadcast, which was intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

Von Seidlitz Reported Divorced

New York, March 31 (AP)—A Berlin broadcast said today the wife of Gen. Walter von Seidlitz had received a divorce on grounds her husband was "considered to have dishonored himself" by playing a leading part in the Free Germany Committee in Moscow. Von Seidlitz is vice president of the committee and president of the Union of German Officers.

1,142,224 Germans Captured By Allies Since December 16

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Allied armies on the eastern and western fronts have captured at least 1,142,224 Germans since Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt launched his last-ditch offensive against Eisenhower's troops, a recapitulation of the latest official figures showed last night.

During the period, including the defensive battle of the bulge and the subsequent smashing of the Nazis' Rhine line, Allied troops on the western front up to Saturday had taken 552,261 prisoners. Available official counts from the various Russian fronts for the same general period totalled 589,963.

Since the landings in Normandy American, British, Canadian and French forces under Eisenhower have captured 1,362,268 prisoners.

The latest official recapitulation for the entire war, given by British War Secretary Sir James Grigg in the House of Commons March 20, was 1,860,000 Germans captured by the Allies, exclusive of Russia, since September, 1939.

Russian announcements up to that time total more than 12,000,000 killed or captured with the number of prisoners not specified.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's U. S. Third Army has announced for the greatest bag on the Western front since Dec. 16. Counting the 25,000 taken Friday the Third army has captured a total of 224,450 during that period.

Other totals for the same period on the Western front were: U. S. First army 123,389; U. S. Ninth, 40,553; U. S. Seventh, 96,933; Canadian First 25,061; British Second, 23,783; French First 11,092, and Allied First Airborne 7,000.

Truk Suggested Base For British Pacific Fleet

Washington, March 31 (AP)—The Army And Navy Journal reported today that there is talk in British circles of taking the Japanese base at Truk for use by England's fleet in the Pacific.

The heavily fortified Truk group of islands was bypassed in the American advance through the Pacific.

The unofficial service Journal noting the increased activity of the British fleet in the Pacific, said the inactivity of that fleet in the past had been due to a lack of operational bases.

"We may expect, therefore, that the British plans call for the seizure of strategic islands in the Dutch East Indies and the recapture of Singapore," the Journal said.

"In British circles there is even talk of establishing a base at Truk, which Admiral Nimitz bypassed.

Truk is still garrisoned by a strong force of Japanese.

452 PACIFIC NATIVES SAVED FROM DEATH

WASHINGTON, March 31 (AP)—The Navy told today how a group of 452 Marshall Island natives, threatened with slaughter by their Japanese captors, was snatched to safety recently in a dramatic rescue operation.

The group made up the entire native population of the atoll of Maloelap, still held by the enemy nearly a year after American forces landed in the Marshalls. In the excitement the king of the atoll fell dead.

The rescue started with receipt of a report that the Japanese were threatening to decapitate the entire group, apparently because food was running short and the Japanese knew their by-passed garrison had little chance of getting supplies from home.

It was learned that a number of the Maloelap natives had congregated on Bebi Island. Capt Harold B. Grow of Warrington Fla., arrived to direct the operations. When Captain Grow's LCI beached at Bebi at dawn, it was greeted by the venerable Moses, octogenarian King of Maloelap, who came out through the surf, climbed aboard the landing craft and said: "We are happy you have come." When he waded back through the surf to tell his subjects to board the LCI, however, the excitement proved too much for him and he dropped dead.

Rescue operations continued through the next night while American planes diverted the attention of the Japanese garrison with some businesslike bombing.

Pan-American Union Accepts Argentine Lineup Note

Washington, March 31 (AP)—The Pan-American Union governing board today accepted "with satisfaction" a communication from the Argentine Government looking to adherence to the Western Hemisphere agreements of Mexico City.

The action apparently paved the way for early recognition of the Farrell Government at Buenos Aires by the United States and other American nations which have withheld recognition.

Approves Of Measures

The resolution adopted by the Pan-American Union board said it had "noted with satisfaction the measures adopted by the Argentine Government as well as those subsequently taken" in connection with Argentine declaration of war against the Axis this week and the decision to adhere to the acts of the recent Mexico conference of American republics.

The board asked the director general of the Union to send the Argentine communication and its resolution to Mexican Foreign Minister Padilla "with a view to the signature by Argentina of the final act of the conference of Mexico."

Areas Before Board

Argentina's Charge D'Affaires, Garcia Arias, appeared before the board to point out that the union now had before it the official Government decree in which Argentina informed the Union of measures it was taking for the security of the hemisphere.

Dr. Eduardo Garland, Peruvian minister-counselor, presented the resolution adopted by the board today, expressing deep pleasure in seeing again "the great American family reunited."

Nelson A. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State, represented this country at the board session.

Reich 'Surrender Regime' Needed

Washington, March 31 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal said today the Allies may have to "create" a new German government for the purpose of formally accepting the unconditional surrender demand.

The unofficial service publication said that if Hitler is driven into the mountains with a band of fanatical followers he cannot be regarded as the government.

The new government might be created "by enlarging the von Paulus group which Stalin is sponsoring," or effecting "an organization which he would approve," the Journal said.

[This referred to a group of German generals and other Wehrmacht officers captured by the Russians who have been appealing to Germany to surrender.]

Under AMG Control

Whether or not a new German government is set up, the country will be under control of an Allied Military Government when enemy resistance is broken, the Journal said.

Purporting to describe the setup of the control council, the Journal reported that each military commander of the four powers will have a deputy and that, "in conformity with the German system of ten departments, there will be ten divisions also controlled by groups of four Allied officers, except in the case of that relating to political affairs, which will be directed by four Allied civilians."

Nazi Personnel

Assisting these groups will be operating units, the personnel of which will be non-Nazi, said the Journal.

[Those familiar with the situation say that several thousand American officers, most of them trained at the Charlottesville (Va.) School of Military Government, will be included in the organization. Some of them will be located with the headquarters at Berlin and others in the zones of occupation.]

Secret Offer Discussed

Asserting that it is becoming apparent that there will be no surrender by the Hitler regime, but rather by a coterie of officers claiming to represent Germany, the Journal commented:

"This is the conclusion to be drawn from a secret offer made by General von Rundstedt (former German commander on the Western front), and such of his men as he controls, to lay down their arms and be allowed to return home, an offer which could not be acted upon before he disappeared.

"Because the Allies are agreed that there be no separate peace, it was necessary for them to discuss between themselves what, if any, modifications should be made in the Rundstedt proposal. Before their reply could be formulated or communicated to the German officer, he was no longer available for contact. In command was General Kesselring, a devoted Hitlerite . . . from whom no surrender is likely."

'Little W. P. B.s' Planned In Rehabilitating Europe

Elliott Says Aim Is Best Use of Remaining Resources

WASHINGTON, March 31 (UP).—High civilian officials are considering a plan to establish "little War Production Boards" in each of Europe's devastated countries."

They would be designed to make the best use of what is left of the industrial resources of those countries, in order to make the Continent self-sustaining.

William Y. Elliott, W. P. B. vice-chairman in charge of civilian requirements, said in an interview that these plans contemplate expansion of membership in the Anglo-American-Canadian Combined Production and Resources Board, which would act as the over-all co-ordinating agency.

Many high United Nations diplomatic and economic officials favor the plan, Mr. Elliott said. He named as among them William L. Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of economic affairs, and French Supply Minister Jean Monnet.

As chief of United States civilian requirements, Mr. Elliott said, his prime interest in tying European industry in with Allied industry is to "take the relief load off of us."

Rhine-Crossing Boats Shipped Only Recently

New York, March 31 (AP)—Some of the small boats in which American troops crossed the Rhine left the New York port of embarkation less than a month ago, Maj. Gen. Homer M. Groninger, port commander, disclosed today.

Groninger said shipments from the port to the European theater since January 1 included hundreds of small boats and outboard motors and scores of bridges and thousands of tons of other stream-crossing equipment.

Nearly 700 of the 16-foot 9-inch plywood storm boats which spearheaded the first Rhine crossing were still in production in Florida, Michigan and Minnesota when an urgent request for them was received from the European theater, Groninger said.

Army Began Devising Span Last August; Rehearsals Held on Columbia River

RUFUS, Ore., March 31 (AP).—It was no surprise to residents of this Columbia River hamlet that American soldiers were able to bridge the Rhine in around seven hours.

For months they had been watching United States Army engineer forces build the bridge and push it across the Columbia in practice here. At this point the river and surrounding country resemble the Rhine and its environs.

When the laboratory job was finished Lieutenant Colonel G. S. Witters, who directed it, said: "There's your bridge. It should get our troops and their heavy equipment across the Rhine without trouble. And we should be able to set it up in about seven hours."

The engineers were directed last August to devise the bridge. They were told it must be transported over rough terrain, be capable of supporting a heavy, concentrated load and be so constructed that field troops could get it up in a hurry. It must, the orders read, support the Army's new forty-five-ton M-26 tank.

Aided by a French engineer who knew the Rhine country and an American who had thrown bridges over the Rhone in France and over Italian streams, the test crew set out. They started with a design tested at Yuma, Ariz., after discarding the famed English Bailey bridge.

They found the sixty-foot pontoon was too long to handle in rough terrain. So they cut it in two. They worked out what the colonel described as "controlled articulation." This permitted distribution of concentrated weight over eight pontoons. A new scheme for connecting pontoon sections was worked out.

The tested bridge, Colonel Witters said, will support a concentrated load of fifty-four tons.

Henry J. Kaiser, the industrialist, was called in when the design was perfected to build some of the 4,000 pontoons needed. It was planned that fifty-six complete bridges, costing about $120,000,000, would be built. The pilot bridge across the Columbia cost $34,000,000, Colonel Witters said.

Weeks before American forces had reached the Rhine the testing and construction job was done. Colonel Witters said: "We have developed the best type of floating bridge in the world, and we confidently expect that it will do a job in passing American armies across the Rhine on their way to Berlin."

BYRNES PROMISES CIVILIAN RELIEF AFTER NAZIS FALL

Ban on Horse Racing Will Be Lifted When War Ends in Europe.

RATIONING TO CONTINUE

Says Reconversion Machinery Ready, Taxes to Remain Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—(AP) James F. Byrnes told the American people today that the nation's factories will be free to produce nearly a third more civilian goods within nine months after Germany falls.

This is a slower reconversion rate than was expected last fall.

Nevertheless it means that, even before Japan is whipped, Americans should be able to buy in limited amounts many items, from automobiles on down, which they have been denied for years. Of course there will be a wait while materials are being processed into finished goods.

Some Relief Promised

The War Mobilization Director promised that some of the controls which have restricted the American way of life—the brownout, the curfew, the ban on racing—will be lifted when victory comes in Europe.

But he said that "price, wage and rationing controls must be continued after V-E day," and that "we must retain the present high rate of taxes."

And, he added, Americans will not eat quite as well in 1945 as in 1944 and will be called upon to share their food with the armed forces and with liberated peoples.

Conceding the present division of authority has meant waste and duplication of authority, Byrnes asked Congress to give early consideration to legislature bringing the Army, Navy and Air Force into a single department of national defense after the war.

Outlines Reconversion Plans

He outlined reconversion plans and pledges in his second quarterly report to President Roosevelt, the Senate and House on operations of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

He emphasized, however, that there still must be "full steam ahead on war production." Defeat of Japan, he said, will be costly in both lives and weapons.

Even so, he declared, it has been possible to set up and test the machinery for VE-day reconversion. This, in part, is what it will do:

1. Release about $13,000,000,000 worth of "hard goods" or metals for production of such things as nails, cars, railroad and farm equipment within nine months of Germany's collapse. This will double the amount of materials now available for such purposes.

2. Reduce total government spending for war to a rate of $60,000,000,000 a year. The rate in the present fiscal year is about $90,000,000,000.

3. Free within three months 20 per cent of the resources now used for war production, 5 per cent in the next three months, and another 5 per cent in the following quarter.

4. Retain the economic stabilization program's controls—"they will be needed to protect war production, to safeguard the wage earner against rising living costs, and to maintain the postwar market for goods and services."

5. Continue and strengthen manpower controls. To this end he urged enactment of legislation now pending in the Senate.

6. Cut back construction of war and merchant ships.

7. Make "some increase" in the basic gasoline ration—A-card holders may get an extra gallon for each coupon—and in the allotment for trucks.

While Byrnes asserted that "our economy is stretched to its limits," he felt "no real apprehension for the future."

"A nation which has found the way to produce for war while developing an unexcelled prosperity for its people at home," he declared,

Text of the Official Summary of the Report by James F. Byrnes to the President

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, March 31 — Following is the official summary of the report to the President and Congress by James F. Byrnes, Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion:

Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion James F. Byrnes made public today his second report to the President and the Congress, which he has submitted in accordance with the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act.

The report points out the accelerated progress of the war since the submission of the first report on Jan. 1, 1945. It is submitted "with high hope for early victory in Europe mixed with profound sorrow at the sacrifices which must be made to accomplish this victory and to defeat Japan."

The report points out that coordinated, concentrated efforts by the production and procurement agencies have accomplished much in bringing critical war programs into increased production. However, while the output in critical items was increased 11 per cent in January over December and 9 per cent in February over January actual output was still 4 per cent below schedule in January and 6 per cent below schedule in February.

Moreover, the gain in critical programs was made somewhat at the expense of other items of munitions, as munitions production, as a whole, was lower in February than for some time.

This production has to be accomplished with a civilian labor force which was dropped in the last three years by 1,800,000, despite the addition of 4,400,000 women workers. Labor shortages not only affect plants making finished munitions, but also those providing equipment components and materials, and essential services, such as transportation.

Lagging production has made it necessary for various conservation measures to be placed into effect to include a reduction in travel, the suspension of racing, a reduction in the use of electricity in night lighting and the closing of places of entertainment. Temperatures were reduced in public buildings, and our people were asked to save coal in their houses. The response of the public to these measures has been heartening.

Relaxation Due on V-E-Day

These measures are of an emergency nature, and, with the exception of the travel measure, should be withdrawn on VE-day.

Other measures taken to relieve manpower shortages have included the tightening of draft regulations, the stricter issuance of statements of availability and increased efforts to divert workers to higher priority jobs. Procedures have been developed to reduce the extent of contracts in effect in tight labor areas.

The employment ceiling program has been pushed. However, the necessary resort to cumbersome procedures in applying the indirect sanctions available to Government prevents this program from being effective promptly in placing workers where needed.

Turn-over continues excessive. It is clear that we do not have a comprehensive, efficient manpower system.

Without such a system, production agencies can not meet their responsibilities. The need for manpower legislation continues. Controls are necessary not only for war production but also for the production of essential civilian goods; and later, to facilitate reconversion.

In the field of governmental organization, the report refers to the requirement in the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act for a report on the reorganization and consolidation of agencies in the manpower field. It recognizes the need but states that specific recommendations will not be submitted until after Germany is defeated. Any reorganization in this field now would divert from the war effort.

The need for the consolidation of Government agencies is recognized. The report recommends that the President be authorized, in addition to the powers he now has under the Second War Powers Act, to consolidate and transfer Government agencies as war functions decrease. Such consolidation and transfers would be permanent unless disapproved by Congress within thirty days after they are made.

45 Per Cent of Output for War

The report points out that 45 per cent of our total productive output in 1944 was for war. To obtain this proportion, essential civilian programs were reduced to a level which demands an even more delicate balancing of military needs against those requirements which must be met if we are not to impair our war effort.

The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion has required continuing reviews to be made of all military procurement programs to maintain this balance. In February, 1944, the Secretary of War announced that such reviews had reduced military procurement programs by $12,800,000,000.

Recently the director, after conference with the commander of the fleet, in the absence of the Secretary of the Navy, and with the approval of the President, took steps to stop the construction of seventy-two naval vessels which did not appear absolutely essential to the prosecution of the war against Japan and were being constructed as an insurance measure.

The director has also stopped the proposed construction of 142 additional Liberty ships and certain high octane gasoline plants which would not come into production until well in 1946. As a result of the reduction of the high octane program, he has requested the cancellation of orders for forty tankers. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have been asked to fix an earlier date than presently used beyond which it will be unnecessary to create new production for a two-front war.

At the request of the director, the Army Service Forces have made a careful review of their requirements for the war against Japan. Reduction in deliveries of finished munitions will be from 15 to 20 per cent in the first three months following V-E day and 40 per cent by the end of a twelve-month period.

The Army proposes to utilize all usable equipment in Europe in the Pacific. This equipment must be repackaged and recrated. While plans have been made to expedite this movement, deliveries from the United States will be needed to support operations in the Pacific until the pipeline from Europe to the Pacific has been filled. Then the need for deliveries from United States production will decrease rapidly.

Reconversion Coordination

The report emphasizes the actions which have been taken to coordinate the activities of the several Government agencies having reconversion responsibilities.

When Germany is defeated, our total release of resources from munitions production will be about 20 per cent in the first quarter, an additional 5 per cent in the second quarter and still another 5 per cent in the third quarter.

Unemployment problems following the defeat of Germany will be temporary in nature. The tremendous backlog of civilian demand, with savings, including war bond holdings, at a total of 140 billion dollars, should quickly provide employment.

The temptation to embark in large public works and other programs designed to provide employment in this period must be resisted, as these programs would interfere with war production and reconversion.

The report points out that production controls must be released as promptly as possible to encourage private enterprise to reconvert with maximum dispatch. The War Production Board plans to relax controls, first through the increased use of "spot" authorizations, secondly through the discontinuance of the Controlled Materials Plan at an early date with the substitution of a simple priorities plan, and thirdly the "open-ending" of CMP while it is continued.

Limitation orders will be released except as required by continuing shortages such as in textiles, paper and pulp, lumber, leather, containers and chemicals. The War Production Board si prepared to take prompt actions to prevent the building of excess inventories and to protect small business. War Manpower Commission controls will be continued in all tight labor areas.

When Germany is defeated we must devote more attention to economy in government. The report states:

"What is necessary to win the war we will do, and as Christian, humane people, we will gladly do our part to relieve suffering and distress in a war-torn world. However, we must give consideration also to the people who will pay the bills."

The report reviews the basic machinery for partial reconversion on V-E day. It points out that a sound policy governing the placing of cutbacks is now in effect, that experienced personnel is available to settle contracts rapidly and that contractors have also provided trained staffs for this purpose. War Department settlements in February required an average of only 3.4 months, as compared with 4.2 months in December. The Navy cut its settlement time from 9.9 months to 6.4 months in the same period.

Surplus Property Factors

While the Surplus Property Board was not established until January, the procedures developed previously by the administrator enabled the responsible agencies to gain valuable experience. The Surplus Property Act is complicated to administer. However, more experience is necessary under the act before specific recommendations can be made to the Congress for its modification.

Much attention has been given to making space available for the quick storage of termination inventory and 15,000,000 square can surely find a way to produce for peace to establish an even higher standard of living at home and to aid in the establishment of higher standards of living throughout the world.

"In this way we will find the jobs for our returned soldiers and for released war workers. In this way, we will gain the only benefit to be derived from war, the realization that as long as we work together, as a people, there is always a promising future ahead."

V-E Day in Sight

Although he said the end of the war in Europe is in sight, Byrnes declined to tell reporters the date that is being assumed and on which reconversion plans are based. He indicated that the reconversion machinery will be set in motion whenever General Dwight D. Eisenhower says that Germany has surrendered unconditionally or that organized resistance has ceased.

Last fall government experts were talking about a 40 per cent reconversion within a few months, of restoring civilian production quickly to the 1939 level.

Now the plan, Byrnes said, is for a gradual rather than a sharp cutback in war output. And he had a reason.

When the fighting stops in Europe, men and equipment must be transferred to the Pacific in tremendous volume. The men can move with relative speed. But it will take a minimum of three months, and perhaps four or five, to get equipment to ports, knock it down, crate it, and ship it to the Far East.

To supply the fighting men who arrive ahead of the weapons from Europe, American production lines will have to be kept going.

"Our immediate task," the War Mobilization boss emphasized, "is to continued to provide our troops with the equipment which will assure victory with minimum loss of life."

Manpower, he said, has become the major limiting factor and "we have committed our reserves."

Urging Congress to act, he said steps must be taken, if necessary, to dislodge qualified workers in non-essential industries and put them in essential jobs. He said he had taken all stps now available to the government.

Yet he disclosed a significant drop in the number of employes needed for war programs. The last previous estimate was 700,000, but now the deficiency is figured at 250,000 to 300,000.

Sees Temporary Unemployment

While $140,000,000,000 of consumer savings will create a tremendous demand for the products of American industry and Byrnes foresaw some temporary unemployment. It might amount to 1,000,000, or about 2 per cent of total war production employment, in the six months following VE-day, he said.

Byrnes divided the VE-day stabilization program into these five parts:

1. To keep prices in check so living costs won't mount. Extension of the stabilization act will be required.

2. To establish prices on newly-manufactured goods that will be fair both to producer and consumer.

3. To keep consumer buying power under control by continuing present high tax rates.

4. To keep corporation earnings under control by maintaining high excess profits taxes along with authority to recapture and control profits.

5. To hold wages in check so they will not force the cost of living up and thus start a wage-price-cost of living spiral.

Looking ahead even farther, to the hour of Japan's downfall, Byrnes foresaw a need for measures to stimulate trade throughout the world.

He recommended, as has President Roosevelt, extension and strengthening of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements act, establishment of an international monetary fund and international bank for reconstruction and development, extension of authority for the export-import bank to finance American foreign trade, and repeal of the Johnson act barring loans to governments in default on debts to the United States.

Congress has displayed a disposition to go slow on all these proposals.

Byrnes suggested that the government go slow on a postwar public works program. He suggested that the plans be made ready for $4,500,000,000 Federal projects already authorized and a back-log of more than $7,000,000,000 in private developments.

But he declared that if we should be stampeded into any large public works programs" the minute Germany is beaten it would interfere with war production and reconversion.

"It goes without saying," he declared, "that rationing for many food items will have to be continued."

Lend-Lease will continue after the Nazis are crushed, Byrnes said, since we will be fighting a coalition war against Japan. But there already has been a 25 per cent drop from the peak flow of Lend-Lease materials and a greater slash may be expected after V-E day.

To a news conference, Byrnes voiced assurances that the railroads will get some steel soon after the European war is won.

Reconversion will be accomplished largely through methods already worked out by the War Production board. They contemplate a systematic relaxation of controls.

Some restrictive orders will be retained, however, Byrnes said. He pointed to shortages, which he said are certain to continue after V-E day, that will require limitations on the use of many materials.

Visualizing a time when the government's sprawling war agencies can be trimmed down, Byrnes recommended to Congress that it authorize the President to curtail and consolidate them.

Congress had told him to work out a plan to reorganize and combine the ones dealing with manpower. But he said this would be unwise during the climactic phases of the struggle with Germany.

feet will be ready by June in fifty-six centers to meet emergency requirements.

The report points out that the sale of war plants is desirable even before these plants have become surplus if they are to be converted to civilian production quickly. The director has asked the Department of Justice to work with the Surplus Property Board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to develop procedures for giving an opinion on such proposed sales under the anti-trust laws. The director recommends that the Surplus Property Board be removed from the direct supervision of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

In discussing economic stabilization, the report emphasizes the necessity for continuing price, wage and rationing controls after VE Day. So far, economic stabilization has kept the cost of living from rising excessively. In World War I it rose 62 per cent in fifty-two months, whereas in this war it has gone up only 29 per cent in sixty-six months.

The recommendation in the January report that Congress grant the War Labor Board statutory power to make its decisions enforceable is renewed.

The report states that the Director of Economic Stabilization and the Price Administrator have developed a program which is designed, after Germany is defeated, to keep prices in check; to keep consumer buying power under control; to keep corporation earnings under control; to hold wages in check, and at the same time, to establish prices on newly manufactured goods so as to facilitate reconversion.

The Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion has asked that a special study be made to determine those industries in which hourly wage rates have increased substantially less than the cost of living and hence any sharp decline in hours worked per week would lower the standard of living. The purpose of this study is to determine the adjustments which can be made in these industries in the framework of stabilization policies.

Question of Take-Home Pay

Other than in such instances, we must wait until we know how much of our war productivity has been carried over into peace time production before wage rates can be increased. Take-home pay in peace equal to take-home pay now being received must have as a foundation a volume of production and consumption of civilian goods equal to our present production and consumption

The report points out the magnificent job being accomplished by our railroads. However, the tax on transportation will continue until Japan is defeated and unnecessary travel must still be avoided.

The Interagency Deferment Committee, at the suggestion of the director, has granted a high percentage of deferments to men between 26 and 29 employed in transportation.

VE Day will provide no immediate relief in either truck or passenger car transportation. However, a small increase in the basic gasoline ration appears feasible.

The report points out that a decrease in food supply in the face of increasing demands makes our situation less favorable in 1945 than 1944. We will not eat as well. However, we will not be hungry and our diet will not be deficient. We must tighten our belts a little. At the same time, we must again call on our farmers for an all-out effort.

In this way, we will be able to provide some relief for stricken areas throughout the world without weakening our own military effort and without impairing the health of our civilian population.

A proposed reduction in the quantity or quality of the soldiers' ration has been disapproved by the director.

In discussing construction and public works, the report recommends that private construction be permitted to go ahead before public construction unless the latter is required to support the war against Japan. Lumber will remain scarce for some months and will prevent large-scale production of private housing.

Local unemployment will develop pressure for large public works programs. These should be resisted until Japan is defeated. There is a backlog of $4,500,000,000 in authorized Federal projects and a total backlog, including private projects, which will reach $7,000,000,000. The governmental construction agencies should be given funds now to prepare plans and specifications in sufficient detail to permit projects being placed under construction rapidly following the defeat of Japan.

Prospects for Housing

Private construction, particularly private housing, should progress rapidly when lumber becomes available. Our loan institutions are in excellent position to finance such a program and Federal authority is available to insure such loans in the amount of approximately $2,000,000,000.

Federal and State aided low-rent housing programs and rural housing should receive favorable consideration by the Congress.

The director also urges that the Federal Works Administration be provided with the $35,000,000 approved by the Senate for advance to local authorities to stimulate planning now for projects to be built when Japan is defeated.

The report points out the procedures established under the retraining and re-employment administration to aid veterans and released workers. Re-employment committeemen are available at each of 6,500 local draft boards to help veterans in obtaining their old jobs; 1,500 local offices of the USES are equipped to help veterans find jobs, and 27,000 institutions have been approved to furnish education to veterans. Adequate hospital facilities are being provided. State unemployment compensation offices will furnish the veteran with readjustment allowances if he is unemployed. Arrangements have been made to facilitate loans provided for in the G. I. Bill.

The report points out that the section of the Selective Training and Service Act which provides re-employment rights for veterans requires clarification. A special committee appointed by General Hines is studying this problem. The report of this committee will be given full consideration and submitted to the Congress if further legislation appears to be necessary.

The war time facilities of the USES will be retained to find employment for displaced war workers. Provisions have been made for unemployment compensation to care for these war workers while temporarily unemployed. However, these provisions are inadequate. Previous recommendations for their broadening by the Congress are renewed with a note of urgency.

The section of the report on small business points out that small manufacturers should be able to reconvert more quickly than large manufacturers. The War Production Board will see that small business has adequate access to materials. The adoption by the Congress of the Wagner-Spence Bill to amend Section 13B, Federal Reserve Act, to stimulate loans to small business and the extension of the life of the Smaller War Plants Corporation to Dec. 31, 1946, are recommended.

The report reminds us that we will still be fighting a coalition war in the Pacific which must continue to receive lend-lease support. Some of our allies depend almost entirely on certain specific items of military equipment produced in this country. Moreover, they must continue to receive repairs and spare parts for the military equipment which has been furnished them in the past. The volume of lend-lease will decline rapidly, and in fact has already dropped 25 per cent since the Normandy invasion.

We must provide assistance in liberated countries. Stable Governments cannot develop where people are hungry. A strong world economy is essential to world peace and to a healthy economy at home.

When we assume controls in one or the other zones into which Germany is to be divided, the people of America will not desire to let the women and children under our care starve. Congress should consider at an early date the extent to which funds and aid will be made available for this purpose.

The committee set up to coordinate foreign shipments under the chairmanship of Administrator Crowley of the Foreign Economic Administration will develop a sensible balance sheet.

The report looks ahead after the defeat of Japan. It foresees a tremendous demand for materials for reconversion and to restore inventories of consumer goods in this country. There will also be a huge demand from abroad, where destroyed homes and factories must be rebuilt. Foreign trade is essential to our own post-war prosperity. Foreign countries have expanded their gold and dollar assets by more than $8,000,000,000 since 1940. However, their resources are not unlimited and we must be prepared to make loans to those countries where there is reasonable prospect of repayment.

The report recommends favorable consideration by Congress of a broad foreign policy, to include the extension and strengthening of the Trades Agreement Act; the establishment of the International Monetary Fund; approval for the establishment of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development; the extension of the authority of the Export-Import Bank to finance our foreign trade, and the repeal of the Johnson act, prohibiting loans to governments in default on their obligations to the United States. An active foreign trade is necessary if trade at home is to prosper.

Call to Stop Cartels

Production for this war has stimulated new developments in industry and trade. Free enterprise will have its opportunity in utilizing these developments in peace to prove it can provide full employment. Anti-trust laws must be enforced vigorously to prevent monopolies and to protect small producers. Vigorous steps must be taken to stop international cartels designed to maintain price structures at high levels.

The report points out the necessity for a tax structure designed to help business. It urges that the reports of the Joint Committee on Revenue, Taxation and the Treasury be presented to and receive the consideration of Congress at the earliest possible date.

Specifically, the director renews his recommendations for the acceleration of depreciation allowances; to make available to corporations immediately after VE day a part of the post-war refund of their excess-profits tax and the corresponding reduction in the compulsory savings provisions in the excess-profits tax; and an increase in the specific exemption in this tax from the present $10,000 to $25,000.

In discussing agriculture, the report refers to the action which Congress has already taken to continue support prices for two years after the first Jan. 1 following the end of the war. It recommends that Congress authorize appropriate administrative agencies to make payments in lieu of support prices when it is determined that such prices are resulting in the accumulation of surpluses.

The enactment of legislation to bring about an orderly expansion of the present school lunch program so that all grade and high school children can participate within the next two to three years is recommended.

The report points out the need for soil conservation and urges that Congress give consideration to this problem. Several agencies within the Department of Agriculture are now authorized to undertake programs of assistance under specific and separate acts of Congress. One program would be better.

Economies Are Urged

The report urges that the Government start reducing expenditures for administrative purposes as part of the process of readjustment as soon as Germany is defeated. It recommends that the Director of the Budget be given authority to determine those agencies in which cuts in administrative expenses may be made and the amounts to be covered back into the Treasury.

The Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion has had an unusual opportunity to become familiar with the operations of our War and Navy Departments. These operations have been conducted with a high degree of unity because of the outstanding character of military and naval leadership and its readiness to compromise and reach agreements in the common interest.

However, procurement supply programs under a unified system could have saved not only dollars but also manpower and materials. Therefore, the report recommends that Congress should, at an early date, give consideration to legislation establishing a single department of national defense to become effective when Japan is defeated.

The report refers to the counsel received from the advisory board created under the act establishing the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion and the benefits which have resulted to the director in his associations with the board.

In concluding the report, the director states:

"I know that the American people will continue their full support of our war effort until the military might of both Germany and Japan has been utterly destroyed. They will recognize that the quickest way to ultimate victory lies in the use of overwhelming forces in the air, on the sea, and on the ground, until these forces are no longer capable of armed resistance."

He points out his confidence in the future because "America is still a land of opportunities where our system of free enterprise makes the most of each of these opportunities."

BYRNES REPORTS FOOD SUPPLIES TIGHT FOR 1945

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP) War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes told civilians today that "squeaks" over food would not alter the government's intention to divide with hungry peoples abroad and maintain army rations.

Americans, he said, will have to tighten their belts this year regardless of the date of Germany's defeat, because 1945 food supplies will be from 5 to 10 per cent below last year and demands are greater.

Will Not Be Hungry

"However, we will not be hungry and our diet will not be deficient," he said.

Supplies will be tightest, Byrnes said, in the case of meats, fats and oils, some dairy products, sugar, and canned fruits and vegetables. His statement on the food situation was given in a report to President Roosevelt and Congress on progress of war production and plans for reconversion to peace.

Byrnes reiterated the administration's intention of providing foreign relief and of allowing full military requirements in words which obviously hit at recent criticism in and out of Congress of army buying policies and of shipments of food abroad.

"We must allocate our available supplies among competing uses—civilian, military and foreign—in the light of their importance. We cannot follow the principle of 'the wheel that squeaks the loudest gets the grease.'"

In this connection, Byrnes said he had rejected suggestions that soldiers' rations be reduced. He said that military stocks, instead of being excessive as has been claimed by some critics, are at relatively low levels.

Emphasizing that rationing of many food items will have to be continued after Germany falls, he said. Victory in Europe will not end starvation there.

Must Prevent Disease

"We must prevent disease and unrest in the areas where (our) troops are stationed. We are interested in the establishment of stable governments, and stable governments cannot be expected where the people are hungry."

Byrnes gave assurances, however, that foreign aid will be weighed carefully in the light of this country's own essential needs and its capacity to produce.

Looking ahead to the end of the war with Japan, Byrnes made several recommendations relating to reconversion of agriculture to peacetime conditions. It may be necessary, he said, for the government to guide farmers in adjustment of production.

As one means of providing an outlet for possible surpluses, he urged legislation for expansion of the school lunch program so that all grade and high school children can participate.

Some idea as to the possible extent of such an expansion may be gained from the fact that 5,175,000 school children are now receiving full or partial lunches at an annual cost of about $50,000,000. Byrnes estimated that about 20,000,000 would be eligible under the full expansion.

O. P. A. Cancels Scheduled Cut In Beef Subsidy

Acts on Court Finding That Some Slaughterers Are Operating at a Loss

WASHINGTON, March 31 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration today canceled a scheduled cut in the beef subsidy to non-processor packers as a result of a court finding that these slaughterers are not breaking even financially.

The agency also announced it is conducting a study to determine whether the pork subsidy to all packers should be increased.

If this study has not been completed by May 10, an interim adjustment amounting to 40 cents a hundred pounds and retroactive to April 1 will be made, the O. P. A. said.

The action affecting non-processor packers eliminates a cut from 80 to 30 cents a hundred pounds in the special subsidy to these fresh-beef-only slaughterers. The reduction was slated to go into effect Sunday.

The cancellation came on the heels of an O. P. A. motion asking the Emergency Court of Appeals to set aside its finding that the non-processors' present ceilings, plus the 80-cent subsidy, are not adequate to assure these packers a profit as a group. A hearing on the motion is set for Monday.

Attorneys for the non-processors joined with the O. P. A. in filing the motion, indicating they may be satisfied with retention of the 80-cent subsidy.

The court found the existing ceilings of processor packers—those who handle cattle by-products as well as fresh beef—to be generally fair and equitable. These packers handle 85 per cent of the nation's beef.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said he was "most gratified" by the court decision upholding the processor ceilings.

Referring to the decisions as a whole—there were five—Bowles said they were "particularly helpful because they help to clear the air at a time when the meat situation is so critical."

"The only feature of the decisions causing us concern," Mr. Bowles added, "was the setting aside of the regulation as applied to the non-processing slaughterers of beef. . . .

"We believe it can readily be shown that the experience of non-processing slaughterers as a class has in fact been as profitable as the standards laid down by the court require. The court's inference to the contrary, which led it to set aside the regulation, was drawn from the limited record before it."

While not alluding to the 50-cent cut which had been ordered, Mr. Bowles said the O. P. A. believes the prevailing 80-cent subsidy "is not merely sufficient but more than sufficient."

"We feel," he added, "that to increase it at this time would have most serious effects on the critical meat situation. It would distort price relationships and hence would greatly aggravate the maldistribution of supply."

Mr. Bowles emphasized that all ceiling prices for non-processor slaughterers' beef continue to be effective, since the decision of the emergency court is not binding for thirty days.

Wilbur Laroe jr., general counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers Association, said in a statement that the O. P. A. announcement "makes it unnecessary for the present, in my opinion, to proceed with further hearings either in the Senate or House as to meat prices. It does not, however, solve completely the problem of maldistribution which can to advantage be studied further. O.P.A. is to be commended for moving so rapidly to comply with the court judgment."

STRIKE TIES UP MEAT FOR ARMY

Settlement Reported At Armour's Kansas City Plant

Kansas City, Kan., March 31 (AP) Charles Campbell, plant superintendent for Armour & Co., said tonight he had been informed by officials of the United States Conciliation Service that a settlement had been reached in the labor dispute at the Kansas City plant and that employés would return to work Monday.

Representatives of the management and of the Packing House Workers Union (CIO) Local No. 15 were called together this afternoon by Irving I. Pickett, commissioner for the Conciliation Service, after blockading picket lines had resulted in a shutdown at the plant.

Work at the huge Armour plant, which the Army Quartermaster Corps said was carrying "a normal work load of army contracts," was halted this morning. Approximately 3,500 workers were affected.

Employe Gates Blockaded

Police Chief Will Johns said "hundreds of CIO Packing House Workers Union members started a blockade of the employé gates." Office workers, he said, also were denied admittance, although they are not members of the union.

The employés left their posts yesterday, police said they were informed. They abandoned the company's power plant and service was restored only when the plant was cut in on the municipal electric system, Johns said he had been told.

Army officials said the stoppage of War Department meat supplies was without warning and that six refrigerator cars were waiting at the company's docks today to be loaded with 300,000 pounds of frozen meats for overseas consignment.

Cause Of The Dispute

Walter H. Moore, president of Local 15, bargaining agency for the union members and a worker in the power department, said a complaint by a worker in the power department that he had been assigned an "overload" of work was the cause of the dispute.

Moore issued the following statement:

"The union contends that the dispute now existing between Armour & Co. and its employés was caused by the management demanding that the oilers in the motive-power department tend additional refrigeration machines. . . .

"When the employé stated he could not perform the additional work, he was suspended. The other employés in motive power stopped in his behalf. The plant then stopped work in sympathy with the motive-power employés."

In Chicago, a spokesman for Armour's headquarters said, "All we can say here now is that there's a strike at the plant. As far as we know it is unauthorized, and it has closed the plant for today."

MINERS, OPERATORS ACCEPT WLB ORDER

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP) The soft coal operators and John L. Lewis today accepted a War Labor board order to keep on producing coal under the present contract, but Lewis demanded written assurance of retroactive pay.

The WLB's order, issued as the midnight expiration hour of the old contract drew near, provided that whenever a new contract is signed, pay changes shall be retroactive to April 1.

President Lewis of the UMW, whose union this week voted him authority to call a strike if he deems it necessary, said the miners were willing to "accede to the order of the WLB."

But he called for formal acceptance by the operators of the financial responsibility involved—in other words, a promise in writing to the miners that they will get their full retroactive pay.

K. C. Adams, a UMW spokesman was asked what the miners would do if the operators refused to sign such a document.

"If they refuse to sign, I think it will be up to the WLB or some other agency to see that they live up to their word," he said. "It would be a government matter."

Asked whether the miners regarded their acceptance of the WLB order as unconditional or conditional, Adams said: "We told them we were willing to work." The operators announced their acceptance "without qualification."

A night meeting between the operator and union representatives was arranged to go into the matter of Lewis' stipulation.

Entering this conference, Edward R. Burke, head of the Southern Coal Producers association, said, "We can never agree to any such stipulation as Mr. Lewis is asking."

Britton Resigns as Head Of Surplus Property Staff

To Undertake Special Mission, Brynes and Gillette Clash

WASHINGTON, March 31 (AP).—Resignation of Mason Britton, of Great Neck, L. I., as administrator for the Surplus Property Board, effective tomorrow, was announced today by Guy Gillette, board chairman. Mr. Gillette said Mr. Britton is leaving to "undertake an important confidential government assignment for which he was recently drafted."

Meanwhile, Congress was caught in the cross-currents of a surplus property controversy involving James F. Byrnes, war mobilizer, and Mr. Gillette.

Mr. Gillette's supporters said they would draft amendments to the surplus property act to increase the board's staff. Senators Brien McMahon, Democrat, of Connecticut, Kenneth S. Wherry, Republican, of Nebraska, and Georoge D. Aiken, Republican, of Vermont, advocated complete removal of the board from the jurisdiction of Mr. Byrnes's Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion.

The undercover struggle came to light yesterday when the Senate amended a Treasury appropriations bill to give Mr. Gillette's agency final word on sales by the procurement division's surplus property branch. The amendment, which needs House approval, attached strings to a $14,990,000 appropriation for the administration of surplus property sales by the Treasury. It would limit the use of the funds to disposals carrying former Senator Gillette's approval.

Mr. Byrnes is understood to have told some Senators he feared the Surplus Property Board, if given independent status, might set up a huge new agency with branches in every state.

THIS WAS THE STORY AS TOLD BY THE ADMIRALTY:

BRITISH DESTROYERS TOOK 500 NORWEGIAN PATRIOTS OFF SOROY TWO WEEKS AGO AND DISTRIBUTED THEM AMONG FREIGHTERS ON THEIR WAY BACK TO ENGLAND AFTER DELIVERING WAR SUPPLIES TO RUSSIA AT MURMANSK.

NINE WOMEN, SEVEN CHILDREN AND THREE MEN WERE PUT ABOARD THE HENRY BACON. THE HURRICANE SMASHED ALL BUT ONE OF THE VESSELS' LIFEBOATS. AS THE STORM EASED, 17 GERMAN PLANES MADE FOR THE SHIP.

THE AMERICAN SEAMEN PUT THE NORWEGIANS IN THE SOLE LIFEBOAT, WITH FIVE CREWMEN TO HANDLE IT, THEN TURNED TO BATTLE THE PLANES. THEY SHOT DOWN FIVE BEFORE THE LIBERTY SHIP WAS HIT AND BEGAN SINKING. THE SEAMEN WENT OVERBOARD INTO THE BITTERLY COLD WATER AND A FEW MANAGED TO SAVE THEMSELVES BY CLINGING TO WRECKAGE, BUT THE 15 MEN PERISHED WITH THE SHIP.

THE GERMANS WERE LAYING DOWN THEIR ARMS BY THE THOUSANDS. THE FIRST ARMY TOOK 11,206 PRISONERS YESTERDAY, THE THIRD ARMY ADDED AT LEAST 10,000 MORE, THE SEVENTH TOOK 1,800 AND THE BRITISH SECOND 1,500--A TOTAL OF 85,000 PRISONERS IN 72 HOURS.

THE RETREAT FROM THE RUHR HAD BEGUN--TOO LATE--AND FLEEING CONVOYS WERE BOMBED AND STRAFED FROM DAWN TO DUSK.

POSSIBLY THE LAST GREAT BATTLE OF THE WAR WEST OF THE RUHR VALLEY BOILED OVER THE FIELDS SOUTH OF DORSTEN, WHERE THE EIGHTH ARMORED DIVISION SLUGGED WITH THE CUT-OFF AND DOOMED GERMAN 116TH PANZER DIVISION.

THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION COVERED 30 MILES IN 36 HOURS FOR ITS TACTICAL JUNCTION WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY, WHICH WAS ALSO UNDER A NEWS BLACKOUT AFTER GIVING ITS TANKS A REST.

IT BY-PASSED ALL THE BIG MUNITIONS CITIES OF THE RUHR, ESSEN, BIGGEST OF THEM ALL, DUESSELDORF, HAMM, DORTMUND, DUISBURG, AND CUT ACROSS THE FERTILE FIELDS OF THE WESTPHALIAN PLAIN AT SUCH A CLIP THAT ONE GERMAN HEADQUARTERS WAS FOUND DESERTED WITH A HALF-EATEN MEAL ON THE TABLE.

IT ROLLED ON THROUGH THE MOONLIGHT OF FRIDAY NIGHT, TURNING THE BATTLE INTO AN OBSTACLE RACE WITH A DETERMINATION TO END THE WAR AND GO HOME.

IT HAD BULLED THROUGH A TROOP-PACKED FRONT AND DASHED AHEAD JUST AS IT DID WHEN IT WAS LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S OUTFIT IN NORTH AFRICA AND SICILY, AND IN THE WAY IT STRUCK ACROSS THE PLAINS OF FRANCE AND LATER ACROSS THE ROER.

IN THE RUHR ITSELF, HOWEVER, BACK IN THE OLD BRIDGEHEAD AREA, THE NINTH ARMY STILL WAS UP AGAINST SOME HARD FIGHTING. DESPITE THIS TOUGH RESISTANCE, THE NINTH'S INFANTRYMEN CLEARED THE LAST GERMAN SOLDIER FROM BOTTROP, ONLY FOUR MILES NORTHWEST OF ESSEN.

PATTON HAD TWO OF HIS ARMORED DIVISIONS, THE FAMED FOURTH ARMORED "BREAKTHROUGH" DIVISION AND THE SIXTH, HAMMERING TOWARD BERLIN SO FAST CORRESPONDENTS COULD NOT KEEP ABREAST OF THEIR PROGRESS.

THE SIXTH ARMORED LAST WAS REPORTED HOURS AGO ONLY FIVE MILES FROM KASSEL, A CITY OF 217,000 AND A FIELD DISPATCH SAID BY THIS TIME IT UNDOUBTEDLY WAS IN OR BEYOND IT.

IT HAD COVERED 45 MILES FRIDAY WITH A SPEED ALMOST MATCHING THE FIRST ARMY'S NOW FAMOUS ARMORED MARCH THAT OUTFLANKED THE RUHR. THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION LAST WAS REPORTED NEAR LAUTERHAUSEN, 36 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KASSEL.

AT THAT POINT THE FOURTH WAS 160 MILES INSIDE GERMANY AND 110 MILES FROM THE CZECHOSLOVAK FRONTIER, WAS MORE THAN HALF WAY ACROSS THE REICH'S WAIST AND WAS PROBABLY LESS THAN 205 MILES FROM THE RUSSIANS.

BEFORE THESE RAMPAGING COLUMNS, THE GERMANS WERE IN FLIGHT AND LINE UPON LINE OF ENEMY CONVOYS WERE SMEARED BY FIGHTERBOMBERS. PATTON'S COLUMNS WERE BEING SUPPLIED WITH GASOLINE BY BIG ARMY TRANSPORT PLANES, WHICH WERE ALIGHTING ON SOME FIELDS EAST OF THE RHINE.

THE ELEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION ON THE SOUTH FLANK OF THIS POWERFUL PUSH CUT LOOSE WITH A 12-MILE DRIVE THAT SWEPT INTO BIRSTEIN, 20 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FULDA.

BEHIND THESE ARMORED FORCES, INFANTRY HAD CLEARED ALL THE SPRAWLING POCKET NORTH OF FRANKFURT EXCEPT FOR SCATTERED GROUPS OF THE ENEMY WHICH WERE TURNING HARASSING FIRE ON THIRD ARMY VEHICLES. AN ESTIMATED 10,000 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN FRIDAY.

LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES RACING FIRST ARMY TANK COLUMNS PAUSED TO CATCH THEIR BREATH AT PADERBORN AFTER AN AMAZING DRIVE OF MORE THAN 120 MILES IN SIX DAYS DURING WHICH THEY BROKE THE BACK OF GERMAN RESISTANCE AND CUT OFF THE RUHR FROM THE EAST.

INFANTRY DIVISIONS WERE RUSHING UP BEHIND THE ARMOR, CONSOLIDATING THE GAINS AND CLEARING OUT BY-PASSED RESISTANCE SO SWIFTLY THAT 11,207 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN FRIDAY.

THE ENEMY HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH HALTING THE DRIVE. IT SIMPLY WAS NECESSARY TO GIVE TANKMEN A REST AND LET THE INFANTRY SEAL OFF THE AVENUES OF ESCAPE FOR BATTERED GERMAN ARMIES OF THE RUHR.

THE GERMANS HAVE YET BEEN UNABLE TO FORM A LINE OR ORGANIZE A COUNTERBLOW, ALTHOUGH INFANTRY WELL TO THE WEST HAVE RUN INTO ENEMY OPPOSITION, A FEW TANKS AND ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS DEPRESSED FOR GROUND FIRE.

THE FIGHTING FIRST INFANTRY AND THE 104TH INFANTRY DIVISIONS WERE CLOSING UP FAST BEHIND THE THIRD ARMORED DIVISION'S NORTH-BOUND COLUMNS.

THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH CAPTURED A DAM ON THE EDER RIVER, MOVED NORTH TODAY AND CAPTURED NITZE, TWO AND A HALF MILES NORTH OF THE EDER RESERVOIR AND 18 MILES WEST OF KASSEL.

IT WAS NOT YET DISCLOSED WHERE THE NEW 15TH ARMY TOOK ITS LONG-AWAITED PLACE IN THE LINE OF BATTLE, BUT ITS ARRIVAL PUT THE ALLIES AT FULL STRENGTH FOR THE SHOW-DOWN STRUGGLE.

GEN.JEAN DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY'S FRENCH FIRST ARMY SWARMED ACROSS THE RHINE SATURDAY MORNING, AND WAS OFFICIALLY REPORTED MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS AGAINST LIVELY RESISTANCE.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S SEVENTH ARMY NORTHEAST OF THE FRENCH FOUND A WEAK POINT IN THE FLINTY GERMAN DEFENSES AND SENT THE 12TH ARMORED DIVISION GALLOPING THROUGH.

THE TWELFTH HAD DRIVEN THROUGH THE ODENWALD FOREST ON THE SOUTH FLANK OF THE SEVENTH ARMY'S 12-MILE FRONT EAST OF THE RIVER MAIN.

IT THRUST TOWARD WUERZBURG AT TOP SPEED, CAPTURING TWO BRIDGES ACROSS THE TAUBER RIVER AND FIGHTING ON BEYOND. THERE IT WAS ONE-THIRD OF THE WAY FROM THE RHINE TO THE CZECHOSLOVAK FRONTIER.

THE AMERICANS AND FRENCH WERE THREATENING THE IMPORTANT CITIES OF STUTTGART AND NUERNBERG AND IF THEY PROGRESS AT THE PRESENT RATE MAY SEVER BAVARIA FROM NORTHERN GERMANY.

LT.GEN.MILES C.DEMPSEY'S BRITISH SECOND ARMY HAD MADE SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS BEYOND DUELMEN--ITSELF 33 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE AND 15 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MUENSTER--SLOWED MAINLY BY THE DEBRIS OF RUINED TOWNS AND SHELL CRATERS IN THE HIGHWAYS.

THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE SAID COUNTERATTACKS HAD BEEN THROWN IN ALONG AN ARCHING 25-MILE FRONT STRETCHING FROM STADTLOHN, 25 MILES NORTHEAST OF WESEL ON THE RHINE, ON THROUGH COESFELD AND DUELMEN, 33 MILES NORTHEAST OF WESEL.

ENGINEERS WITH BULLDOZERS BECAME THE SPEARHEADS OF THE THRUSTS AS TOWN AFTER TOWN FELL TO THE ADVANCING BRITISH. IMPORTANT GAINS HAD BEEN MADE BUT THEY COULD NOT BE TOLD FOR SECURITY REASONS.

ON THE WESTERN FLANK, THE BRITISH AND CANADIANS HAD DRIVEN AT LEAST FOUR MILES INTO HOLLAND ALONG A NINE-MILE FRONT EAST OF THE CAPTURED GERMAN RHINE CITY OF EMMERICH.

HODGES' NORTHERNMOST TANK COLUMNS SLASHED THROUGH PADERBORN, AT THE EDGE OF THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN AND 43 MILES EAST OF THE LIMITS OF THE RUHR CLOSEST TO BERLIN.

HERE THEY WERE WITHIN 60 MILES OR SO OF A JUNCTION WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY, WHOSE ARMORED FORCES HAD SMASHED NAZI RESISTANCE IN THE NORTHERN RUHR IN A BLAZING TANK BATTLE. THE NINTH WAS AT LEAST 40 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE, AND WAS ACROSS ONE MAJOR BUT UNNAMED WATER BARRIER.

MEANWHILE, THE THIRD ARMY'S SIXTH ARMORED DIVISION, TAKING THE SAME GENERAL ROUTE EAST AS HODGES' SEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION IN ENTERING FRITZLAR, ADVANCED 21 MILES TO THE VICINITY OF TREYSA, 15 MILES SOUTH OF FRITZLAR.

TO THE NORTH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, WITH AT LEAST THREE ARMORED DIVISIONS IN THE VANGUARD, WAS ROLLING OVER THE WESTPHALIAN PLAIN IN A DRIVE THAT HAD CARRIED 40 MILES BEYOND THE RHINE.

THE DAYLIGHT AERIAL ASSAULT DEALT A DEATH BLOW TO THE CHANCES OF THE GERMAN ARMY OF OBTAINING SEABORNE SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS, AND STRUCK DEVASTATINGLY AT ANY HOPES THE NAZIS HAD OF REVIVING A SPRING SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN.

THE BRITISH CAPTURED DUELMEN, 15 MILES SOUTHWEST OF MUENSTER. THEY WERE MEETING DUG-IN RESISTANCE AS THEY ADVANCED UP THE MUENSTER HIGHWAY, BUT ELSEWHERE WERE REPORTED ALMOST UNOPPOSED. (THE GERMAN RADIO REPORTED THAT THE BRITISH WERE ENCOUNTERING "FIERCE" COUNTERATTACKS ON THE ROAD TO MUENSTER.)

AT THE VERY TOP OF THE FRONT BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES, CUTTING BACK INTO HOLLAND, WERE MEETING SAVAGE OPPOSITION.

AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE FRONT THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY HAD FOUGHT AT LEAST THREE MILES BEYOND THE CAPTURED UNIVERSITY CITY OF HEIDELBERG ALONG THE NECKAR RIVER VALLEY. LT.GEN.ALEXANDER M.PATCH'S TROOPS WERE CUTTING IN BEHIND THE BLACK FOREST TOWARD THE BAVARIAN ALPS, WHERE THE NAZIS MAY MAKE THEIR FINAL STAND.

SOME GERMAN PLANES HIT AT U.S. FIRST AND THIRD ARMY COLUMNS FRIDAY, BUT NOT IN GREAT NUMBER. ON THE 21ST ARMY GROUP FRONT IN THE NORTH, THERE WAS NO AERIAL OPPOSITION, AND TACTICAL AIR FORCE PLANES HIT GROUNDED GERMAN SHIPS THAT HAD NO FUEL.

NOWHERE ALONG THE ENTIRE FIRST ARMY FRONT WHICH STRETCHES EAST OF THE RHINE FOR MORE THAN 60 MILES AND NORTH FOR MORE THAN 50 HAS THERE BEEN ANY ORGANIZED GERMAN RESISTANCE. THE SIX-DAY ATTACK HAS NETTED 41,721 PRISONERS -- THE EQUIVALENT OF MORE THAN FOUR GERMAN DIVISIONS AS THEY ARE NOW CONSTITUTED.

THE 104TH AND FIRST INFANTRY DIVISIONS CLOSED UP FAST BEHIND THIRD DIVISION ARMORED SPEARHEADS, AND THE 99TH AND NINTH INFANTRY WERE COMING UP BEHIND THE SEVENTH ARMORED, CLEARING THE AREA NEAR MARBURG. THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION MOVED NORTH OF THE CAPTURED EDER DAM AND TOOK NITZE, AND THE SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION FOLLOWED UP BEHIND THIS 2 1/2 MILE ADVANCE.

ON THE THIRD ARMY FRONT, THE 11TH ARMORED DIVISION ENCOUNTERED STRONG RESISTANCE IN THE GELNHAUSEN AREA. GERMAN TANKS WITHDREW, BUT ENEMY INFANTRY CONTINUED FIGHTING. OTHER ELEMENTS OF THE 11TH PUSHED SEVEN MILES NORTHEASTWARD TO NEAR WENINGS, 22 MILES SOUTHWEST OF FULDA.

THE 90TH INFANTRY, IN A 10-MILE ADVANCE, REACHED POINTS NEAR ULRICHSTEIN AND HERBSTEIN, 20-ODD MILES EAST OF GIESSEN. THE ENTIRE AREA NORTH OF FRANKFURT TO GIESSEN HAD BEEN CLEANED OUT EXCEPT FOR SMALL GROUPS OF GERMANS.

IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT THE 80TH INFANTRY DIVISION HAD MADE THE DUAL CROSSING OF THE RHINE AND MAIN RIVERS EARLY WEDNESDAY, AND CAPTURED 5,000 PRISONERS FRIDAY.

WITH AMERICAN FORCES OUTSIDE PADERBORN--FIFTH ADD ANNIHILATION BATTLE (BY BOYLE) X X X ~~PINCHED OFF~~ Green Bay, Wis.

LAST NIGHT, WHEN THE POCKETED AND ALARMED GERMANS BEGAN TRYING TO SMASH AT LEAST ONE AVENUE THROUGH WHICH THEY COULD POUR TROOPS, MAJ. GEN. TERRY ALLEN'S 104TH INFANTRY "TIMBERWOLF" DIVISION SENT A FORCE OF TANKS AND DOUGHBOYS TO CLAMP A STRONG ROADBLOCK ON BRILON, HIGHWAY CENTER 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF PADERBORN.

"THERE'S A FORCE OF ENEMY TANKS AND MOBILE GUNS IN THE WOODS NEARBY THAT WANTS TO FIGHT," A STAFF OFFICER TOLD CAPT. ARTHUR LAUNDON, A FORMER PARTNER IN A CLEVELAND, O., BROKERAGE FIRM. "WE BETTER SEND YOU THERE BY A ROUND-ABOUT ROUTE."

"HOW MANY OF THEM ARE THERE?" LAUNDON ASKED.

"AT LEAST ONE HUNDRED TROOPS" WAS THE ANSWER.

"SEND ME BY THE DIRECT ROUTE--I WILL GIVE THEM A FIGHT IF THEY ARE LOOKING FOR ONE," SAID LAUNDON.

LAUNDON SET OUT WITH HIS TANKS AND MEN AT 10 P.M. IN A NIGHT MARCH OF THE KIND FOR WHICH THE TIMBERWOLF DIVISION IS FAMOUS.

"BY 5:30 A.M. THIS MORNING HE HAD HIS ROADBLOCK FIRMLY SECURED," LT. COL. LEO A. HOEGH, OF CHARITON, IOWA, SAID, "AND THAT WAS AFTER A HEAVY FIGHT THAT WIPED OUT ENEMY RESISTANCE IN THE WOODS ON THE WAY. INSTEAD OF THE 100 OR LESS PRISONERS THAT WE EXPECTED, CAPT. LAUNDON SENT BACK 1,500. HE GAVE THEM MORE OF A FIGHT THAN THEY WANTED."

THIS MORNING ANOTHER GERMAN COLUMN TRIED TO BREAK OUT FROM ANOTHER WOOD IN A SMALL VILLAGE ONLY A MILE FROM THE "TIMBERWOLF" DIVISION'S COMMAND POST. THEY SHOT UP A JEEP CARRYING LT. WILLIAM R. VANDERBILT OF SHORT HILLS, N.J., BUT HE ESCAPED UNINJURED BY RUNNING ACROSS FIELDS.

THERE WAS ONE LIGHT TANK AND FIVE SCOUT CARS CONTAINING 15 RECONNOITERING GERMANS IN THE COLUMN.

"THEY CUT LOOSE ON ME AT ABOUT 150 YARDS WITH MACHINE GUNS AND GOT MY JEEP, BUT I GOT AWAY," SAID VANDERBILT WHO WAS RELUCTANT TO DISCUSS HIS EXPERIENCE BECAUSE HE DIDN'T WANT HIS FAMILY TO WORRY ABOUT HIM.

"THEN THEY ROLLED INTO A SMALL VILLAGE AND SHOT UP SOME MAINTENANCE VEHICLES REPAIRING SEVERAL OF OUR TRUCKS," VANDERBILT SAID. "THE FIRING WOKE UP SOME DOUGHBOYS SLEEPING IN HOUSES IN THE VILLAGE. THEY CAME OUT WITH BAZOOKAS AND RIFLES AND KILLED OR CAPTURED EVERY GERMAN."

NUMEROUS SUCH SMALL-SCALE SCRAPS ARE TAKING PLACE ALL ALONG THE PERIMETER OF THE POCKET--WHICH HAS SHAPED UP EXACTLY LIKE THE BATTLES OF MONS AND THE FALAISE GAP LAST SUMMER--BUT THE CHIEF BREAKOUT BLOWS BY THE NAZIS AGAINST FIRST ARMY TROOPS ARE BEING CONCENTRATED IN THE PADERBORN VICINITY.

"THEY ARE TRYING WITH EVERYTHING THEY CAN PUT TOGETHER TO PUSH THROUGH TO PADERBORN TO THE NORTH GERMAN PLAINS TO TRY TO SALVAGE WHAT THEY HAVE LEFT OF THEIR ARMIES," SAID CAPT. DAN MAGNUSSEN, OF GREEN BAY, WIS. "THEY PARTICULARLY WANT TO GET THEIR HEAVY ARMORED STUFF OUT AND IF THEY TRY TO BY-PASS PADERBORN ON THE NORTH THEIR TANKS BOG DOWN IN THE MARSHES."

TO REACH THE CRITICAL PADERBORN ROAD NET--AMERICAN TANKS CAN INTERDICT THE ESCAPE HIGHWAYS BY FIRE FROM THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE CITY--THE THIRD ARMORED "SPEARHEAD" DIVISION SET A NEW RECORD FOR AN ARMORED DIVISION IN COMBAT BY TRAVELING 115 MILES IN A 24-HOUR MARCH.

GERMAN SOLDIERS BY THE HUNDREDS ARE DESERTING AND CHANGING INTO CIVILIAN CLOTHING HOPING TO ESCAPE BECOMING PRISONERS. OTHER UNITS ARE DESTROYING AND ABANDONING THEIR EQUIPMENT AND THEN ARE TRYING TO MARCH ACROSS AMERICAN LINES ON FOOT. BUT THEY STILL ARE ORGANIZED AS FIGHTING UNITS AND CARRY ENOUGH AUTOMATIC WEAPONS TO PUT UP A SCRAP.

TO CLEAN OUT THE VILLAGES WHERE THESE OUTFITS ENTER AND HOLE-UP AFTER AMERICAN ARMOR PASSES THROUGH, THE "TIMBERWOLF" DIVISION HAS FORMED 15 TO 20 INFANTRY AND TANK FORCES WHICH COMB THEM OUT MINUTELY.

IN SOME THEY HAVE HAD BITTER FIGHTS, BUT THEY HAVE FOUND IT EASIER TO APPEAL TO THE GERMAN CIVILIAN'S MUNICIPAL AND PERSONAL THRIFT AND HIS LOVE OF PROPERTY.

"WE JUST ROLL THROUGH A TOWN AND BOTTLE UP ALL ROADS LEADING OUT," SAID LT. COL. HOEGH. "THEN THE TASK FORCE COMMANDER JUST CALLS ON THE BURGOMEISTER OR ANOTHER LEADING CIVILIAN AND TELLS HIM: 'EITHER YOU WILL IMMEDIATELY DELIVER UP ALL GERMAN SOLDIERS HIDING IN YOUR VILLAGE OR WE WILL FIGHT OUR WAY THROUGH IT WITH TANKS STREET BY STREET AND HOUSE BY HOUSE--AND IN THAT CASE YOUR VILLAGE WILL BE DESTROYED.'

"AND IN NO TIME AT ALL," SAID HOEGH, "THE CIVILIANS HAVE THEIR SOLDIERS COMING OUT WITH THEIR HANDS UP AND PILING THEIR RIFLES AND MACHINE GUNS IN THE CENTER OF THE STREETS. THAT SAVES LIVES ALL AROUND."

CALCUTTA, MARCH 31-(AP)-BRITISH 14TH ARMY TROOPS DRIVING SOUTH IN CENTRAL BURMA HAVE CAPTURED KYAUKSE AND ESTABLISHED CONTACT WITH FORCES HEADING NORTH FROM THE MEIKTILA AREA, TRAPPING JAPANESE FORCES HEMMED IN BETWEEN THAT AREA AND ALLIED POSITIONS ALONG THE IRRAWADDY RIVER TO THE WEST.

THE JAPANESE WERE COMPRESSED INTO AN EVER-NARROWING POCKET. STRONG ENEMY REARGUARD UNITS BATTLED SAVAGELY SOUTHEAST OF KYAUKSE TO COVER THE MAIN BODY'S WITHDRAWAL FROM THE CITY, WHICH IS 24 MILES SOUTH OF MANDALAY ON THE MAIN TRUNK ROAD AND RAILWAY, THE SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCED.

THE LINKUP OF THE TWO BRITISH FORCES WAS ESTABLISHED AT A POINT TEN MILES NORTHEAST OF MEIKTILA. THE TOWN OF MAHLAING, 20 MILES NORTHWEST OF MEIKTILA, WAS ENTERED EARLY YESTERDAY. SEVERAL MORE ENEMY GUN POSITIONS IN THE MEIKTILA AREA WERE OVERRUN.

ENEMY POSITIONS IN THE HILLS OVERLOOKING THE ROAD FROM MYINGYANG TO MEIKTILA AT TAUNGTHA, 12 MILES SOUTHEAST OF MYINGYANG, HAVE BEEN CLEARED. THE ADVANCE HERE FORGED THE WESTERN JAW OF THE TRAP. THE BRITISH CAPTURED NATOGYI, 18 MILES EAST OF MYINGYANG ON THE ROAD TO THE MAIN NORTH-SOUTH HIGHWAY.

ALLIED AIRCRAFT RANGED OVER MANY PARTS OF BURMA YESTERDAY, ATTACKING JAPANESE STORAGE AREAS AND RAIL INSTALLATIONS.

NIMITZ COMMUNIQUE SAID THE BRITISH FORCE OF AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, BATTLESHIPS AND SUPPORTING UNITS, UNDER SPRUANCE'S OPERATIONAL COMMAND, WAS CONTINUING ITS ATTACK TODAY ON THE RYUKYUS' SOUTHERN SAKISHIMA GROUP.

AMERICAN-BASED SUPERFORTRESSES, MEANWHILE, ATTACKED AIRFIELDS ON THE SOUTH JAPAN MAINLAND ISLAND OF KYUSHU, FURTHER CRIPPLING THE ENEMY'S ABILITY TO SEND PLANES IN SUPPORT OF THE RYUKYUS DEFENDERS. A SMALLER FORCE OF B-29S ATTACKED THE AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION CENTER OF NAGOYA, ON HONSHU. IT WAS THE 11TH B-29 ATTACK ON THE CITY.

A137KX

NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE ALSO ANNOUNCED U.S.WARSHIPS BOMBARDED MINAMI DAITO, EAST OF THE RYUKYUS, THE NIGHT OF MARCH 27-28. THE FOLLOWING NIGHT TWO CARRIER TASK FORCES ATTACKED KYUSHU AND THE RYUKYUS.

THESE FORCES, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, SANK OR DAMAGED 47 JAPANESE SHIPS AND DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 86 PLANES AND ONE GLIDER. EIGHTEEN ENEMY SHIPS WERE LISTED AS DEFINITELY SUNK, 14 PROBABLY SUNK AND 15 DAMAGED. THE CARRIER PILOTS AND FLEET GUNNERS SHOT DOWN 29 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT. SIXTEEN OTHERS WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND AND 42 OTHERS DAMAGED.

TWELVE AMERICAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN AND SIX PILOTS LOST.

TOKYO'S REPORT OF THE NEW TORPEDO BOAT ATTACK--IT MIGHT BE LIKENED TO A WATERBUG ATTACKING A LAUNCH--PLACED THE SPRUANCE-MITSCHER FORCE OFF THE RYUKYUS, PRESUMABLY CONTINUING ITS AERIAL BOMBING AND S IPS' SHELLING ONSLAUGHT FOR THE NINTH CONSECUTIVE DAY. EARLIER, MITSCHER'S CARRIER PLANES HAD BOMBED, ROCKETED AND STRAFED SOUTHERN HONSHU, SHIKOKU AND KYUSHU IN THE JAPANESE HOMELAND.

DESPITE NIMITZ'S CONTINUED SILENCE REGARDING HIS IMMEDIATE INTENTIONS IN THE RYUKYUS--TOKYO REPORTED AMERICAN LANDINGS WERE MADE LAST SUNDAY ON TWO SMALL ISLANDS OFF STRATEGICALLY LOCATED OKINAWA ISLAND--THE FAR WESTERN PACIFIC OFFENSIVE MAINTAINED A FAMILIAR PATTERN.

WHILE WARSHIPS POURED THOUSANDS OF SHELLS AND CARRIER PLANES DROPPED MANY TONS OF BOMBS ONTO RYUKYUS TARGETS, GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED THAT BOTH ARMY AND NAVY LANDBASED PLANES ATTACKED FORMOSA, AND GEN.H.H.ARNOLD IN WASHINGTON REPORTED A NEW B-29 STRIKE AT NAGOYA, IMPORTANT AIRPLANE PRODUCTION CENTER ON HONSHU.

TOKYO RADIO REPORTED OTHER FLIGHTS OF MARIANAS-BASED B-29S FOLLOWED UP TODAY WITH A SERIES OF RAIDS CENTERED ON KYUSHU SOUTHERNMOST ISLAND OF JAPAN AND JUST NORTH OF THE RYUKYUS. SHORTLY AFTER MIDNIGHT SUPERFORTS LOOSED INCENDIARIES IN THE NAGASAKI AREA ON KYUSHU WHILE ANOTHER FORMATION RAIDED THE INLAND SEA AND ADJACENT BUNGO STRAIT.

SHORTLY BEFORE NOON, TOKYO SAID, "MORE THAN 100" SUPERFORTS STRUCK AT KYUSHU "CONCENTRATING THEIR ATTACKS MAINLY ON AIRFIELDS AND AIRFIELD FACILITIES. THE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY EXPRESSED BELIEF B-29 STRIKES WOULD "BE FURTHER INTENSIFIED AGAINST KYUSHU TO SUPPORT THE "NAVAL OPERATIONS AGAINST OKINAWA.

THE RAID ON OFT-HIT NAGOYA, WHERE SEVERAL SQUARE MILES OF FACTORIES AND HOMES WERE DEVASTATED IN TWO PREVIOUS BIG-SCALE ATTACKS, WAS MADE BY A SMALL FORCE OF SUPERFORTRESSES, PROBEBLY ABOUT 50. NO DETAILS HAVE BEEN ANNOUNCED. TOKYO RADIO SAID A FEW OF THE B-29S ALSO BOMBED THE KURE NAVAL BASE.

MACARTHUR SAID NAVY AND FIFTH ARMY AIR FORCE LIBERATORS HAMMERED FORMOSA TARGETS AND IN ONE REMARKABLE AIR ACTION, A SINGLE B-24 ATTACKED FOUR TRAINS, DESTROYING ALL LOCOMOTIVES AND DERAILING MANY CARS. MANY SMALL SHIPS WERE SUNK OFF FORMOSA.

NIMITZ'S COMMUNIQUE TOLD ONLY TERSELY THAT THE AERIAL AND SHIP BOMBARDMENT OF THE RYUKYUS CONTINUED FRIDAY AGAINST SHORE INSTALLATIONS. HE REPORTED 15 ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND--- PROBEBLY ON OKINAWA AIRFIELDS---IN ADDITION TO THE 17 ATTACKING THE FLEET.

THERE WAS NO FURTHER MENTION OF THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET, WHICH THE ADMIRAL ON THE PREVIOUS DAY ANNOUNCED HAD BOMBED AND BOMBARDED THE SAKISHIMA GROUP IN THE SOUTHERN RYUKYUS.

ROAMING THE SEA LANES THROUGH WHICH JAPAN STILL IS TRYING TO SUPPLY HER HOMELAND, BOMBERS DESTROYED A TEN-SHIP CONVOY, STEAMING NORTH OFF FRENCH INDO-CHINA. TWO DESTROYERS, THREE OTHER ESCORTS AND FIVE CARGO VESSELS TOTALING 23,000 TONS WERE SUNK. FIVE JAPANESE PLANES ATTEMPTING TO COVER THE CONVOY WERE SHOT DOWN AND TWO OTHERS POSSIBLY DESTROYED. Add Manila, Philippines (Schaller) x installations.

TO THE NORTH, THREE FREIGHTERS OF 1,000 TO 3,000 TONS EACH AND A DESTROYER WERE SUNK OFF HAINAN.

MAINTAINING THEIR DAILY SCHEDULE OF BOMBING FORMOSA, MEDIUM AND ATTACK PLANES STRUCK THE BYORITSU OIL REFINERY AND A SUGAR AND ALCOHOL REFINERY. EXPLOSIONS AND FIRES INDICATED CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE, MACARTHK REPORTED. HEAVY BOMBERS RAIDED THE TOSHIEN DOCKS, FIRING STORES, DESTROYING FIVE PATROL CRAFT AND HITTING AN ANCHORED MERCHANT VESSEL.

OTHER AERIAL STRIKES WERE MADE AGAINST OELIN AIRDROME NEAR BANJERMASIN IN BORNEO, ENEMY BARRACKS AND A SMALL FREIGHTER IN THE CELEBES, AND ANTIAIRCRAFT POSITIONS, SUPPLY AREAS AND BIVOUACS IN THE HALMAHERAS.

THE AMERICAN AIRMEN LAST MONTH ALSO HAVE POUNDED THE VITAL RAIL LINES WHICH SERVE FORMOSA'S WEST AND EAST COASTS.

RANGING OVER THE PESCADORES GROUP, WEST OF FORMOSA, THE YANK BOMBERS HAVE HIT THE BIG ANSAN NAVAL BASE AT MAKO WITH HUNDREDS OF TONS OF EXPLOSIVES.

IN FLIGHTS DESCRIBED BY AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS AS "AIR STERILIZATION" OPERATIONS, PATROL PLANES HIT JAPANESE SHIPPING AT FORMOSA AND THE SOUTHERN TYUKYUS, SINKING OR DAMAGING AROUND 70 VESSELS RANGING FROM 10,000-TON FREIGHTERS TO SMALL COASTAL CRAFT.

SHIPS DAMAGED BY THE PHILIPPINE AIRMEN INCLUDED FIVE TORPEDO BOATS CAUGHT AT OKINAWA RECENTLY--THE TYPE OF ENEMY CRAFT WHICH HAS BEEN PRESSING ATTACKS AGAINST AMERICAN WARSHIPS AROUND THE ISLAND.

THE YANK AIRMEN ALSO DESTROYED MORE THAN 50 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT DURING THE MARCH SWEEPS, WITH THE RETURNS NOT YET ALL IN.

HEADQUARTERS YESTERDAY ALSO ANNOUNCED AMERICAN SEIZURE OF CABALLO ISLAND IN MANILA BAY SOUTH OF CORREGIDOR.

THE JAPANESE GARRISON ON CABALLO, ONCE PART OF AMERICAN COAST ARTILLERY FORTIFICATIONS IN THE DAY, BITTERLY OPPOSED THE INVADING 38TH DIVISION UNITS. OF THE ESTIMATED 500 JAPANESE, 220 WERE KILLED, AMERICAN OFFICERS SAID, AND MOST OF THE REMAINDER WERE SEALED IN THEIR CAVE DEFENSES.

NEGROS (WITH PIPS) (220)
BY RICHARD BERGHOLZ

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, PHILIPPINES, MARCH 30-(DELAYED)(AP)-A VALIANT PICKED CREW OF 40TH DIVISION DOUGHBOYS WHO LANDED BEFORE DAWN YESTERDAY AND SECURED A GIANT STEEL BRIDGE WERE CREDITED TODAY BY EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS WITH GREATLY AIDING THE LIGHTNING INVASION OF NEGROS ISLAND.

THREE AND A HALF HOURS BEFORE MAJ.GEN.RAPP BRUSH'S FORCE SWEPT ASHORE AT PANDAN POINT, THIS SMALL UNIT SNEAKED ASHORE AND DROVE QUICKLY TO THE BAGO RIVER BRIDGE, A FINE SPAN STRUCTURE WHICH CAREFULLY HAD BEEN AVOIDED BY AMERICAN BOMBERS.

THE SMALL BAND FOUND THE 650 FOOT BRIDGE HEAVILY MINED WITH AERIAL BOMBS AND WIRED FOR INSTANTANEOUS DETONATION. THE DOUGHBOYS CAPTURED THE DEMOLITION CHARGES AND SET UP DEFENSES. WHEN A 10-MAN JAPANESE DEMOLITION SQUAD SCURRIED TO THE BRIDGE AS THE MAIN AMERICAN INVASION FORCE BEGAN LANDING, THE LITTLE YANK UNIT KILLED EVERY ONE OF THE NIPPONESE.

A COMBAT TEAM COMMANDED BY COL.JOHN B.MALONEY, DRIVING NORTH ALONG THE NEGROS COAST, DISCOVERED THAT CONTROL OF THE BAGO RIVER BRIDGE WAS THE KEY TO SUCCESS OF THE OPERATION.

THE RIVER COULD NOT BE FORDED. MUD FLATS AND SWAMPS PROHIBITED ANY OTHER LANDING THAN AT PANDAN POINT. IF THE BRIDGE HAD BEEN BLOWN, THE ENTIRE INVASION FORCE WOULD HAVE BEEN STALLED UNTIL EXPENSIVE BRIDGE BUILDING MATERIAL COULD HAVE BEEN BROUGHT IN.

BY NIGHTFALL, BRUSH'S JUNGLE VETERANS, MANY OF WHOM ARE FORMER PACIFIC NORTHWEST NATIONAL GUARDSMEN, REACHED 14 MILES TO THE LUPIT RIVER ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF BACOLOD. DURING THE NIGHT, THEY FOUGHT OFF A VICIOUS JAPANESE ATTACK WHICH FAILED TO KNOCK OUT A LUPIT RIVER BRIDGE.

TODAY, THE DRIVE CONTINUED AGAINST STIFFENING RESISTANCE UNTIL THE YANKS BROKE INTO BACOLOD.

HE DIDN'T MISS.

THE DESTRUCTION OF 10 ENEMY SHIPS BY AERIAL ACTION WAS DISCLOSED TODAY IN A HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE.

FLYING A LIBERATOR, LT.WILLIAM H.WILLIAMS, FORT WORTH,TEX., FIRST SIGHTED THE CONVOY. A DIRECT HIT BY BOMBARDIER LT.JOHN T.PRUNZINSKY, BLAKESLEE,PA., SANK A TANKER.

INTERCEPTING ZEROS SO BADLY SHOT UP THE LIBERATOR THAT IT HAD TO CRASH LAND ON ITS HOME FIELD BUT IT MANAGED TO CALL ON B-25S OF THE FAMED AIR APACHE GROUP.

THESE MITCHELLS ARRIVED OVER THE SHIPS IN FORCE, COVERED BY LIGHTNINGS.

THE WEATHER AT TIMES WAS SO THICK THAT "WE BOMBED ON THE FLASHES OF THE SHIPS' ACK ACK GUNS," SAID LT.COL.CHESTER H.COLTHARP, NEWPORT,ARK., WHO LED THE ATTACK IN A PLANE FLOWN BY LT.JACK J. JONES, WACO,TEX.

CHICAGO,MARCH 31-(AP)-A BRIEF IN DEFENSE OF THE GOVERNMENT'S DEC.28 SEIZURE OF MONTGOMERY WARD AND COMPANY PROPERTIES IN SEVEN CITIES WAS FILED BY THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT TODAY WITH THE U.S. CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS.
APPEALING FROM THE JAN.27 DECISION OF DISTRICT COURT JUDGE PHILIP L.SULLIVAN OF CHICAGO, WHICH HELD THAT ARMY SEIZURE OF THE MAIL ORDER HOUSE PROPERTIES FOR NON-COMPLIANCE WITH A WAR LABOR BOARD DIRECTIVE WAS UNLAWFUL, THE GOVERNMENT REITERATED ITS CONTENTIONS THAT IN ORDERING THE SEIZURE THE PRESIDENT HAD ACTED ON POWERS DELEGATED TO HIM BY THE CONSTITUTION AND THE WAR LABOR DISPUTES ACT.
DEFENDING WHAT THE GOVERNMENT SAID WAS THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S POWER TO ORDER PROPERTY SEIZURE IN TIME OF WAR, THE 100-PAGE BRIEF DECLARED:
"THE EXECUTIVE POSSESSES A POWER OF THIS KIND IN THE ABSENCE OF STATUTORY AUTHORIZATION. THIS POWER IS OF TWO TYPES, ONE BASED IN ESSENCE ON THE POLICE POWER AND ONE IN THE NATURE OF A POWER OF EMINENT DOMAIN.
"THE POLICE POWER TYPE OF TAKING (PROPERTY) AS IT OCCURS IN CONNECTION WITH THE WAR POWER REQUIRES EXTREME MILITARY NECESSITY, MUST BE IN THE THEATRE OF ACTUAL MILITARY OPERATIONS, AND DOES NOT REQUIRE COMPENSATION. THAT POWER IS NOT INVOLVED IN THIS CASE.
"THE EMINENT DOMAIN TYPE OF TAKING REQUIRES NECESSITY, CAN BE EXERCISED WITHOUT REGARD TO ITS PHYSICAL RELATION TO THE FIELD OF BATTLE, AND REQUIRES CMMPENSATION. THAT POWER IS INVOLVED IN THIS CASE.
"IT IS RECOGNIZED THAT WHEN PROPERTY IS TAKEN UNDER THE EMINENT DOMAIN POWER WITH RESPONSIBILITY FOR JUST COMPENSATION, THE OWNER SUFFERS NO GREATER INJURY FROM THE TAKING THAN ANY OTHER PERSON WHOSE PROPERTY IS TAKEN BY THE NORMAL LEGISLATIVE EMINENT DOMAIN PROCESS.
"IT IS THEREFORE RECOGNIZED THAT A DIFFERENT FORM OF NECESSITY WILL JUSTIFY EMINENT DOMAIN TAKINGS THAN WILL SUPPORT TAKINGS WITHOUT COMPENSATION."
